Yesterday was one of the most uncomfortable days of the season. The mercury stood at about 8 degrees above zero throughout the day and a high wind made living almost unbearable out of doors.

Several vessels with freight for this city are held up in New London awaiting the opening of navigation.

A race came off Saturday between Isaac Sanderson's chestnut mare Lady Tilton and a bay gelding owned in Franklin, for a purse of $50 a side. The distance was from the Hyde Tavern to Little Plain and Mr. Sanderson's mare won the race.

Tuesday, March 2, 1875—Several important positions were presented before the court of common council last evening. J. P. Collins asked permission to tear down a building on East Thames street, known as the old bolley shop, to erect a large wooden building to be used in his business. C. H. Smiggles wanted to build a new coal house at 43 East Thames street and C. A. Converse wanted to erect a brick building adjoining that of the Hood Fire Arms company.

One of the heaviest snow falls of the winter commenced yesterday morning and by night the depth had reached several inches. Late in the night it began to fall promising fine traveling on city streets today.

The railroad shops began running on full time yesterday—ten hours.

The ferry slip on the Groton side slipped into the water yesterday and submarine divers were called to put it back into its proper location for use by the ferry boat Uncas.

Wednesday, March 3, 1875—The large factory of Ray, Butts & Co., narrowly escaped being destroyed by fire yesterday. About 3 o'clock in the evening the watchman discovered a pile of axe handles afire in the boiler room and gave the alarm which called out most of the apparatus in the city. There was no water in the nearest reservoir and it was necessary to go to the river for it, fully half an hour passing before any water could be obtained. By that time the roof of the boiler room had fallen in and the entire wing of the factory gutted. The fire was finally checked after a loss of several hundred dollars had resulted from the fire.

A man writes to the Bulletin that the answer to the puzzle is "Ace". He says an Ace is the only thing that will kill a king and that he had seen four of them break a wise man, if they didn't drive him mad.

A party of Preston ladies of great delicacy refused to go through one of the local gun shops yesterday, because of the report that some of the guns had no breeches on them.

Yesterday was a fine day for sleighing but most young men thought it hardly cold enough to take a young lady out riding. Sleighs were out however, and considerable trotting was done.

The sum of $40,000 was appropriated by the house of representatives yesterday for a naval station at New London.

Thursday, March 4, 1875—Norwich had the honor of firing the first emancipation salute ever fired in Connecticut—but it was a hollow one. James Lloyd Greene, then mayor of Norwich, caused a salute of 100 guns to be fired when the news of the signing of the Emancipation Proclamation became known, but the city could not pay the bill as five voters—evidently for slavery—caused an injunction to be served on the city treasurer to stop payment for the salute. Mayor Greene paid for it out of his own pocket. Mayor Greene also caused a salute to be fired when President Grant made his statement concerning peace in Louisiana.

A number of local fox hunters have enjoyed the sport on the East end of Long Island this winter, bringing home a brush or two each trip.

Friday, March 5, 1875—The solidity of the ice in the river and the lateness of the season have awakened serious apprehensions of late. A number of business men on the lower streets have made arrangements with George D. Fuller, the sub-marine contractor, to break up the main floes in the Thames river, near the wharves, by using gunpowder. Work will be started this noon. Though this seems late for the ice to go out it is on record that it remained in the river one year until March 20th, this being in 1867.

A billiard match will be played tonight between Frank Adams and Melvin Foster, Foster to use a cue and Adams his hand, the latter making a thousand on one run or counting nothing. He will also give an exhibition of foreign shots.

It is being urged all over the state that local clubs organize for the purpose of protecting fish and game in the state. Norwich will probably fall in line with other cities of the state in forming such a club.

Saturday, March 6, 1875—There are several whaling clubs on the east end of Long Island and one of the clubs landed the first whale of the season recently. It yielded nearly forty barrels of oil, which, with the bone, is valued at from $1,200 to $1,500.

Large, old fashioned hoop ear-rings are coming back into style again, and many an attic is being searched for those grandma wore back in 1812.

The oldest inhabitant of Stonington steps up and claims that the sound has not been blocked with ice as heavy as it is this year, since 1820.

People in the port towns in the county are talking of fitting out one or more sperm whalers this season.

A sleigh race between this city and New London is being planned by owners of some of the fastest roadsters in town.

The snow in the city is now about eight inches deep and in the country has drifted to a depth of several feet. Sleighing is excellent.

Steamboat men say that Wednesday night was the worst of the winter for navigation.

Several attempts made yesterday to blow up the ice in the harbor were so successful that more will be made in hopes of breaking it up and starting navigation once more. Cans containing 35 pounds of gunpowder were lowered below the ice and exploded, throwing the ice high into the air and opening up large cracks that ran for several hundred feet into the harbor.

WOULD CENTER AIR TRAINING AT HARTFORD

With the ultimate object in view of making the Hartford aviation field the training headquarters for all of the regular army reserve officer and militia aviation units in New England, Captain L. R. Knight, corps area air officer in charge of the New England area was in Hartford recently in consultation with military and aviation officials of the city and state discussing the matter and endeavoring to ascertain how the proposed locating of the base there was regarded by the city and state. He talked with Hiram Percy Maxim, president of the Hartford aviation commission, Clarence M. Knox, of the commission, and a member of the aviation squadron, and with Adjutant General Cole. He found all of these heartily in accord with the proposal and before he left today expressed the hope that the establishment of the base would be started early in the spring. The matter has not been taken up with the authorities in Washington, he said, and would not be until something definite in the line of a plan for it was ready. This is expected in the near future.

In addition to bringing the army flying forces to Hartford, he said, the plan would also have an important bearing upon bringing the air mail to Hartford, making this city a stopping point between New York and Boston, where the mail for a number of surrounding towns and cities could be left for distribution.

At present the New England air units have to go outside of New England for their training field. Under the proposed plan the two national guard units, the reserve officers' training corps of about 120 reserve officers and one regular army squadron would use the Hartford field for their training each summer. The training period would take about four months of the warm season and there would be a semi-permanent camp, with barracks and quarters for the men and officers. The plan also includes the erection of another hangar for the army planes that would be used by the officers' reserve corps.

"The Hartford aviation field is, in my opinion, the best municipal field in the country," said Captain Knight. "It is well adapted to the use that would be made of it if the training camp was established there, and the use of it for that purpose would not interfere in any way with the uses being made of it at present. Just now the New England aviation units go either to Mitchell field in New York or Langley field in Virginia for their training. Hartford could give New England its own training station. The field is known to the aviators all over the country and is regarded as a good safe field. It is on the army flight maps as on the route between Boston and New York, and at present it is used by many of the army fliers making the trip. The location there of the New England training field would not only do a lot for the aviation service in New England, but it would do much toward bringing Hartford more recognition as one of the leading aviation cities in the country.

"More than that, it would have an important bearing upon the bringing to Hartford of the air mail and making this an air mail port. The air mails between New York and Boston will start in the spring, I believe. Hartford, on a line between Boston and New York, is well situated to be the air mail port for a number of the cities and towns within a radius of 30 or 40 miles and a landing there, which would take only a couple of minutes for the leaving or taking on of mail would save several hours in the delivery of air mail which now comes from New York. After the planes land there it takes about an hour to transport the mail to New York before it can continue its journey.

"If I find that the proposal meets with the approval of the city and state, steps will be taken at once to proceed with the work necessary to fix that part of the field necessary for the training so that it will be in readiness for the training of the units this year. The units would be given extensive and intensive training there that other fields in the state are not suited for, and for about four months of the year the field would be a very busy place."

MANY USES FOR BAMBOO IN CHINA AND JAPAN

Chicago celebrates the two-score anniversary of chop suey, and illustrates how a luncheon fad among state street shoppers literally transformed hillside landscapes in Japan and China.

"Chop suey is a stranger to China—it is as American as ice cream or 'hot dog'—but its making requires bamboo sprouts from China and Japan," says a bulletin from the Washington, D. C., headquarters of the National Geographic society. "When the United States began buying the succulent sprouts the effect upon the thrifty farmers on Honshu and Kiangsu was akin to a Nebraska granger finding acres of weeds turned to wheat. Edible bamboo had been scrub bamboo; soon its yield vied with timber bamboo.

"Of course it did not take an American food fancy to show the orient that bamboo sprouts were good eating. The Japanese variety of the grass which yields the most luscious sprouts is known as Moso—a designation that goes back to the '24 paragons of Chinese filial piety.'

'Once a widowed mother, so the story goes, fell ill in midwinter, and longed for hot broth made of bamboo shoots. Her devoted son dug down in the snow to find them for her, and the gods rewarded his piety by raising up shoots that grew to an amazing size. Japanese artists, to this day, perpetuate this Jack-and-the-bamboo-stalk legend by their drawings of the boy, Moso.

"The actual facts about the bamboo are fabulous enough. It is a grass, and provides wood of more numerous uses than any tree. One root may project a hundred straight, polished, jointed stems into the air; these grow as high as 120 feet; and their rate of growth has been marked at more than two feet a day.

"A Chinese or Japanese family eat bamboo, sleep under it, sail the river on it, write with a pen and paper made from it, comb their hair with it, cut their food with it, pipe water with it, and make their bird cages of it. Western people multiplied its uses by their inventions and employ it for airplanes, flutes, hairpins, porch screens and phonograph needles.

"Bamboo has been called one of Nature's most valuable gifts to man. In parts of Kiangsu Province, China, and in large tracts of rural Japan, it would not be amiss to speak of the bamboo age; keeping in mind, however, that the 'bamboo civilization' is much farther advanced than the 'date palm civilization' of the Sahara or the 'coconut palm civilizations' of the South Sea Islands.

"The giant bamboos are true grasses. They send underground stems long distances through the soil, binding it together with hard, flintlike root stalks, or rhizomes. From this network of roots and rhizomes they send upward the most rapid-growing shoots of any plant known. While the shoots are so fresh and tender that they can be snapped off with the hand and cooked to an asparagus-like delicacy; bamboo wood is the strongest known timber for its weight, and its hard, siliceous exterior makes it serve for knives and whet-stones.

"Despite its numerous uses the grass is valued also for its beauty. The trees of China and Japan lend a charm to many landscapes. They are waving plumes of delicate green foliage, which, whether seen against the skyline or backed by a darker mass of orest, always give a peculiar softness to the scene.'

"Makers of scores of manufactured products would be inconvenienced if they were deprived of bamboo; epicures would be saddened; but the American small boy would be desolated if the millions of bamboo poles shipped here every year were cut off. What would he do for his fishing rods?"

POETRY

March

Sister of winter, art thou here again?
O welcome, thou that bring'st the summer nigh!
The bitter wind makes not thy victory vain,
Nor will we mock thee for they faint blue sky.
Welcome, O March! whose kindly days and dry
Make April ready for the throstle's song,
Thou first redresser of the winter's wrong!

Yea, welcome, March! and though I die ere June,
Yet for the hope of life I give thee praise.
Striving to swell the burden of the tune
That even now I hear thy brown birds raise.
Unmindful of the past or coming days;
Who sing, "O joy! a new year is begun!
What happiness to look upon the sun!"

O what begetteth all this storm of bliss,
But Death himself, who, crying solemnly,
Even from the heart of sweet Forgetfulness,
Bids us, "Rejoice! lest pleasureless ye die.
Within a little time must ye go by.
Stretch forth your open hands, and, while ye live,
Take all the gifts that Death and Life may give."

—William Morris

Invisible

My cryptic comes padding to my room.
And curls herself before the birchwood fire,
She purrs, I ponder; cat and woman stare
Into the blue-gold blaze with thoughtful eyes.
I watch the logs and dream of love and art
Like lifted torches lighting up my life.

What is the cat's thought? Are her dreams of days
In Egypt of the Sphinx when palace
And templed shrines were dwellings for a cat?
Was she a goddess once, and worshipped then
With altar, priest and sacrificial fires
Whose light was mirrored in her sacred eyes,
Or in the warmth of my low-rafftered room,
Is she reliving royal Winter nights
At Pharoah's feet, in columned halls now dust?

How dwarfed my little hopes beside her dreams
Of courts and kings and spacious ages past—
My brittle hopes of faltering love and fame!

Deigning me casual grace a queen might give
A captive handmaid who has pleased her whim.
She leans her head upon my knee, secure
As if she slept upon a couch of gold,
Watched by the sleepless vigil of her slave
In Luxor, lordly centuries ago.
And conscious still of ancient majesty,
She holds inviolate her silent soul
—Agnes Kendrick Gray, in Contemporary Verse.

When it comes to average intelligence, the women are ahead 595 out of 1,000 being in that category, while only 360 out of 1,000 men thus qualify.

The first street lighting on record was in 1558, when the people of Paris, France, were ordered to place lighted candles in front of their houses. In 1788, pitch or resin bowls were substituted for the candles. The first use of illuminating gas for street lighting was in London in 1809. In 1821, Baltimore, Md., used illuminating gas for street lighting. The first electric lights made their appearance in New York city in 1881, while gas mantle lights did not appear, for street lighting until 15 years later, in 1896.

WM. C. BARTLETT HELD AT NEW LONDON CAUSED DEATH OF DOLLY WENCH

(Special to the Bulletin)

New London, March 6—County Detective William Lewis and Sergeant John J. Cavanaugh tonight arrested William C. Bartlett, 25 Henry street, charged with manslaughter in causing the death of Miss Dolly Wench, formerly of 129 Baltimore avenue, Hartford and formerly employed as Southern New England Telephone company operator at the Hartford exchange. The death of the girl occurred three weeks ago at the home of her fiance, John J. Woods, 23 Ocean avenue, this city.

Bartlett, who is about 25 is being held in bonds of $10,000 and is a prisoner at the New London police station. He denies all knowledge of the death of the girl.

Bartlett resides with his mother and is understood that he has been employed as an automobile salesman and frequented a local state street hotel. It is also understood that considerable evidence has been found at the Henry street house of a character used by abortionists in performing illegal operations.

The arrest of Bartlett came as a big surprise, and resulted from a coroner's hearing in Hartford this afternoon bringing out the information that the authorities of this county sought to obtain. It had been believed that the abortion was performed in or about Hartford; but with the examination of witnesses in Hartford today it was ascertained that the operation not only was performed in New London, but took place at the residence of Woods. The officers returned to New London with Woods and two Hartford detectives and it was then the identity of the alleged abortionist was revealed. About 7.30 o'clock Detective Lewis and Sergeant Cavanaugh went to the State street hotel and placed Bartlett under arrest.

It is also rumored that other arrests will take place, probably during tonight.

From the information at hand, it is understood that the Wench girl came to New London for the sole purpose of having the operation performed and that Woods had knowledge of that fact. Woods, it is claimed, had been informed by a friend that Bartlett would perform the operation and that the services of Bartlett were obtained after Woods had been introduced to Bartlett by Woods' informer. With arrangements made, the girl came to New London and underwent the ordeal which resulted in her death about five days later.

At the time of the girl's death it was stated by Woods that she was visiting him, as she had done before, and that he was unaware of her condition, even when she developed abdominal pains and suffered hemorrhages. Fifteen minutes after these developments of the girl's condition appeared, she expired. During examination by Medical Examiner Charles Kaufman immediately following the girl's death Woods steadfastly denied any knowledge of Miss Wench's condition.

Dr. Kaufman stated that if Woods related the truth of his knowledge of the girl's condition, the abortion was committed two days prior to her arrival here and must have been performed in or about Hartford. Acting on that theory, Coroner J. J. Desmond of Norwich conducted an inquest here Wednesday. From information obtained through the major number of witnesses who appeared at the inquest in Hartford today, it became apparent that the operation was performed here and not in Hartford. This was revealed, it is understood, at today's inquest, which brought out the information that Bartlett performed the abortion and at the Woods residence.

The Manhattan restaurant was damaged by fire, shortly after 3 o'clock this morning, when a lively blaze started from overheated grease in the kitchen. A telephone message to the police station resulted in a still alarm being sent to fire headquarters and the Niagara Engine company and the Allen, Hook and Ladder company responded. The blaze was subdued with chemicals and with little damage resulting.

W. J. Tryon, employed by the Norwich Automatic Feeder company, reported to the police late this afternoon that while operating an automobile through State street, between the corner of Bank street and Railroad avenue, a box containing twelve feeders, dropped from the car. When he returned to look for the box containing the feeders he found the container, but the dozen feeders were missing.

Asa Balady, 4, son of James Balady, 24 North Bank street, while crossing Main street, near Federal street, this afternoon was struck and seriously injured by an automobile owned by Benjamin Parker, 76 Truman street. The boy sustained a slight concussion of the brain, and a possible fractured leg, besides humorous bruises. An X-ray picture will be taken of the injured leg tomorrow morning to determine whether a fracture exists. Louis Richman, driver of the automobile was arrested, charged with reckless driving and will be presented by the police court tomorrow morning, complaint having been made against Richman by Dennis Devine, Jr.

The Balady child was attempting to cross the street when the automobile headed northward is alleged to have been operated at a fast rate of speed, the child being struck. When Richmond brought the car to a stop and returned to the place where the boy lay, it was seen that the child was badly injured. He was taken to the office of a physician where the wounds were treated, after which he was taken to his home.

It is written that " it is not well for man to dwell alone" but a couple of fellows who appeared in the police court this morning took exception to that statement and said they had lived miserable lives during the time they had been married. Stephen Raymond Fraser, a railroad fireman, out of a job, was informed against by his wife, she charging that he was annoying her and that he came to her only when drunk. She also declared that he was running around with another woman, and said that she had been called on the telephone and was told that her husband was coming to see her though he is not living with her and she began a suit for divorce. She says that nothing will deter her from going ahead with her suit. Fraser admitted that she was more than half right, but he denied that he was running around and doubted whether any woman called his wife on the telephone. The couple reside on Pearl street, but the wife says her husband does not contribute to her support and that he is too cruel to live with. "I can get along without him, and I am going to do that!" she declared. Fraser was fined $10 for his conduct and was sentenced to jail for ten days, but the execution of the jail sentence was suspended for a term of six months.

Moses Allard was brought into court by his wife, Tillie, and from there he went to jail because he could not pay a fine for breach of the peace. Tillie had fire in her eyes, when she told her story to the prosecutor, and when Moses was arraigned he promptly pleaded guilty. The story of the wife was that her husband came home in a semi-joyous mood and that he hit her nose and pinched her so that she bore the marks on her body. Moses did not deny anything his wife said, but he did want a chance to pledge that he would abstain from intoxicating liquor. He has a record in the court so his promises were of no avail. He was shown the leniency that would keep him out of jail if he could settle the fine, he claiming that he had wages due to him, but when that was investigated it was very uncertain whether anyone owed him any money that would settle his bill with the court. So he went to jail and Tillie went away happy in the realization that she would not be pinched nor bitten by him any more.

John McMahon, a gardner, appeared and admitted for the third time in three days that he was drunk when arrested. He had $80 in his duds when he appeared Tuesday, and of that sum he has since paid $20 into the court treasury. He had $3.67 today when he said he desired to settle up and get back to the farm. He had lost a suitcase which he had Tuesday. That contained clothing and the latter cannot be found. The court gave McMahon a chance to go to work and to pay his fine and costs later, but he didn't take advantage of that kindness and was this afternoon turned over to the police for a fourth time by the probation officer. If it becomes necessary work that will keep the man away from indulgences in liquor can be found at the county jail.

Lucy Esposito, a youthful woman, was taken into custody by Police woman Jane Cassidy, because the former was roaming the streets and in manifest danger of falling into ways of vice. Parties from New Haven are interested in her and to give them a chance to get here the case was continued till tomorrow. The girl is said to be married and it is her husband whose appearance is awaited.

Lucy Squires, widow of Ambrose Burrows, died this morning at the Norwich State Hospital for Insane, in which institution she had been under treatment but two days, having been transferred to that hospital from Lawrence hospital Wednesday. She was of advance years and had been in declining health for some time.

Commissioner of Motor Vehicles Robbins B. Stoeckel, today caused the operator's license of William S. Young, 75 Colt street, to be returned to the owner. The license was suspended recently following the automobile Young was driving being in collision with another vehicle.

Miss Virginia Bennet, a stranger in New London who is residing temporarily at 115 Broad street, in passing Golden street this forenoon, stepped on a depression in the sidewalk in front of 26, being thrown to the walk and sustained an injury to her leg. Miss Bennet stated that he would probably institute an action for damages against the city. The walk where Miss Bennet fell has been in a condition that needed repairs for two years.

Mrs. Alexander Little, of 25 Franklin street complained to the police this morning that some time during last night clothes line thieves visited the yard at her home and stole two suits of women's undergarments and two suits of pajamas of the approximate value of $6.

The body of Alfred S. Bailey, who was found dead on the floor of his residence, 9 Hempstead street, Wednesday night of heart trouble, was forwarded to his former home in Waltham, Mass., today, where the funeral and burial will take place.

William L. Peck, 41 Blackhall street, employed several years as night clerk at the Hotel Mohican, is under treatment at Lawrence hospital, having been removed to the institution last night. Mr. Peck has long been a sufferer, and recently his condition rapidly became worse until he was deprived of the use of one leg.

Howard Maley and Joseph Lynch, two soldiers from Fort Ethan Allen were arrested, supposedly intoxicated, following the arrival in port from the island forts, Wednesday night of the government transport General Nathaniel Green, but it was later determined that they were drug addicts. They were not able to be presented in the police court this forenoon when their cases were called. The soldiers were still at the county jail in the same stupor that has marked their condition since they were taken into custody. This afternoon Sergeant John McCormick came to New London and upon orders from Judge Victor Prince Maley and Lynch were turned over to the officer and were taken back to Fort Wright and admitted to the military hospital there for treatment. The men have admitted taking a quantity of vernol and Maley has declared that they received the supply found in their possession when arrested from a soldier at the military reservation.

NEW LONDON MASONS TO ERECT NEW TEMPLE

(Special to The Bulletin)

New London, March 6—A considerable number of members of Brainard Masonic lodge have for a long time believed that the organization should have a temple in a section of the city other than at Green and Starr streets. At the time the stone building now occupied by the lodge was purchased it was in contemplation that Union lodge would join with Brainard that an imposing building might be erected. But that hope was never realized and Brainard went at the task alone. It accomplished it in so far as the payment for it entered into the plan. Now Brainard is about to realize its ambition and Brainard lodge corporation has purchased the Mercer property on Hittington street next south of the county court house and there will erect a temple that will be adequate in all respects and that will be constructed with every appointment the lodge could desire—a lodge room, banquet hall and armory for the accommodation of the Knights Templar. The new building will be a model of its kind and the plan is to make it the most pretentious in the state. That has long been the ambition of many members of Brainard. The property acquired has a frontage of 50 feet and its depth is more than 100 feet, permitting of such a structure as has been in the minds of the projectors of the new structure. It is understood that the owner of the property made terms that the lodge could not refuse unless the members were stone-blind to their own interests and to the selection of a site for a temple that is unexcelled. It is proposed to allow the building on the site, where Mr. Mercer has made his home for many years, to stand until Brainard is ready to go on with its plans to carry them to completion. Brainard has a very large membership and is growing each year. Its work is known throughout the state and its full form work attracts from every section. The only regret is that some of the members of Brainard who long since went to their reward could not realize the accomplishment of the hope that so fondly cherished.

PIPELESS HEATING PERFECTED!
Here it is

New And Higher Standards Of Pipeless Heating Efficiency And Economy, Established By Bond Construction And Performance!

Proportioned and constructed to employ Pipeless Heating Principles with greatest possible efficiency; to permanently insure, to its users, abundant, healthful warmth and comfort—with cleanliness, economy and the utmost convenience in operation. BOND construction and performance establish new and higher standards in Pipeless Heating efficiency and economy.

The size, shape and weight of the Heating Element are among the prime factors perfected in the BOND —The size of air channels; the method of insulating between air intake and outgoing heat channels, —both of these points so vitally important in safeguarding continuous circulation and uniform heat distribution, are brought to PERFECTION in the BOND.

Perfected Advantages YOUR Pipeless Should Have!

The FIRE POT with nearly-straight-sides to radiate a greater percentage of the total heat generated into your home, instead of allowing it to be wasted up the chimney; smooth inside to prevent insulating ashes clinging to sides; the larger grate area to give maximum heating capacity to each size BOND (for the extremely-cold-day emergencies); the heavier and stronger re-enforcement of both upper and lower Fire Pot Sections —to withstand intense heat without warping or cracking and to prevent leakage of gas or dust and loss of complete control over the fire at all times.

The extra heavy, standard, TRI-ANGULAR GRATE BARS, constructed to automatically leave the flat sides up each time they are shaken—positively preventing the usual warping and breaking from projecting of grates into fire. Materially strengthens the "weakest link" in any heater.

The dustless, waist-high SHAKING DEVICE, which enables either man or woman to shake the grates with least possible effort—no stooping—and no leakage of dust into basement. Pronounced the most important advancement of grate construction in recent years! The most convenient, cleanly and efficient method of shaking down the ashes without fuel waste.

The higher, full-proportioned COMBUSTION CHAMBER with its greater amount of hot surface through which to deliver the heat into your home—instead of allowing a large part of it to escape into the chimney, as is always the case when combustion chambers are tapering and contracted in shape.

The cast-in-one piece TOP RADIATOR, which is modeled to both deliver the greatest possible amount of heat into the heat channels and to hurry its delivery into your rooms where you want it. Elimination of the usual joints by not bolting the BOND Radiator together from the usual two cast pieces, reduces by nearly one-half the usual chance for gas and dust leakage. Every joint in any heater reperents a point of possible leakage; the more joints, the greater the possibility of this undesirable, disagreeable result. Joints above the grate line in the main body of the BOND Heating Element are reduced nearly 50 per cent.

The Smoke-Pipe and CLEAN-OUT Extension of all-cast-iron to prevent leakage from corrosion and rust—and both extending clear through the outside castings to facilitate easy cleaning at the end of each winter.

The DOUBLE FEED DOORS to accommodate chunks of wood—the ideal, economical fuel for spring and fall use, as everyone knows—and the BOND is otherwise constructed for the successful burning of wood the year round, if wanted.

The white, porcelain-enamel-lined sanitary WATER RECEPTACLE—properly located to healthfully moisten the circulating warmth on its way into your rooms above.

The provision for supplying HOT WATER in abundance—piping hot — for kitchen, laundry and bath—at trivial, additional cost.

FINANCIAL AND COMMERCIAL

MARKET WAS UNSETTLED.

New York, March 6.—Stock prices displayed a strong tone in the early part of today's market but developed irregularity towards the close as a result of the customary week-end profit-taking and bear selling inspired by the sharp break in wheat prices. Excellent support was provided, however, for most of the high grade industrial shares, many of which closed 1 to 8 1-2 points higher.

There was a large accumulation of overnight buying orders on the retention of the 3 1-2 per cent. rediscount rate and the prospect that several large industrial company will follow the example of the American Locomotive directors in making a generous distribution to stockholders during the coming year.

Heavy accumulation of United States Steel common, which crossed 125 and closed just under that figure for a net gain of 1 3-8, was one of the day's features. Baldwin was again in brisk demand, being bid up to 144 and then easing to 142 1-2, where it was up 3 1-2 points on the day. American Can established another record top at 185 1-2 and then slipped back to 183 5-8, up 3 1-8. Studebaker closed fractionally lower at 44 1-8. A bullish demonstration in General Electric carried that stock up to 262 1-2, but it slipped back to 260 1-4 on realising, showing a net gain of 3 3-8 on the day. Further accumulation of the low-priced petroleum shares was based on merger reports and expectations of an early advance in Mid-Continent Crude prices. Independent Oil and Gas touched a new top at 33 3-8 and then reacted about half a point. Barnsdall B, General Asphalt and Houston showed net gains of 1 to 2 1-2 points.

Independent strength also was shown by Allis Chalmers, American Brake Shoe, American Safety Razor, Brooklyn-Manhattan Transit, Detroit Edison, Federal Light and Traction, Fidelity-Phoenix Insurance, Gold Dust, Kinney and Company, Loose-Wiles Biscuit, R. H. Macy, Maxwell Motor B, Manhattan Electrical Supply, National Lead, Railway Steel Spring, Texas Gulf Sulphur, United States Realty, Virginia Railway and Power and Wilson and Company common and preferred, all of which closed from 2 to 7 points higher.

Nashville, Chattanooga and St. Louis continued to respond to rumors of its acquisition by another road by soaring seven points to a record top at 155. Jersey Central jumped 4 1-2 points on a few sales. Wabash common and Baltimore and Ohio both touched new highs for the year, but the net gains were of a fractional nature.

Call money held steady at 3 1-2 per cent. The time money market was somewhat firmer with lenders not disposed to make any loans below four per cent. even for shorter maturities. Commercial paper rates were unchanged.

Foreign exchanges displayed a firm tone. Demand sterling held steady around $4.76 3-8 and French francs rallied about 8 1-2 cents to 5.16 cents. Most of the other European exchanges showed nominal gains. Japanese yen touched a new high on the movement at 40 3-8.

BOND MARKET.

New York, March 6.—Bonds pursued an uneven course in today's dull trading. Virtually all groups presented a conflict of price movements with the record of gains and losses striking a fairly even balance which left the day's average little changed.

With the St. Paul Railway's financial condition closed in uncertainty, fluctuations in the road's bonds continued to attract attention. A rise in the convertible 4 1-2s and a corresponding decline in the 4 per cent. issue maturing this year gave evidence of switching operations by those who still see hope in the railroad's situation but are concerned over its immediate refunding problems.

Movements of other rail bonds failed to indicate a clearly defined trend. Union Pacific refunding 4s, Norfolk & Western convertible 6s and Canadian Pacific first 4s scored substantial gains, while Chesapeake & Ohio convertible 5s and Chicago & Alton 3 1-2s and New York Central refunding 5s lost ground.

CURB MARKET.

New York, March 6.—Another sharp reaction in the radio shares, most of which touched new low prices for the year, featured today's irregular curb market. Dubilier broke nearly 5 1-2 points to 14 5-8 and then rallied a point; Ware broke 5 points to 12 1-8 and then moved back to 14; Freed-Eisemann showed a net loss of nearly 4 points at 10 and Hazeltine dropped 2 to 34 1-4. Charles Freshman moved against the current trend, closing a point higher at 17 1-2 on publication of a report that net profits for the three months from December to February inclusive were $700,944, equivalent to $2.12 a share for that period.

Oil shares displayed a firm undertone with buying influenced by rumors of an early increase in crude prices. South Penna. Oil jumped 5 1-2 points to 25 1-2; Vacuum showed a net gain of 1 1-4 at 93 3-8 and Standard Oil of Indiana closed nearly a point higher at 66 3-4.

Industrials and public utilities were mixed. Glen Alden moved up two points to a record high at 137 and then cancelled its gain and United Profits Sharing crossed 11 to a new high on the movement. Electric Bond and Share dropped one point to 60. Most of the other public utilities showed only fractional changes.

CHICAGO GRAIN MARKET.

Chicago, March 6.—Enormous selling of wheat today smashed prices down 12 3-8 cents a bushel. Unlooked for big shipments reported to have been made from Argentina, Australia and India shtarted the break in values, and before the day was ended the market here was in a semi-panic condition. The closing was wild, 4 to 11 5-8c net lower, May $1.30 3-4 to $1.31 1-4 and July $1.62 1-4 to $1.62 3-4, with corn 1 1-2 to 2 1-4c down, and oats 7/8 to 1 3-8c off. In provisions, there was 10 to 65c advance.

Failure of export demand to enlarge in this country even after the decline in prices here had become drastic, gave the final jolt to the wheat market just before the close. The absence of new export business appeared to combine to discourage bulls, while today appeared to convince many traders that likelihood of any acute world shortage of wheat this season had greatly lessened and that theories of scarcity no longer looked good. Whether the leading domestic holders of wheat had joined in the selling stampede was a much debated point after the market had closed, but the fact that one of the houses most conspicuous in today's selling has heretofore represented these holders was taken in many quarters as evidence in the affirmative.

In connection with announcement of 12,000,000 bushel shipment from the Southern Hemisphere, it was reported that the amount of wheat afloat on ocean passage would reach the huge total of 90,000,000 bushels this week. Furthermore, rains were said to have put an end to drought in India, and there were forecasts of rain or snow which would stop complaints of dry weather in the grain belt west and southwest of Chicago.

Corn and oats were upheld by large spreading operations between wheat and corn, with corn being brought. Sharp advances in the value of hogs afforded a basis for such spreads.

The rise of the provision market was also chiefly a result of the action of hog values.

WEATHER

The disturbance that was near Hatteras Thursday night has advanced eastward over the ocean attended by strong winds and gales. The disturbance that was over Nevada remains practically stationary with a trough of low pressure extending eastward to Kansas.

During the last 24 hours, scattered showers have occurred along the middle and North Atlantic Coasts. Temperatures have risen generally from the Mississippi valley eastward to the Atlantic coast and have fallen in the west. In almost all sections of the country, the temperatures are above the seasonal average, being as much as thirty degrees or more above in Kansas.

Winds.

Weather Forecast.

Eastern New York: Fair Saturday, followed by rain Saturday night and Sunday; not much change in temperature.

Northern New England: Unsettled Saturday; Sunday increasing cloudiness followed by rain.

Southern New England: Unsettled and slightly warmer Saturday; Sunday increasing cloudiness followed by rain.

GREENEVILLE

Thursday was a day of prayer and thanksgiving for the work of the Circle Friendly Society, this being the fiftieth anniversary of the society. The Grace Friendly society of Grace church, Yantic, was the guest of St. Andrew's branch on Thursday evening at St. Andrew's church. At 8 o'clock there was a service in the church at which Rev. L. E. W. Parnell gave the girls an interesting address on the motto of the society, "Bear ye one another's burdens." After the service a social hour was spent in the guild room. Refreshments were served by Mrs. Edward Gregory as hostess, assisted by the members of the branch.

On Thursday afternoon the Ladies' Guild of St. Andrew's church met at the home of Mrs. Charles Erwin with a large number present. The afternoon was spent in sewing on the garments for the junior choir. A social hour followed when Mrs. C. Erwin assisted by Mrs F Dollheare and Mrs C. Evans, served refreshments.

TAFTVILLE

Miss Anna Hasler has resumed her studies at the Keene State Normal school, Keene, N. H., after having spent several days at the home of her father, Bernard Hasler, of 34 Providence street.

Mr. and Mrs. John B. Benoit of Terrace avenue, and Mrs. Benoit's sister, Miss John Beauregard of Norwich avenue have been spending several days with friends in Bristol, Conn.

President Henry Phaneuf presided at the regular monthly meeting of the St. Louis Society which was held Friday evening in the society's hall on Main street.

Mrs. Victoria Pratte and son of Norwich avenue have been spending several days with relatives in Baltic.

Troop 3, Boy Scouts met Friday evening in the recreation rooms of the Taftville Congregational church, with Scoutmaster Harold E. Linderson in charge.

Pictures of the 20 floats which took part in the annual Mardi Gras celebration at New Orleans, La., are being received in the village from Mr. and Mrs George Brown of that city. Mrs. Brown was formerly Miss Abbietta Hasler of Providence street.

Mr. and Mrs Fred Chatelle and family have taken a house on South B street.

Thomas Duval has given up his house on South B street. Mr. Duval's wife was fatally burned a few weeks ago and died at the William W Backus hospital.

GIVEN DIVORCE FROM WIFE WHO CONSORTED WITH OTHER MEN

One divorce was granted and decision was reserved on another uncontested petition by Judge Allyn L. Brown in the superior court at New London Friday morning.

After hearing the petition of Raymond F. Crandall of New London and Mystic for divorce from Gertrude Crandall and custody of three minor children, Judge Brown granted a divorce to Crandall. On witness stand the petitioner stated that the marriage took place Oct. 25, 1915, and that in 1919 his wife was committed to the state farm for women following affairs with several men.

Upon her release from the farm, according to his testimony he took her back into his home, but she soon fell by the wayside and was returned to the farm. Since being released the last time, he has not lived with her, according to his testimony. He claimed a decree on the ground of adultery.

Judge Brown took the papers and reserved decision on the petition of Mrs. Ormond E. Kinkead of this city for divorce from Dr. R. R. Kinkead.

The couple were married on July 25, 1918, after a three months courtship, she testified, and although Dr. Kinkead, previous to his marriage, had been twice committed to the Norwich state hospital. The wife testified that she did not know of the fact until March, 1923.

In that month her husband, she testified, became dangerously insane, threatened her life, and attempted to choke her, and became a breakdown in health. Dr. Napoleon B. Lewis of Norwich and Dr. Fred P. Schenck, of the staff of the Norwich state hospital testified to Kinkead's mentally disturbed condition. Dr. Schenck testified to Kinkead's commitment to the asylum in March of 1923, and again a few months later, having been released from custody.

Judgment of $11,571,853 for the federal government against the Virginia Shipbuilding Corporation, headed by Charles W. Morse, well known ship builder, known as the former owner of the Groton Iron Works, was handed down Thursday by Federal Judge Waddell at Alexandria, Va.

The decision, which is a unique one, ends a four-year legal battle between the government and the Morse interests, involving claims and counter claims. It emanates from the corporation's war time ship building contract with the shipping board.

The decision is a reversal of the finding in chancery by the late Judge Charles E. Nichols, who awarded $2,500,000 to the shipbuilding corporation. It has not yet been made known whether the Morse interests will appeal the decision.

Claim of the federal government was that the shipbuilding corporation built some vessels for the shipping board during the war, that the ships were not delivered within the time called for in contract, and that the ships lack some of the specified facilities.

Morse on the other hand filed a counter claim to the effect that the government's agents had interfered with the work and it was directly because of this interference that the ships produced were not according to specifications of the existing contract.

The Morse interests have been located in the Groton and Noank vicinity for years. The Noank shipyard once operated by C. W. Morse himself, is now controlled by Harry F. Morse, a son. The Groton Iron Works, which like the Virginia Shipbuilding Corp., turned out shipping board steamers during the war, was sold last spring at public auction.

RESERVOIRS ARE MAKING GAIN THIS MONTH

Norwich reservoirs are still 550,000,000 gallons short of full ponds there being at the present time, 400,000,000 gallons of water in Fairview and Stony Brook reservoirs. It takes 950,000,000 gallons to fill them.

According to Superintendent J. J. Corkery of the Norwich water department, Norwich is consuming about 4,250,000 gallons of water daily and the pumping station is still being used to help out the water supply.

The recent rainfall measured .61 of an inch making the rainfall so far in March 1.46 of an inch, a fairly good precipitation for this time of the year. Under ordinary circumstances from this time until April 1st is the time when the reservoirs should show a steady increase in volume of water held. Spring freshets and other natural causes usually add to the supply at this time of the year, and if this happens this year the reservoirs should be in better condition than they were a year ago.

FIRST LIEUT. E. L. KELLY OF COLCHESTER CAPTAIN

Orders issued this week by the adjutant-general of the Connecticut National Guard announce the promotion of First Lieutenant Edward L. Kelly of Colchester to a captaincy. Lieutenant Kelly is attached to the Eighty-fifth Brigade Headquarters, and will remain on active duty with the same unit succeeding Captain Ernest L. Averill promoted. Captain Kelly served during the World war with the rank of second lieutenant, doing duty at Camps Sheridan, Hancock and Dix as supervisor of the establishment of battalions of foreign-born recruits. At the close of the war he enlisted in the National Guard, at the same time holding a commission in the reserves.

Captain Kelly is a past state commander of the American Legion and is at present acting as executive secretary to Governor Trumbull.

TROLLEY CAR CRIPPLED AT SWITCH AT BALTIC

The south bound Willimantic-New London trolley car of the Connecticut company, due in Franklin square at 4.45 o'clock, became disabled at the switch in front of the Academy of the Holy Family, Baltic, about 4 o'clock Friday afternoon, necessitating the services of three mechanics from the carbarn in Greeneville. When the mechanics arrived in Baltic, having been notified of the trouble by telephone, it was found that the air brakes on the car were out of order and after a time the necessary repairs were made to it and the trolley proceeded on its way to Norwich, two hours late. In the course of the repair work the passengers were transfered onto extras which carried them to their destination.

Luther Secretary Postpones Trip.

Word has been received by Rev. H. Hunzinger of the German Lutheran church that Mr. Hodges, general secretary of the Luther league, is to postpone his coming to Connecticut in the latter part of April, so that he will not be here as the speaker next Tuesday evening as the speaker at the Luther league meeting. Mr. Hodges has postponed his Connecticut trip at the request of several pastors who feared it might interfere with Lenten services, but Pastor Hunzinger will hold the Tuesday evening meeting as the regular monthly business meeting.

OPPOSED TO LAW FOR LEFT SIDE WALKING

The idea of passing a law to require pedestrians on public highways which are not equipped with sidewalks to stay on the left hand side of the highway, going against traffic, is discouraged in a pamphlet on traffic problems issued by the state motor vehicle department.

"It has recently become a habit to advise the pedestrian who walks on the highway to travel against traffic," says the pamphlet, the text of which is drawn from an address recently delivered by Commissioner Stoeckel before the Connecticut Society of Civil Engineers. "So long as this practice is confined to advice and to calling attention to the fact that there are two sides to such highway available, there is no harm done, but when it comes to making a law which would compel him to walk in any particular place in the highway, then dangerous ground is reached, for there are as many bad places on one side of the highway as there are on the other. The rule for his direction ought to be to let him exercise his common sense and walk where he thinks he is the safest. There are now comparatively few injuries to pedestrians on the highways." Attention is directed to the need of sidewalks in sections of the state where factory workers are obliged to use the highways in walking to and from work.

It is pointed out that pedestrian traffic is now regulated in the congested part of every city of Connecticut and that the injuries and accidents which happen are most frequently in outlying streets where such regulation is lacking. Continued education of pedestrians to exercise their share of precaution to avoid accidents is urged, and general enforcement of the law requiring all vehicles to be lighted after dark is requested. This law is construed to include bicycles as well as horse drawn vehicles.

SAYS GOD'S PRESENCE IS MAN'S DAILY NEED

Dr. J. Romeyn Danforth of New London gave his second heart to heart talk to an audience that filled the parlors at the Y. M. C. A. Friday noon.

The topic was "The Pillar of Fire," and the speaker held the closest possible attention for the moment he began until his last word was spoken. Sphepard B. Palmer presided and Rev. C. H. Ricketts offered prayer. The hymn used was "Savior, thy Dying Love". Hugh Kinder officiated at the piano, and rendered a vocal solo of his own composition, "There is a green hill far away," which was greatly enjoyed. Dr. Danforth spoke in part as follows:

"Last spring the world followed with breathless interest the attempt of a little group of men to climb Mount Everest. Part of that interest was due to the fact that it is the highest peak of earth, the point of rock nearest the stars. So great are the natural difficulties that it seems as if nature is guarding those mountain fastnesses from successful assault. Yet our greatest interest was in the human element. Those fine lives were specially picked and trained and had everything that human ingenuity could devise to help them in their battle with nature.

"It was one more effort of man to master the world in which he lives; to assert that he will not be denied access to any part nor will he willingly remain in lasting ignorance of any fact. Two things we mortals want, we want to know and we want to go. We all share in the desire though we may not all share in the effort. It is a part of the age-long ascent of man. And so we care.

"More important in the true ascent of man is the liberation of men and nations. The deliverance of the Children of Israel from Egypt was an event of much significance in the spiritual history of mankind. It belongs to the inner story of our race.

"During that deliverance they wandered for forty years in the wilderness This physical fact was but the outward type of what they were doing mentally. Forty days would have been long enough for their feet to travel the distance, but forty years were needed that they might pass from the slave mind, into which hard circumstance in Egypt had brought them, into the free mind and heart needed for an independent nation' was a lesson for the world. In so many ways they acted like children and showed they needed to grow up. That takes time. It took a long and critical and distressing period of transition. In this they needed unusual guidance and needed this to an unusual degree. They had not reached the point where they could trust. They needed to see. And God showed them.

"God ever guides in forward steps. There were other things for which they asked, bread and quails of water and many others. This guidance was something they did not know enough to ask; God knew they needed it, and so he gave it without the asking. The gifts God chooses to give are the best ones after all. They reveal his wisdom; while our asking sometimes shows our folly. We should not look for pillars of fire. For us it would be a backward step, and God never leads backward. But for those men in the long ago it was the forward thing and he did it for them.

"To see this pillar of fire rightly we must not think of it as a natural wonder but as a spiritual necessity. It was God's way of helping them just then and there. The important question with us is not how we did it but why he did it. It imparted a consciousness of the abiding presence of God. We need that just as much as they did. We get it in other ways.

"Just as they needed the pillar of cloud by day, so we need a touch of mystery in the clearest day of knowledge. We do not know it all, and we must remember the surrounding cloud of the unknown. The more we know the more we should have of the consciousness of the presence of God. And in the darkest nights of our lives when we feel that we know nothing, have nothing, are nothing, we need the bright shining of some light to show us that we still have God. In the day of our seeing we need reminding that we do not see everything, and in the night of our fears we need to know that God is still here.

"Had Israel been journeying along the straight highway leading from Egypt to Palestine they would naturally have felt that the milestones were enough to mark their progress, and the knowledge of those who laid out the road a sufficient guarantee that they reach their goal. But when they were lost in a wilderness of mingled miles and years, when they had left all which they were familiar when all around them was evidently only a temporary surrounding, and yet things temporary seemed interminable, then they needed to see each day something that would show them that God was with them, and each night they needed the shining pillar to light the darkness and proclaim that their wandering was not forever and that at last they would reach the land of promise.

"We must know something or we will not go at all. Israel was making its most important journey and they needed to know the most important fact. That fact for them and for us is the presence of God. Know that and you go. Be ignorant of that and you only wander."

MRS. FLEISCHMANN LOST ESTATE OF MANY MILLIONS

Mrs. Jay O'Brien, former wife of the late Julius Fleischmann, owner of a magnificent summer place at Eastern Point, lost by the margin of six months a fortune said to be between $25,000,000 and $50,000,000, which would have made her one of the richest women in the world, according to the New York World.

On July 20, 1924, she divorced the yeast magnate in Paris and two months later became O'Brien's third wife. A few weeks after she obtained her divorce, The World states, Fleischmann destroyed a will whereby she was made residuary legatee of his entire estate.

On February 5, Fleischmann died, leaving his vast wealth made in the yeast business to the children of his first marriage, Julius Fleischmann, Jr., and Mrs. Louise F. Yeiser, both of Cincinnati. Mrs. O'Brien retained the millions in jewels and stock Fleischmann had given her, but she lost his estate, which he had offered her, according to The World, in a last effort to win her back from O'Brien.

Mrs. O'Brien was formerly "Dolly" Leach. Her first husband was Louis G. Heminway, a stock broker and silk manufacturer. She was the second wife of Fleischmann, who married her in 1920, after his first wife had divorced him.

O'Brien is well known in New York as a polo player. His marriage to Mrs. Fleischmann was his third, his other wives having been Mae Murray and Irene Fenwick, the actresses.

AUTOMOBILE STRIKES CHILD ON NORTH MAIN STREET

Lois A. Metcalf, 5 year old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Henry G. Metcalf of No 32 Prospect street, was knocked down and injured Friday afternoon about 3 o'clock on North Main street by an automobile owned and driven by Harry Peltier of Versailles. The accident happened near the junction of North Main street and Central avenue. The child had left her home on an errand and was on her way across North Main street when struck by the machine.

Mr. Peltier took the child to the Backus hospital where her injuries were treated. Her injuries include concussion of the brain and hemorrhage of the right ear and although her condition is serious, the outlook for her recovery is reported to be favorable unless complications set in. Mr. Peltier made a report of the accident at police headquarters. The little girl's father is employed as a starter by the Connecticut Company.

REPORTS ON EASTERN CONN. ROADS PRESENTED TO LEGISLATURE FRIDAY

(Special to the Bulletin)

Hartford, March 6—The judiciary was the only committee holding hearings today, giving consideration to appointment of Joseph W. Alsop a member of the public utilities commission. An act concerning auctions and auctioneers. An act to define, regulate and license real estate brokers. An act establishing a public sales act. An act amending an act concerning town assessment lists. An act concerning commitment of girls over sixteen. An act concerning aid for widows having dependent children. An act concerning dispositon of obsolete tax lists and abstract books.

The committee on roads, bridges, and rivers in making unfavorable reports on bills placing highways from Tafts Station to the Willimantic road and a highway in Voluntown and North Stonington in the trunk line system, stated that the committee was of the opinion that these roads could best be built by state aid.

When Judge-Elect Albert C. Baldwin entered his office this morning he found a large bunch of daffodils placed there by friends.

After the hearing this afternoon the judiciary committee was in executive session till a late hour considering seventy bills that have been heard. This means a heavy grist of reports soon.

In the 1921 and 1923 sessions of the general assembly, several bills were introduced that would abolish the office of County Commissioner or would reduce the number of members. None of the bills received favorable report and all were rejected. Bills for the same purpose have been before the judiciary committee this session. Senator Frederick L. Ford of New Haven pleaded for the bill that would abolish the office and transfer the work to be sheriffs. He said that President Coolidge and two Connecticut governors were preaching economy. The time to economize was now.

Senator Ford said the sheriff was a proper person to assume the duties. J. D. Hubbard of Litchfield felt that residents of Litchfield county believed that county commissioners were unnecessary. Thomas F. Ryan of Ridgefield favored the bill and said that in any case three commissioners were too many. County judges could do many of the tasks of the commissioners. Representative Talcott of Westfield was against the bill.

House members looked up in surprise when the committee on roads, bridges and rivers reported favorably a bill to include in the trunk line system in Groton running from Norwich to the submarine base on the Thames river. This is the only bill thus far, out of several score of individual road bills, which the committee has approved.

THE HOUSE.

The house was called to order at 11.30 by Speaker Darbie and prayer was offered by House Chaplain Arthur E. Lewis. Unfavorable reports were received from the railroad committee on H. B. 913, that provided that the bus lines should pay a proportionate part of the expense incurred in abolishing overhead and under passes. H. B. 666 providing for the inclusion in the trunk line system the road from Tafts station to the trunk line leading from Norwich to Willimantic and H. B. 667, including in the trunk line system a highway in the towns of North Stonington and Voluntown. Favorable reports were made on H. B. 677, including in the trunk line system the highway leading from Groton to Norwich; on H. B. 695 providing for the right of way for fire apparatus when responding to alarms.

The house concurred with the senate in rejection of all bills that had been rejected by that body, as well as concurrence in passage of senate bills favorably reported.

Bills taken from the calendar and passed were: An act increasing the sinking fund for the maintenance of cemeteries; an act concerning statements of savings banks to bank commissioner.

Adjournment was taken at 11.57.

SENATE.

The senate concurred with the house in recommitting the bill relating to the duties of the superintendent of state police to the committee on the judiciary.

Calendar.

Passed: Establishing a park commission in the town of Fairfield; giving the town of Berlin the right to adopt ordinances for the establishment of building lines, etc.; amending the charter of the Waterbury Gas Light company by allowing it to merge with the Thomaston Gas company, and to supply the residents of Thomaston with gas; authorizing the Wolcott Hill fire district to issue bonds to the amount of $40,000 at a rate of interest not more than 6 per cent.; exempting grifts for religious educational or missionary purposes wherever situated from succession, inheritance or transfer taxes; that the annual meeting of the Litchfield Mutual Fire Insurance company shall be held on the first Monday in January; extending to January 1927 the time when the Glastonbury Gas company may organize.

Workmen's Compensation.

Five workmen's compensation agreements as follows have been approved by Commissioner J. J. Donohue:

GREAT BRITAIN AND FRANCE ARE NEARING AGREEMENT

Considerable Headway Made by Austen Chamberlain and M. Herriot—Germany's Offer to Submit the Question of Her Eastern Frontiers to Arbitration Has Gone a Long Way in an Effort to Assure France "Security"—Germany and Russia Are Looming Mysteriously in the Background.

Paris, March 8.—(By The A. P.)—The twenty-four hours that have been passed since the conversations between Premier Herriot and Austin Chamberlain, the British secretary for foreign affairs, on th esubject of security have not brought any important addition to what has already been made public of the subjects discussed. The British press, apparently moved by the details given out to the French press and published this morning, gave out some intimations for the benefit of the British press, which for the most part are confirmatory of the French version.

One new and interesting point disclosed is that when M. Herriot insisted that the proposed five or seven power pact, if formed, should not diminish the period of allied occupation of the Rhineland and that it should respect Article 44 of the league covenant, whereby infractions of the demilitarization of the Rhineland constitute aggression against the signatories of the treaty. Mr. Chamberlain was able to reassure M. Herriot, in response to the British inquiry, had declared, in making his security pact proposal, that he did not expect a reduction in the periods of occupation.

Undoubtedly the question of Germany's eastern frontier is the main stumbling block. M. Herriot said that France would respect the terms of her treaty with Poland, and that any plan which looked like purchasing French security at Poland's expense was unthinkable to French opinion, which was always opposed to giving Germany an inch in the direction of revision of the treaty of Versailles for fear she would take all.

President Doumergue is understood to have expressed the same view to Mr. Chamberlain. At the same time, Premier Herriot showed himself ready to counsel Poland to take a commonsense view of the situation and to use his good offices toward achievement of a compromise between Poland's insistence on the territorial status quo and Germany's hostility to what she considers an untenable eastern boundary.

King George Improving

London, March 8—It had been expected that King George would venture into the palace gardens today, but owing to the wintry cold weather and snow flurries, he did not take the risk. The king, however, is now sufficiently recovered from his recent indisposition to get up daily and there seems no longer any fear of a relapse.

Festivities in Melbourne

Melbourne, Australia, March 8.—An extensive programme of festivities is being arranged in honor of the officers and men of the American fleet on their arrival here during the summer. The programme embraces excursions, luncheons, dinners, sports and various other entertainments.

TWO SISTERS INJURED IN AUTOMOBILE ACCIDENT

Weston, Mass., March 8.—Two sisters, Fannie and Bessie Ruttman, are dead, and a girl companion, Ida Goldstein, is in a Newton hospital so badly hurt that she may die, doctors said tonight, as the result of an automobile accident early today in which a large closed automobile was wrecked in collision with a tree. Nearly four hours after the accident, David Goldberg was placed under arrest at a Boston hotel, charged with manslaughter. The police said that Goldberg admitted being the driver of the car and said that he informed them that he and a companion named Pearson who left the scene of the accident after the crash. He said that he had been blinded by the headlights of another machine.

The Ruttman sisters were residents of Revere, Mass., and Miss Goldstein lived in Boston. They were found with the wreckage of the automobile at the roadside, by a passing motorist, J. H. Thomas of Boston, who narrowly missed running over one of the victims. He rushed them to the hospital and notified the police. Fannie Ruttman was dead upon arrival and her sister died a few minutes later. Miss Goldstein is suffering from a fractured skull and other injuries.

Goldberg was arrested after the owner of the machine told the police that he had loaned Goldberg the car for the night. Goldberg told of meeting Pearson, who he said, was a stranger and whose first name he did not know, and of inviting the three girls to a party at a roadhouse in Wayland. They were returning when the car swerved from the road at a corner and sideswiped a tree. Goldberg will be arraigned in Waltham district court tomorrow. The police are seeking Pearson.

SHAVER RECOMMENDS TO REORGANIZE DEMOCRATS

New York, March 8.—Recommendations for a complete reorganization of the democratic party to avoid further defeats was made today to National Chairman Clem Shaver in a report of the National League of Young Democrats, a branch of the national democratic committee.

The report states that while there were several unavoidable factors which contributed to the defeat of John W. Davis last November, the policies of the national committee were largely responsible. Among these policies named in the report, were the late start of the democratic campaign, the admission that the fight in the northwest was between Coolidge and LaFollette, lack of energy in the New York campaign and scant advertising.

The league's committee suggests a more unified organization; frequent meetings of the national committee; maintenance of permanent headquarters in Washington, Chicago, Los Angeles and New York; activity of the party between elections; establishment of a permanent publicity bureau, a labor bureau and a bureau of political statistics and informational organization of permanent auxiliary clubs of business men, workers, farmers and other representative voters; and biennial conventions for mapping out the party strategy in congressional elections.

William H. Edwards, known to sports followers as "Big Bill" Edwards, is president of the league, which has branches in 42 states.

PERSHING AT UNVEILING OF MONUMENT IN HAVANA

Havana, March 8 (By the A. P.)—The importance of the Brotherhoods of the various republics of North and South America in promoting world peace was stressed today by General John J. Pershing in an address at the unveiling of the monument erected by the Cuban government in honor of the 266 Americans who lost their lives when the battleship Maine was sunk by an explosion in Havana harbor the night of February 15, 1898.

"It seems fitting," said General Pershing, "that there should exist a very intimate relationship between the oldest republic on this continent and Cuba, the youngest. We have watched our small sister's growth with sincere solicitude. Such things form the basis of a mutual confidence and friendship that will grow stronger with the passage of years.

"But in the larger sense, we belong to the great brotherhood of American republics, and in that status all of us have a destiny to fulfill. Our several republics are founded on the theory of government by the people.

"The task that presents itself to every American republic is not only to develop the untold resources of the new continent, but at the same time to prepare each individual for a wise participation in the government of which he is a part."

MEXICAN BANDITS GET $9,000 PIERCE OIL PAYROLL

Vera Cruz, Mexico, March 8.—Eight armed bandits yesterday held up the La Barra train at Arbol Grande and robbed it of $9,000 belonging to the Pierce Oil Company. The money was being taken to the oil camp to pay off the workers there. The bandits left behind them $2,000 they could not carry.

OBITUARY

D. Frank Stevens.

Danbury, March 8.—D. Frank Stevens, head of the Stevens Drug company here, died suddenly tonight after an attack of cerebral hemorrhage. He was 50 years old. Mr. Stevens had been chosen the candidate for mayor by the democratic and progressive parties for the election to be held March 30. He was a former member of the common council and a former superintendent of the water department. He is survived by his wife and one son, Sylvester.

Democratic Leaders To Hold Conference

Washington, March 8.—A movement looking to the holding of a conference of democratic leaders from the various states in the early summer for the purpose of more securely welding together the democratic party along basic lines has been initiated by Franklin D. Roosevelt of New York with the endorsement of other party chieftains.

In outlining the proposal in a letter to Senator Thomas J. Walsh of Montana, permanent chairman of the democratic convention last year, Mr. Roosevelt disclosed that he had communicated with all of the delegates attending the New York convention and that, as to methods of practical organizations, a great majority of the replies received concur in these five suggestions.

That the national committee, or its executive machinery, should function every day in every year and not merely in presidential election years.

That the national committee should be brought into far closer touch with the state organizations.

That the executive machinery for year in and year out work should be put on a continuing and business-like financial basis.

That publicity for fundamental party policy and for the dissemination of current information should be greatly extended.

That party leaders from all sections should meet more frequently in order to exchange views and plan for united party action.

Mr. Roosevelt, who was campaign manager for Governor Alfred E. Smith of New York, in the presidential nomination fight last year, also wrote Senator Walsh that the discussion of candidates for the next national election should be eliminated at this time.

"By adhering to principles rather than personalities for the next three years, we shall go far toward success," he said.

Mr. Roosevelt also declared in his letter that his correspondents were "overwhelmingly agreed that the democracy must be unqualifiedly the party representative of progress and liberal thought."

"In other words," he said, "the clear line of demarcation which differentiated the political thought of Jefferson on the one side, and of Hamilton on the other, must be restored. The democracy must make it clear that it seeks primarily the good of the average citizen through the free rule of the whole electorate, as opposed to the republican party which seeks a mere moneyed prosperity of the nation through the control of government by a self-appointed aristocracy of wealth and of social and economic power."

PARTIAL TRYOUT OF NEW TYPE OF AIR MAIL PLANE

Mineola, N. Y., March 8.—Due to a cross wind and a ground haze at Curtis Field, the aerial mercury in Curtiss Field, the Aerial Mercury, entry of Joseph F. Meade and Harvey C. Mummert of Hammondsport, N. Y., in the government tests to determine a new type of air mail plane, was given only a partial tryout today. The plane, piloted by Mummert, negotiated a slow landing at a speed of 45 miles an hour.

A full speed of 124 miles per hour was attained over one lap of the one milometer course, and the Mercury demonstrated a 110-mile-per-hour cruising speed.

THREE YOUNG MEN KILLED WHEN AUTO OVERTURNED

Buffalo, N. Y., March 8. — Three young men were killed and two fatally hurt, when a small automobile truck in which a party of youths was returning from a late dance this morning overturned in South Buffalo. Six others were slightly injured.

It was the most serious of the many automobile accidents in Buffalo today, the first spring-like Sunday of the year. In another early morning collision Marion Osborne, 24 years old, was thrown with great force out of a car and landed on her head on stone flagging. She will die.

New President Of Nicaragua

General Railway Strike in Greece

Athens, Greece, March 8.—Greece again is in the throes of a general railway strike. The railwaymen today refused to wait longer for the government's reply to their demands for higher pay and shorter hours and struck.

LEGAL BATTLE FOR THE POSSESSION OF TEAPOT DOME

Cheyenne, Wyo., March 8 (By the A. P.)—Teapot Dome and its supposed vast stores of crude oil is the prize in the momentous legal battle opening in federal court here tomorrow in an effort to reclaim to the government the lease granted by Albert B. Fall, former secretary of the interior, to the Mammoth Oil company.

Atlee Pomerene, associated with Owen D. Roberts, as special counsel, probably will open the government's case in a statement before Judge T. Blake Kennedy, reviewing the transactions between Harry F. Sinclair, president of the Mammoth company; Edwin Denby, former secretary of the navy; Mr. Fall, and others, which led to granting of the elase.

The legality of the presidential order issued in May, 1921, transferring the naval reserve from the navy department to the department of the interior, is expected to be attacked by the government counsel. They will attempt to prove through testimony, documentary evidence and depositions, charges of fraud in execution of the lease.

A fourth name was added to the list of unavailable government witnesses last night when Mr. Roberts announced that deputy United States marshals had been unable to locate Robert W. Stewart, chairman of the board of directors of the Standard Oil company, of Indiana. A subpoena demanding Mr. Stewart's presence at the trial as a government witness was issued several weeks ago.

The others are H. M. Blackmer and J. E. O'Neil, oil men, and H. S. Osler, of Canada. The government had hoped to develop through Osler's testimony its contention that certain Liberty bonds passed from Mr. Sinclair to Mr. Fall, according to Mr. Roberts.

After the opening statement, the government probably will call as its first witness, E. C. Finney, assistant secretary of the interior.

The Mammoth Oil company and Mr. Sinclair will bring into play a galaxy of brilliant legal minds. Martin W. Littleton, R. W. Ragland, G. T. Stanford, J. W. Zeverley and John W. Macey, are among defense attorneys.

Mr. Fall and Mr. Sinclair have been subpoenaed as government witnesses. It is the government's plan to call Mr. Fall as a witness the first part of next week, while Mr. Sinclair is tentatively listed as the last government witness. Both are under indictments in connection with the Teapot Dome lease and it is regarded as almost certain they will stand on their constitutional rights and decline to answer questions of government counsel on the ground that their testimony might be used against them.

BELIEVES CANCER WILL BE BROUGHT UNDER CONTROL

Philadelphia, March 8.—Dr. Charles H. Mayo, of Rochester, Minn., one of the country's leading surgeons, told the Philadelphia forum in an address tonight that he believed cancer would be "under control" within a few years.

By this, Dr. Mayo said he did not mean that cancer would be cured, nor that it would be preventable, but that it would be more amenable to treatment and that its working would neither be so rapid nor so serious. He based this belief, he said, on the theory that cancer is caused by an organism, perhaps by a germ, and on the Wassermann test through which it is claimed the presence of cancer may be detected.

Dr. Mayo said the Wassermann test must be confirmed, but that information from Berlin, where the test was announced, indicated it was practical.

LOST HIS LIFE IN VAIN EFFORT TO SAVE BROTHER

Rochester, Pa., March 8.—John Sidler, 17, gave his life in a vain attempt to save that of his brother, Frank Sidler, 12, when fire destroyed their home here today. The two brothers, locked in each other's arms, were burned to death.

The parents of the boys, Mr. and Mrs. Matthew Sidler, saved three of their five children by dropping them from a second story window. The parents and John, the elder of the children, had reached the street in safety, when John discovered his brother Frank to be missing. He dashed into the blazing building again and had just reached his brother's side when the floor collapsed.

NEW YORK POLICEMAN DID SOME SPRINTING

Hartford, March 8—Policeman Albert H. Rome, who is nearly six feet tall and far from skinny, tonight outran George Dwyer and caught him, in spite of Dwyer's lead of nearly a block. Dwyer and Jacob and Martin Bojack had an altercation which ended in blows and resulted in Dwyer taking to his heels, chased by the Bojack brothers and a constantly increasing crowd which included the policeman. Dwyer and the Bojacks were arrested on breach of peace charges with the additional charge of drunkenness against the Bojacks.

GERMAN SOCIALISTS FAVOR NOMINATION OF OTTO BRAUN

Berlin, March 8.(By The A. P.)—The socialists' designation of Otto Braun as presidential candidate, while causing some chagrin among the clericals and democrats, who hoped for a joint republic candidate in the first election MHarch 29, is considered by the socialists as a tactical move for getting 800 more voters on the second election April 26. This they assume is inevitable, as they do not expect an absolute majority for any candidate at the first election.

BRIDGEPORT MAN WAS ROBBED AND BRANDED

Bridgeport, March 8.—James Ballantyne, aged 25, of 461 Gurdon street, was assaulted, robbed and then branded by a lone bandit who entered the Pan-American gas station on the Post road near the Ash Creek bride tonight about 8 o'clock asking for the change of one dollar.

Ballantyne turned around to get the money and as he did so he was struck by the man with a blunt instrument. The blow knocked him unconscious. While he lay on the floor, the robber emptied the cash register of about $40 and then picwked up a poker, heating it, and branded the still unconscious man with it. Then before leaving the gas station he penned a note with the words: "I brand them."

Police were notified of the hold-up by Ballantyne after he recovered partly from the blow. Detectives searching the place found the not on the floor where the victim of the assault had fallen again after telephoning for help.

Los Angeles, March 8.—A wage increase agreement averting the threatened strike of enginmen on the Santa Fe Coast Lines, was signed here today by company officials and representatives of the railroad brotherhoods.

STEAMER IS SINKING 25 MILES SOUTH OF NANTUCKET

Holland Liner Aalsum Calls For Help, Following a Collision With the U. S. Shipping Board Steamer Dannedaike—Wireless States That the Boats Were Putting Off—Aalsum's Whistle is Blowing so That Boat Crews May Find Her in the Heavy Fog—Neither Ship Carried Passengers.

New York, March 8.—The Holland steamship Aalsum was reported sinking 25 miles south of Nantucket after a collision with the U. S. shipping board steamer Dannewalke shortly after 10 o'clock tonight, according to wireless communications intercepted by the Independent Wireless company.

"We are leaking badly, please come on board with your boats," read a message from the master of the Aalsum to the Dunnedaike. Within five minutes the Dunnedaike wirelessed the Hollander that the boats were putting off and asked that the Aalsum blow her whistle in order that the boat crews could find her in the heavy fog.

Later messages said that the Dannedaike's bow struck the Aalsum forward, causing a leak in No. 2 hold. Coast guard cutters were sent to stand by. Neither vessel carried passengers.

PEACE PROTOCOL IS NOT ACCEPTABLE TO BRITAIN

Geneva, March 8 (By the A. P.)—The Geneva peace protocol fashioned by the nations to outlaw war, is not acceptable to the British epire, Austen Chamberlain, British foreign secretary, will announce to the council of the league of nations at tomorrow's session. Such is the definite statement made by British spokesmen tonight.

In a lengthy pronouncement Mr. Chamberlain will clearly set forth the British objections to the protocol as at present framed, but is understood that he will probably not attempt to explain just how the protocol can be changed so as to satisfy British opinion. In other words, the British secretary will offer no substitute for the protocol.

Whether it will be possible to save the Geneva peace effort by revision and amendment so that it can be assured British support, which is essential to its success, will depend partly on the council, but especially on the league assembly, to which the entire question will presumably be thrown.

At all events it seems clear tonight that serious remodelling will be necessary to satisfy British home objections as to military and naval commitments in the maintenance of peace, and the disinclination of the dominions to permit any examination by the league council of domestic questions, like immigration.

KILLED A MAN IN AN EFFORT TO RESIST ARREST

Cochocton, N. Y., March 8.—One man dead, two wounded by stray loads of buckshots, and James Crouch, 40, lodged in the Steuben county jail at Bath on a charge of murder, were the casualties of a night-long struggle of officers to arrest Crouch for killing Benjamin Stone during an alleged drunken brawl early last evening. Crouch marched from his home shortly before dawn this morning and gave himself up to deputies who had guarded the house all night. Stone died shortly after 3 o'clock from a fractured skull, caused, it is alleged, by Crouch with a piece of heavy pipe.

Stone, the slain man, asked Chief John Hoyt to go to the Crouch home and get a mutual friend of the two who was helpless. The chief took three deputies with him. Crouch barricaded himself and fired through the door when the officers approached. Chief Hoyt was struck in the shoulder by a load of buckshot and Deputy Sheriff Pilsinger was wounded about the arms by another shot. Crouch will be arraigned tomorrow.

ROAD HOG CROWDS CAR, WHICH DRIVES DOWN BANK

(Special to The Bulletin.)

Willimantic, March 8.—A new Studebaker big six touring car, owned by Albert Coutu of Walnut street, this city and operated by him as a public service car was considerably damaged and the driver narrowly escaped injury, shortly after 8 o'clock Sunday night when the machine went down an embankment 300 feet west of Sherman's corner, on the Willimantic-Danielson highway, in South Chaplin. Coutu was on his way to Danielson to get passengers and at the point designated he sounded a warning, with the intention of passing another machine going in the same direction and drew up alongside the second car. The driver pulled back toward the center of the road crowding the Coutu machine into the ditch. The machine dove headlong down the embankment, barely missing a telegraph pole. Before it came to a stop against a tree, the car crashed over rocks which broke through the crank case and put a large hole in the gas tank. The left front fender and headlights crumpled against the tree. The front of the car bore various other marks of the crash. Coutu was uninjured. The machine was hauled to Leonard Brothers' garage here.

OPEN AIR REPUBLICAN MEETING IN CAVAN, IRE.

Belfast, Ireland, March 8.—(By The A. P.)—Notwithstanding snow and a rainstorm, Cavan, which lies near the northern border, had a warm time last night when Father Michael Flannagan held an open air republican meeting.

A deafening uproar from the rival throngs which attended the meeting greeted the appearance of the priest, and soon there was free fighting among groups in various parts of the street.

One man during the disturbance pulled a revolver, but the police pounced upon him and confiscated the weapon. The chairman of the meeting and the chief of police had a verbal battle while the melee was in progress.

Polling for all the seats which have been vacated by members of the nationalist group will take place next Wednesday.

13 PERSONS INJURED WHEN TABERNACLE ROOF COLLAPSED

Torrington, March 8.—The thirteen persons taken to the Charlotte Hungerford yesterday following the collapse of the roof of a tabernacle to be used for evangelistic services and being built by volunteer workers, were still at the hospital tonight. One, Thomas Johnston, was in a critical condition suffering from lesion of the lung.

Three others are in a serious condition. Lionel Moore received injuries to his spine and the lower part of his body is paralyzed. Paul Tucker and Frank R. Creamer are suffering from shock and broken legs.

Many of the clergymen of the city made reference to the accident in their sermons this morning and all expressed a determination to continue the plans for the evangelistic services.

A committee of five was appointed last night to determine the question of quarters for the services. An attempt will be made to secure the state armory here, it was said, and if this is impossible, the question of erecting another tabernacle will be considered. The committee will hold a meeting next Friday.

John M. Wadhams, treasurer of the Torrington chapter of the Red Cross, announced tonight that the Red Cross was aiding all of the victims who needed assistance.

CROSS WORD PUZZLE BENEFIT TO HEALTH AND HAPPINESS

Chicago, March 8.—The Chicago department of health weekly health bulletin, issued today, emphasized the benefit of crossword puzzles to general health and happiness. It was discussed under the title of "crosswordlitis."

The causes and effects of "the savage little cross word puzzle microbe" the bulletin said, "may be largely explained by the fact that part of our lives and much energy must be put into amusement, to satisfy the play instinct within us. Therefore any play or game that has a mental 'kick' in it, is quickly acceptable and eagerly pursued.

United family circles and happiness to convalescents and chronic invalids, were listed in the report as among the good purposes served by the cross-word puzzles.

NEW BRITAIN MAN TRIED TO COMMIT SUICIDE

New Britain, March 8.—Frederick Berg, 68 years old, is in New Britain General hospital suffering from wounds received when he tried to commit suicide this morning. He was found in a semi-conscious condition in the garage by his son, who discovered that his father had tried to take his life by cutting himself with a pair of pruning shears. Mr. Berg's wife died a year ago and he has been despondent since then. It was said at the hospital that he has a slight chance of recovery.

New Haven, March 8. — The fifth ...g Artists' Contest, held by the ...nnecticut State Federation of Music clubs, under the direction of Mrs. ...yton E. Hotchkiss, of Glenbrook, ...e chairman of contests, took place ...s yesterday. Seventeen persons took ...part coming from Ansonia, East Hartford, Meriden, New London, New London, South Manchester, South Norwalk and Stamford.

The winner among the women's voices was Miss Evelyn Marcel, contralto, of East Hartford, who received a $25 gold piece, presented by the state president, Mrs. John C. Downs, of Danbury.

George A. Leach, baritone, of Stamford, was the winner in the men's class. Robert Doolittle, of South Manchester, won the violin prize. Ralph Lawrence Lindsley, of New Haven, carried off two prizes, one for the piano and the second for displaying the best artistry and musicianship with greatest promise of fulfillment in entering a musical career. Mr. Lindsley was recently elected to the Phi Beta Kappa society at Yale.

These four successful contestants will enter the Plymouth district contest, to be held in Steinway hall, Boston, on April 23. If they are successful there, they will go to Portland, Oregon to enter the finals to be held at the fourteenth biennial of the National Federation of Music clubs, June 8 to 13, where the prize to be won will be a choice of $500 in cash of a musical course in one of the conservatories of music.

The judges in the contests yesterday were: Dean David Stanley Smith, Mrs. Hildegarde Nash Donaldson, Robert Prutting, of Hartford, Frederick ...ld, of the women's college, New London; Walter Edwards and J. L. ...thell, of Stamford and Isaac B. ...lark of Waterbury.

TILSON COMMENTS ON POLITICS IN THE HOUSE

New Haven, March 8.—Congressman John Q. Tilson expressed the opinion here today that the republicans in congress who had supported LaFollette in the national campaign had automatically withdrawn from the party and thus had forfeited their rights to favored committee appointments in the new congress. Congressman Tilson will sail Tuesday from New York for Europe where he will pass the next three months.

In commenting on the decision of the house committee on committees, of which he is chairman, not to recommend reappointment of Representative Frear, of Wisconsin, to the ways and means committee, Congressman Tilson said it was the unanimous opinion of the committee that a member representing such a "small contingent" is not entitled to such an important appointment.

Speaking of the future legislative program, Congressman Tilson believes that tax matters will be paramount. Speaking of the removal of the surtax, he said: "The higher brackets hit the rich and poor alike. Business is hit hard and this tends to increase the cost of living."

In addition to tax questions, the congressman believes that the next congress will take up the railroad problems.

Congressman Tilson will go to Europe on a mission of the war department, the announced purpose of which is to study foreign methods of ordinance manufacture.

CRITICISED PERSONS WHO ATTEND MIDNIGHT DANCES

Greenwich, March 8.—Rev. Dr. Oliver Huckey, pastor of the Second Congregational church here, in a sermon on "Who Is to Blame" at his church today, criticised those high school students and other young persons who attend midnight dances, drink liquor and are guilty of other general misdemeanors.

Dr. Huckel said that many motion pictures being shown today and the plays in many of the theatres "are not fit to be seen," and declared that many of the books now being read by the younger generation are setting bad examples.

The clergyman criticised the parents in many instances, calling attention to one case he knew of where a father gave his daughter a flask of liquor and told her it would be refilled when empty.

In connection with the question of midnight dances, Walter Guzzardi, president of a hotel in New York and one in Greenwich, announced today that hereafter, no fraternity dances will be permitted at his places.

BURGLARS STOLE SAFE FROM RESTAURANT IN WATERBURY

Waterbury, March 8.—Burglars stole a 550-pound safe from a restaurant owned by James Covello at 835 North Main street shortly before 8 o'clock tonight. Covello locked up at 7 o'clock. At 8 o'clock, Officer William Feeley tried the door and found it open. When Covello came down to lock up he discovered his loss. The safe contained $100 in currency, receipt and account books. Neighbors said a big automobile drove away from the door just a few minutes before Officer Feeley came along.

CODE OF ETHICS FOR MINISTERS ADOPTED

New Haven, March 8.—A "code of ethics for ministers" has been adopted by the New Haven Association of Congregational Ministers, including fifty clergymen of this denomination in the city and vicinity.

The truth presented "tactfully and constructively," avoiding of debts and meeting bills promptly, considering service primary and remuneration secondary and avoiding interference with other parishes, are some of the articles in the code, which was made public tonight, by ReRv. William G. Lathrop, registrar of the association.

RESIGNED PASTORATE HE HAD HELD 17 YEARS

Syracuse, N. Y., March 8.—Rev. Dr. Walter Rockwood Ferris(graduate of Princeton, Auburn and Union Theological seminaries, resigned today as pastor of Park Central Presbyterian church which he has served for 17 years. Dr. Ferris is well known in Presbyterian affairs throughout the United States through his connection with the general education board as a member of the executive committee, moderator of the New York synod and a frequent delegate to the general assembly.

WILLIMANTIC

Burt C. Angell who has confessed to the embezzlement of $10.25 from the safe of the Eagleville post office substation in the administration building of Connecticut Agriculture college has been cleared of all suspicion in connection with the robbery of about $75 from the college book store, in an adjoining apartment of the building, leaving the latter theft unsolved. State Policemen Hardisty and Hulburt of Stafford Springs have been working on the case but have been unable to discover any definite clues to establish the identity of the thief. Angell "spilled the beans" because he got frightened. Had he kept silence regarding the taking of money from the station safe he could easily have replaced the amount before making an accounting Tuesday. His pay check was due Tuesday and all would have been well if the break in the book store had not given him an inspiration to have the safe door open to witnesses and thereby make it appear like a double robbery. His statement that the safe door had been pried open had much to do with the solving of the mystery when Post Office Inspector Mulvey of Boston failed to find marks of any kind and was assured that only Postmaster Chaffee and the clerk, Angell, knew the combination. Angell said that four of the dollars he took were to pay the personal tax for his wife and himself. The time for the paying of the tax had expired and he was fearful of prosecution on that score. He planned to return all money when his ... received Tuesday.

The March meeting of the Windham Parent-Teacher association Friday evening in the auditorium of the Windham Center school was in observance of "Fathers' Night." The meeting was held Friday instead of the customary Monday because a number of the children took part in the programme, which was under the arrangement of the principal, Mrs. Harry Mosely. A little play of two maiden sisters, Miss Marjorie and Miss Dorothy, who lived together and were entertaining an old-fashioned singing school, was very well given, with Betty Barber and Bess Webster appearing as the sisters, in hoop-skirts and hair done up. A number of the children in old-fashioned costumes appeared to attend the school. Whitney Sandstrom, in a red coat, was the village sergeant, and Margaret Osborg, Miss Flibbertigibbet. Edward Bailey in a pinch-back coat with ruffles was the singing master and conducted the music from the top of a table. Between the first and second acts a group of folk songs and dances arranged by the teacher, Miss Marion Healy, was given by children from the first and second grades. The best of these was the Minuet, danced in costume; a flag drill completed the exercises. A silver collection was taken for the benefit of the playground fund, followed by the sale of parcel post packages, sent in by interested people. The net receipts amounted to over twenty dollars.

The amended list of one-act plays to be given on the circuit of the Drama League of Eastern Connecticut from Andover and Hebron stands as follows: Andover will give "The Neighbors," "Lonesome-like," "The Dear Departed." Hebron, "Bimbo the Pirate," "The Good Sainte Anne" and "The Loan of a Lover." As the first plays offered for circuit production are more or less experimental, they will probably not be entered for the annual prize, which is to be given each year to the town voted to have produced the best piece of work. Each production, except the home production is to be voted upon in every town where it appears, by the officers of the local Players' club. The prize is to be a sum of money, a certain per cent. of the net receipts of each performance, and will be awarded at the annual meeting of the Drama League. It is to be used to increase the facilities for dramatic production in the town which receives it.

"The Regiment of Two," the trial play given by the Hebron Players was repeated Friday evening in Andover for the benefit of the Christian Endeavor society of the Congregational church. Music between the acts and for the dance which followed was by a Hebron orchestra, one of several community organizations in outlying towns organized by Bert Lyman of Columbia. The affair netted about thirty dollars. The play is to be repeated in Columbia and Colchester later.

The Congregational Thimble club of which Mrs. W. C. Norris is leader was entertained by Mrs. Norris at her home last week at a covered dish supper.

Postmaster Walter R. King of the local office makes announcement of a newly completed schedule so arranged as to allow local letter carriers to sign off at 2 o'clock Saturday p.m.; schools in compliance with a permit ... granted by the post office department about a year ago. The carriers will return directly to the office after the regular Saturday morning delivery to route up mail on hand and then start out without stopping for such. This schedule will be carried out throughout the entire year, with the exception of holidays. The new system went into effect here last Saturday afternoon.

Members of Engine Company No. 1, in charge of Acting Lieutenant Michael J. Englisb and William Smith were called out by a still alarm at 1.15 o'clock Sunday afternoon to fight a brush fire off South street. The fire was on land owned jointly by C. A. Youngs and E. J. Lapan. Nine gallons of chemical were used.

Covering twenty-four to twenty-eight miles of unimproved country roads daily, except Sundays and holidays, has proved an arduous task for the rural free delivery mail carriers in this section. The travelling is said to be the worst in years, with parts of the roads covered with from four inches to one foot of mud. Several of the carriers are using horse and wagon outfits in preference to automobiles. William Cummings of R. F. D. No. 1, and Arthur R. Ellsworth of R. F. D., No. 2, report that they are as good authorities on the bad road situation as any men in the state.

Mrs. Delphina Gauthier Chauvin, 48, wife of Charles Chauvin, who died at St. Joseph's hospital Friday night after three weeks' illness, was born in Southbridge, Mass., December 13, 1877. This (Monday) morning a requiem mass is to be celebrated at St. Joseph's church. Arrangements were in charge of Killourey Brothers.

The digging of a large hole in front of the lunch wagon which stands on the Jackson & Sumner property, an optional site for the new community hotel, has led many to believe that the cornerstone of the new hotel was about to be laid. The fact is that the sewer in that point has become clogged and workmen had to dig deep in order to be able to drain off the overflow.

The third anniversary of the opening of the Al-Pierre Tabarin on Valley street by Messrs. P. J. Laramee and Albert J. Piche was observed with a well attended dance Saturday night. Various favors were distributed.

The funeral services for Alexander Kimczyk were held Saturday afternoon with prayer at the home, 62 Elm street and services at the Russian Orthodox church at three o'clock. Rev. S. Bogan officiated. Burial was in the Russian Orthodox cemetery, where a committal service was read. There was a large attendance at the funeral. Arrangements were in charge of Killourey Brothers.

The proposal of a change in the mail routes in the towns of Hebron and Andover is causing considerable excitement in the former town. At present there is a morning and evening collection and delivery of mail every day. The proposal from Andover that the R. F. D. route should be extended from Gilead, now receiving one daily mail R. F. D., from that town to Andover, down through Hebron Center, would cut off the Amston to Hebron mail route, Star Route 6115. All mail in or out o town after half past one, and every possibility of an evening paper. Postmaster Inspector C. J. W. Mulvey of Boston, was in town investigating the situation Friday and Saturday.

AM. THREAD MILLS OPEN, IF HANDS WANT TO WORK

(Special to the Bulletin)

Willimantic, March 8—The local mills of the American Thread Company will open this (Monday) morning to allow such workers who wish to continue their work in the absence of avowed strike advocates. These latter will not return, in accord with a vote of the local union of textile workers that operatives shall not return to duties at the plant.

Statements issued Saturday and Sunday made it plain that both sides are thoroughly prepared for the impending strike and mean to hold their stand to a finish. In refuting the rumor that the operatives did not have the sanction from the national council strike and would not receive any financial backing, Miss Amy Hooker, president of the Textile Workers' Council in this city, stated that the sanction was given and that the organization would offer unlimited financial backing during the term of suspension.

Questioned as the possible restoration of the ten per cent. cut made effective January 12, last, Agent Don H. Curtis, of the plant replied that there was nothing further to state. Notices signed by him were posted in the various rooms Saturday advising the workers that all the departments of the mills would be kept open and work provided as far as possible for all employes who remained at work. The strike will be under the supervision of Miss Mary Kelleher of Scranton, Pa., an organizer of the United Textile Workers. Local operatives place considerable importance on the outcome of their strike. It is hinted that the result would have a decided influence in all New England textile councils.

TOWN OF COVENTRY VOTES TO ACCEPT NEW SEAL

(Special to the Bulletin)

Willimantic, March 8—About fifty taxpayers of the town of Coventry met in the hall at North Coventry Saturday afternoon in response to a call for a special town meeting. William B. Hawkins was moderator and Town Clerk Louis W. Daniels read the warning. The reports of the board of selectmen as read by Dr. W. L. Higgins and the town treasurer, L. W. Daniels were accepted as read. The town voted to bear its percentage of the expense of replacing the old wooden bridge over the Willimantic river at Jones' Crossing, near Merrow with a new iron structure. The bridge connects the highways between Coventry and Mansfield and the latter town is being asked to vote its share of the cost of building. The outlay is placed at $4,500. Another important matter taken up at the meeting was the levying of a 20-mill tax on the grand list of the town as completed for 1924. The total of the list is $1,575,000 in round figures. The electors also voted unanimously to adopt a new town seal which was recently presented the town by First Selectman, Dr. W. L. Higgins and commemorates Coventry's famous hero, Nathan Hale. Selectman Higgins was given a rising vote of thanks for his valued gift to the town. It was also voted to shorten the schedule of voting hours for town, state and national elections by two hours. The polls will be open in the future from 6 a. m. to 4 p. m. instead of 6 p. m.

FEDERAL WOMAN OFFICIAL APPEARS FROM WASHINGTON

(Special to the Bulletin)

Willimantic, March 8—A special meeting of the local union of textile workers was held at 9.30 o'clock Saturday evening when Mrs. Weinstock of Washington, D. C., connected with the Conciliatory board of the federal department of labor, was introduced. The meeting took the form of a social gathering, no business being conducted, Mrs. Weinstock did not officially state the purpose of her visit, but hinted that her plans were to settle, if possible, the pending strike, at the American Thread Company here.

BOOZE IN GLASS PITCHER IN PETE KELLEY'S KITCHEN

(Special to the Bulletin)

Willimantic, March 8 — Adelard (Pete) Kelley was arrested for violation of the liquor law at 2.30 o'clock Sunday afternoon when Chief of Police McArthur, Captain Grady and Officer Leahy conducted a successful raid at his home 27 Temple street. The police were armed with a search warrant. A glass pitcher found in the kitchen yielded more than a pint of illicit liquor. Several empty gin and whiskey bottles were also taken. Kelley was released on a $500 bond furnished by Napoleon Bacon. He will appear in police court Monday morning.

JEWETT CITY

A large audience at the Baptist church Sunday morning gave strict attention to the second of the "Commandment" sermons by the pastor, Rev. E. E. Scates. Outstanding among the interesting and instructive features of his address, appeared that section wherein the minister told about "Who's Who," edited by Albert Nelson Marquis of Chicago. The speaker said, that there were oftentimes uncomplimentary comparisons made, with evident discrimination against the children of the clergy. Findings were read, touching 18,000 of the men and women who were adjudged as eligible to appear rightfully among the list of the "Who's Who" of today. The facts were disclosed as proven, that the offspring of the clergy claimed the highest per cent and led all the rest by a decided margin.

Since T. E. Lee discovered the old book of records, with its entries and accounts of affairs and happenings, made by his mother back in the second decade of the 19th century, several students of local early history, have been to read and enjoy its carefully recorded stories. Second to no other part of the find is the fact that Mr. Lee, her son, is enjoying their perusal at the age of 82.

There are not a few solemn adjudgments touching the evidently light calibered young girls of that early time. Yet no mention is made, establishing evidence that the kalsomined flappers of today, had recognized status in the sturdy pioneer communities of the early 20's.

Nevertheless one touching record goes to prove that; then as now, the heartless males were wont to turn down the ever trusting weaker members of the sex. One record made in 1824, is a written account of the lines composed by a young Griswold girl, who declared she was disappointed by her lover—"A false deception dwells in man. I fear that you are one, May heaven thus reward you when I am dead and gone. These promises you made to me, to men you may deny; there is a day a-coming when the Judge, he will not lie. When you pass death's cold, icy arms 'tis there that you will see, every vow and promise that you have made to me. Altho you've proven false to me, to you I have been true, and all the comfort you can take, I'll say you're welcome to. As for wishing you to prosper here, 'tis more than I can say, while breath is in our body, or you on earth do stay. And, when the table you come round, where elders break their bread, before you take a crumb with them, pray think of what you've said. This I can tell you for the truth, I don't your body crave; but hope you will repent your sins, before you reach the grave.

In later stanzas the bereaved authoress narrates finding out that her faithless lover had married. Then her anguish knew no bounds, and she proceeded in the closing lines to designate in no uncertain language, the exact spot where, he would finally alight, and who would be waiting with an especially prepared, warm and cordial reception!

William McCluggage, Kenneth Everett, Harold Field, Lawrence Drescher and Harold Hanna, are the committee appointed to have charge of the annual ladies' night and Masonic ball of Mt. Vernon lodge, No. 75.

Mrs. Patrick Shea and son Richard of Pawtucket, R. I., were week-end guests at the home of John Fitzgerald, on Main street.

A man living just over the boundary line of the borough, thought last week that if possible, he would like to purchase a yearling Jersey bull. He told a friend that his search had been unavailing as they were hard to locate, good ones, just now. Saturday night he reported the results of a two-line adv. running for three days in The Bulletin. His success was fine in every way, he says, and one day, the road up near his house had the appearance of one of the cattle transfer stations of the Central Pacific R. R. at Omaha.

Mrs. E. B. Chene, of Sylvandale, goes the diary record, about the dark day of May 19, 1780, written by Miss Asia Tiffany in 1824, one better. Mrs. Cheney has the original poem, printed on a long strip of paper. The types are of ancient style and the paper somewhat discolored, yet it is finely preserved when, it is known that it was packed away with other papers shortly after the close of the Revolutionary war. Records pretty well establish the fact that this poem was composed by Joseph Chapman, father of Rufus Chapman. The latter's son, Kingsley Chapman, whom many here will remember, was Mrs. Cheney's father.

There was a good attendance at the meeting of Pachaug Grange on Thursday evening, notwithstanding the bad weather. The new curtain for the stage has been received and was used for the first time. A vote of thanks was extended F. Leroy Holmes for his assistance in procuring the curtain. An invitation was received from Norwich grange to meet with them on Neighbors' night, Wednesday, March 11, but was declined with regrets, as several members of Pachaug grange are giving a play in Grange hall on that date. Being Ladies' night the following program was given with Miss Clara Hyde acting as lecturer: Song by the grange; reading and encore, Miss Lillian Pepin; S. A. on Woman, Mrs. F. Leroy Holmes; reading, Swing Low, Sweet Chariot, Miss Blanche Montgomery; song by the grange; pantomime, the reader being Mrs. Raymond Krug, with parts taken by Mrs. C. T. Armstrong, Mrs. F. L. Kanahan, Miss Marjorie Brewster, Miss Marion Frink, Mrs. Victor Campbell, Mrs. William Bitgood, Mrs. Idelle Babcock, Miss Edith Tift and Mrs. F. C. Whiting. Mrs. J. P. Richardson and Miss Susie Morgan. Popcorn, candy and lemonade was served by the committee in charge. Worthy Lecturer Mabel Kinnie announced that the next regular meeting would be Men's night, with Frank A. Mell, chairman.

Miss Gladys Bray has not been attending the funeral of her mother, in Boston, as reported in Saturday's news. The mistake was caused by a misunderstanding on the part of the correspondent.

ANNOUNCEMENTS

Sale of Robbins Court Property.

James L. Case has sold for Zebulon R. Robbins to Lucien E. Perreault, manager of Savard Brothers clothing store, the property located at No. 5 Robbins court consisting of a two-family house of six rooms each and both, together with lot 50 by 90 feet.

Mr. Perreault has made the purchase for a home and will take immediate possession.

Palace Theatre.

For today, Tuesday and Wednesday the Palace theatre is offering seven big acts of Paramount superlative vaudeville. The main attraction on the bill will be Al Levine and his jazz band. Other headline acts are Leon and Mitzie, ground tumblers; Mark and Fern, eccentric dancers; Adelle and Doris, juvenile comedians; Eli Coville, sensational acrobat; Harry Beeson, the Broadway entertainer; Emerie Sisters, singing comedians. The feature picture will be Breath of Scandal, with Betty Blythe, Lou Tellegen, Patsy Ruth Miller, Forrest Stanley and Jack Mulhall. The following is what Betty Blythe writes on scandal:

A horror of scandal usually connotes a clean life. To me, the two worst things in life are smallpox and scandal. If some of us are not more careful scandal will become a ruinous national institution. Scandal is the root of all evil, the trunk of all harm, the branch of ill repute, and the rotten leaves that fall upon the innocent. A career founded on scandal is built upon a crumbling sand-hill. The wages of scandal is iniquity.

Scandal is infinitely more difficult for a woman to endure, and many a breath of scandal becomes a lifetime yoke and often ends in a premature death.

Never trouble scandal and scandal will never trouble you.

People should guard every statement they make concerning others; a scandalous word may unintentionally creep into the conversation and result in a catastrophe for some innocent mortal.

I have known cases where a person's whole career, his whole life was ruined by some unkind remark thoughtlessly dropped by some gossiping man or woman.

Java Movies

In Java motion picture operators get their patronage going and coming. It costs real money to view a picture from the front, but the Dutch owners decided the poverty-stricken natives should experience the thrill as well. It was found by leaving the back of the theater open a fairly good view could be obtained from that side. So out in the tropical open the flappers and shieks of Java nightly pass judgment on the various celebrities for the moderate admission fee of 3 cents.

Benefits of the four open air schools for the physically defective, operated by the London City Council, have been extended to an increasing number of children, and some experiments are in progress to determine how far sunlight treatment can be utilized beneficially.

ANNOUNCEMENTS

Broadway Theatre

There was a reason for the crowds that flocked to the Broadway Theatre last week and from all advance indications, there will be a greater reason when the crowd sees the perfect B. F. Keith vaudeville program the management is showing today.

Every act is featured and they are all big time timber direct from the big city runs.

Martinez-Fields & Co., which consists of seven people offer a melange of melody, songs and steps, featuring an orchestra without a rival. Twinkling tunes, snappy songs and fast dancing, surrounded by a beautiful setting makes this offering one to be remembered.

W. S. Harvey assisted by Miss Madge Anderson in his original offering "A Room Upside Down" will keep you startled and amused.

A rip, snorting comedy act is presented by Tabor & Green, the two dark knights and well known comedians. Billy Suman and Company of four people in a new farce "In and Out," supplies enough comedy alone to suit anyone.

"Locked Doors," is even better than "The Fast Set."

Produced by the same man, William De Mille, and with Betty Compson featured in the principal role of this one also, the new Paramount picture which was shown at the Broadway yesterday, is that director's finest work by far.

Theodore Roberts, cigar and all, returns to the screen in this production. He and Miss Compson are featured with Kathlyn Williams, Theodor von Eltz and Robert Edeson in the leading roles.

The story was written especially for the screen by Clara Beranger, who also adapted "The Fast Set."

Breed Theater

Who but a new director would have the daring to make a "snob" the leading character in a photoplay? And who but a capable and talented actor would have the courage to play such a character?

Monta Bell, editor and writer, whom Harry Rapf made a director with Broadway After Dark, directed The Snob. John Gilbert, hero of many pictures, plays that unsympathetic character. The result is as entertaining a picture as has flashed across the screen this season.

Norma Shearer, beautiful heroine of Pleasure Mad, Empty Hands, and other films does some excellent work as the neglected and forgiving wife of the "snob." Conrad Nagel as the sympathetic friend, Phillis Haver as the wealthy, small town "vamp," Hedda Hopper and others do good work in the supporting cast. The story of The Snob was taken from the novel of the same name by Helen R. Martin. It was adapted and directed by Monta Bell.

The Pathe news, a cartoon and an Educational comedy make up the remainder of the bill.

Coming to the Breed

Six months in the making!

Six gruelling months spent in the filming of Sundown, First National's dramatic narrative of the passing of the old west, which is to be the attraction at the Breed theater four days starting Wednesday.

Months of dust and heat on the sunbaked plains of Texas, Arizona, New Mexico, California and Utah!

Thousands of surging cattle—a corps of ... constantly in danger of being crushed 'neath the heels of thundering stampede—a company of celebrated actors, their bones aching from long hours spent in the saddle—these are the things that make Sundown the greatest motion picture story of the American west.

At the Strand

"Those Who Dare," one of the outstanding productions of the year is at the Strand today and Tuesday. It is a drama, the powerful theme of which hits home to many thousands, who however, are not keen to admit it. That menacing phantom terror, superstition, has without question a most damaging influence upon the mind and even health of millions throughout the world. "Those Who Dare" vividly propounds the fallacy of superstition and, in bringing this message of common sense so realistically to the public, a most unusual tale of life on land and sea, replete with surprise situations, thrills and romance, is the gratifying result.

One of the highlights of "Those Who Dare" is the turning of a village full of superstition bound people into a sane and orderly community.

Bryant Washburn and Billie Dove in "Try and Get It" an amusing six reel comedy drama will also be on the screen of the Strand today and Tuesday as well as a laughable comedy.

It is just as important to watch your windings as it is to wind your watch.

The Windham County Farmers' Institute has planned a big day for the members of the county at Grange hall, Brooklyn Friday of this week. The second quarterly poultry meeting of the year in this county. County Agent H. L. Davis of Putnam, in charge, has the following data relative to the meeting and has appended some information that neighbors and all others of the poultrymen's friends who are interested in an important feature of furnishing food for the multitude should be in attendance. Mr. Davis says:

Those who were present at the first county quarterly poultry meeting pronounced it as an exceptionally interesting meeting.

After looking over the attached program I think you will agree that the discussions that will take place at the meeting in the Brooklyn Grange hall, next Friday, will be exceedingly valuable.

Mr. Joner' practical discussion as to whether it is the incubator operator or the eggs is the subject which interests the poultryman at this time of the year.

Thomas Moore, manager of Birchmere Farms, Central Village, where they carry 3,000 layers, will discuss the subject of "Giving the Chicks a Fair Start." Mr. Moore has handled such a large number of chicks' each year that his discussion is bound to be interesting and instructive.

Dr. John D. Clark of Abington who made such a fine talk on "Bacteria and Sanitation" at our last quarterly meeting is to give a talk on "Disinfectants and Antiseptics in Poultry Work." Dr. Clark because of his training both in surgery and medical work will handle the subject in a very interesting manner.

The county agent will discuss observations made in the county in connection with the fall and winter production and will use the Home Egg Laying Contest and the Storrs Egg Laying Contest figures in this connection.

The Question Box will allow every one to ask question.

10:45 a. m. Is it the incubator operator or the eggs" H. E. Jones, poultry specialist, Storrs; 10.45 a. m. The Home Egg Laying Contest and Better Eggs, with particular reference to fall and winter production, Frank L. Davis, county agent, Putnam; 11.15 a. m. Giving the chicks a fair start, Thomas Moore, Central Village; 12 m., noon lunch; 1 p. m., Disinfectants and Antiseptics in poultry work. Dr. John D. Clark, Abington; 1.45 p. m., (Management of the growing stock. R. E. Jones, poultry specialist, Storrs; 2.30 p. m., question box.

For the year that will end July 31 next, Killingly will need, net amount, $122,163, to meet its expenditures for the fiscal year. This is shown by the tentative budget of the selectmen and the town school committee, now available for inspection on Saturday. Town officials have been exceedingly careful in preparing their tax estimates of expense. They have kept them down to the last possible figure commensurate with what appears to be the best interests of the town. An 8 mill tax will be sufficient to raise the required revenue. It is of interest to note that the new grand list is $126,000 net larger than the grand list of 1924, a fact that will account for an increase of something like $2200 in revenue over last year. This year the school require additional money, because of two added teachers required because of an increase in attendance and because of the necessity of purchasing new equipment for the schools. These are urgent expenses. This car's budget contains an item of $7,000 to be used in payment of certain bonds of the town and $10,000 sinking fund balance for the reduction of interest-bearing debt, in accordance with the adopted policy of the town.

The town's credit list in the budget made up of cash in bank, tax interest collections, borough note, town farm produce, etc., amounts to $41,283.

FIFTEEN SLOT MACHINES SEIZED BY STATE POLICE

(Special to The Bulletin)

Danielson, March 8.—State police dealt the slot machine industry in Danielson and other parts of Killingly a telling blow Saturday afternoon when they went about and collected 15 of the instruments of fascination for the person with the gambling spirit, saving the patrons of the device a lot of money (in the future) and cutting out a fat source of revenue for the lesses of the contraptions.

Prosecuting Attorney Arthur G. Bill said Sunday afternoon that there probably would be no prosecutions, but there was a likelihood that the machines would be ordered destroyed is they were established as being a nuisance.

The raid by the police came unexpectedly. Getting the machines proved to be a good deal after the style of going around and taken up a collection!! When the operation was over the slot machines were in safe keeping at the state police barracks on North Main street. There they will remain until the court says what shall be done with them.

Slot machines are illegal in Connecticut no matter what subterfuge is adopted to result, temporarily of their use. In Danielson the machines use had a device attached that paid out rolls of candy when the machine did not otherwise make a return. This was supposed to cover the state law against gambling devices, but it is said by good legal authority that it does nothing of the kind. It happens that these particular machines pay more on some occasions—anywhere, it is so says, in lieu of nickels—on the break in luck—than one might get on another nickel. This principle involves the law of chance; hence they are gamblers.

Raids on such machines have been under way in Connecticut for several week. One was due in Danielson. The machines have been very popular here for several months and have been corraling pockets full of nickels for those who have them—for the public has no chance at all to beat them. This is agreed to by some of the most confirmed players of them—the men who like to see the wheels spin and care not a fig whether they pay a profit or not. The machines are owned by a non-resident, it is said, and he has been glad to furnish the machines, worth $125 each, and take 40 cents out of every dollar they netted. The lessee of the machine was given 60 cents out of each dollar of profit to allow the device in his place of business. It was worth while to him!

Within a fortnight complaint began to reach the ears of officials that children had caught the "take a chance" fever and were playing the machines, though this was not permitted at all by numbers who had the machines. It was bad advertising, however, and started considerable comment that spurred on in no inconsiderable degree such action for seizure as was being taken in other towns and cities where the machines had a big run, only to be grabbed off by officers when the bar become what the law regards as a nuisance.

BETTER THAN CALOMEL

Thousands Have Discovered Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets are a Harmless Substitute

Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets—the substitute for calomel—are a mild but sure laxative, and their effect on the liver is almost instantaneous. These little olive-colored tablets are the result of Dr. Edwards' determination not to treat liver and bowel complaints with calomel.

The pleasant little tablets do the good that calomel does, but have no bad after effects. They don't injure the teeth like strong liquids or calomel. They take hold of the trouble and quickly correct it. Why cure the liver at the expense of the teeth? Calomel sometimes plays havoc with the gums. So do strong liquids. It is best not to take calomel. Let Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets take its place.

Headaches, "dullness" and that lazy feeling come from constipation and a disordered liver. Take Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets when you feel "logy" and "heavy." They "clear" clouded brain and "perk up" the spirits. 15c and 30c.

PUTNAM

At the annual meeting of the Northeastern Connecticut Fish and Game Club, held at Odd Fellows' hall, officers for the ensuing year were elected as follows: President, Ernest C. Morse; treasurer, Carl Sharpe; secretary, Prosper Viegard; executive committee, Dr. James H. Hutchins, Pomfret, George Whitney, Thompson, Irving Paine, Woodstock, Care P. Latham, Eastford. Stanley Bacon, Putnam. A committee of three has been appointed to cooperate with the Danielson Rod and Gun Club to buy bass to put in Alexander's lake, the amount to be expended not to exceed $75.

It was voted to hold meeting quarterly on the first Thursday evening of each quarter, the meeting to be held in Putnam, Thompson, Woodstock and Pomfret. The past year has been a successful one, the membership totalling 178. Every brook in the district was heavily stocked with trout and a good number of pheasants were released. At the next meeting in April a motion picture from Field and Stream is to be shown.

C., where he attended the inauguration, Representative Utter of Westerly took passage on the Federal express which does not make a scheduled stop at Westerly. He was called by the porter as requested when the train reached the Westerly station but the train continued on. The train did not go far, however, before a hot box developed and the train backed up to the Westerly station to care for it. Representative Utter was thus enabled to leave the train, but in somewhat informal attire.

FLAT TIRE ON AUTO TRUCK FATHER AND SON INJURED

(Special to the Bulletin)

Westerly, R. I., March 8—While driving his auto-truck down Berry Hill, Liberty street, in Pawcatuck, on Sunday night, shortly before 6 o'clock, Frank Schable of Pleasant street, Westerly and his son, Tony, 7, were thrown out. The accident happened when control was lost of the automobile which had a flat tire and the father was holding his son in his arms. Dr. Michael H. Scanlon found that the boy had sustained bruises on his forehead and cuts inside his mouth, caused when his teeth were driven together. Frank Schable had the fingers of his right hand badly skinned. The damage to automobile was not great. The accident was reported to Patrolman C. Wilson Brown, of Pawcatuck.

Jewish philosophy and history, the Bible, later Biblical literature, the Talmud Jewish jurisprudence, and Hebrew philology will be studied in the proposed University of Jerusalem, which will be the center of intellectual life for the Jews.

STAFFORD SPRINGS

Joseph Laughammer of Willington was arrested by State Policeman Heinold Friday afternoon and presented in the borough court, charged with violating the Volstead act. The case was continued by Judge Heald until March 14th at 10 o'clock and Laughammer was placed under a bond of $200. Officers Heinold and Schweikert of the local state police barracks searched Laughammer's place earlier in the day and found a five-gallon copper still, a complete outfit for making moonshine, five quarts of moonshine and about 15 gallons of prune and cherry mash: In addition to this, there were twelve barrels of hard cider in the cellar.

Snow Crystals

Snow crystals vary in size from minute ones which can scarcely be seen with the naked eye to plates a quarter of an inch in diameter. When the air is full of large crystals, frequent collisions take place, and numbers of crystals interlock and fall to the ground as "snow."

PROTECTING THE BUYERS.

Ever since they were brought forward there have been strong fights made in behalf of substitutes for butter and there is no reason to expect the slackening of the efforts. This opposition takes the form of trying to remove the taxation of substitutes and of endeavoring to persuade law makers that obstacles should not be placed in the way of substitutes provided they are wholesome.

There was a time when substitutes found it difficult to get a hearing. The case is not so today. Substitutes are more and more used because they have been found to be wholesome palatable and the substitute which they are claimed to be.

The taxing of substitutes such as sometimes the aim has been to protect the consumer. It can be appreciated that while it might not do any harm to an individual to eat a substitute for butter, it is an injustice to the substitute worked off for the genuine and the price of butter exacted for what is not butter. The consumer has a right to know what he is buying. So long as there is nothing dangerous in the use of substitute and they are bought as such, with a full knowledge of what is being purchased on the part of the consumer there is no reason why the latter should not have its chance. There should, however, if it is put up as butter and for butter and intended for the replacement of butter without the consumer being fully informed about what he is getting, there is an injustice involved quite as much as there is in giving short weight. It is even worse than that habit of selling something which is "just as good" when it isn't what is wanted or what was ordered.

Butter substitutes cannot be put on the market in a manner that will have proper protection to the person who wants butter and nothing else. It must be expected that there will be opposition to protect the buyer. He is entitled to know what he is getting. If it is butter he has the satisfaction of knowing it. If it is renovated butter that must be clearly stated. If it is margarine or some other substitute he should buy it as such.

ASSISTANT AIR CHIEF.

The probability General Mitchell has been renominated for assistant chief of the army air service is the manner in which he dismisses the opposition which he has been met with because of the views which he has insisted in forcing others to adopt.

General Mitchell as a subordinate has failed to ignore his superiors and subordinates which he has ignored legislative committee investigating activities he has been connected with the air service. It is nothing strange that an assistant should differ from his superior, even when such an official takes the position that General Mitchell has it is evident that such a source of friction cannot be tolerated. Either the influence must be placed in another office or else it must be removed from active duty.

It is easy to understand what a man like General Mitchell has been to General Patrick at the head of the air service and likewise to the head of the war department. Departmental questions are not determined by one man alone and yet that would appear to be the object of General Mitchell, who not only has endeavored to create a state favorable consideration for the air service but who would have it regarded the only. There is not a disposition to disregard the air service but there is an unwillingness to put all the eggs into the discard, or to rely upon the entire defense of this country through the air service.

General Mitchell demonstrated so thoroughly that he could not retain his office without a continuance of his past methods, and when he showed that he was unable to submit to any other views and opinions it was inevitable that he should be transferred to some other duties and somewhere named who would meet the requirements required of him. A subordinate who attempts to discredit or override the head of his department should either replace his superior or be reassigned to other work. General Mitchell has failed to realize that he should be at the head of the air service. His demotion follows as a matter of course.

PLUNGING INTO ASIA.

Wherever they will explorers as a rule remain to arouse much interest in their undertakings and to be followed with enthusiastic concern as they make progress in their chosen fields.

Perhaps the idea has been gained that there isn't any locality which hasn't been thoroughly gone over and that the explorer of today must do some hard searching in order to find anything to explore. That of course isn't quite hardly so, for while there is some general idea about what have been the unknown regions of the world, there is opportunity for disclosing much information which is not now available in many directions. The north and the south poles have been discovered but there are polar regions about which little is actually known.

It can be appreciated therefore when the Roosevelt sons, Theodore and Kermit, make up their minds to plunge into Turkestan they are certain not only to gratify their desire for adventure but they are headed into a part of the world about which little is really known. They are of course giving vent to that Roosevelt desire for the excitement which goes with the hunting of big game. Such expeditions have been led by their illustrious father into Africa and South America. Asia is the goal for the sons, one of whom, Kermit, has already had experience in such an undertaking. They will hunt, explore, investigate and collect. At least there promises to be an addition to the scientific knowledge of conditions in that part of the world on their return.

It would be difficult for an expedition to start out from this country on such a quest that would be assured of a greater interest on the part of the people of the United States. The fact that they are their father's sons is certain to increase the interest, while the statement of the present Colonel Roosevelt that it takes a "tough man" to follow in the footsteps of his father in such an undertaking is fully appreciated in advance.

IN PRISON AT LAST.

If you have never received out of those alluring appeals from a Spanish prisoner you have friends who have or have heard of those who have been "favored" with such communications. For years a well organized effort has been made for the purpose of separating the American people from their money by permitting them to forward their gold to aid in effecting the release of a Spanish prisoner who knew where there was a fortune which he would eagerly share with his rescuers.

Letters were received by the hundreds. Answers must have been sent and the venture been productive of financial results or it would not have been continued for so long a period. No one has as yet been found who ever participated in the fortune awaiting division as soon as the prisoner's release could be effected.

There cannot fail to be an interest therefore in the reported arrest of an individual in Madrid who, it is claimed, is the famous "prisoner." It cannot be believed that such a persistent and well organized scheme for swindling was confined to one individual, but if it was that person will now have a chance to experience what he essayed to picture concerning the inside of a Spanish prison. He has done enough to entitle him to a considerable stay in such a place, and while it appears to have taken a very long time to get him into the toils of the law the belief is not illogical that while this particular "prisoner" is facing the possibility of a prison stay he is probably only one of many and his arrest furnishes no real assurance that others will not be keeping up the work which he may be forced for a time to abandon. He is in prison at last, but as a real prisoner no letters are expected from him.

SHIPBUILDING.

For the past ten years this country has been more interested in ship construction than for a long time previous. It was forced upon us with the result that we have a lot of high priced ships which cannot be disposed of, but while ship construction is proceeding at a much reduced pace it is nevertheless seen that our big lead over other countries in ship construction is being cut down materially. Other countries are getting back to a point where they were before the war and Germany is resuming its activities.

What the revival of the German shipbuilding activity means is displayed in an interesting manner by the letting of contracts to build British ships to German shipyards. That seems hardly believable and yet it is a fact, in spite of the surplus of labor in Great Britain and extensive facilities which the British have. The answer is that Germany has underbid the British yards so heavily that there was nothing else to do. A large shipping corporation seeking five cargo vessels of 10,000 tons each made determined efforts to have them built in British yards, even offering $50,000 a ship above German figures, but the effort was useless and German contractors get the work.

This would seem to indicate the desire that exists in Germany for business, but a condition at home which must cause some concern to the British. Germany has always done much in the way of shipbuilding and it gives evidence that it has no intention of permitting competitors to crowd it out.

WOMAN IN LIFE AND IN THE KITCHEN

SUGGESTIONS FOR THE HOUSEWIFE

A pinch of baking powder added to meringue will keep it from falling.

Keep the outside of the tea kettle polished and free from grime and grease.

Oysters should be cooked as little as possible, never after they begin to shrivel.

When frying, add a little salt to the fat and the croquets or doughnuts will not spatter on the stove.

Woodenware should dry slowly so as not to crack.

A folded envelope will answer the purpose of a shoehorn when traveling.

Cool all foods before putting them into the refrigerator. It is better for the food and much easier on the ice bill.

Keep the yeast cake in the bottom of the refrigerator until used. Never put it directly on the ice or it will spoil.

Cream soup should be served just as hot as any other variety of soup, yet we so frequently are served lukewarm cream soups instead of really hot ones.

It's about time to put the market basket in the tub and give it a good scrubbing with hot suds and a stiff brush. It will not only look better, but will wear better.

When you substitute vegetable oil for butter in a recipe, add a little more salt, as the lack of salt in the vegetable oil may make the dish a bit flat.

Cut out the bottom of an old tea kettle with a can opener and use the top to cover irons when they are heating on the stove. They will heat in much less time.

Flowers which are fading may be restored by immersing them halfway up their stems in very hot water and allowing them to remain in it until it cools. Then cut off the scalded portions of the stems and place the flowers in clear cood water.

COVER THE SPRINGS

If your bed springs are not of the box variety they should be covered over with a washable cover to prevent their rusting the mattress. The mattress will wear much better, too, if not resting directly on the springs.

AN ISLAND STEW

The Bermuda housewife prepares a beef stew, browning the meat and the whole vegetables in hot fat. While the stew is simmering, she cleans and seeds a small pumpkin. This is steamed until the shell begins to soften. The stew is poured into the pumpkin, the cap replaced. And the pumpkin stew then baked for an hour in a moderate oven.

A Bermuda recipe for fish stew calls for pumpkins, peeled and cut into small squares. It also requires other vegetables. Rice, onions and white turnips.

Squash might be utilized more frequently than it is. Although, in comparison with pumpkin, it is a common article of diet. There has, at least, been more variety in the methods of utilizing squash. For there is stuffed squash, squash biscuit and squash, as well as squash pie.

HEALTH AND BEAUTY

Hot lemonade is one of the best remedies in the world for a cold. It acts promptly and effectively and has no unpleasant after effects.

Baking soda gives instant relief to a burn or a scald. Applied either wet or dry to the burned part immediately, the sense of relief is magical. It seems to withdraw the heat, and with it the pain.

Often a foreign object gets under the eye lid. To evert the lid, grasp the upper lid firmly but gently and turn it back, as if you were turning it inside out. It does not hurt and very often an infinitesimal speck against the eyelid will be causing all the trouble. If the eye has been cut, summon a doctor.

A young child should have his principal meal at noon, including a vegetable and meat soup, or an egg, or meat (fish or fowl) with a green vegetable and a starchy food (rice, potatoes, macaroni, cereals.) Cereal, milk, and fruit make the best supper and breakfast.

A HOUSEHOLD NECESSITY

A thermometer is really a necessity in the house with a baby. So often baby's head seems feverish to the anxious mother, but when his temperature is taken, either under the arm or by rectum, and the result is normal, mother becomes normal too and applies home remedies. Many an unnecessary call for the doctor is avoided by owning a thermometer.

LOOK AFTER THEM

Mothers, take care of those baby teeth. In olden times the first teeth were pulled out on the slightest pretext, but we all know now that the child will benefit in health if the first set of teeth can be preserved until the second set appears, as much of the health and vigor of the second teeth depend upon the care the first teeth receive.

USED IN MANY WAYS

The best quality of ammonia is fine for keeping the bathroom spick and span, sweet and sanitary. Use it freely for cleaning all tile and enamel; it removes dirt without scratching or labor. For cleaning hairbrushes, toothbrushes, clothesbrushes or bathbrushes, add one tablespoonful of ammonia to small pan of hot water. Lay brushes in this with bristles down. The result will be both prompt and pleasing. One-half cup ammonia added to your bath softens the water and makes it delightfully exhilarating.

SPLENDID FOR HIM

Let the youngster eat plenty of butter. So many mothers are so particular about "wasting butter" with children and watch them carefully when they spread their bread or else butter it for them.

The child who eats plenty of butter is by no means wasting it, as it is splendid for him. Economize on the candy and cake permitted him and let him have the butter.

DICTATES OF FASHION

English silk broadcloth in stunning striped designs in Roman or the more conservative colors has a conspicuous place in the fabric departments of the best shops.

Topped with flowers in matching colors, the new shaded hats in lovely pastel tones reveal the tendency to use more trimming but to employ it with the greatest skill and discretion.

Bands of fur in two tones of gray or in gray and white appear on several of the smartest new coats.

With the fashion of showing the ears has come a revival of the vogue for huge ball earrings. They come in gold and silver and in pearls of different tints to match the necklace.

Black georgette crepe undergarments, lace trimmed, are very appropriate for the woman who wears black a great deal, but there is no white georgette crepe and black Chantilly lace.

So many beads are worn these days and not all are strung secure. Should they be broken, restring them on a gut violin string or a silver-plated mandolin string and they will wear much longer.

The vogue of hydrangea color has brought about the introduction of exquisite scarfs of pink and blue chiffon banded with borders of silver lace. To carry with the scarfs are tiny handkerchiefs of chiffon in the same tone edged with narrow silver or gold lace.

The three features of the spring dresses, are pleats, kasha, the material in which the pleats are placed, and leather, the material with which many dresses and hats are trimmed. Dresses of kasha, that beautiful soft, yielding woolen fabric in white or pastel shades, form a nice winter resort wardrobe.

HAT PINS RETURN

The hat pin is again making a hesitating appearance as an ornament on the head coverings. The pins have jet, steel, tortoise shell or jade beads. Some hats are made entirely of multi-color leather strips woven tightly together. For trimming the wider straw lace hats enhanced with flowers and accompanied by a little lace veil offer a novelty.

GIVE TOUCH OF COLOR

A New York business woman in her office usually affects the quieter colors in her tailored suits. But when she casts off the cares of business she puts on one of the bright printed scarfs. The ends of this are allowed to hang over the front of the coat like revers and give the touch of the color needed for a well-dressed stroll up the avenue.

STORING PAPERS

Stored newspapers will not be unsightly if baled together in 5 or 10 pound bundles, then marked with crayon as to their weight. You will find you will get a better price for them from the junk man if you have weighed them yourself. The junk man's scales so frequently register under weight.

LAUNDRY HINTS

A little orris root, tied in a muslin bag and placed in the water in which handkerchiefs are boiled, will give them a faint and delicious scent of violets when ironed.

The new ironing board covers have eyelets and lacers and one can remove them to launder and return them to the board with no more trouble. Be sure to ask for this sort when purchasing a new one. The material is a durable unbleached muslin.

A tablespoonful of borax in the water in which white collars are washed will take away all tint of yellow and make them look like new.

CURTAINS AND THE HOME

Don't be governed by a passing fashion when curtaining your home. Decide what is the prettiest and most suitable sort of curtain material and stick to it. Elaborate, ornate curtains in a sweet, modest little home are most out of place and dainty, sheer nets would be so much more suitable. Curtains are expensive accessories, so think it over carefully before you buy.

CONCERNING SHOPPING

Make out your list before you leave home.

Plan your entire shopping trip so that steps need not be retraced.

Start your shopping in the highest floor so that you can use the stairway if the elevators are crowded.

If shopping entirely in one store, group your listed articles so that you will not miss one and have to return to the same floor later.

Don't decide to do without your lunch to save time. You will waste just the same amount of time when you get home nursing a nasty headache.

AN AIR PURIFIER

The non-smelly and sanitary clothes closet has a few small bags containing gum camphor hanging around on various hooks. The odor is not strong enough to be taken up by any of the clothes, but it is just enough to frighten away moths and to create a fresh atmosphere instead of that unaired smell clothes closets are wont to acquire.

EGG WHITES AND YOLKS

When making a dish calling for egg whites, plan another dish that will use up the leftover yolks. For instance if making a pudding with a meringue calling for a number of whites, have a salad at the same meal with mayonnaise dressing, then the yolks will be used too. However, egg whites will keep for several days in the refrigerator and if you cover the egg yolks with cold water and keep them in a cup in the refrigerator the same thing applies.

CONCERNING WOMEN

Bearing a courtesy title, the daughter of an English peer who died a few years ago earns her living by selling chocolates in a little shop near the Houses of Parliament.

Dr. Mary Lucas Keene, appointed to the faculty of the London Free Hospital of Medicine for Women, has the distinction of being the first woman professor of anatomy in England.

ONE FOR THE LITTLE FELLOW

When next you send flowers to a new mother include a tiny nosegay for the new-born baby. Mother and Daddy will be delighted.

SAVE THEM

Small mayonnaise jars make splendid containers for spices, nutmegs, etc., and give an attractive appearance to the cupboard shelf.

RECIPES

Spanish Casserole: Six medium potatoes, 1 small turnip, 1 cup canned peas, 1 cup canned tomatoes, 1 onion, 1-4 cup rice, 1 teaspoon salt, 1-8 teaspoon allspice, 4 cups meat stock.

Wash, pare and slice potatoes. Wash and pare turnip, cut in one-half-inch cubes. Peel and slice onion. Pick over and wash rice. Put vegetables in alternative layers in casserole and pour stock over all. Cook in slow oven three hours.

Mocha Tart: Beat the egg yolks and sugar to a cream, add the flour, mixed with the baking-powder, the mocha extract and last the well beaten whites of the eggs, and bake in three layers in a rather hot oven. For the filling whip the cream after adding the sugar add mocha extract, and spread between layers and on top.

Four eggs, one cup sugar, one cup flour, two scant teaspoons baking powder, one and a half teaspoons mocha extract. Filling: one pint cream, three teaspoons mocha extract, three tablespoons powdered sugar.

IN THE PUBLIC EYE

Dr. Edward G. Acheson, who today enters upon his 70th year, is one of the foremost American inventors in the field of industrial chemistry. He is the inventor of methods for making artificial graphite and various clays that are peculiarly adaptable to the making of bricks and crucibles designed to be subjected to extremely high temperatures. But his chief claim to fame rests on his discovery of carborundum, one of the hardest substances known, and a perfect substitute for the diamond in many uses of industry. Dr. Acheson is a native of Washington, Pa. As a young man, he worked as a civil engineer in railroad construction, as a surveyor of oil tanks and as a mining engineer. He was also associated with Thomas A. Edison when Mr. Edison was developing his incandescent lighting system, and was sent to Europe to install the first electric lighting plants in Italy, Holland and Belgium.

Selfridge, the Cash Boy

As a cash boy, Harry Gordon Selfridge dreamed of being a great merchant; as a bookkeeper he saw visions of being a prominent financier—soon afterward he was out of work and glad to do almost anything.

Born in Ripon, Wis., just a short time before his father was killed in the Civil War, the boy was reared by his mother, who taught school to earn the family funds.

Gordon attended public school, acted as cash boy in the little dry goods store, at $1.50 a week during vacations, and yearned to be a merchant. At 14 he became a helper in the bank, later his pleas to a bookkeeper were heard and at 16 he was in charge of the clerical department at $7.50 a week.

Then he was bookkeeper for a furniture factory at $50 a month. The factory failed and Selfridge hunted for a job.

Next clerk in an insurance office at Big Rapids, at $6 a week, he studied law, but soon gave it up and was glad to take a job as helper in the wholesale dry-goods house of Field, Leiter & Co., of Chicago at $10 a week. Working his way up to a position as traveling salesman, he was transferred to the retail store. At 24 he became the manager of the retail branch of Marshall Field & Co., and soon afterward was made a partner at a salary of $20,000 a year.

Married a year later, he became one of Chicago's prominent men. At 39 he retired and formed a company to buy Schlesinger & Mayer's drygoods store, but sold it within a year.

After three years of planning and work he introduced the American department store into conservative London. More than 45, advised by friends that, he could not overcome English prejudice and often blocked by old-world rules and ideas, he started his store. Just when success had been attained the world war brought further troubles. The joy caused by the peace proclamation was clouded by the death of his wife.

Today, Selfridge at 60, is still at the head of Selfridge & Co., Limited, with its 6000 employes. He is rich and is one of the world's greatest merchants.

A Little Talk on Thrift

Short Hours and Production

An interesting survey on the influence on output of the short work day in industrial plants has just been completed in England. There is considerable agitation among industrial workers everywhere for shorter hours. The effect of short time on production is a mooted question. When the eight-hour-day was first advocated the argument was that a worker could accomplish as much or more in eight hours than in twelve, because of the natural slowing down in order to stand the strain of the longer day.

While the recent investigation in England, made in a variety of industrial plants, does not prove or disprove the supposed advantages of a still shorter day, it does prove that the shorter week giving the worker a longer week-end period, is a disadvantage to productivity.

"The longer the rest," say the investigators, "the greater the loss of manual dexterity, and the greater the retarding influence on output." In other words, when a worker rests on Friday, Saturday and Sunday of each week, a loss of skill and speed is noticeable on Monday and Tuesday. It seems to require one or two days for the worker to recover complete dexterity.

"If the worker were allowed to work," says the report of this investigation, "for four hours a day on each week day, instead of eight hours on three consecutive days, the factor of fatigue, together with a loss of skill over the long week-end, would be eliminated." The investigators hold that an increase of production would follow.—Thrift Magazine.

Stories That Recall Others

Listening In.

Charles, age four, and his sister Mabel, age two, were playing that Mabel was a "strange baby."

"What is your mother's name?" Charles asked her in mock severity.

"Mrs. Turnick," Mabel replied.

"What is your father."

"KDKA," she answered, not realizing that she had hit off her daddy's hobby most clearly.

What's in a Name?

Mary, age four, came home from her first day at kindergarten and her mother asked her the name of her teacher. Mary replied, "Her name is Miss Buttonhook." Mother thought there must be some mistake and told her to make sure of the teacher's name on the following day.

Mary dutifully reported that her teacher's name wasn't Miss Buttonhook at all; it was Miss Screwdriver. The teacher's name in reality was not Miss Cooper, but one quite as simple.

LISBON TOWN MEETING VOTES 25 MILL TAX

A town tax of 25 mills, with 2 mills extra to provide for paying off the indebtedness of the town of between $9,000 and $10,000, was laid by the town meeting held Saturday afternoon at the town house with a good attendance. For the last two years the town tax has been 30 mills.

It was voted to rescind a vote taken May 12, 1906 which provided for laying a two mill tax for a sinking fund to pay off the bonded debt of the town of $38,000 at that time. It was explained that $18,000 has been accumulated in this way and that the money is so invested that the interest during the next 11 years will meet the balance of $10,000 on the bonded debt.

The meeting voted to fix the hours for opening and closing the polls at town elections from 9 a. m. to 2 p. m. and at state and national elections from 9 a. m. to 5 p. m. The same hours will be the time for making voters for these elections.

The selectmen, Harry L. Hull, John M. Lee and George Bradlaw, presented a plan and layout of the addition to Ames cemetery, which was accepted and the price of lots was placed at $35, with a graded scale of prices and according to location.

The meeting voted against discontinuing a piece of road from the River road, so-called, to the Bundy Hill farm.

On the question as to whether the town will hold annual or biennial elections for town officers hereafter, it was voted to hold the town election this fall as usual but after that biennial elections.

A claim made by Albert A. Rist, formerly treasurer of the town for 10 years, to have repaid to him the sum of $112 which he claimed he had been obliged to put into the treasury in order to balance his books was the final matter before the meeting. It was voted to repay this amount to Mr. Rist if he can satisfy auditors that his books show he has been called upon to pay the money.

GIRL RECEIVES BULLET STEPFATHER HAD INTENDED FOR HER MOTHER

A few minutes before six o'clock Sunday evening Sarah Zigarella, 13, was shot in the right arm by her stepfather, Antonio Zigarella, 38, as she stepped in front of him to grab the revolver which it is said he had drawn for the purpose of shooting his wife. The shooting affray occurred at their home, No. 39 Roath street. It is understood that Zigarella arrived at his home in an intoxicated condition and for some unexplainable reason pulled out the gun with the intention of shooting his wife, Mrs. Mary Zigarella. The girl, realizing her stepfather's intention, got between the two and received the bullet in her arm as she attempted to grab the gun. The bullet entered the girl's forearm, shattering the bone.

Zigarella immediately fled from the house through a lot and a small patch of woods and disappeared, but within two hours he was locked up in a cell at police headquarters. Just before 8 o'clock Captain Thomas F. Murphy received a telephone call from a very much excited woman who asked for help as a girl had been shot on Roath street. The woman was so excited that she could not talk coherently. Captain Murphy hurried a squad of police comprising Sergeant Matthew Delaney and Officers Patrick Shahan, Hugh McAvoy, Luke Riley and Joseph Gendron to the home. Zigarella had made a quick getaway as the police were but a few minutes in reaching the scene of the shooting. Nobody knew where Zigarella had gone and a search of the nearby woods and streets in the vicinity of the house was made.

Captain Murphy, with Officers Patrick Murphy and Ralph Divito, went in search of the man and about 8 o'clock discovered him in hiding under a bed in the upstairs tenement at No. 128 Baltic street occupied by John Caprivloggi, a relative. Zigarella was arrested and taken to the police headquarters where he was locked up in deadquarters where he was locked up in default of bonds of $5,000. He had evidently cut across the lots to the Baltic street house where he was given shelter. Zigarella will be presented in the city court this (Monday) morning.

The girl's wound is not considered serious. She was attended at her home by Dr. W. T. Driscoll. Asked where the revolver was Zigarella told the police that he had thrown it away as he ran across a lot in the rear of his house. A search for the gun was made but it could not be found in the darkness.

MUST CHANGE HEARTS TO BRING CHANGED WORLD

A Changed World, was the subject of the sermon preached by Dr. Edward Holyoke, pastor of Calvary Baptist church of Providence for the past 38 years, at the United Congregational church, Sunday evening, at the united meeting of churches of the city and the Young Men's Christian association.

We are still asking ourselves, said Dr. Holyoke, after the many trying experiences of the past decade, what is the matter with the world and what must we do to change it? Some say to go back to Christ and others to the Bible. I do not believe we should go back; we should go forward to new and better ideas which will bring about a better world. The solution to this problem is easy to find and it is one that will hold for all days. God said he would make a new covenant; put a law into the inward parts of man and write it in their hearts that all should know Him. He would forgive their iniquities and their sins. He would remember no more. You must be born again. A changed heart will bring a changed life and in turn that will bring a changed world. That is all that is wrong with the world—it needs a changed heart, to make a changed life, thus bringing the changed world.

Law will not bring about a changed world. We have thousands of laws to keep the right more than any lawyer could ever learn but in spite of all laws, lawbreaking has increased 1200 per cent in comparatively few years. In America there is one homicide in every 1200, while in England there is but one in 650,000. We have become a law-breaking people and are known as such by all other peoples. Nor will the growth of material wealth, the development of inventions, nor science or beauty bring about a changed world.

Will education do it? There is a fine chance to see this in our country of free education, free land, free press and schools. We need education; it helps to see afar and lay foundation of moral character, but you cannot educate a child first and then teach him religion. Both should walk together. Moral science cannot make a man good. An uneducated man may steal coal from beside a railroad. Educate that man and he will probably steal the whole railroad.

No, education is not enough, unless it is Christian education. Six generations of New England culture did not save Burr from being a homicide. A college without religious instruction, that does not foster religion, has no right to the name of college. Colleges should teach the sciences and explain how they fit with religion.

Take our schools. I believe that our free schools should be free in the teaching of the truth of Him. They have taken the Bible from our public schools because of the New Testament which teaches of Christ, and is against a belief; the others because they do not believe people should have too much freedom in reading God's word. Young hearts should be taught of Him, for 90 per cent of the crimes are by youths under 25 years of age. Put the truth into the minds and hearts of our children in the public schools, teach of Him in these schools, not from any secretarian feeling, but on the broad-minded plan for the good of all. If we cannot do this then let us put, and keep, our public schools in the hands of those who do believe in them and who will support them, and, who are doing nothing whatever to supplant them.

If you cannot do this in your schools then do it in your homes. Father and mother, as high priest and high priestess, teach your children the proper understanding of God. Lead them out into life with a heart knowing God, a mind filled with Jesus and the spirit of God written into their hearts. Get into their blood the spirit of Jesus Christ for the soul of education is the education of the soul and by it the heart is changed, a life becomes changed and thus we will have a changed world.

Previous to the sermon of the evening Edwin Hill, general secretary of the Y. M. C. A., announced that the union service next Sunday evening would be held at Christ Episcopal church when Bishop Chauncey Brewster will be the speaker.

Two Grass Fires.

The fire department answered two telephone calls for grass fires over the week end. Saturday afternoon at 3.43 o'clock the apparatus was called out for a grass fire on land owned by Augustus Riley in the rear of No. 218 West Thames street. Sunday afternoon about 3.25 o'clock the department answered a call for a grass fire on land owned by Harry Hakadolis off Orchard street.

Body Will Arrive From Kansas

Word has been received in this city that the body of Frederick J. Williams, son of Mr. and Mrs. Henry T. Williams of 201 Laurel Hill avenue, will arrive in Norwich today (Monday). Mr. Williams death occurred Friday afternoon in a hospital in Lawrence, Kansas, following an operation for appendicitis.

Burial in Norwich.

Norwich relatives were in West Mystic Sunday to offer condolence to the members of the family of Judge Frederick H. Brewer. Judge Brewer's burial is to be in Norwich.

The ignorance of a pretty girl is bliss to the young man who is teaching her to drive an automobile.

MARIE TIFFANY CHARMS IN LENTEN CONCERT

The first of the series of three Sunday afternoon lenten concerts, an innovation in the musical field in this city, was given at 4 o'clock Sunday afternoon at the Palace theatre before an audience of about 900, with Marie Tiffany, soprano, of the Metropolitan Opera Co., as the artist on the programme. The series is for the benefit of Connecticut College.

The choice of Miss Tiffany to open the series proved most auspicious and she won the instant favor of her audience from her first appearance, fulfilling every promise with her voice of beautiful quality throughout its wide range, under perfect control and responsive to every mood that her artistry suggested. Double and triple curtain calls came after every group of songs and the applause was only stilled when the singer graciously responded with encore numbers each time. The accompanist was Frederick W. Lester of this city whose work revealed a masterly command of the art of the accompanist, which the singer herself recognized when, at the close of the programme, she smilingly led Mr. Lester from his place at the piano and insisted that he share with her the plaudits of the enthusiastic audience.

The programme was given as follows:

Recitative and Air:
Angels Ever Bright and Fair — Handel
Una Verde Praticello — Wolf-Ferrari
Alleluja — Mozart

MISS TIFFANY

La Procession — Cesar Franck
(with organ accompaniment)

MISS TIFFANY

a. "En Drom" (A Dream in Norwegian) — Edvard Grieg
b. "Are They Tears my Beloved" — Edvard Grieg
c. "She Was So Fair" — Edvard Grieg
d. "Friend, Thou Art Staunch" — Edvard Grieg

MISS TIFFANY

Songs of Spring
Spring is Not Dead — Mackenzie
The Little Shepherd's Song — Wittner Watts
Heffie Cuckoo Fair — Martin Shaw
How dy do Miss Springtime, — David Guion
The Answer — Gerry

MISS TIFFANY

For the group of spring songs, Miss Tiffany made an effective costume change, appearing in a period gown of '61-'65, in pink and blue. In this group she gave the number How dy do Miss Springtime with such winning charm that it had to be repeated and she gave as a final encore, Giromette, a Sicilian street song, by Sabelli.

Other encore numbers were the Shubert Ave Marie, an arrangement of Saint Saens, The Swan, by Saizedo, and Allah by Chadwick, given after each group on the program.

FIRE DOES DAMAGE IN NEW NURSES' HOME

The new nurses' home in process of construction at the W. W. Backus hospital was damaged from fire of unknown origin shortly before six o'clock. Prompt discovery of the blaze and a quick response by the fire department kept the damage from spreading and prevented a serious loss. The fire evidently started in a closet in one of the rooms on the second floor and had burned through the partition and doorway into the main corridor when it was discovered.

The fire was discovered by Robert Agnew, son of Dr. and Mrs. R. R. Agnew. He was in a lot near the hospital and happening to look towards the hospital buildings saw a flash through one of the windows. Mistrusting that something was wrong in the building he went at once to the hospital headquarters and a telephone call was immediately sent in to the fire department. Chief Howard L. Stanton, Deputy Chief Henry R. Taft and three companies responded to the call. The blaze was extinguished with two lines of chemical and an inch and a half stream of water.

The type of construction of the new building held the fire from spreading until the arrival of the fire department as the concrete under the flooring retarded the progress of the blaze, which, however, had worked its way into the main corridor and burned a hole in the flooring. The door and casing were damaged by the flames. The loss was small.

OBITUARY.

James Shea.

Following a lingering illness, the death of James Shea occurred Sunday night about 10 o'clock at his home, No. 10 Page street. Mr. Shea had been in poor health for many months and throughout his illness was tenderly cared for by loved ones.

He was born in Ireland in November, 1838, coming to this country when a young man, residing in Norwich for the past 60 years. He was a member of St. Mary's Memorial church and of the Holy Name society, connected with that parish.

Surviving him are three children, Mrs. Timothy J. Donovan and Miss Katherine Shea of Norwich and John Shea of New Haven; also 11 grandchildren and eight great grandchildren.

Karl H. Hoefer.

Following an illness of some time the death of Karl H. Hoefer of Taftville occurred Saturday at the Hartford hospital. Mr. Hoefer was operated on for a tumorous growth on February 28th and seemed to be improving until Saturday morning when complications set in and death followed shortly afterwards.

Mr. Hoefer was born in Selb, Bavaria, Germany, May 31, 1873, and came to this country in 1884, making his home in Taftville since that time. For a number of years he was employed at the Ponemah Mills, but for the past 23 years he had been employed by the J. B. Martin company as a loom fixer. He was a member of the First Evangelical Lutheran church of Norwich, of the Taftville Maennerchor and Germania lodge, Sons of Hermann.

He is survived by his wife, Katherine A. Hoefer, two sons, Henry and Walter; his mother, Mrs. John M. Hoefer; two sisters, Miss Rose Hoefer and Mrs. Alvin Kampf and one brother, C. J. Hoefer.

News of the death of Mr. Hoefer was received with regret in this city and in Taftville where he was well known and liked.

William A. Hawes.

Following an illness of about 15 weeks, the death of William A. Hawes, one of the well known jewelers of Norwich, occurred Saturday morning at his home at 45 Broadway. Mr. Hawes suffered a shock on Nov. 24, last, and complications set in, from which he never fully recovered. Up to two days ago, however, he had been able to be up and about his home.

Mr. Hawes was born in Weld, Me., Oct. 18, 1841, the son of the late Stephen J. and Maria Masterman Hawes. After receiving his early education in the schools of Maine he came to this city in March 1861, entering the employ of his brother-in-law, S. R. Parlin, at that time a leading jeweler in Norwich, his store being at the corner of Main and Shetucket streets, later being moved to the opposite corner, where the Norwich Savings Society building now stands. Mr. Hawes was in the jewelry business for 60 years and had mastered the trade of watch maker and jeweler.

On Sept. 3, 1868, Mr. Hawes was united in marriage with Miss Harriet R. Loomis by the late Rev. Samuel Graves, the service being in the old Central Baptist church, then located on Broadway.

Politically Mr. Hawes was a staunch republican, but he never sought a public office. He cast his first vote for Abraham Lincoln, for his second term, and had cast his ballot for the republican presidential nominee at every election since that time, including the recent election when he voted for Calvin Coolidge.

In 1865 he united with the Broadway Congregational church, now the United Congregational church, and at the time of his death, was one of the oldest members of that church.

Mr. Hawes found his pleasure in life centered in his home, his church and his chosen field of business. Mrs. Hawes died in Norwich on January 14, 1878 and since that time Mr. Hawes had resided with his daughter. He was a man widely known in his work and his judgment was valued. In Norwich he was well known and liked and his friends will long remember him. He is survived by one daughter, Miss Lillian B. Hawes of Broadway, and nieces and nephews living outside of Norwich.

Alfred V. Van Buren

The death of Alfred H. Van Buren of New Rochelle, N. Y., occurred suddenly Friday morning at Miami, Fla., from a heart attack. Weakened by his constant application to work he had left his home in New Rochelle three weeks ago for a rest in the south. He was in his 43rd year.

Mr. Van Buren was a brother of Henry H. Vignot of this city and for many years had been a familiar figure in New Haven business circles. He was a pioneer in the billboard advertising enterprise in that section and established a large business there before his removal to New Rochelle and New York several years ago.

He was vice-president and treasurer of the United Advertising corporation vice president of the Van Buren and New York Bill Posting company, an important figure in many other business enterprises and was a member of the Bill Posters' Advertisers' association, the New York Athletic Club, the Winged Foot Golf club, The Catholic Club of New York, Elks, Oriental Beach club and other fraternal organizations.

He is survived by his widow, Mrs. Sarah Van Buren; one daughter, Miss Adele; two sons, Vincent and Alfred Jr.; two brothers, Amedee and Henry, and two sisters, Mrs. Alfred M. Barrett and Mrs. Henry Lantier.

STATUARY HALL RICH IN HISTORIC ASSOCIATIONS

Every state of the union will be represented at the inaugural ceremonies on March 4; visitors from 29 states will find great men of their commonwealths memorialized in the Statuary Hall of the United States Capitol building.

"Statuary Hall, in the older portion of the capitol, is a room which holds more historic associations than any other chamber in America," writes Dr. Gilbert Grosvenor, president of the National Geographic Society.

"An unwarranted phase has made it popular to call Statuary Hall a chamber of artistic horrors. Such designation does injustice to the art and the history of the room where the House of Representatives met for 40 years and which now exemplifies a really fine memorial idea.

"Here Lincoln, John Quincy Adams, Horace Greeley, and Andrew Johnson served in the same Congress. Here Henry Clay welcomed Lafayette, who replied in a speech said to have been written by Clay. Here John Marshall administered the oath of office to Madison and Monroe.

"When, in 1525, the house balloted in this room for president, John Quincy Adams won over Andrew Jackson. The former, the only man to be elected to the house after being president, was stricken with paralysis suddenly, in this chamber, after delivering an impassioned address; the latter, while president, narrowly escaped an assassin upon leaving this room, where he had attended the funeral of a congressional friend.

"A bronze star marks the location of Adams' desk. The star happens also to denote a spot where one may hear the whisper of a friend who stands in the corresponding position on the opposite side of the hall. Move away from the spot and the speaker's voice fails to carry, even when he speaks loudly.

"Closed to visitors now is the narrow gallery of the Old House, reached by dark, tortuous steps, worn deep by the tread of many feet. In this gallery Dickens gleaned notes for his comments on America's Congress. He called Washington 'a city of magnificent intentions.'

"Close your eyes and see John Randolph stalk in, with squirrel cap and homespun suit, white boots and jingling spurs; he has just galloped through muddy streets from Georgetown. Throwing cap and coat to his desk, he drinks a glass of porter handed him by an attendant and cuts in on any debate, in thin, querulous, piping voice. Here another type of orator, Edward Everett, just out of the pulpit, charmed his hearers.

For some years religious services were held in the old Hall of Representatives on Sunday afternoons; Lincoln attended them during the war period, when the hall was crowded because many churches had been converted into barracks.

"The floor of this room was raised to its present level when the hall was converted into an American Westminster Abbey. Tradition has it that the lower level of the old floor led to the popular designation of the house of representatives as the "Lower House."

"When the old hall was deserted for the new, a law was enacted, in 1864, providing that the states could use it as a place to do national honor to the memory of their sons and daughters renowned for civil and military service, each state being entitled to place two statues here.

"Rhode Island was first to respond. It sent statues of America's pioneer Baptist, Roger Williams, and the militant General Greene. Pennsylvania also sent a clergyman, Muhlenberg, shown in the act of throwing off his ministerial robes and displaying a sword beneath, and exhorting his congregation to remember that there is a time to fight as well as a time to pray. Pennsylvania also honors Robert Fulton and Florida, John Gorrie, for devising the ice machine; for the rest the genius of science and invention is neglected. No poet and few pioneers have yet been memorialized. Frances E. Willard is the only woman so far honored. Oklahoma sent the statue of an Indian Chief, Sequoyah.

"Some of the figures recall stirring stories of our school days. There is John Stark, who vowed a victory or his wife a widow. There is Ethan Allen, who is reputed to have demanded surrender in 'the name of Jehovah and the Continental Congress.'

"Twenty-nine states thus far have responded to the invitation to honor their distinguished dead and twenty-one of these have selected both representatives. Some of the states have postponed their selections.

"A complete list follows:

"Alabama: J. L. M. Curry; Arkansas: James P. Clarke and Uriah M. Rose; Connecticut: Roger Sherman and Jonathan Trumbull; Florida: John Gorrie and Kirby Smith; Idaho: George L. Shoup; Illinois: James Shields and Frances E. Willard; Indiana: Lew Wallace and Oliver P. Morton; Iowa: James Harlan and S. J. Kirkwood; Kansas: George W. Glick and John J. Ingalls; Maine: William King; Maryland: Charles Carroll and John Hanson; Massachusetts: Samuel Adams and John Winthrop. Michigan: Lewis Cass and Zachariah Chandler; Minnesota: Henry M. Rice; Missouri: Thomas H. Benton and Francis P. Blair; New Hampshire: John Stark and Daniel Webster; New Jersey: Richard Stockton and Philip Kearny; New York: Robert R. Livingston and George Clinton; North Carolina: Zebulon B. Vance; Ohio: James A. Garfield and William Allen; Oklahoma; Sequoyah; Pennsylvania: J. P. G. Muhlenberg and Robert Fulton; Rhode Island: Nathanael Greene and Roger Williams; South Carolina: John C. Calhoun; Texas: Stephen F. Austin and Samuel Houston; Vermont: Ethan Allen and Jacob Collamer; Virginia: George Washington and Robert E. Lee; West Virginia: John E. Kenna and Francis H. Pierpont; Wisconsin: James Marquette."

PICHILINQUE CALLED VERY USEFUL HARBOR

Distance lends enchantment to "Pichilinque Island," off Lower California, reported to have been in the "possession" of the United States as a coaling station since 1869, and about to be "returned" to Mexico.

"Close scrutiny of Pichilinque scales the story down a bit," says a bulletin from the Washington, D. C., headquarters of the National Geographic society. "Pichilinque is not an island but a useful harbor five miles from La Paz, metropolis of Lower California. It has fairly deep water, well protected, and in it anchor ships with too great draft to squeeze through La Paz Channel. The harbor lies between the mainland and a little sandy island slightly more than a mile long and about 600 yards wide. This is Nepomezeino island. On the southeastern corner of this island the United States navy since 1860 has maintained a coal depot.

"Small as Nepomezeino Island is, however, the United States has not controlled it. All of the islet except the coal dump and pier built to facilitate coal handling is controlled by a company which harvests salt from a lagoon which covers much of Nepomezeino. The Navy has maintained six lighters in Pichilinque harbor, for, owing to shallow water in shore, only the lightest draft vessels can be coaled from the pier. The coal and lighters have been in charge of the United States Consul at La Paz, five miles away.

"Sheltered La Paz with its white flat-topped mud houses, surrounded by desert, might almost have been set down bodily from Arabia. One gains this impression especially in the evenings, when many of the townspeople go to their roofs to enjoy the cool night air. La Paz has been the place of importance in Lower California for many centuries. Cortez repaired his schooners there, and centuries later, Walker, the Yankee filibuster, raised his flag in the town.

"But it is as a pearling center that La Paz is most famed. The first Spaniards to visit the place were about to sail away in disgust when they discovered that the naked Indians possessed pearls worth the ransoms of many kings. Since that day pearl fishing has gone on in the La Paz neighborhood with the white man more or less in control of operations.

"In time the pearl-oyster beds were partially exhausted in the vicinity of La Paz, for the Mexican government has never compelled their proper conservation, and the pearlers were forced to go farther afield.

"Nowadays the pearlers cruise, when they cruise at all, on the Pacific coast as far south as Manzanillo; but La Paz remains the center of the industry.

"The mother-ships fit out there, and it is there that the pearls are brought to be sold to the experts, who in seasons of world prosperity, gather in the little mud-walled, palm-shaded, dusty village.

"The pearls of the Orient are mostly white and pink, which are precisely those which can best be imitated by the wily pearl counterfeiter. But the waters south of La Paz produce many black pearls, and brown pearls, and golden and gray pearls, and pearls of many another enticing tint. They do not run as true in form as those of Borneo, but their collars cannot be surpassed.

"During recent boom times La Paz's streets ran with money. There is a story of a black pearl for which an Indian canoe crew—not one of whom, perhaps, had ever possessed more than a suit of white cotton and a wide hat—was paid $200,000."

AGGIES CLOSE SEASON WITH VICTORY OVER R. I. STATE COLLEGE QUINTET

(Special to The Bulletin)

Kingston, R. I., March 7.—The Connecticut Aggies closed their basketball season here today, when in a fast and well played game they defeated Rhode Island State by the score of 38-17. Taking the lead at the start, the Aggies flashed a fast and well timed attack that kept them in front, after the first few minutes of the contest. Rhode Island rallied in the second half and tried desperately to overcome the Aggies' lead, but at no time were they able to get within more than 5 points of the Connecticut total. At half time, the Storrs combination was leading 18-8.

The varsity game was the last of three Connecticut Aggie-Rhode Island games to be staged here this afternoon, for both the freshmen and co-ed teams had played similar fives representing the Rhode Island college. Defeats had been administered to both of these teams from Connecticut earlier in the afternoon, and the victory of the Aggie varsity was all that saved the day from a Connecticut standpoint.

And save the day it did, for playing in top form, Captain Balock and his men clearly outclassed the Rhode Island rivals, and closed one of Connecticut's most successful basketball seasons with a clear cut victory over their traditional rivals.

Schofield broke into the scoring column first, making a pretty basket that gave the Storrs team the initial points of the game. Jensen followed up with another shortly after that evened the count, and Hills' basket gave Rhode Island a 4-2 lead. Balock made good his toss from the free throw line, but Haslem also added one for the Engineers, giving them a 5-2 lead over the Aggies.

Captain Balock cut loose at this point, and cutting through the Rhode Island defense, made three field goals in rapid succession. Makofski and Schofield each added another, bringing Connecticut's total up to 14, while the Rhode Islanders were still credited with 5 points. For the rest of the half the battle was even, each team making two baskets from the floor. Captain Balock was easily the outstanding man during the first session, scoring for five baskets from the floor and putting up a great floor and passing game.

The Rhode Island attack worked to better advantage during the second half with Hill, flashy left forward figuring heavily in the scoring. A rally was needed to overcome the Aggie lead that was made in this session, but although the score was 27-22 at one time the Rhode Islanders were never able to come any closer to passing the Aggies. Captain Balock, Eddy, Schofield and Makoski all took turns in dropping the ball through the hoop in the second half and the speed of their attack allowed them to outplay the Islanders closed in court career as a member of the Storr team in a blaze of glory. The New Britain ace was not only led his team in scoring with 16 points but he displayed a stellar floor game, and some pretty passing work, as well. Eddy, center, and Brian, sub forward, also played their last college basketball game today.

For Rhode Island, the work of Hill and Haslem, with 21 and 9 points respectively, was a feature.

In view of the rough playing that developed last week, when the two teams met at Storrs, it was thought that today's game would also be rough, but although hard fought, the game was cleanly played throughout. Referee Tower and Umpire Cody kept the game well in hand, and much credit is due them for their work.

AGGIE FRESHMEN LOSE LAST GAME OF SEASON

(Special to the Bulletin)

Kingston, R. I., March 7—The Connecticut Aggie freshmen lost their last game of the season today when they were defeated 30 to 19 by the Rhode Island State yearlings. A strong five man defense that on a narrow floor of the Rhode Island gymnasium was impregnable proved to be the big factor in the defeat of the Connecticut yearlings. Though the team as a whole did not play up to their usual form. After putting up a tight game in the first two periods the Aggies were unable to hold their Rhode Island rivals and in the last half the engineers drew well into the front and at half time Rhode Island was leading 12 to 7. Connecticut team was unable to flash a consistent attack on the narrow and cramped court and while they held the Rhod eislanders in check in the early stages of the game the work of the Storrs combination fell off as the gahme progressed. Eddy was the only man on the Aggies five who was able to connect from the floor with an regularity and he made a total of thirteen points for his afternoon's work. Haire turned in the best work for Rhode Island, though the entire team figured in the scoring column before the game was over.

BULKELEY FALLS BEFORE ATTACK OF HARTFORD HIGH

(Special to the Bulletin)

Hartford, March 8—Bulkeley found Hartford Public High a stumbling block for the second time this season, and dropped its second encounter with this outfit by a 20 to 9 score. There seemed to be a lack of interest in the game played at the Hopkins street gym Saturday afternoon, and with Hartford being guilty of playing a rought game, the Orange and Black were forced to take different path from a winning one, to which they were accustomed.

Both teams used the five man defense, and Bulkeley found it more difficult to penetrate it than the locals did. A field basket by Joe Watterson, guard on the Bulkeley team was the only field score hung up by the visitors. The two forwards seemed to have their dribbling and pass work with pivoting based on a two step turn, at least referee Dick Dillon claimed this, and it was the shrilling of the whistle which stopped any offense which Bulkeley attempted. It made the Whalers cautious, and as a result the best basketball which the Bulkeley team is capable of playing was never evident during the afternoon.

At half time the Capitol City players were only two points in the van of the Bulkeley outfit, but more consistent play in the second half, while Bulkeley was held scoreless, added points to the Hartford score in the final half. There was some improvement in the play of the Orange and Black, for the previous defeat Bulkeley was forced to accept amounted to a 39 to 4 score.

Watterson led the team in scoring with five points, scoring the only field goal, this being the second time this year Watterson turned this trick, for he was the only player to drop in a field goal when the game was played in New London.

MERIDEN MAIDS HUMBLE W. M. I. IN EASY GAME

(Special to the Bulletin)

New London, March 8—Failing to have a stiff defense caused the downfall of the Williams Memorial Institute basketball sextette Saturday afternoon at the Y. M. C. A. at the hands of a fast George Washington High school team of Meriden. Giving a much better account of themselves in the Silver City, when the two teams played recently, the local girls were away off form and dropped the contest this afternoon by a score of 24 to 9.

SUB BASE TAKES EASY GAME FROM WASHINGTON S. S.

(Special to the Bulletin)

New London, March 8—The Submarine Base took an important step towards the Atlantic Coast basketball title, they defeated the Service Station of Washington, D. C. Although one point behind in the first half, the local gobs turned defeat into a certain victory by a well planned attack when the Washington five's could find the half, and with the diminutive Burd leading the attack in this half with seven field goals, the Submarine Base took the first of these important contests by a 38 to 24 score.

Conn. Co-eds Overwhelmed

Kingston, March 7—Rhode Island overwhelmed the Connecticut Co-eds in basketball for the second time this season when in a one-sided game here this afternoon the Storrs girls were defeated 42 to 8. The Rhode Island girls took the lead in the start of the game and after the first few minutes of play there was no doubt as to the final outcome. Duggan, Broome and and Burdick bore the brunt of the Rhode Island attack while Nace and Case contributed to the scoring column for Connecticut. The score:

WALTHOUR FOLLOWS IN STEPS OF HIS ILLUSTRIOUS BIKE RIDING FATHER

New York, March 7.—(By the A. P.)—Few sons of famous fathers continue the game road to glory, yet Bobby Walthour, Jr., promises to improve on the bicycle record made by the "Georgia Whirlwind" of two decades ago.

Young Bobby, only 21 years old, has entered six week long races and three times has finished first. Twice he has been second and once he was forced out by injuries. On Saturday night, teamed with another youth, Freddie Spencer, the son of an accomplished father became the idol of the throngs at Madison Square Garden watching the end of the last race of the old structure will know.

And Bobby came out of that gruelling test with the excitement that Spencer is the greatest partner he has known. He has ridden with Al Goullet, Jackie McNamara and Franz Gorgetti, and with the last named finished second in the Detroit six-day grind on the same track.

Walthour is slender, of temperament that ordinarily falters under long distance competition but nevertheless the last night of a race finds him slowing down the speedies despite every effort known to the cycling profession. In December the Italian mite, Georgetti, was carried the team's colors on foot during a sprint while Walthour won his full quota, but they could not match the foot sprint of the veteran McNamara and Van Kempen, the actor-one of the fastest men in the game.

Van Kempen bore the burden of that finish a few months go when at long was a matter of foot rather than distance and he flashed ahead of the field until all opposition was left far behind, aided by the dogged persistence of McNamara who came to this country several years ago from Australia.

Saturday there was no Van Kemp en and Walthour and Spencer, neophytes with undoubted would have been there already no first years had not Walthour been alongside [illegible] the "kids" were [illegible] as a can-why there were [illegible] masters of a modern day [illegible]

COAST GUARDS NOSE OUT SPRINGFIELD IN LAST HALF

(Special to the Bulletin)

New London, March 8—Long range basket shooting was the method the Coast Guard Cadets employed to come from behind and gain a two point victory over the Springfield College Y. M. C. A. quintet for their 20th consecutive victory at the Y. M. C. A. Saturday evening, before one of the largest crowds which ever witnessed a basketball contest in this city. A nerve racking game, with the contest in doubt until the final minutes of play, and the fine comeback of the Coast Guard players to conserve their winning streak, ended in a 27 to 25 victory for the New London quintet.

COUGER MORE FRIGHTFUL THAN DANGEROUS

The cougars which recently have been causing alarm in Washington state are not so menacing as they are reputed to be, according to a bulletin from the Washington, D. C., headquarters of the National Geographic Society.

"The cougar, or mountain lion, while powerful enough to be dangerous to man, is in reality extremely timid," says the bulletin, based on a communication from Dr. E. W. Nelson.

"Owing to its being a potentially dangerous animal, the popular conception of it is that of a fearsome beast, whose savage exploits are celebrated in the folk-lore of our frontier. As a matter of fact, few wild animals are less dangerous, although there are authentic accounts of wanton attacks upon people, just as there are authentic instances of buck deer and moose becoming aggressive. It has a wild, screaming cry which is thrillingly impressive when the shades of evening are throwing a mysterious gloom over the forests. In the mountains of Arizona one summer a mountain lion repeatedly passed along a series of ledges high above my cabin at dusk, uttering this loud weird cry popularly supposed to resemble the scream of a terrified woman.

"The mountain lion is usually nocturnal, but in regions where it is not hunted it not infrequently goes abroad by day. It is a tireless wanderer, often traveling many miles in a single night, sometimes in search of new hunting grounds. I have repeatedly followed its tracks for long distances along trails, and in northern Chihuahua I once tracked one for a couple of miles from a bare rocky hill straight across the open, grassy plain toward a treeless desert mountain, for which it was heading, some eight or ten miles away.

"Although inoffensive as to people, this cat is such a fierce and relentless enemy of large game and live stock that it is everywhere an outlaw.

"A mountain lion usually secures its prey by a silent, cautious stalk taking advantage of every cover until within striking distance, and then with one or more powerful leaps, dashing the victim to the ground with all the stunning impact of its weight.

"In a beautiful live-oak forest on the mountain of San Luis Potosi I once trailed one of these great cats to the spot where it had killed a deer a short time before, and could plainly read in the trail the story of the admirable skill with which it had moved from cover to cover until it reached a knoll at one side of the little glade where the deer was feeding. Then a great leap carried it to the deer's back and struck the victim to the ground with such violence that it slid 10 or 12 feet across the sloping ground, apparently having been killed on the instant."

Politeness eases the jolts of life's journey.

MAN WHO SHOT AT NEW LONDON WOMAN ARRESTED SUNDAY AT NEW BRITAN

(Special to the Bulletin)

New London, March 8—Michael Baldarassa, 76 Shaw street, was arrested this afternoon in New Britain for the attempted slaying of Mrs. Rosa Verdi, 18 Brewer street, Baldarassa being taken into custody by the New Britain police while visiting his wife and children. He was brought to New London tonight in the police automobile by Captain Charles A. Pinney, Sergeant Nelson Smith and Station House Keeper Francis Corcoran and will be given a hearing in the police court Monday morning.

Baldarassa went to the Verdi home on the night of Feb. 18th with Verdi and Mrs. Verdi's father-in-law. After accepting the hospitality of the Verdi family two or three hours and after Verdi and his father-in-law had left to attend to a business matter Baldarassa arose from the table where he had been seated with Mrs. Verdi and declared, "You are going to die tonight." Then going to where his coat was suspended from a hanger, Baldarassa returned to the room where he had left Mrs. Verdi and pulling a revolver from his pocket, fired a shot at the woman. The bullet was fired at close range, but struck a corset steel and only made a superficial wound, the bullet dropping to the floor. Baldarassa fled and has since remained in hiding.

Prior to the shooting Mrs. Baldarassa and children went to New Britain where the woman has relatives and it is understood that Baldarassa did not appear at the New Britain house where his wife was living until yesterday. His presence there then became known to the New Britain police and the arrest of Baldarassa followed.

Monroe A. Wallwork, 382 Williams street, complained to the police this evening that some one had smashed one of the plate glass windows of his store on Williams street, and that he was of the opinion that an attempt would be made to enter the store later in the night. The police are maintaining a close watch of the place to prevent any theft of stock of the place.

James L. Hayes, 55, iron worker; John Doherty, 22, investigator, 149 Greenport street, Dorchester, Mass., and Frederick Lane, 35, laborer, 965 Adams street, Dorchester, Mass., were taken into custody at the union station this noon, as they had engaged in a free-for-all fight on a train bound from Boston to New York. Lane was terribly beaten.

After the train had left Providence, Hayes, Doherty and Lane became involved in a quarrel and soon afterwards the three started a fight. The members of the train crew separated the fighters two or three times, but when the train was between Westerly and Mystic, the battle was renewed. The train was stopped at Mystic and a message sent to the railroad offices here requesting that the fighters be taken from the train. When the train arrived at New London Sergeant Nelson Smith and Patrolmen William Graham, William Riordan, Braxton Hill, William Corcoran and Clarence Wells boarded the train and took the fighters into custody. The men, who had been drinking freely, were locked up pending being given a hearing in the police court tomorrow morning.

Roger Dennis, employed in the office of City Engineer George H. Waters and Miss Edith Woods, of Pasadena, Cal., were married in Washington, D. C., this afternoon. The couple will conclude their wedding trip next week and take up their residence in New London. Kenneth Holmes, also a city employe, was the best man.

Nicholas Haddad, proprietor of a tailoring establishment, 129 Main street, was arrested late Saturday afternoon, when Sergeant Nelson Smith, Patrolmen Ernest Opperman, Braxton Hill, Clarence Wells and Henry Hick visited the place upon information that Sergeant Smith had obtained that Haddad was dispensing intoxicating liquors. A search of the place revealed a considerable quantity of home made brands of liquor including whiskey and gin, together with a gallon can of alcohol, a gallon container partially filled with home-made gin, a bottle of burned sugar, used for coloring whiskey; a jug partly filled with whiskey and three bottles of home-made whiskey. Haddad was taken into custody charged with violation of the liquor law. He furnished a surety on his bond of $1,000 in J. Solomon, Home street, for his appearance in the police court tomorrow morning. Haddad's place has long been suspected as being a "speak easy," but not until yesterday afternoon was the information in possession of the police such as to warrant the place being raided.

Enoch Johnson and Arthur Cardinal, both of Westerly, patients at Home Memorial hospital, were discharged Saturday.

Twenty-five hands were laid off, Friday night, at the plant of the New London Ship & Engine company, the curtailment of the help resulting from work on the re-engining of submarines there having been completed.

Walter Eastman and Richard Bunnell, soldiers, stationed at Fort H. G. Wright, were taken into custody late Saturday afternoon by Sergeant Nelson Smith and Patrolman Braxton Hill and William Riordan, charged with breach of the peace. The police received a telephone message from a woman that three soldiers were loitering in Williams Memorial park where they insulted women and also amused themselves by throwing stones at female pedestrians. The officers went to the park and found the three soldiers, but only Eastman and Bunnell were apprehended as the third offender made his escape.

Ernest Goddard, of Willimantic, is locked up at the police station on a charge of intoxication. He will be given a hearing in the police court on Monday morning. Goddard appeared at the station house about 11 o'clock Saturday night, seeking lodging. He was in such a state of intoxication, however, that he was placed in a cell instead of in the tramps' quarters.

John McMahon, farm hand, who, perhaps has made a record for arrests in this city, having been arrested three times in 36 hours, was taken into custody again late last night, charged with his usual offense, intoxication. McMahon was observed on North Bank street about 11 o'clock by Probation Officer Richard W. Mansfield, who caused a complaint against the man to be made at the police station. McMahon was taken into custody by Sergeant Frank Howard and Patrolman William Babcock. When McMahon was last arrested Thursday night his money was taken from him in the belief that he would not be able to secure liquor, but with his funds being returned to him Saturday he started out to get drunk again and in this effort he was successful.

The will of Edward R. Burckle, of 308 Bank street, was admitted to probate by Judge Arthur B. Calkins at a hearing in the probate court on Saturday morning at 10 o'clock. The will was a peculiar one, inasmuch as it was a joint instrument in which husband and wife bequeathed their possessions to the other at the demise of either. It was drawn Nov. 22, 1922, and was witnessed by Peter J. Eshenfelder, M. Frances Stevens and Mildred J. Pickett. Mr. Burckle is appointed executrix. The inventory of the estate has not been completed.

The trial of Louis Richman, of North Bank street, driver of the commercial automobile that run down Aso Balady, 4, of 24 North Bank street, Friday, on a charge of reckless driving, did not take place Saturday in the police court, a postponement of the case being made, pending the outcome of the child's injuries. The boy is suffering from concussion of the brain.

Clinton F. Gluck, chief radio operator at the United States Coast Guard Academy, complained to the police late Saturday afternoon that he had received a threatening letter from Peter Marto, 3 Baldwin place, Boston, Marto being an ex-service man and threatened to do personal injury to Gluck. Gluck placed his information in the hands of Prosecuting Attorney Daniel M. Cronin.

Funeral services for Eliza, widow of Ambrose Burrows, were held Saturday afternoon at 2 o'clock at 12 Ocean avenue, Rev. Myron E. Genter, pastor of the Methodist Episcopal church, officiating. The bearers were Ernest L. Burdick, Raymond Darrow, Richard W. Woodworth and Harry Frischman. Burial was in Elm Grove cemetery, Mystic.

Charlotte Thompson, wife of Thos. W. Harran, died Saturday at her residence, 127 Winthrop street, after a lingering illness. Mrs. Harran is survived by several children and brothers, beside her husband.

Arthur M. Leary, Edward T. Leary and William P. Leary have sold a house and lot on Lewis street to the Standard Oil company of New York.

The automobile supply station, 318 Bank street, conducted by Charles D. Carroll, was entered by a thief Friday night, but the only plunder obtained was $16, which was found in a cash register. The break was discovered Saturday forenoon when the place was opened for business. Entrance to the establishment was made easy for the crook, as a window had been left unlocked in the rear of the building when the store was closed Friday evening.

The funeral of George B. Dickinson, well known resident of Niantic, was held Saturday afternoon at 2 o'clock at Mr. Dickinson's home, Main street, Niantic, and was attended by many mourners, including a delegation of members of Niantic lodge, of Odd Fellows. The services were conducted by Rev. George W. Potter and Rev. Charles F. Eldridge. Members of Niantic lodge of Odd Fellows acted as bearers and conducted the committal ritual in Union cemetery, Niantic.

The funeral of Miss C. Isabelle MacKenzie, daughter of Mrs. Catherine MacKenzie, 64 Latham street, Groton, took place Saturday morning. At 9 o'clock, at the Sacred Heart church, Groton, there was a large gathering of mourners, including a delegation of members of Lady Aberdeen council, of which order Miss MacKenzie was a member. A solemn mass of requiem was celebrated by Rev. William J. Fox, pastor of the church, with Rev. Raymond O'Callahan deacon and Rev. Alexander Wollschlaeger sub-deacon. During the service, Miss Minnie Roche sang Beautiful Land on High. The bearers were George Coe, John Deady, Thomas O'Neill, Cornelius Heffernan, William Manice and James Stitt. Burial was in St. Mary's cemetery, New London, where the committal prayers were read by Rev. Father Fox.

Lucy Esposito, a young married woman, is in the custody of the New London police. She is in hard straits. She is married and her husband has deserted her, whether with cause or without, remains for the court to determine. The woman is anticipating the birth of a child in a few months. Her husband is in New Haven, where he is employed. The woman was picked up here and, it is alleged, that she is in danger of becoming a charge on the city and that she is in danger of falling into the ways of vice. She has no residence in New London, and appearances indicate that she should be taken care of in New Haven where her husband has a legal residence. She cannot be committed to the House of the Good Shepherd nor to the Florence Cruttenton Mission, as she is married. It is not deemed charitable for the authorities here to commit her to jail as manifestly that is not the place for her. The case is to come up in the police court next week that a disposition may be made of it. In the meantime she is in the custody of the policewoman and the charity department.

Luther G. Stebbins has bought the Benjamin F. Bailey house, on Montauk avenue and Avery court. He is to paint the property and repair the walks so that the place will be greatly improved.

If you would have things come your way, go after them.

BARTLETT, WOODS AND DAY HELD FOR MANSLAUGHTER

(Special to the Bulletin)

New London, March 8—William C. Bartlett, Jr., 25 Henry street, charged with abortion in causing the death of Miss Marion, alias "Dolly" Wench, 102 Baltimore street, Hartford, three weeks ago at the residence of John J. Woods, 23 Ocean avenue, together with Woods and Michael A. Day, 19 of Cottage St., were presented in police court Saturday morning. Woods and Day were also charged with manslaughter. Bartlett was held for a hearing on the 14th inst., in bail of $10,000 as was Woods, whose bond was increased from $5,000 to $10,000. Day's bond was reduced from $5,000 to $2,000. Day obtained a surety on his bond in his father, Patrick F. Day, but Bartlett and Woods were remanded to jail to await trial.

Bartlett's father was for more than 28 years in the employ of the First National Bank in New York and in latter years resided at Fishers' Island. At the elder Bartlett's retirement he pensioned and received retirement compensation of $1200 annually. The father amassed a considerable fortune during his life, so that when he came to New London and died, several months ago, he was possessed, it is said of about $680,000. By will, it is understood, the father bequested the income of one half that sum to his daughter, who married Major Schall, U. S. A. A provision of the will is that the money willed to her shall revert to young Bartlett and a sister of Mrs. Schall, who resides in this city.

Since the arrest of Bartlett, it is understood by the police that the alleged abortion upon Miss Wench is not the first criminal operation that he has performed, for it is given out that he has been guilty of two operations performed in New London, one of the girls it is stated also being a telephone operator.

Day has made a complete confession to County Detective William Lewis and Sergeant John J. Cavanaugh, it relates his entire connection with arranging for the illegal operation upon Miss Wench. He has told of his acquaintance with Bartlett and ascertaining from Bartlett the latter's knowledge of such operations. He has also testified about Woods imparting the information that Woods desired the services of such a person who could perform an abortion and Day's introducing Woods to Bartlett, at the Crocker house, where, it is alleged, the price of $200 was agreed upon as the fee that Woods would pay and the Woods home as the place where the operation would be performed. Day also admitted having received $100 of the fee paid Bartlett by Woods.

LAWRENCE HOSP. ENGINEER AND HIS WIFE INJURED

(Special to the Bulletin)

New London, March 8—Frank W. Bray, 113 Riverview avenue, employed as engineer at Lawrence-Memorial hospital, and his wife, are patients at the hospital, as a result of injuries sustained shortly after Saturday midnight, when the automobile Bray was driving was struck and demolished by a machine owned and driven by William B. Waterman, 53 Chappell St., treasurer of the Waterman & Wolf Co. Waterman was slightly injured. He was arrested by Sergeant Patrick Murphy and Patrolman William Babcock charged with operating a motor vehicle while under the influence of liquor. He was later released for his appearance in the police court Monday morning, furnishing a surety on his bond of $1000 in Walter S. Garde, of Neptune park.

Mrs. Bray received lacerations and bruises, also a scalp wound, which required several stitches to close.

Mr. and Mrs. Bray had spent the evening as guests of Mr. and Mrs. Thornton N. M. Lathrop and shortly after midnight started for their home. As Mr. Bray backed his automobile from the yard of the Lathrop home, the automobile owned and operated by Waterman, a high-powered Lincoln touring car came along at an alleged fast rate of speed. Waterman's car crashed against the Bray machine with terrific force, the latter car being reduced to a wreck upon the rails of the Connecticut company. Mr. and Mrs. Bray were removed from the wreckage of their car and rushed to the hospital, where they will be patients indefinitely.

The police were communicated with by residents and Sergeant Murphy and Patrolman Babcock were sent to the site of the accident. Waterman was nowhere to be found, but he was later taken into custody at the garage of the Ford company, Main street, of which concern he is a representative.

The police removed the wrecked automobile from the trolley tracks and Practically all that remained intact this morning it was taken to a garage, of the wrecked machine were two wheels and the markers.

POETRY FOR THE WIDE AWAKES

Hope

Only a brave old maple,
Shorn of its scarlet and gold,
And traced in the scroll of sunset
As a handwriting—black and bold.

A low, wailing wind frets the branches,
The dead leaves start up in surprise,
Till, in the hush of the gloaming,
The dryad's sad monody dies.

O, desolate tree in the meadow,
With pleading hands stretched to the sky!
Do you know the glad hopes of the springtide
Asleep in your folded arms lie?

And never a breath of the storm-king,
And never a waft of the snow,
Can snatch the frail bud from its casket,
Or loose the firm anchor below.

'Bide patiently, then, the bleak Winter,
And change the sad wail to a song,
Bear up, for the robins and bluebirds
And [illegible] are coming ere long.

LETTERS OF ACKNOWLEDGMENT

Jason Clarke, North Franklin—I thank you very much for the book you sent me. I have read it all through.

Virginia L. Ward, Norwich Town—I thank you for the book you sent me, which I have read. It was so interesting that I loaned the book to one of my schoolmates.

Mildred Kinne, Voluntown—I wish to thank you for the prize book you sent me entitled, The Moving Picture Girls at Sea. It is very interesting.

Doris Newman, North Franklin—I received my prize book and thank you very much for it.

Albert Phillips, Yantic—I received your interesting book. I was more than surprised to think I was one of your prize winners. I thank you very much.

Paul Rosenberg, Jewett City: I thank you for your prize book. I have read it and found it very interesting.

Olive Fletcher, Voluntown—I thank you very much for my book Buster, the Bear. I found it very interesting.

LETTERS WRITTEN BY WIDE AWAKES

Helping the Poor

Dear Uncle Jed: This is the first time I have written to you. One day last week, I saw a lady walking down the road. I saw her and I asked her where she was going and she said home. So I said, "I will help you over the bridge." I helped her and she wanted to pay me but I wouldn't take the money.

IDA HAMEL, Age 14.
Voluntown.

Has Steam Engine

Dear Uncle Jed; I am going to write you about my steam engine. I run it nearly every night. I fill the tank with hot water and the bottom with alcohol. I light it with a match and wait until it is heated. When the tank is heated it will run steady for fifteen minutes. I have a whistle on it, when it stops the whistle will blow.

ALBERT PHILLIPS, Age 10.
Yantic.

My Dog Boxer

Dear Uncle Jed: Just a few lines to let you know about my dog. I have a dog. He is brown and white. I bought some playthings for him. He plays with the toys. I named him Boxer. My father takes him hunting. The dog comes home with a rabbit in his mouth. He watches at night. In summer he goes swimming. He is six months of age. He never runs away from me.

ALICE LIME, Age 10.
Attawaugan.

A Big Surprise

Dear Uncle Jed: Three years ago I had scarlet fever. My mother was just bringing up my supper, when my brother rushed in to get his gun, saying he had seen a fox in our orchard. My mother left me eating supper and went with my brother. When they got there what do you think he had seen? He was just putting the gun to his shoulder, when our cat Blackie said meow and that was the big surprise.

ALMA POTTER, Age 11.
Brooklyn.

Rosie

Dear Uncle Jed: One day my father said there was a black and white, half grown cat in my grandfather's barn. He brought her home. This occurred about 10 years ago, in the middle of winter. This poor cats ears were frozen, also her feet. My father brought her into the house in his arms. My mother gave her some milk and soon she became friendly. I am only about 2 years old, so I do not remember anything about it but my mother has told me about it many times. We named this cat Rosie. She has two of her kittens now named Shootie and Blossom. If mother or I are sitting down Rosie comes up on our lap.

Abraham Lincoln

Dear Uncle Jed: Would you like to hear about Abraham Lincoln? Abe Lincoln was a very poor boy who had to work as hard as a man to help his family get along. There were few schools where Abe Lincoln lived and they only lasted three or four months. As pencils and paper were scarce Abe Lincoln's father could not buy them so he wrote on the shovel and used a piece of wood. When he finished he would shave off the shovel.

A Naughty Cat

Dear Uncle Jed: This is the second letter I have written to you. I am going to write about, A Naughty Cat.

One day my sister and I were going down the cellar to get some wood. Then we looked around and we saw our cat, Betty, with a dead bird in her mouth. So first she brought the wood in the house. After we went down again, and took the bird away from the cat. I went and got a box, put some dirt in it, and put the bird in it. After we covered the box up. We dug a hole in the ground big enough to put it in.

We dug the hole near a peach tree, and buried the bird there. When we finished that, we put a few flowers on the birds grave. We found out that it was a robin, because it had a red breast. After we finished everything we caught the cat and whipped it for doing that. From that time she didn't do anything else like that. I think that we taught that cat a lesson. I hope all the Wide Awakes will enjoy reading my story.

Washington's Life

Uncle Jed: George Washington was born on a farm. One day his father gave him a hatchet. He thought of his father's good cherry tree. Then he went out and cut it down. When his father came home he saw the cherry tree cut down. He was very angry and asked George Washington who did it.

George said, "I cannot tell a lie, I did it with my hatchet."

His father was not angry because he did not tell a lie. One day some boys came to play with him. They wanted to see him ride his mother's colt. They got it saddled and Washington got up on the horse. The horse kept jumping and kicking till at last it fell dead.

During the first war George served as a messenger boy for the Americans. After he grew older he became commander in chief of the army. After the war was over we had to have a head or president and he was elected and helped make the constitution. He served two terms as president. Later he died at his home at Mt. Vernon in 1799.

Going After the Cows

Dear Uncle Jed: This is the first time I ever wrote you a letter. One day my mother said, "Agnes, I think it's time to go after the cows, because it is getting dark." I said, "All right mother," and so I went for the cows. When I reached the pasture I opened the gate and went in. Then I started calling the cows, "come Katy," That was our cow's name.

I walked a short distance when I came to a big rock and continued calling the cows. I thought they would hear me calling them soon. Later on I heard the bell ringing, which Katy wore on her neck.

Just as the cows appeared I noticed a large black snake all curled up lying near the other side of the rock. When I saw the snake, I ran as fast as I could run over sticks and stones, and never stopped until I reached home. I didn't get the cows that night and it took me a long while before I could muster up courage to go into that field again.

A Ghost

Dear Uncle Jed: One night I went to bed early. I soon was fast asleep and dreaming of pirates and ghosts. Suddenly I was awakened by a scratching sound at my door. I was frightened. I didn't dare to move. The door opened slowly, and something came into my room. The door closed and I could hear something coming toward my bed. I pulled the blankets over my head and was ready to scream, when I heard a soft meow. I looked up and there was my cat, Buttons, sitting at the foot of my bed looking at me.

Story of the Indians

Dear Uncle Jed: It has been a long time since I wrote to you last. I will tell you a story about the Indians. I like stories about Indians. One lonely day far off in the West Indies there was an Indian family known as Wa-Wa. Each family had the name of their chief. Wa-Wa was a very rude chief, his son Nokomis was much more gentle. The chief's squaw's name was Morning Star. She would toil from morning till night with her hardships. Her daughter, Golden Moon, was a very lovely and bright child. She would work awfull hard with her mother.

One day Wa-Wa said to Morning Star, "I am going out fishing with Nokomis."

They went fishing, but such a strange sight they saw as they reached the sea. They saw three ships coming over with a whole lot of white people. Nokomis and Wa-Wa were so afraid because they never had seen a white person before. He went home and got the whole band of Indians and made war on them. With their brave Indian chief, Wat Wa they won the battle.

George Washington

Dear Uncle Jed: This is the first time I ever wrote to you and I hope you'll like it. I am going to tell you about George Washington. He was born on February 22, 1732. His home was on a hill that sloped down to the Potomac river. All around it was forest or farm land. The house was only one story and half. They built a small log schoolhouse. When Washington was at school, he used to play soldier. They had cornstalks for guns and gourds for drums. Part of the boys played that they were French. The other side, with Washington at the head, were the Americans. There would be a furious battle. This was all in play. The little captain always was the victor. When he grew up he was strong and manly. He hated a lie. He could not bear to let anything haunter him. Once he made up his mind to break a wild colt that would not let anybody ride him. He went into the field very early. He caught the cold and threw himself on his back. But the young colt had as much spirit as George. He became tired and fell dead on the field.

The Girl Who Became an Artist

Dear Uncle Jed: This is the first time I have written to you, and I am going to tell you a story about The Girl Who Became an Artist.

Once there was a little girl whose name was Rose Beaneur. This girl didn't like to go to school, but loved to stay outdoors and draw pictures of animals. The horses were her favorite animals. Every day she used to sit on her door steps and paint many wonderful pictures. When she was about twenty-two, or twenty-three years old, she became a great artist and painted one of her most beautiful pictures, which is called the picture of the Horse Fair. Then after she painted this picture, everybody came to love her. I wish I was an artist don't you?

Thought Eclipse Beautiful

Dear Uncle Jed: Saturday January 24, 1926, I got up early in the morning to see the sun rise. It was very pretty. It danced just as it does later morning. I dressed myself in a hurry because I wanted to see the eclipse of the sun. I had some smoked glass to look at it with.

At three minutes past nine the corona around the sun was on. It was beautiful. There were some little birds in our yard and they were singing, oh so sweet and soft. It was beautiful for about one minute. Then I watched adult until it was by. Just before it was big it looked like a piece of cheese. Hope all the Wide Awakes saw it.

Has Black and White Dog

Dear Uncle Jed: This is the first time I have written to you, and I am going to tell you a story about my dog. I have a dog. He is black and white. He is very playful. Every time my mother sends me on an errand, he always follows me. Some times I tell him to go back home, but he only starts to run, and hides back of the trees so I can't see him. I like him so much that I give him good things to eat. I hope the Wide Awakes will enjoy my story.

The Dunes

Dear Uncle Jed: Many year ago, bold pirates called Danes used to sail across the sea to the east coast of England. They were cruel, lawless men, bent upon plunder. To attain their ends they would resort to any means.

They were clothed in armor and bore long, heavy swords and battle axes. These sea rovers were proud of the wild, savage life they led and their chiefs gloried in the fact that they were everywhere feared.

They would steal all they could carry away, set fires to houses and barns, and kill.

Losses in Our Country by Fire

Dear Uncle Jed: The greatest cause of fire in this country is due to carelessness. There are many causes. A few of the causes are leaving matches in a place where rats and mice can get them and gnaw them. Many people throw their matches down among the leaves when they are still burning. This is the greatest cause for forest fires, which destroy thousands of acres of forest lands throughout the United States. People who have electric irons leave them when the current is turned on, and many times that results in a bad fire.

We could prevent these losses of property, money and lives if we were more careful. In Germany where there are many people and large buildings such as we have here in the United States, there are not nearly so many fires. If every one in this country would be as careful as they are in Germany the losses by fire in this country would not be so great.

The fire companies all over the United States send out warnings to the school children especially and have them posted in windows. If everyone followed the instructions, much property, money and many lives would be saved.

I think Fire Prevention day is a great and helpful movement. We must be careful not only on that day but every day at all times.

The Value of Good Roads

Dear Uncle Jed: The children of the Wylie school had an invitation from our school board to go to the Center and see moving pictures free of charge. The movies were to start precisely at one o'clock p. m. We all decided to walk down. When we got in sight of our destination we saw that the children from the Center school were already marching to the school.

The first picture that we saw was a picture which showed us the benefit of good roads to a farmer. From this picture I learned that in many ways a good road does help a farmer. Some of which I will mention in the following lines. If a farmer has to drive over a poor road to the station where he peddles his goods he cannot get there without having his produce bumped and scattered all over the road as it showed in the picture. But if a farmer has a good road to the station he can get there quicker and more safely. The benefit of a good road to a farmer is safety, labor saving and more money.

Next we were shown how to raise bees. How the honey is gathered and the dwellings and the different kinds of bees.

The third picture that appeared on the screen was the Hawaiian Islands. This was very interesting to me. I had never before thought that the Hawaiian Islands were so well populated and that the Hawaiians lived in modern ways. I also learned that they have modern ways of transportation such as automobiles, street cars and railroad systems, and that they are connected with the largest steam ship lines in the world. The natives on the Hawaiian Islands are just as fond of sports as any other race. They go bicycle riding, bathing, and surf riding at which they are very skillful.

There were two more pictures to be shown after the Hawaiian Islands. The next one was some scenes of the Panama Canal showing the locks emergency dams and locomotives that pull the ships through the locks. The Panama Canal has six different locks, three at Gatun which is on the Atlantic side and three on the pacific side. One at Pedro Miguel and two at Miraflores which were all shown to me.

The last picture was from the western ranches where they raise cattle. This picture some of the boys liked best because there were cowboys breaking broncos and lassoing cattle. We saw the rolling western plains where the cattle are turned out to graze while being watched over by the ranchers.

Oranges

Dear Uncle Jed: Oranges grow only in a warm climate. They need warmth and sunshine. Their native home is in eastern Asia, but they are cultivated in Florida and California.

The orange tree is very beautiful. It has thick glossy green leaves all the year round. Its white blossoms are very fragrant. They are often used in bridal wreaths. The deep yellow fruit is an ornament to the tree. The ripe oranges are carefully picked, wrapped in tissue paper, and packed in wooden boxes, or crates to be shipped to all parts of the country. When you eat an orange you may think you are drinking the sunshine of Florida or California, which the sweet juicy fruit has hoarded for you.

A Visit to the Movies

Dear Uncle Jed: Mr. Edmond, secretary of our school board came to our school on Friday. He invited us to the moving pictures to be held at the Center. The pictures were on Tuesday.

We walked down at half past eleven. When we got there, we went to the store and bought some soda. The pictures began at one o'clock.

The first picture was about the condition and development of roads. It showed how a boy won a college education by writing the best essay on roads. While he was in college he studied highway engineering.

When he was through college, he went to look for a position. He was given a chance to do some engineering work. He was doing engineering work when he received a letter from home. It told that the county commissioners of his town wanted him to direct their engineering work. He was successful.

The second picture was about the honey bee. It showed us how the bees made honey. A bee has to go to three million flowers to get a pound of honey.

At the end of the season the lazy bees are driven out of the hive and killed. The wild bees store their honey in hollow trees.

The third picture was about the Hawaiian Islands. Hawaii is the largest island in the group. Honolulu, the capital of these islands is on the island of Oahu.

Waikiki beach is the largest beach in the Hawaiian Islands. Many people are swimming there. Some of the natives are surf riding.

The fourth picture was about the Panama Canal. It was built by the United States. It is forty-four miles long. The Panama Canal connects the Atlantic ocean and the Pacific ocean.

Landslides were so frequent that they had to make it wider. A dam has been built at Gatun to use in an emergency.

The fifth picture was about the cattle ranches. The cattle ranch land is composed of pastures, streams and hills. The cattle land used to be the Buffalo land.

At the end of the year the calves are caught and branded. The weaker calves have to be fed in the yard. Sometimes the grass is so scanty that the cattle separate and go looking for grass.

In the spring there is a round up of the cattle. The cowboys lasso the cattle and tie them up. Some of them are fed in the yard and are soon ready for beef. They are sent to the stock yards and sold.

I enjoyed the pictures as they helped to explain some of the things we have studied at school.

My Visit in Albany

Dear Uncle Jed; I want to tell you about my trip to Albany last fall. We went to Hartford Springfield, Pittsfield and to Albany. The trip was beautiful all the way up following the Connecticut river up to the mountain. The mountain looked so nice with the different colored leaves up so high on the sides of the hill. After we got to Albany we went to visit my uncle and he took us down to the New York Central round house and I saw the big engines. They are twice as big as those on the New Haven road. One day we went to see the Caselton bridge that cost twenty five million dollars to build. It is one mile and a half long and is two hundred and thirty-five feet from the water. It was a wonderful sight to see.

Abraham Lincoln

Uncle Jed: After Boones first visit to Kentucky, he went back to tell the people about it. Among those who came was a man named Abraham Lincoln. Abraham brought his whole family to Ken. One day as they were out chopping wood some Indians came along and shot Abraham. They were going to shoot his little son Thomas who was with him but their older brother had a rifle and shot the Indians. When Thomas grew up he married Nancy Hanks. When she had a son Thomas named him after his father Abraham Lincoln. Thomas went to Indiana and found a place for his people. After finding a suitable place he returned, he went back borrowed a team, loaded the wagon and set off with his people. They passed the Ohio River. After arriving there Thomas gave little Abe a hatchet to help him chop the trees and bushes. They built half faced camp. The half faced camp looked like a box as it had neither doors, nor windows.

A few years later Mrs. Lincoln died. Poor five little children without a mother! Later Thomas went away for a short while. He brought back a step mother with three children and some furniture. Among the furniture there was a buffet worth $50, feather beds and such things as Abe and his little sister never saw before. Abe grew up to be a tall man. He was honest, truthful and was president of our United States. He also freed the slaves.

A Dream

Dear Uncle Jed: This story which I am going to write is about a dream. One night while I was sleeping I dreamed that I was in the woods all alone. All at once I heard a noise in the bushes. It seemed to me as if it was coming closer and closer all the time. I got frightened and couldn't run or move. I listened a while and it was right behind me, then I turned around and saw a big white thing and it was making an awful noise.

I tried to holler but I couldn't. It came right up to me and didn't do anything, but walked right by. I then ran and fell down a stone wall. And when I woke I was lying on the floor by my bed.

The Fisherman Caught

By Thornton W. Burgess

E'en fishing is with danger fraught—
The fisherman is sometimes caught.
—Plunger the Osprey.

Seldom has Plunger the Fish Hawk known fear. Only when King Eagle has threatened to strike him to make him drop a fish has Plunger known fear. And then he has known that all that was necessary for safety was to let go of the fish. But now Plunger did know fear. He had seized a fish so big and heavy that he could not lift it from the water, and he had dis-

The water was so shallow that the fish could not pull Plunger beneath it covered that he could not let go of it. You see he had sunk his claws into it so deeply that he could not withdraw them.

Now that fish was strong. While Plunger was struggling to lift him from the water he was trying his best to drag Plunger under water. Plunger knew that if he should be dragged under water and kept there he would soon drown.

Plunger, the famous fisherman, was himself caught. He knew now something of how fish he had caught in the past must have felt. But he had no time to think about this. With all his strength he beat those great broad wings of his to keep himself above water. Mrs. Plunger had flown up the river to fish, and so she was not in sight. There was no one to help him. My, how strong that fish was! In spite of all he could do Plunger was dragged under water. But it was only for a moment. More frantically than ever he beat those great wings, and reached the surface.

Plunger always had been very proud of those great, curved, sharp-pointed claws of his. They are his fishhooks, you know. Now for the first time he wished they had not been quite so long and quite so curved. Had they been shorter and less curved he might have been able to withdraw them from that big fish.

Plunger actually screamed in sheer fright. Then he began to use his wits. He couldn't lift that big fish above the surface of the water. He couldn't let go. What could he do? As he struggled he looked this way and that way with those keen eyes of his. He saw that he was nearer one shore than the other. If he could get that fish to shore, or at least into shallow water there he could not be dragged below the surface, he might be able to get his claws free.

So Plunger headed toward the nearest shore, and little by little he dragged the big fish through the water in that direction. His great wings were growing tired. Every now and then the fish succeeded in pulling him under water. But each time as he reached the surface he saw that the shore was a little nearer. Would his strength hold out? He was beginning to doubt it.

It was then that he saw a long sand bar running out into the Big River. The water was only a few inches deep over this. The sight gave him new strength. Already the water was growing less and less deep beneath him. The fish knew this too and struggled harder than ever. At last the water was so shallow that the fish could no longer pull Plunger beneath it. Hope grew in the heart of the great bird as he struggled on.

WILLINGTON

About 70 members of the Men's Civic club assembled at the new town hall Wednesday evening. The gathering included nine new members. After the business meeting an entertainment was given, including several violin and piano selections by Joseph Medwied and Frederick Tyler. There was a boxing match, which went four rounds to a draw, by Messrs. Sedlar and Howns, and a boxing match of four rounds to a draw by the twins, Mike and John Caca. George Wraight sang When the Sunset Turns the Ocean Blue to Gold and Ernest Wraight sang Old Fashioned Mother of Mine. Refreshments were served by the East Willington and Mouse Meadow members, in charge of Joseph Dimock. Sandwiches, doughnuts, coffee and apples were provided. The entertainment was in charge of W. C. Ruby. The glass factory members will furnish the supper at the next meeting on April 1, William Parizek being chairman, and Hans Hansen will furnish the entertainment.

The official opening of the new town hall took place March 2. It was formerly the Congregational church. Allen B. Lincoln of Hartford gave an able address and short speeches were made by Rev. E. E Sundt, Selectmen W. C. Ruby and William H. Brackett, Willams Orchell, Wilbert Wood, Misses Emily Parizek, Ethel Wraight and Daisy Pilcher. Mr. Hamilton sang and was encored. Excellent music was furnished by Joseph Nedwied violinist, Joseph Pokoreki with saxophone, and Mrs. Gardiner Hall, pianist.

The old town hall, built one hundred or more years ago, is being greatly improved in the interior, and being put into shape for basketball games. Joseph Stross is doing the work with three helpers. A new floor of maple is being laid and overhead narrow fir boards make an attractive finish, overlapping the side walls, completed with a molding. Basketball shields will be placed on the walls, and electric lights installed and when completed, the boys will have a rendezvous of their own.

An excellent supper was served at the church Friday night by Mrs. Frank Joslin and assistants, and consisted of friedsseed chicken, mashed potato, cranberry jelly, boiled onions, pie and coffee. There was a good attendance from all parts of town. Mr. and Mrs. J. Tilden Jewett and a friend from Tolland also attended. Singing and a social followed the supper.

Mrs. Walter Gahan, who has been rehearsing several weeks for a minstrel show has given it up, on account of the serious illness of Mr. Gahan.

A number of the pupils at the Hollow school have had pink eye.

Frank Bosworth and Edward Ley motored to Fiskdale, Mass., Friday, to visit Mr. Ley's mother, Mrs. John Willis, who returned with them to the home of her sister, Mrs. Frank Bosworth.

Mrs. Charles Cobb of Stafford Springs is substituting for Mrs. Walter Gahan at the Center school.

Edward Ley, who has been teaming for Mrs. Christine Bentley, is working for W. C. Ruby and boarding at the Ryder House.

STAFFORD

The lecture given by J. Franklin Babb was much enjoyed by all. Professor Netto of Stafford Springs gave a musical program before and after the lecture.

Mrs. F. W. Tholen was the guest of friends in Preston City for several days last week.

Mrs. Sara White Dimock, leader of home economics in Tolland county, will have charge of a class in re-seating chairs, in the parlor of the Universalist church Thursday at 10.00. Each one is requested to bring her lunch.

The mission circle which was to have met last week Thursday afternoon, postponed the meeting to this week Thursday afternoon. They will meet at the chapel.

O. N. Colburn led the C. E. meeting Sunday evening.

WESTMINSTER

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Robbins were business callers in Moosup Tuesday.

Mrs. Frank Linnell who has been ill is resting more comfortably. Mrs. Byron Bingham has been caring for her.

Water is coming in the wells in this vicinity. Some of the mills have been dry all winter necessitating that many persons depend on springs for water.

Mrs. Byron Bingham and Mrs. A. Wood were callers on Mr. and Mrs. Carlton James in Hebron Thursday.

Word has been received by Mrs. Allen Moody's friends that she is to return to her home this month. She has been spending the winter at Manhasset, L. I.

Six months ago Jim Bailey, of Oneco, Conn., rescued a baby deer from dogs, nursed it back to health and now the animal refuses to leave him. The young buck wanders around the fields day times, sleeps in the woodshed nights and eats at the table every time it gets a chance. Its favorite foods are hot flapjacks, covered with molasses, lump sugar, boiled potatoes, and baked apples, which he eats red hot. It is also fond of coffee when sweetened, says the Boston Globe.

RESOLUTION OF RESPECT

At a meeting of the Vestry of Christ Church parish, the following resolution was offered and passed:

Resolved: That the vestry of Christ Church Parish feel deep and sincere sorrow in the loss of one of its members and senior warden, Judge Gardner Greene.

Judge Greene was born in Norwich, August 21, 1851, where he resided until his death, February 16, 1925. Judge Greene was one of the last members of a prominent and illustrious family. He and his forbears were always identified with Christ church and he was for many years a member of the parish. He was elected to the vestry of Christ church, January 10, 1887, and filled this office until April 11, 1898, when he was elected a warden of the parish, and has been a warden since that time until his death.

Judge Greene was a strikingly handsome man of courtly bearing and distinguished manners. He was an excellent lawyer, and eminent jurist, an extraordinary churchman, and a cultivated and true-hearted gentleman. Everything he did he did well, and he was always ready to assume any duty or obligation asked or required of him.

For many years Judge Greene rendered a conspicuous service to Christ church with great capacity and constant fidelity, and at the time of his death was its foremost supporter both materially and in spirituality. The members of the vestry mourn the loss of their mentor and associate and take this means to do homage to his virtue and, express their sympathy to his family.

A true copy of record. Attest,

J. FRANK COREY,
Parish Clerk.

IN MEMORIAM

In loving memory of our dear wife and mother, Hattie Emily Fish, who passed to her reward March 9, 1922.

Quiet lips! the lessons you have taught us
We tell with falling tears;
O noble life; what blessing thou hast brought us
Through all thy weary years!

As all unconscious of thy wondrous beauty,
There passeth into light,
May the sweet patience fill our hearts, and duty
Grow holy in our sight.

WEEKLY FINANCIAL REVIEW.

New York, March 8.—Raising of The Bank of England's rediscount rate to 5 per cent., a sharp break in wheat prices, establishment of a record high price for all time by the stock averages followed by a period of irregularity and a lowering of call money rates, were the outstanding features of this week's financial markets.

The higher Bank of England rate, which was without effect on the local securities market, is expected to result in the retention of large American balances in London and thereby assist in Great Britain's return to the gold standard. The reduction in rates on day-to-day loans was the natural result of the return flow of funds withdrawn from this center to take care of month-end requirements. The unusual tax-day stiffening is expected, however, around the middle of the month. Time money rates showed a somewhat dirmer tendency in reflection of the growing demand for commercial credit.

Movements in the stock market largely reflected the play of opposing speculative forces. Conservative traders do not look for any definite trend to develop until after March 15 income tax payments are disposed of, although buullish operations are being vigorously conducted in special stocks, particularly among the equipments, oils, motors, rubbers and public utilities Local tractions rallied on the announcement that the interborough Rapid Transit company had made application for an increased fare, but broke sharply on the state transit commission's statement of disapproval of any increase. Merger and dividend rumors were responsible for the binding-up of many industrial and railroad issues

MYSTIC

Mystic mourns the death of one of its oldest residents, Frederick H. Brewer, 90, who has been active in politics, a member of the town school board for the past 20 years and town auditor. He had the esteem and respect of all. He was proud of his Colonial ancestry which dates back to 1632, he being a lineal descendant of Daniel Brewer, who settled in Roxbury, Mass., in that year. On his mother's side his ancestry dates back to Rev. Harry Tyler, Jr., Yale college 1765. He was born in Norwich 1834, the son of Lyman and Hannah Tyler Brewer and received his education in that city. His first business enterprise was in Buffalo, N. Y. He returned to Connecticut 48 years ago, locating in West Mystic, where he has since resided. He soon commenced holding various offices in the town, always discharging his duties faithfully and being able to continue in some of them to the last as his intellect remained bright and keen. He joined the Masonic order in Buffalo, N. Y., and was always active in its interests. He was a member of St. [illegible] Episcopal church here, where he held the office of parish clerk and [illegible]man for years.

He leaves a son, Lyman Brewer, of [illegible], Fla., four daughters, Mrs. Harriet Brewer Topham of Albuquerque, N. M., Miss Julia E. Brewer of Norwich, Misses Ellen T. and Frances H. Brewer of Mystic and sister Miss Louise J. Brewer of Norwich, reached her 96th birthday March 4th.

Many are interested in the Parent-Teacher association lecture. This organization is a great benefit to the [illegible]

Twenty-one members of Mystic Lodge No. 171, attended Stonington Lodge meeting Friday evening and conferred on a class of eleven the third and fourth degrees.

TEN CAUGHT IN GAMBLING RAID AT PLACE ON SHETUCKET STREET

A midnight raid Saturday night on an alleged gambling house on an upper floor at 25 Shetucket street kept by Michael Polichnonopoulos, known as Mike the Bandid, by a squad of local police resulted in the arrest of the proprietor and nine other men found in the place. A pack of cards and about $22 were seized as evidence of the gambling. Those arrested gave the following names:

Michael Polichnonopoulos, 55; Thomas Hadgis, 39; George Mastros, 48; Paul Rock, 30; Tony Koleda, 30; Joseph Pudlo, 25; Frank Bohara, 30; Stanley Meyers, 20; Charles Yip, 28; Arthur Silva, 29.

Polichnonopoulos was charged with being the proprietor of the place and bonds in his case were set at $300. The other nine were charged with being frequentors of the place, the bonds in each case being set at $25. The accused will appear in the city court this (Monday) morning.

WILL BE IN SHORTHAND CONTEST OVER RADIO

On Tuesday evening, March 10, the members of the day and evening advanced shorthand classes of the Norwich Commercial school will gather at the home of Principal L. M. Crandall, at 193 Broad street, to take part in the shorthand radio contest which is to be broadcasted from New York under the auspices of the Shorthand Teachers' Association of New York city. The details of the contest are in charge of Miss Mary A. Sullivan, assistant principal of the school. Previous to the dictating of the contest material a short address will be given by Dr. John L. Tildsley, district superintendent in charge of high schools of New York city. The dictation is to be given by the world's champion shorthand writer, Charles Lee Swem, who was personal stenographer to President Wilson during his term at the White House and who is a writer of the system taught at the Norwich school. Mr. Swem, in addition to holding the world's record, recently won first place, among 158 contestants, for official court reported of the supreme court of New York.

There will be three minute dictations at 80, 100 and 120 words. Teachers and students are eligible for the 80 and 100 word tests, while stenographers may take the 100 and 120 word tests. The material used is such as is used in the Regents Examinations of New York. Seven gold medals are to be awarded in this, the world's largest shorthand contest. Three gold medals will be awarded to teachers, students and stenographers in New York city, and three to those contestants outside New York city. A special award will be made to the person submitting a transcript from the greatest distance from Station WNYC.

THE GEN. DAN TYLER HOUSE LATER THE MEEKER SCHOOL

A man who is exceptionally well posted on the social history of Norwich, corrects a statement in The Bulletin that the present rectory of Christ Church was the original Gen. Dan Tyler homestead.

The Tyler house, Mr. Miller states, is the house once known as Miss Meeker's School, now turned into apartments.

The present rectory of Christ church according to Mr. Miller, is the old Lee house, where Mrs. Theodore Roosevelt was born.

It was in the old Tyler house that Miss Gertrude Tyler, daughter of Gen. Tyler, lived at the time of her wedding with Charles Carow, of No. 50 Union Square, New York. The marriage took place in Christ church and was a very brilliant affair, the date being June 8th, 1859, and the hour 8.30 in the evening. The reception was at the home and was attended by the elite from Norwich and elsewhere. Mr. Miller was then a boy, in Miss Tyler's Sunday school class, and the class had a front pew in the church, the other members being Fred L. Osgood, Augustus C. Tyler, William Mills and William Greene. Mr. Miller still has the wedding cards.

Gertrude Tyler was the mother of Mrs. Roosevelt, which explains Mrs. Roosevelt's ever-lively interest in Norwich, and her occasional visits here. At her home at Oyster Bay she was delighted, during one of Mr. Miller's calls, to see her mother's wedding cards, now sixty-six years old.

Mrs. Roosevelt, by the way, sailed from New York, Saturday on S. S. Conte Verde, for a trip to Mediterranean ports.

VIRTUE OF HUMILITY LENTEN SERMON THEME

The virtue of humility was the sermon theme of Rev. Raymond O'Callahan of New London, who was the Lenten service preacher Sunday evening at St. Patrick's church before a congregation that filled the body of the church. Father O'Callahan spoke earnestly and impressively from the text in Luke. Every one that exalteth himself shall be humbled and every one that humbleth himself shall be exalted. This, he said, is the contrast between the teaching of Christ and the teaching of the world. This is the wisdom of God that contradicts the wisdom of men. To the meek He promises to reveal His divine mystery, but to the proud this is denied. Humility is that virtue by which we acknowledge just exactly what we are, vile and miserable creatures, and that God is all. It is the foundation upon which the great structure of Christian life is laid. Servants we are but how unprofitable. Who can be proud of his record as he looks back over his life and views the sins of commission and of omission? The commission of any one of those is as much as to say, "I will not serve," just as did the rebellious angel from whose act hell began to exist. Father O'Callahan left the injunction with his congregation that humility should enter into all our Christian acts.

Preceding the sermon, Weigand's Vespers were sung in excellent form by the choir with solos by Mrs. Bernard Coyle, Mrs. George Roberts, Miss Loretta Bellefleur, George Farrell and Joseph Bellefleur. The service closed with benediction of the blessed sacrament.

Philathea Class Met

The regular meeting of the Philathea Class of the United church was held at the home of Mrs. A. C. Freeman on Friday evening, with Mrs. Freeman and Mrs. Robert F. Binns as hostesses. The business part of the meeting was presided over by the president, Mrs. May Young and routine business was transacted.

A social hour followed the business meeting which was devoted to games of various sorts under the able direction of the entertainment committee, Mrs. A. C. Freeman and Mrs. Philip O. Roberts. At the close of the entertainment, refreshments of ice cream and cake were served by the hostesses.

The average politician is not only willing but anxious to sacrifice himself for his country in times of peace.

The first half of the moving picture feature, "From the Manger to the Cross" was shown at the Y. M. C. A. gymnasium Sunday afternoon to an audience that occupied all the chairs. Preceding the showing of the pictures, hymns were sung, the scripture was read and prayer was offered. Hugh Kinder rendered sweetly two vocal solos and also furnished music for the picture. The films were clearly illustrative of the wonder story of the Christ as recorded in the scriptures; they included His birth, His flight into Egypt, and His return to Nazareth; also the scene in the Temple among the learned men. John the forerunner was shown preparing the way, and Jesus was pictured in performance of many miracles; the entire series of pictures were profoundly impressive.

Between the reels, Secretary Edwin Hill gave a very brief talk in line with the pictures; he stressed the fact that the wise men brought costly gifts to the Christ, and that we should give our best, which is ourselves fully to the Christ. The speaker also suggested that our Christ was a very busy Christ, and we too should be up and doing for Him, for after all we are in this world to help others and especially to help others live the true fine Christian life; there are plenty of opportunities to do good, no one need be lazy in the work of the Kingdom. Emery Davis operated the picture machine. Next Sunday the last half of the feature will be shown.

RELIGIOUS SERVICE FOR PRISONERS AT JAIL

At 1.30 p. m. Sunday representatives of the Young Men's Christian Association conducted a religious service for the benefit of the prisoners at the local jail in the corridor in front of the cells. Edmund A. Prentice was in charge. Hugh Kinder played the organ and pleased the audience with vocal solos. General Secretary Hill read the scripture and offered prayer. Mr. Prentice gave the men a warm hearted message from the scripture, "Come now let us reason together, though your sins beas scarlet, they shall be as wool, and though they be red like crimson, they shall be as white as snow." The speaker pictured how God was constantly giving us good things to enjoy; the sunshine, the air to breathe, the crops to feed us, etc., etc. He pleaded with his audience to give their lives into the keeping of the kind God; no man, said he can expect to have any success in life unless he takes God into consideration. At the conclusion of the services the men filed by and heartily shook hands with the "Y" men evidently appreciating the simple service in their behalf. These meetings will probably be held every other Sunday for an indefinite period.

Badges to Scout Forest Guides.

Thursday night the Hartford council, Boy Scouts, completed their Patrol Leaders course with a well attended banquet at the Y. M. C. A., in Hartford. Scout Executive Hill introduced Henry R. Buck, scout commissioner, who in turn introduced Scout Executive F. A. Benton of this city. The latter gave a talk on Forest Guides and presented 24 badges to first class scouts of Hartford. Scout Executive John Roberts of Meriden gave an interesting talk on the Spirit of a Patrol Leader, and then the boys were awarded their training course certificates by the commissioner.

All the Scout councils in Connecticut are gradually adopting the Forest Guide system for the purpose of aiding the state forestry department by conserving trees, game and all wild, harmless life, and in fighting forest fires. Scouts are generally found to be efficient in this work, and have saved many thousands of dollars worth of timber and other property in the last two years.

Comforts for Ex-Service Men

At his week end visit to Norwich State Hospital, to carry reading matter and other comforts to the 70 ex-service men, John P. Corcoran, secretary of the Knights of Columbus welfare department, from White Cross Council, Norwich, was accompanied by Rev. John J. Reilly, assistant pastor at St. Patrick's Church. They were taken down by William Dougherty, who generously gave the use of his car and aided in the distribution of the gifts.

What Is Iron Made Of?

This looks like a singular, not to say foolish, question, and yet some chemists are beginning to doubt whether iron is really a chemical element. They think that instead of being an elementary complex compound, and that eventually means may be found of separating or isolating the bodies, or elements, of which iron is made up.

Different substances are ordinarily combined either by simple intermixture, as oxygen in the air, or by solution, or by chemical combination.

But of late it has been suggested that there may be a fourth state of combination still more intimate than that which is implied by the usual expression "chemical union." The combination of yet unrecognized elements which make what we call iron would be an example of the fourth state.

What this conception necessitates, may be judged from the fact that it seems to do away with the atom as the smallest elementary particle of matter.

The newly married couple who think they can exist on love in a cottage will wake up some morning and find the rats leaving the place in disgust.

MYSTERY OF THE CROSS WAS PASTOR'S THEME

The Mystery of the Cross was the theme of the sermon by the pastor, Rev. H. Hunzinger, at the German Lutheran church at the service Sunday evening, which was in English.

The well known season of Lent into which we have entered now, is a very old institution of the Christian church. Not all the old institutions of the church are practical at the same time, but this one is—so practical that we cannot afford to omit it, especially in our time. Why? Lent time calls for concentration and contemplation. We must concentrate our thoughts on that one great thought: Behold the lamb of God, which taketh away the sin of the world. We contemplate that one great fact, that the power of God's love is greater than the power of death. This concentration and this contemplation lead us away from the turmoil of the day and the noisy streets of life to the still waters of rest and recreation. Real rest and real recreation is what our souls need, that's what they are longing for. A good many people forget, that they have a soul. They just think of their bodily life. It is indeed a wonderful machine, your bodily life, my friend, and you can do great things with it. But the best machinery will come to a golden standstill, if the motor will gives out. You cannot keep going all the time, you have to give your motor a chance to collect and to increase its power. Your soul is the motor of your bodily life. I pray, do not neglect your soul. A great emperor and statesman was lying on his last bed. He didn't realize his condition but kept on working as well as he could, hearing reports, dictating letters and so on. After a while his physician stepped to his bedside and said, "Your majesty is getting too tired now, a good rest is absolutely necessary now." The emperor looked at his faithful servant with indignation and answered: "I have no time to be tired." Finally they had to force him to rest. After a few days he was a dead man. My friend, you came here into this house of worship tonight with a great longing. You realise that you have a tired soul or else you wouldn't be here. You would not say I have no time, to be tired.

Hear the preaching of the cross, poor soul, for it will be for you—the power of God. The apostle saith, "The preaching of the cross is to them, that perish foolishness but unto us which are saved. It is the power of God. They that perish will always consider the preachings of the cross as the greatest foolishness. Tell me, isn't it really foolish for the average human mind to believe that a God, who was nailed at a cross with His hands and feet—a picture of absolute helplessness and misery had saved humanity from all her distress? For the people of the ancient world, the cross was a sign of disgrace and shame and only slaves and the most contemptible criminals were sentenced to die on the cross. Now could anybody with a sound mind have undertaken it, to make the foolish idea of a God dying on the cross, the foundation of a new religion? But now, what do we see? Just that preaching of the cross has conquered the world. Just that foolishness has destroyed the wisdom of the wisest and this sign of disgrace with its dying God has become the sign of the greatest honor and blessedness. Yes, He has conquered the world, the crucified God, and in His name, millions bow their knees and with their tongues confess that Jesus Christ is the Lord to the Glory of God the Father. Why this poor, humble carpenter's son hanging there—so bloody and so pale, between heaven and earth—has by His sacrifice created a new world of love within the old world of hatred.

Refreshments consisting of sandwiches, cake, cookies, punch and ice cream were served by Mrs. Evelyn Tetreault assisted by Mrs. Denise Desmerais in the pretty decorated dining room.

Those present were the Misses Marguerite Beauregard, Oeita Goyette, Victerine Goyette, Yvonne Bibeau, Imelda Ramond, Anna Ramond, Zena Cormier, Dora Belanger, Antoinette Belanger, Mary Cyr, Alice Cyr, Alice Bellevance, Alberta Bissonette, Irene Desmarais and Rachel Desmarais.

Arrangements were made for the party by the Misses Mary Cyr and Albena Bissonnette. Miss Tetreault received many beautiful gifts and a birthday cake from a friend.

V. F. W. AUXILIARY HELD SUCCESSFUL RUMMAGE SALE

A regular business meeting of the R. E. Hourigan Auxiliary, V. F. W., was held last week at the post rooms, 2 Market St., with the President, Mrs. Annie B. Turner, presiding. Regular routine business was transacted. One new member was voted in.

The rummage sale which was held Saturday at the Buckingham Memorial was a huge success, a neat sum being realized which will be added to the disabled veteran fund. The next meeting which is to be March 18th has been changed to a theatre party. The sisters are to meet at the post rooms and in a body attend the theatre.

Attended Employed Boys' Conference.

Members of the Employed Boys' Brotherhood of the local Y. M. C. A., left Norwich Saturday afternoon for Hartford by automobile to attend a state conference of brotherhoods in that city. The boys were in charge of Emery H. Davis. The following loaned the use of automobiles for the trip: Swan's garage, Dr. A. S. Freeman, Walter N. Block, George H. Loring and Bogue's garage.

POETRY

The Christian's Chart and Compass

O Word of God incarnate,
O Wisdom from on high,
O Truth unchanged, unchanging,
O Light of our dark sky!
We praise Thee for the radiance
That from the hallowed page,
A lantern to our footsteps,
Shines on from age to age.

The Church from her dear Master
Received the gift divine
And still that light she lifteth
O'er all the earth to shine.
It is the golden casket
Where gems of truth are stored,
It is the heaven-drawn picture
Of Christ, the living Word.

It floateth like a banner
Before God's host unfurled;
It shineth like a beacon
It is the chart and compass
That o'er life's surging sea,
'Mid mists, and rocks, and quicksands,
Still guides, O Christ, to Thee.

Church Thy Church, dear Saviour,
A lamp of purest gold,
To bear before the nations
Thy true light of old,
O teach Thy wandering pilgrims
By this their path to trace,
Till clouds and darkness ended,
They see Thee face to face.
—By Bishop William W. How (1867.)

On Reading a Seed Catalogue

While yet I sit before my fire
Your pages lead through garden bowers
Into a land of bright desire,
Where ecstacy with dreaming grows.

No garden wrought of poesy
And flowery words that wait perfume
Can make a vision real to me
As do your promise of bloom.

Blown buds that long for me have lain
In Memory's quiet close are heaped
Grow roses of a bygone year.

Oh words and wonder tell but that xThe beauty you invoke for me—
You are my garden's epitaph,
You are my garden's prophecy!
—Hilda Morris in Rochester Herald.

SENATE VOTES DEMOTION OF LAFOLLETTE INSURGENTS

Vote Was 64 to 11, Following Five Hours of Debate—LaFollette and His Adherents Are Deposed From Their Rank on Standing Committees—Test Vote Came on Proposa Remove Senator Ladd From the Chairmanship of the Public Lands Committee.

Washington, March 9—Formal approval of the demotion of the LaFollette insurgents from their rank on the standing committees was given today by the senate.

The vote was 64 to 11 and came after five hours' debate, confined largely to the republican side. Democratic leaders interrupted occasionally, but mainly to reiterate their desire to keep clear of the row within the republican ranks.

The real test as to whether the majority party was to complete organization of the senate according to a program determined upon immediately after the 1924 elections, came on the proposal to remove Senator Ladd of North Dakota, one of the insurgents, from the chairmanship of the public lands committee.

Senator Stanfield of Oregon, the majority candidate, was elected, receiving 56 votes to 13 for Ladd and 8 for Senator Jones, democrat, New Mexico. Senators Wheeler, democrat, Montana, La Follette's running mate on the independent presidential ticket last November and Copeland, democrat, New York, supported Ladd, while Senator Bruce, democrat, Maryland, voted for Stanfield.

Twenty-five democrats voted present as did Ladd and Stanfield. The roll call follows:

Democrats: Bruce, Maryland, Total 36.

Democrats: Copeland and Wheeler, two.

Farmer-Labor: Shipstead, one. Total 13.

Senators Ladd and Stanfield voted "present," as did twenty-five democrats. Senators Jones of New Mexico, was absent.

Convinced by this roll call that their fight was a losing one, the republican insurgents made no further effort to upset the organization program, but some of them did voice their protest to the selection of Senator Watson of Indiana, as chairman of the Interstate Commerce Committee over Senator LaFollette of Wisconsin, who outranked the Indiana senator.

On the roll call on final approval of the committee states, republican and democratic, seven republicans, three democrats and the farmer-labor senator, Shipstead, of Minnesota voted in the negative. The republicans were Borah, Brookhart, Frazier, Howell, Ladd, Norbeck and Norris, and the democrats were Blease, Walsh of Montana and Wheeler.

With the organization of the new senate thus completed, republican leaders plan tomorrow to press confirmation of the nomination of Charles B. Warren of Michigan, to be attorney general, and after that vote to call up either the Isle of Pines or Lausanne treaties.

Vice President Dawes called the senate to order and held the chair for about two hours. He then surrendered it to President Pro Tempore Moses and called it a day as far as the senate was concerned. Neither he nor Senator Moses undertook to enforce rigidly the rule against demonstrations from the galleries.

Senators Norris of Nebraska, and Borah of Idaho, led the fight against their party's program, with Chairman Dillon of the committee on committees, and Senator Ernst of Kentucky, carrying the brunt of battle for the organization.

There were frequent references in the debate to the Roosevelt revolt in 1912 and the failure to penalize his supporters. In that connection, Senator Borah said that if the support of the party candidate for president was the test of republicanism, quite a number of senators would have to be read out of the party.

Disclosing that he had not voted for President Taft in 1912 and also had not supported two republican governors of Idaho, Senator Borah said that if the test was support of party nominees he himself might not be able to class as a republican.

"Are you a republican?" asked Senator Ernst.

"I think I am," returned Senator Borah.

"That's a question," retored the Kentucky senator.

The Idaho senator said that around election time leaders of the party certainly regarded him as a good republican and called on him to help in the campaign.

Senator Watson declared the test of republicanism was support of both the candidate and the party program at the time of election. Charging Senators LaFollette, Ladd, Frazier and Brookhart with disloyalty to the party, Senator Ernst said they had deliberately sought to wreck it and to elect their own candidate for president on a platform which he said was violative of its fundamental principles.

Senator Norbeck, republican, South Dakota, and Senator Borah both contended that demotion of the insurgents would be a vote against the people of the west who had elected them on the republican ticket. Senator Frazier charged that "political radicalism" in the northwest had been brought about by the bosses of the republican party; that the present situation, at least in his own state, was due to a revolt of the farmers against the bosses because of failure to carry out campaign pledges.

Senator Norris, who held the floor during much of the session, made a final protest against the selection of Senator Watson as chairman of the interstate commerce committee, the body that deals with railroad legislation.

"This will give the greatest of satisfaction to all of the railroads of the United States," he said. "They have killed two birds with one stone. They get rid of a man (Lafollette) they do not want and get a man they do want. I don't think they could rake the country and get a man that would suit them any better.

RELATIONSHP BETWEEN CAPITAL AND LABOR

New York, March 9. — Donald R. Richberg, special public utilities counsel for the city of Chicago, tonight voices dissent from the belief, expressed by industrial and economic leaders today, that distribution of property ownership was taking place in America which promised to end the conflict between capital and labor.

The theory was expounded at the semi-annual session of the Academy of Political Science by such men as Thomas N. Carver, professor of political science at Harvard; Albert M. Harris, vice president of the New York Central lines; William Trufant Foster, director of the Poliak Foundation for Economic Research, Boston; and Sidney Hillman, general president of the Amalgamated Clothing Workers of America.

Following them as a speaker, Mr. Richberg said he opposed "any opinion that a new proprietorship is developing which will transform the conflicting interests of seller and purchaser or of employer and employe into the common interests of genuine co-operators."

He quoted a public utility owner as having said, "I wish Henry Ford never had been born, so that people wouldn't think that a man could raise wages and reduce prices and still make money."

"Much of the competition between employer and employe might well be eliminated," he continued, "but it would be foolish to credit those now encouraging employe and customer-ownership with any desire to bring about a co-operative society or to substitute a socialistic programme of business-for-service for the prevailing individualistic programme of business-for-profit.

"These sturdy captains of industry preach individualism six days a week and abhor socialism so devoutly that they prefer to plough the fields with golf clubs rather than to hear socialism preached on Sunday."

SUMMARY OF YESTERDAY'S EVENTS IN WASHINGTON

President Coolidge handed down the award in the Tacna and Arica case between Chile and Peru, calling for a plebiscite.

Acting of the republican majority in depriving LaFollette senators of their committee ranks was debated in the senate.

The nomination of Lieutenant Colonel James E. Fechet as assistant chief of the army air service was approved by the senate military committee.

Corn on farms March 1 was placed by the department of agriculture at 301,609,000 bushels. Wheat was 113,928,000 bushels.

Evidence designed to show the government lost millions in taxes through war amortization allowances was contained in transcripts of the hearings of the Cousens investigating committee.

Senator Couzens of Michigan charged the internal revenue bureau had tried to "discipline" him through assessment of additional taxes because of revelations in the senate tax investigation.

MAYOR HYLAN INDULGES IN POLITICAL BANTER

New York, March 9.—A few bits of political banter were exchanged by Mayor Hylan and Mayor Edward W. Quinn of Cambridge, Mass., when the latter was a guest at a meeting of the board of estimates today.

"You didn't come for peace and quiet did you?" asked Aldermanic President Collins, and Mayor Quinn admitted he hadn't. The allusion was to recent turbulent sessions of the board.

Mayor Quinn chided Mayor Hylan about political affairs and observed that he had been a delegate at the democratic national convention.

"I sat at that convention one night," rejoined Mayor Hylan, "and I heard one speaker suggesting a vice president. His description fitted you so admirably I though he was going to nominate you. To my surprise he named me."

STEAMSHIP AALSUM HAS REACHED QUARANTINE

New York, March 9.—The steamship Aalsum, reached Quarantine today, leaking through several damaged plates on her port side where she was struck last night by the U. S. shipping board steamship Dannedaike in a collision 25 miles south of Nantucket.

Although she was reported sinking after the collision, the vessel proceeded here under her own steam. She was struck by the Dannedaike just aft the bridge.

The Aalsum is of Dutch registry. She was bound from Hull for New York when the collision occurred. The Dannedaike, a tanker, was bound from Pensacola, Fla., to Boston.

MARQUIS CURZON HAS UNDERGONE OPERATION

London, March 9 (By the A. P.)—Marquis Curzon of Kedleston, lord president of the council underwent a serious operation this morning. At the conclusion of the operation, a brief statement was issued describing it as "quite successful."

Fear of Death Was The Cause of Suicide

New York, March 9.—Henry Mead, a graduate student at Columbia university, was unable after twelve years to conquer his fear of death, so today he killed himself, leaping to the street from the sixth floor of Hartley hall. He had received the degree of PH. B., at Brown university in 1922, and was studying for a doctor's degree in wramatic literature. He had registered home addresses at both Fall River, Mass., and Brooklyn. He was twenty-five.

Mead left four notes behind. One was addressed to Dr. G. Alfred Laurence, a neurologist here, said:

"You have failed."

Another addressed to "My Mother" read:

"You might try to console yourself with the knowledge that I consider this act necessary for my happiness, and that whatever pleases me would be pleasing to you."

Dr. Laurens said that from his acquaintance with Mead he believed the student might have killed himself at any time during the past twelve years.

He described Mead as possessing two conflicting personalities. One was distinguished by high hope and ambition. When it prevailed Mead was gay, a good companion, and absorbed in his devotion to science, philogophy and literature.

The other was the slave of his "fear"—complex—a dread that he was marked to die before his time. In these spells, Mead suffered morbid depressions, shunned all associations and kept to remote places where he waited out the hours he was convinced were to be his last.

The police found three bottles of a poisonous liquor in Mead's room which led them to believe he had considered suicide by poisoning before he finally decided upon the window. His cot was in disarray as though he had tossed upon it most of the night fighting out his last decision.

INDIANA SENATE PASSED THE GERRYMANDER BILL

Indianapolis, Ind., March 9.—The gerrymander bill which caused 15 democrats to flee to Ohio recently in an attempt to prevent its passage was passed today by the Indiana senate 27 to 0 without discussion. All democrats refused to vote. The bill goes to the house where action must be taken before the assembly adjourns at midnight tonight.

The bill would remove Lawrence county the third congressional district to the second. The change, it was agreed, would give the republicans a strong advantage in the second district in congressional elections inasmuch as Lawrence county is strongly republican.

The democrats went to Dayton, Ohio, February 24 when it was reported that the bill would be reported down for passage. They returned the next night. Senator Joseph M. Cravens, minority leader, issued a statement declaring that they had won their fight and that an agreement had been reached that the measure would not be pressed for passage.

Lieutenant Governor Van Orman and Senator James J. Nejdl, republican leaders, declared the bill was not entered into the negotiations which brought about the return of the democrats.

ALBERT STEINBERG HAS BEEN DENIED A DIVORCE

New York, March 9.—Albert Steinberg, theatrical producer, today was denied a divorce from Mrs. Helen Steinberg, a former model, by a Brooklyn supreme court jury.

Evidence contained in alleged written confessions by Mrs. Steinberg was the basis of the action, in which Herman P. Tappe, of Tappe, Inc., was named as co-respondent. The defense claimed the confessions were made under threat by Steinberg.

PUNDERFORD NAMED HEAD OF CONNECTICUT COMPANY

New Haven, March 9.—John K. Punderford was elected president of the Connecticut company, which operates trolley lines throughout Connecticut, at a meeting of the board of directors. He will take office upon the retirement of Lucius S. Storrs, who has resigned to become managing director of the electrical railway industry. Walter J. Flickinger, formerly assistant to the president, was elected vice president. Mr. Punderford's title will be president and general manager and he will be elected a director on April 1.

"Faith of The Holy Light" A New Cult

Kitchener, Ont., March 9. — Anna Reynolds, reputed priestess of a cult in Toronto known as "The Faith of the Holy Light," was in custody today, charged with having presided over a weirdly exotic midnight ceremonial at Bluevale, Ont., in which ten hogs were sacrificed as "an offering to devilish spirits."

Constable P. C. Whiteside arrested her on the charge that she was "insane and dangerous to be at large." Earl Underwood, who furnished the hogs and who told authorities he "would do anything Ann Reynolds said to do," was in custody for questioning.

The woman is a professional nurse. She came from Toronto to the Underwood farm several weeks ago, to attend Mrs. Underwood during an illness, according to Constable Whiteside.

The father's story, as related by Whiteside, is that last Thursday the priestess ordered Underwood to build a great pyre of logs in the center of a field. He did so. Then she ordered that ten of the farmer's choicest hogs be tossed upon the pyre. That also was done.

At midnight the priestess ignited the pyre. As the blaze, of pine logs and roast pig mounted skyward, she made queer gestures and uttered strang incantations, which were supposed to mingle with the ascending odors and thus drive away the devils," Whiteside said.

At daybreak the pyre was banked with earth, so that for three days it smouldered, sending over the countryside the penetrating odor of roast pork.

The resulting arrest followed an appeal by farmer neighbors of Underwood's for an investigation of the strange doings.

R. W. STEWART TRACED TO MEXICO AND SOUTH AMERICA

Cheyenne, Wyo., March 9.—(By The A. P.)—Robert W. Stewart, chairman of the board of the Standard Oil Company of Indiana, who has been sought throughout the country as a government witness in the Teapot Dome trial in progress here, has been in South America and Mexico for several weeks, it was announced here today by John D. Clark, vice president of the Standard Oil Company of Indiana.

Owen J. Roberts of the government oil counsel, has had a personal agent tracing Stewart for some time in an effort to serve him with a subpoena.

Mr. Clark made this announcement:

"For several weeks, R. W. Stewart, chairman of the board of the Standard Oil Company of Indiana, together with his technical advisers, has been examining oil fields and oil properties in Mexico and South America in an effort to secure information upon which the company may determine whether it shall accept a proposal that it make a substantial investment with others in certain independent companies controlling oil production in those territories.

"Negotiations with respect to those matters are now under way and until concluded no further statment can be made."

Mr. Clark subpoenaed as a government witness, declined to add to the statement other than to say he was in communication with Mr. Stewart. He declined to divulge Mr. Stewart's present address and said that he would not return until he had completed his business mission.

COOLIDGE DECIDES CHILE AND PERU CONTROVERSY

Washington, March 9.—President Coolidge today handed down his arbitral award in the long-standing controversy between Chile and Peru over possession of Tacna and Arica, calling for a plebiscite by which these provinces shall determine their own nationality, and holding that the town and province of Tarata shall revert to Peru.

Both governments, in signing the arbitration protocol June 20, 1922, under which the award was made, agreed to abide by the president's decision. Comment on its provisions was withheld tonight at the Peruvian legation, but gratification was expressed unofficially in Chilean circles. Robert Lansing, former secretary of state and counsel for Chile in the dispute, declaring that "from beginning to end, the award is a complete vindication of the course pursued" by that government during the last 30 years.

The decision set forth in a document of about 22,000 words, was handed to the Chilean and Peruvian ambassadors today by Mr. Coolidge in the presence of Secretary Kellogg, at the same time that unofficial summaries were being presented to the foreign offices of the two governments by the American ministers at Santiago and Lima.

STATEMENT BY THE NEW GERMAN AMBASSADOR

New York, March 9.—Baron Ago Von Maltzan, new German ambassador to the United States, who arrived today and made a formal statement that Germany will fulfill the Dawes plan provisions, declared himself confident Germany will continue to be a republic.

He was asked whether President Ebert's death and renewed nationalist activity foreshadowed an overthrow of the republic and restoration of the Hohenzollerns.

"I am confident the republic will go on forever," he replied.

GREAT BRITAIN TO MAKE SUMMER TIME PERMANENT

London, March 9.—The government has adopted summer time as a permanent institution.

There was a private bill before the house of commons for the purpose of making summer time permanent and fixing the yearly period from the beginning of April to the end of October. Sir William Joynson-Hicks, secretary of state for home affairs, announced today the government would allow a free vote on the bill and adopt and carry it through as a government measure. This means that the bill is certain to become a law.

GEM ROBBERS IN NEW YORK WORKED IN EVENING DRESS

Scene of the Crime Was an Apartment in the Plaza Section of Fifth Avenue—Three Masked and Armed Thugs Escaped With $25,000 Worth of Jewels—Left Their Victims Bound, Gagged and Unconscious—Loot Was the Property of Mrs. Ray Perkins, Estranged Wife of a Restaurant Owner—Her Consort Was Milton Abbott, a Cotton Broker.

New York, March 9.—Using methods which proved successful, albeit fatal, in the notorious "Dot" King and Louise Lawson robberies, three armed and masked men in formal evening dress invaded a sumptuous studio apartment in the Plaza section of Fifth avenue before dawn today and escaped with $25,000 worth of gems.

The victims, who were bludgeoned, bound, gagged and left unconscious, were Mrs. Fay Perkins, estranged wife of a restaurant owner, and Milton Abbott, reputedly wealthy cotton broker whose home is in fashionable West End avenue.

Mrs. Perkins' apartment was the scene of the affair. With the exception of a few dollars taken from Abbott's pockets, the $25,000 loot was her loss. It included five jeweled bracelets, three diamond rings, a diamond and sapphire ring, and a diamond encrusted wrist watch.

She sustained such injuries at the hands of the invaders that physicians tonight reported her condition grave. The only clue to the identity of her assailants was furnished by Abbott, who saw the silk handkerchief mask slip from the eyes of one man, and got a momentary glimpse of features which he said he could identify if he saw them again.

Police declined to say whether Abbott, who recovered sufficiently to inspect the Rogues' Gallery at headquarters, had been able to pick out the man.

Mrs. Perkins is 24 years old, has been married for seven years, but lives apart from her husband, Benjamin H. Perkins. According to the police, she is well known among the "White Light" cabarets of Broadway as a patron whose frequent appearances invariably attract attention because of her beauty, her expensive gowns and her abundance of jewelry.

She was of the "Broadway Butterfly" type, said the police, as were Dorothy King Keenan and Louise Lawson, whose dead bodies were found in their costly apartments, that had been ransacked of thousands of dollars in jewels and money by robbers who killed before they looted.

Last night Mrs. Perkins' escort was Abbott, described by himself as "a long-time friend of the family." They attended a theatre, they danced at the White Horse Tavern, and they finished a conventional right-about-town by supping at Reuben's at 2.30 a. m., then they retired to a rear room of Mrs. Perkins' apartment, which is on the second floor at 768 West Fifty-eighth street, and consists of a large studio with a half-dozen other chambers.

While they were there, three men gained entrance to the hallway. They used crow bars on the main doors of the apartment, stole over the high-piled rugs and, softly pushing aside a large bureau against the door to the room where Mrs. Perkins and Abbott were, stood revealed before the terrified occupants.

With guns in hand, the invaders leaped upon Mrs. Perkins. Abbott sprang to her defense and was battered insensible with a fist and a pistol butt. The woman screamed and fought as the masked men tore at her bracelets, her wrist watch and her rings.

They beat her, they kicked her, they tore her flesh and stripped off her clothing. They even chewed at a finger from which a ring failed to slip readily enough. When Mrs. Perkins refused to tell where the rest of her gems were, they threatened first to kill her and later to torture her flesh with burning matches.

At last she pointed to a dresser casket that contained the jewels. The bandits emptied it, bound and gagged their victims, gave them a parting command to be silent or die, and departed.

Mrs. Perkins was first to free herself. She then cut Abbott's bonds and he, without informing the police, went straightway to consult the broker who had insured Mrs. Perkins' jewels until two weeks ago, when her policies are said to have expired.

She called her physician, who reported to police what had happened. Abbott later was found at his apartment.

SEATS OF SENATORS ARE INVOLVED IN CONTESTS

Washington, March 9.—Contests involving the seats of Senators Brookhart, republican, Iowa; Schall, republican, Minnesota, and Bratton, democrat, New Mexico were formally filed today in the senate and referred to the elections committee for investigation.

There are three separate contests in Brookhart's case, one by Dan F. Steck, his democratic opponent, another by the republican state central committee, and the third by Luther A. Brewer, independent republican, who withdrew from the contest.

Magnus Johnson, farmer-labor, Minnesota, is contesting the seat of Senator Schall and has made charges of extortion of sums from "bootleggers" for use in Schall's campaign.

Former Senator Bursum, republican, has filed a contest for the seat occupied by Senator Bratton.

Chairman Spencer of the elections committee, said extensive preliminary work in the investigations would be necessary and that it was the desire of the committee to get this done during the summer recess so that hearings may be held in the regular session of congress.

AMERICAN PILGRIMS WERE RECEIVED BY POPE PIUS

Rome, March 9 (By the A. P.)—The climax of America's first holy year pilgrimage was reached today when Cardinal O'Connell led his flock of nearly 500 pilgrims from the Boston archdiocese into the august presence of Pope Pius.

The pontiff first passed along row after row of the kneeling pilgrims, holding out his hand so that each might kiss his ring and then gave to each a medal commemorating holy year. Afterwards the holy father addressed the Americans from the throne in the consistorial hall and bestowed upon them a special apostolic benediction which included their families and blessed all the religious objects they had brought with them.

The pope was dressed entirely in white. Around his neck he wore a large gold chain, to which was attached the crucifix, and about his waist was a broad sash of white brocaded silk on the dangling ends of which were embroidered the papal coat-of-arms.

PAYMENTS BY CHECKS NOT POPULAR IN FRANCE

Paris, March 9.—Fatality seems to be hanging over the efforts of Minister of Finance Clementel to popularize the use of checks, as every time he takes special measures in that direction, a case is sure to arise which impresses the French public with the feeling that danger it attached to such a means of payment.

The troubles of Princess Kadjar, wife of a Persian prince belonging to the highest aristocracy of Persia, came before an investigating magistrate today. She is Polish by birth and a sister of Count Nieroth., a prominent member of Polish society, and by a previous marriage she was a Spanish Marquise. The charges against the princess include the cashing of checks and drafts without funds in the bank, the selling of a hired automobide and the obtaining of 500,000 francs of jewelry from a dealer without paying for it.

Her brother, Count Nieroth, was arrested this afternoon, when testifying in connection with the other charges against his sister, for complicity in the sale of the automobile. The princess' friends say all her creditors will be paid off when a slight dissension with her husband has blown over, as he is said to be a multi-millionaire.

BAY STATE TO CONTEST FOR EXTRADITION OF RUSSELL

Boston, March 9.—Efforts by the state of Massachusetts to bring back from Texas for trial Albert P. Russell of Wichita Falls, Texas, charged with wife abandonment, were renewed today when Governor Alvan T. Fuller addressed a letter to Governor Miriam A. Ferguson of Texas, asking her to reconsider her refusal to hand Russell over to the authorities of this state.

In his letter the Massachusetts governor asserted that, with Russell's identity as the person named in the indictment admitted, the governor of Texas has no discretion in the matter and he warned against the danger of "a haven of refuge to which criminals might flee without fear of being called upon to answer for their misdeeds."

SEVERAL FIREMEN INJURED, HEAVY FIRE LOSS AT OIL REFINERY IN EVERETT, MASS.

Everett, Mass., March 9—Fire starting in the refining plant of the Beacon Oil company here late tonight spread to five distilling vats, containing 10,000 gallons of crude oil apiece. Aid from the fire departments of Chelsea, Malden and Boston was summoned after a general alarm had been sounded here.

Several firemen were reported injured in the series of explosions which followed the outbreak of the fire. All were said to have escaped serious injury. Eight on duty near the tanks escaped by running when the first of the explosions occurred.

At midnight the flames were shooting up into the air to a height of 200 feet but a total absence of wind favored efforts of the firemen to prevent their spread to adjacent buildings and to other tanks containing hundreds of thousands of gallons of manufactured products.

Fifteen families of workers, living in company houses near the plant, were forced from their homes but firemen were able to prevent serious damage to the dwellings.

Although the fire was raging at midnight, it was expected that the blaze would be brought under control within two hours. A crowd of many thousands had gathered to watch.

Many tanks of manufactured products were located near the burning crude oil stills and were connected with them by pipe lines. The pipe lines, however, were shut off at once and the fire fighters concentrated efforts on keeping nearby tanks wet down and cool. They also worked to prevent the flames from spreading to wooden structures south of the scene of the fire.

WILLIMANTIC

A fine of $300 and costs, amounting to $306.65, which was paid, was imposed in police court, Monday morning, on Adelard(Pete) Kelley, found guilty of a charge of keeping liquor in his possession with intent to sell and reputation of selling. Kelley denied any such doings in his home and asked the court to disclose the identity of the "squealer."

At the annual town meeting at Scotland, Saturday afternoon, the first business taken up related to a period of some two centuries ago and asked for action on the reclaiming and care of the monument and grave of Rev. Ebenezer Devotion, first pastor of the Congregational church. Parson Devotion was graduated from Yale College in 1775 and died in Scotland in 1771, at the age of 67. The monument in his memory in the old Scotland cemetery plainly shows the marks of time and weather and the board of selectmen, George M. Perry, Harold Kenyon and Horace Maine were given instructions to repair and restore the monument to its original position. The grave and lot will also be beautified. A 22-mill tax was levied on the grand list. This is two and one-quarter mills less than the one laid in 1924. The town is now out of debt and its clean white places Scotland among the few towns of the state to be out of the hands of creditors. George A. Orrok was moderator of the meeting and Leon J. Moffit was clerk.

Excellent reports on the condition of the town were made at the annual meeting of the taxpayers of Chaplin, Saturday afternoon. There are no abandoned farms at present and the population of the town has increased to 500 since 1920 when the census rated the population at 395. In 1830 Chaplin boasted of a population of 807 and a return of this condition is looked forward to with enthusiasm. It was voted to levy a 25-mill tax, two mills less than last year. Returns made by the board of assessors show an increase in the grand list of $17,000, the total now being $277,900. The larger list allowed the decrease in the tax. The matter of voting to conduct a revaluation of the town property was deferred until the next annual town meeting, in October. The officials of the town were then granted salary increases in past years the town clerk received $10 a year and the town treasurer $40 a year. For many years the late Frank C. Lummis received $50 a year for filling both offices. It was voted to pay the present incumbent, Burt W. Welch $100 a year for both jobs. Five dollars extra was voted for this year's work—thus giving them fifteen dollars each—in the salaries of the assessors, Charles A. Turner, Walter N. Vail and Samuel Chappell. In the future the compensation of the board of relief will be paid at the rate of four dollars a day, on an eight-hour day basis. The past salary has been ten dollars a year. The board of relief consists of Burt M. Welch, Frank W. Landon and Winslow B. Gallup. The latter was voted a salary of $25 a year as clerk of the board of assessors and board of relief. Troner Race was appointed a member of the Memorial Day committee, to fill the vacancy caused by the death of Frank C. Lummis. W. B. Gallup was moderator and Town Clerk Burt M. Welch secretary, of the meeting.

The barn in Hebron on the farm belonging to Max Garbich, containing three tons of hay, was totally destroyed by fire early Sunday evening. Mr. Garbich entered the barn as usual carrying two lighted kerosene lanterns, one of which he hung on a nail, while he went to feed the cows in another part of the barn, taking the other. Whether the lantern exploded or slipped from the nail could not be learned, but when the owner returned the place was in flames, with the blaze spreading rapidly. The alarm was turned in—to central, whose call was first noticed by Grace Rathbun, eight-year old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. F. A. Rathbun, who spread the alarm. The bell in the Congregational church, which was tolling for the weekly Christian Endeavor meeting was turned on the alarm of Mrs. E. G. Lord, into a fire-bell, and the congregation to the last man, including the minister, Rev. W. W. Malcolm, rushed to the fire. A crowd of over two hundred collected and formed a bucket brigade. Quick and desperate measures were necessary in order to save the house, the silo and a part of the barn recently added. When the well was drawn dry, water was taken from a neighboring brook. The loss is estimated at about one thousand dollars, about half covered by insurance.

The March meeting of the Ministers' Union was held in the Methodist church, Monday with a very good attendance, members of the union, besides those in the city, coming from Lebanon, South Willington, Mansfield, Chaplin, South Coventry, Mansfield Depot, Stafford Springs, Windham and Liberty Hill. A number of the pastors' wives were present, responding to the general invitation tendered by the entertaining clergyman, Rev. Stanley Muirhead. Dinner was served at noon by the women's society of the Methodist church. Reports of committees were heard and sub-committees appointed to interview individuals concerning the enforcement of the law in reference to matters of prohibition and public gambling. Rev. A. Avery Gates, pastor of Hampton Congregational church, spoke on Immortality, giving his reasons for belief in it. A general discussion of hte topic followed.

HISTORIC ANDOVER HOUSE BURNED MONDAY MORNING

Willimantic, March 9—Gioseppe Brettrager and Firmino Frecioti and the latter's wife and four year old child narrowly escaped death by burning, about three o'clock Monday morning when the old Mary Brown place in Andover was completely destroyed by fire which started from an unknown cause and threatened to trap the occupants of the house, who were sleeping on the second floor. Brettrager, a macaroni manufacturer in South Manchester and owner of the house was awakened by the falling of the plaster from the ceiling of the kitchen, where the fire apparently got its start. He rushed down the back stairway and as he opened the door to the lower floor he was met by a mass of flames and smoke. He awakened the remainder of the household and seizing a few articles of clothing, all escaped from the building through the front door. The heat was so intense that Brettrager's hand was severely burned when he turned the iron door knob which was within reach of the flames. Mrs. Frecioti, clothed only in a nightgown ran across the road to the home of A. E. Frink and the latter notified central at the local telephone office to spread a general alarm. The men were unable to reenter the house and devoted their time to saving three automobiles which were stored in a barn and smaller outhouse near the burning structure. In rushing about the place Brettrager sustained other burns on his head and face, when he got within reach of flames flicking out of one of the windows of the house. The machines had barely been gotten to safety when sparks ignited the barn and shed and these were also totally destroyed. Several tons of hay in the barn were owned by Cecil Smith, of Andover and were to have been removed this week. An hour and one half later nothing remained standing on the premises but the large stone fireplace and chimney which had marked the center of the building.

The house was a two and one half story structure of eleven rooms and although built nearly a century ago had been kept ni excxellent repair and was one of the show places of the village. It was situated about a quarter of a mile from Andover railroad station, on the road leading to Hebron. The property was sold last fall by E. A. Standish, of Andover, to Brettrager and the latter had spent about $1,500 in making renovations. Last week he placed about $300 worth of new furniture in the building. Although partly covered by insurance the loss is considered one of the most disastrous in Andover in many years and is estimated at $10,000. The occupants were given clothing and shelter by A. E. Frink.

The origin of the blaze could not be determined Monday. The occupants returned from a show in South Manchester about 11 o'clock Sunday night and everything appeared safe when they retired. Deputy Sheriff Allison L. Frink was the Paul Revere of the emergency. He was the first outside of near neighbors to answer the telephone alarm and he further spread the call for volunteers by driving through the village with the horn of his trusty Ford shrieking a warning. Lack of water supply and equipment, however, left the fire-fighters practically helpless.

STRIKE AT THREAD MILLS STARTED MONDAY MORNING

Willimantic, March 9.—The strike at the American Thread company plant began Monday morning, nearly 1,800 of the 2,500 operatives of the plant remaining out of work. The estimate of the number of strikers was made by the strikers' committee. At the office of the plant it was admitted that the finishing department was crippled to a standstill, but a full complement of operatives reported for woirk in the manufacturing department, which shows but a comparatively small percentage in unionized employes. There are 1,500 operatives employed in the finishing department, 800 in the manufacturing department and some 200 in the works department.

In a statement made Monday morning Agent Don H. Curtis declared the strike a movement which the officials deeply regretted. He felt that the ten per cent. wage cut made January 12 was merely in accordance with a general procedure to which textile concerns in New England have been forced to resort in order to meet competition and for the successful conduct of business. The company, he said, always took the welfare of its employes into consideration when making a wage adjustment. As the cut would enable the concern to better its present business standing, it would eventually react as an advantage to the operatives in giving them steady employment. He repeated in brief the notice issued that the mills would be kept open and work would be provided for those who remained or returned.

The ranks of the strikers were said to have increased somewhat toward evening. Monday, the entire printing department joining with the strikers. Several sections of the finishing department reported being one hundred per cent. present at the strikers' mass meeting held in the Gem theatre Monday forenoon.

The work of perfecting the organization of union members was started in systematic manner Monday, in charge of Miss Mary Kelleher of Scranton, Pa., an organizer for the United Textile Workers of America, who is being assisted in supervising the strike by Miss Amy Hooker, president of the local textil council. In an address which she delivered at the meeting, Miss Kelleher reviewed the conditions in the textile industry in New England and deplored the cutting of wages of textile workers. She stated that the reduction was unfair, as the textil companies had been and were paying large dividends to stockholders. Miss Kelleher urged all to try and influence their fellow workers of the manufacturing department to abandon their posts and unite with the strikers. "In unity there is strength," she state, "and the eyes of all textile workers throughout New England are focused on Willimantic to await the outcome of the movement." Bi-weekly meetings will be held in the theatre due to the lack of seating room in Labor Union hall. The strikers have been cautioned against the use of any method sor demonstrations which would case reflections on their efforts to win the strike, and would brand them as abusive, Assurance has been received that assistance will be given for an unlimited time. The strike leaders appear to be planning on a six months' campaign.

A crowd of strikers gathered on the sidewalks fronting the various gates of the thread mills at 7 o'clock, the opening hour in the morning and at one o'clock in the afternoon. The largest assemblage was along the No. 5 and No. 6 mill doors and the gate to the printing room and box shop. Several workers going in to work in No. 4 mill were jollied to some extent, but nothing in the nature of a demonstration took place. Chief of Police McArthur and Lieutenant Frank McLean patrolled the vicinity of the mills, but their services were not required. Main street was lively all day with a continual procession of striking operatives.

The tug Westerly, Capt. Frank Robinson, brought a barge of hard coal from Stonington, where the tow lay Sunday night en route from New London, up the Pawcatuck river Monday morning to unload at the coal dock in Pawcatuck.

STONINGTON

Two raids were made in Stonington about 6.30 Saturday evening and liquor was found on each of the premises. A small quantity of booze was seized and broken bottles emptied of their contents were to be found all over the place. Several men were found in the place of John F. Dabreau, corner of Grand and Northwest streets and they tried to interfere with the officers. Patrolman William Ostman, Fred J. Ostman, A. F. Branch and Arthur Smith. They made a great struggle to get out of the building and to safety. Patrolman Ostman had a tussle with Dabreau who was taken to borough hall lockup where he spent the remainder of the night. Jean Ponte, who was present in Dabeau's place assaulted Capt. Fred J. Ostman and later was arrested on complint of the prosecuting attorney, on the charge of assault on an officer of the law. He furnished a bond of $500 for his appearance in town court this (Tuesday) morning at 9 o'clock. Mariano and Mary Lonza furnished Dabreau's bond of $2,000. Liquor has been peddled in the street for some time and those who do the trading and selling have been said to boast that they never would be caught.

It's the film on your teeth that makes them ugly

Run your tongue across your teeth and you can feel it. Make those cloudy teeth glisten. Begin today this new way.

This offers you free a 10-day test of the way that brings them. Simply mail the coupon.

What you find will surprise you. Your teeth are covered with a dingy film that ordinary methods do not combat successfully. Under it are the prettier, whiter teeth that you envy.

The great enemy of teeth

Film is the great enemy of tooth beauty. And a chief cause, according to world's dental authorities, of most tooth troubles. It clings to teeth, gets into crevices and stays. Germs by the millions breed in it. They, with tartar, are the chief cause of pyorrhea.

DANIELSON AND PUTNAM NEWS

DANIELSON

Slot machines, and matters pertaining to them, bulked large in the street conversation of Monday in Danielson. During the day custodians of machines that were seized by the state police last Saturday were formally served with notification that there will be a hearing next Monday to determine whether the machines are a nuisance. If the men whose places of business the machines were in when they were seized care to appear and oppose the state's claim that the machines are a nuisance, they may do so. Likely none will appear, because it is realized that their appearance might possibly be followed, under the law, with charges of maintaining premises where gambling is allowed, and that would not be at all pleasant.

Really the proprietors of places where the machines were found are not at all concerned as to what becomes of the devices. Except in one instance, they did not own them. The machines are the property of three different men, it was stated Monday, none of these men resident here.

If the court declares the machines a nuisance, they likely will be ordered destroyed. The money and slugs that is in them will be apportioned equally between the town and the state as the law provides. It is believed the bulk of the "coin" in the machines seized in this town are what are commonly known as slugs, used in lieu of nickels, but purchased by players of the machines with nickels.

An interesting sidelight on the slot machine business, which developed like a mushroom here during the past few weeks, was the statement Monday of a bank cashier that he refused to issue any more nickels last Saturday after the demand for these coins had reduced the banks supply to about $4.00. All the banks have been experiencing a heavy demand for nickels. This demand was easily traceable to the slot machines

No more slot machines will operate hereabouts for a long time, at least not openly. The game is up. It was whispered Monday that a few stray machines are scattered about the town having escaped seizure in Saturday's raids but where they are or whether they are in use is not a matter of very general knowledge.

Holding up one shaking hand with the other, while his knees rat-tatted together in utter terror, one young man resident in this town promised himself a most solemn "Never Again" arrangement after an experience about which a few facts came to light Monday afternoon.

The three who involved him in the difficulty believed they were on a burglar hunt when they set out to get him, and, indeed, there was good ground for so believing. The first man to spot him saw him drop on the veranda and attempt to hide at a new dwelling on East Franklin street, where burglars, during the early winter entered and stole tools and electric lighting equipment. Getting two acquaintances from the neighborhood and all arming themselves with shotguns, the trio returned to the house and entered through a rear door. Inspection of the lower floor with the aid of a spotlight revealed nothing, nor was there any answer to the calling they did. Ascending the stairs they found the door of one of the bedrooms closed. An attempt to force it open brought resilient resistance from the inside. A warning that they were armed with guns and would not hesitate to use them was given the unknown—should he attempt anything disorderly. No response. Whereupon the erstwhile prisoner was informed that unless he emerged immediately the police would be called.

That warning brought results. The door was opened a wee bit and a white-faced man, terror in his eyes, asked for a whispered consultation with one of his captors. It was granted. What the scared one told the stern one was verified before being accepted as true. Then the men with the guns withdrew and allowed the young couple who had been so ingloriously trapped to pass out. Up to this point, nothing appeared about the young woman in the case. Under the circumstances the owners of the new dwelling will not take action for breaking and entering against the young man.

Odelon Gamache, a Goodyear man, is seeking redress of a financial nature from an out-of-the-state person who sold him an automobile through an advertisement given wide-spread circulation in this territory. Mr. Gamache alleges that the car was not as it was represented to be and that he was diluded through alleged misrepresentations into paying much more

A very enjoyable event for about 200 Hebrew residents of communities hereabouts and from Norwich, Putnam, Providence, Webster and other places was held at the Casino Sunday evening. Dancing was a feature of the evening, music being by the local orchestra of Webster. Refreshments were served The proceeds o the evening will be devoted to charitable work.

Fast work by the line and installation forces of the Danielson and Plainfield Gas and Electric company made it possible for the Killingly Worsted company plant at Elmville, which is busy, to continue its operations without interruption Monday. It so happened that while the water wheel at the plant was being replaced after many years of service the engine of the steam power plant went out of commission. Saturday morning the lighting company tackled the job of running half a mile of wire to the plant, installing transformers and other necessary equipment for operation by electric power and had the hook-up completed and ample electric power for the mill available to operate when starting time came Monday morning, protecting both the mill and the operatives from loss of time and production.

The body of Mrs. Phoebe Chase Potter, who died in Waterbury, will be brought from that city today (Tuesday) for burial in the Chase family cemetery at East Killingly. Mrs. Potter, a former resident of this town, was a sister of the late John Chase, who had served the town as selectman and in other official capacities.

Monday morning, the funeral of Edward Farrell, 96, oldest resident of Wauregan, was held from his home in that place with services at the Sacred Heart church at 9 o'clock. Rev. J. C. Mathieu, the pastor, was celebrant of the high mass of requiem. Burial was in the Sacred Heart cemetery. The bearers were Jeremiah Doyle, James Ward John Coven, Arthur Goven, Felix Fisher and Peter Raymond. Louis E. Kennedy was in charge of the funeral arrangements.

From the home of his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Stanley Lipka, in Goodyear, Monday afternoon, the funeral of John Joseph Lipka, an infant of two weeks, was held with services at St. Joseph's church at Dayville. Rev. Ignatius Kost, officiating, at 2 o'clock. The body was entombed at St. Joseph's cemetery.

Mrs. Filindy Smith, 75, is dead at the home of her daughter, Mrs. Ray Johnson in Dayville, where the family has lived for years. Mrs. Smith was a native of Canada, a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Freeman LaCross.

This is the final week for making out and returning income tax statements to the collector of internal revenue at Hartford. March 15 is the time limit, but that date falling on Sunday the time is cut down to Saturday of this week for all practical purposes. Belated makers of returns were giving their attention to the matter here on Monday.

Discovery was made Monday morning that over the week end someone, probably boys, had made their way into St. Joseph's parochial school on Franklin street and robbed fund boxes in various rooms of whatever small amount of change they happened to contain, the total loss being probably not more than $10. There were evidences that the desks had been searched and envelopes and other possible containers peered into, in the search for mony.

Auction Notice: Do not fail to attend the sale of farm implements, wagons, harnesses, carts, etc., tomorrow (Wednesday) at 11 o'clock a. m. at the warehouse of F. A. and F. C. Davis, North Main street, Danielson. Witter Bros., Auctioneers.—adv.

Fewer complaints relative to riding bicycles on sidewalks have come in since the practice was given a bit of publicity. Nevertheless the police will welcome complaints against such riding and will take the necessary action.

Where ice remains hereabouts there are boys who are continuing to venture onto it, the danger of immersion or even drowning notwithstanding. As a matter of good fortune there is very little ice remaining.

The Longo block on North Main street is rapidly taking on the outward appearance it will have as a finished structure. This good looking new building is next to the Hyde block. The lower section, providing two additional stores for the borough, will be ready for occupancy, it is now anticipated, the the latter part of April.

Amazement replaced an attitude of non-interest, Monday morning, when it was casually suggested as a goat-getting device, to one who had a slot machine seized last Saturday that a collection of cash registers might be made along about Wednesday of this week.

Estimating what snow removal is going to cost the town of Killingly during a year is no alluring pastime for the selectmen charged with the duty in framing their budget In the new budget, covering 1924-1925 to July 31, the estimate is $1,000. How near adequate that may be only the Lord knows. This may be indicated by citing that another item in the budget is for $1,726 to meet a snow removal deficit of last year.

MOOSUP

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Newton of 135 Crystal avenue, New London, who have been visiting Mrs. Newton's sister, Mrs. W. C. Sprague of Moosup has left for Orlando after a three weeks visit in Deland, Fla. They will now visit at Mr. Newton's brother's in Orlando. They enjoyed their visit in Deland and other nearby resorts very much.

During the past season there was 22 from the town of Plainfield living in Deaind, Florida. More were only visitors in passing.

PUTNAM

Putnam High school, which was closed for the last two days of the week because one student had developed a case of scarlet fever, was opened Monday with practically a full attendance. The building had been thoroughly cleaned and aired, no new cases have been reported and it is believed that the contagion, if it can be called that when there have been but six cases in six weeks, is at an end.

At the adjourned town meeting on Monday morning at the Municipal building the tax rate for the coming year was fixed at 23 mills, an increase of one-half of one mill over last year's rate. The city tax rate is 11 mills which makes the combined rate 34 mills on the dollar. There were nine citizens at the meeting at which Whitman Danielson acted as moderator and Judge David Flagg was the clerk. The appropriations, voted at a former meeting, amount to $146,000.

Joseph Gliniecki of Webster was presented in city court Monday morning, charged with speeding. Officer Merrill Keith said that he had followed Gliniecki from the Rhode Island line to a point near the the children's home, a distance of several miles and that on a three-mile stretch he had averaged better than 45 miles an hour. The defendant pleaded guilty and was fined $25 and costs of $8.37. The name of the car was not mentioned but as the defendant said that only three cylinders were working the reader may guess at the make.

Three more rum runners arrested at Wauregan Saturday by Officers Keith and Comstock were tried in the city court Monday. They are Syrians and bear the following names: Fangy Tokia, Amen Esper and Massood Najim. The last named could speak no English and an interpreter was needed for his testimony. They were taken into custody a short distance from Wauregan on the road to Moosup. In their car was found four gallons of what is believed to be alcohol and two bottles of some other fluid also thought to be intoxicating. In court they were charged with illegal transportation of liquor and with having liquor in their possession with intent to sell. All were represented by Attorney Arthur S. Macdonald.

Najim pleaded guilty to both the charges and was fined $450 and costs. The other two pleaded not guilty and declared on the stand that they had accepted an invitation from Najim to take a ride with him, that they did not know that there was any liquor in the car, and were in no way connected with its purchase or destination. Najim made the same statement, saying that he was the only guilty one. The court took another view of the matter and found Tokia and Esper guilty of both charges and assessed the same fine as Najim. Bonds were fixed at $1,500 for each; they appealed from the finding, but they could not furnish them. Najim thought that he could raise enough to pay his fine but several telephone conversations proved useless and he was taken to jail with his companions.

The next meeting of Putnam Coolidge club is to be held in the community room of the Putnam Savings bank, Thursday afternoon. The committee in charge of the program includes Miss Clara Larned, president; Miss Ellen Wheelock, vice president; and Mrs. Henry J. Thayer. The speaker will be Miss Catherine Byrne, who will give a report of the inauguration of President Coolidge. While in Washington she was the guest of Senator and Mrs. Hiram Bingham, affording her an opportunity to see and hear the ceremonies to advantage. Miss Wheelock and Miss Larned will be the other speakers. Miss Wheelock will outline a suggested course for a school of government. She will cover the subject in three parts, relative government, the Constitution on which our government is based and political parties. This is the first meeting of the club in nearly three months.

NORWICH DOINGS 75 YEARS AGO

Speeches by Webster and Calhoun on the slavery question, were published in the Courier of 1850 and probably furnished the citizens of Norwich with a leading topic for many days

Other news of interest of 75 years ago is taken in part from the files of the Courier, as follows:

Tuesday, March 5, 1850—It is estimated that 1,000 ships averaging 300 tons have left various ports in the United States, for California and that exports from California reached $64,000,000 as a result of their trips. To size up the vast amount of gold that has been taken out of California it had been estimated that 50,000 workers have averaged $10 a day for at least 200 working days, making $100,000,000 in gold mined in the state in the past year. New discoveries and other resources being developed will make this figure seem in a few years.

Amasa Walker and Elihu Burrit, secretaries of the American Peace Conference committee have issued a notice of the Connecticut state peace convention to be held at Hartford on March 21st, to select delegates to attend the peace congress to be held at Frankfort-on-the-Maine, Germany in August, 1850. A number of Norwich people are planning to attend the convention at Hartford.

The afternoon trains from Plainville to Willimantic are showing increased patronage and trains frequently have from 70 to 80 passengers. About $200 weekly is being added to the receipts of the road.

The sum of $25,000 has been subscribed for the New London and New Haven raidroad, this money being raised in Guilford alone. Other subscriptions are looked for as the movement gains impetus

Thursday, March 7, 1850—On Saturday next the sloop Brunette will be sold at auction. The sloop is about 70 tons burden and well found in every particular. It is enough to say that she is copper fastened and has been commanded by Capt. Edmond Smith for the last four years.

Owing to a change in their business Charles Osgood & Company is offering for sale, their drug store and all the stock. The stand has been occupied for seven years and the stock to be sold has been carefully selected.

The New London and Willimantic R. R. Co., having applied to the city of New London for the loan of its credit, to the amount of $100,000 for the use of the company, a meeting of the citizens was held Saturday to take action on the matter. Nearly 700 voters attended the meeting but the vote failed by about 70 of having the necessary two thirds.

The steamboat Knickerbocker is soon to make its appearance on the run between New York and Norwich, this news being most welcome here.

New London has a new hotel, the "Federal Street House," kept by H. S. Crocker. Located near the railroad depot and steamboat landing, the new house is assuered of a fine patronage and we wish Mr. Crocker much success in his new venture.

At the annual meeting of Neptune Engine Co., No. 5 the following gentlemen were chosen officers: Henry Peale, foreman; A. A. Delanoy, 1st assistant foreman; W. H. Webb, 2nd assistant foreman; D. W. Perkins, treasurer; I. F. Champlin, clerk.

Norwich people were given opportunity to read the full speech of John C. Calhoun, on the slavery question, in the Courier of 1850, articles appearing for several issues containing most vital points in the great argument which in 1850 seemed to point to a Civil war.

Saturday, March 9, 1850—At the time Mr. Calhoun's speech on slavery was attracting the attention of Norwich readers of the Courier, the speech of Mr. Webster made its appearance in the columns of the newspaper; thus both sides were presented for discussion.

William D. Huntington has disposed of his stock of has, caps, eac., to Oliver & Co., and requests that everyone owing money come to his store and pay up thus saving a lawyer's fee. The need of hurry is because Mr. Huntington is to sail for California soon.

On and after March 14th a stage will leave [illegible]nts hotel every day except Sunday for Colchester, leaving at 7:30 o'clock. Fare each way is 50 cents. Wheaton Cottrell is proprietor of the new line and D. R. Baker is agen.

ANNOUNCEMENTS

Broadway Theatre

When you go to the Broadway theater the first half of the week you can be assured of two and a half hours of the finest entertainment you've ever had, bar none.

W. S. Harvey assisted by Miss Madge Anderson in his original offering A Room Upside Down is the opening offering. Comedy mixed with a wonderful juggling oddity, the first one of its kind ever seen in Norwich.

Twelve minutes of fun and novelty was presented by Clark and Downley, those novelty boys.

Billy Inman and Co., in a new farce In and Out, proved to be just one laugh after another. Mr. Inman's style of comedy is well known in vaudeville, and laughter simply rolls along at a merry clip.

Tabor and Green, those two dark knights, was another comedy hit. Not only did this take the house by storm, but their singing is something to be remembered.

Martinez-Fields & Co., presented by a company of seven people proved a worthy closing number. Music of the fast and snappy kind, dancing and songs were all well presented. The company of artists in this act is worthy of the best houses in the land.

The final showings of the Paramount picture, Locked Doors, which was shown for the first time in Norwich on Sunday last at the Broadway theater, will take place there tomorrow.

Clara Beranger wrote the story, as original for the screen and is also credited with the scenario.

Locked Doors is de Mille's best.

"Power" Picture and Address.

Under the auspices of the Norwich Association of Operating Engineers, a three reel motion picture "Power" will be shown at the Community House, Church street, on Tuesday evening, March 17.

John A. Holland, President of the Connecticut State Association of Engineers, also connected with the Engineering & Inspection division of The Travelers Insurance Co., and H. D. Larrabee, general manager of The Eastern Connecticut Power Co., will be the speakers. Both are well known citizens of Norwich.

Mr. Holland's subject will be, "The Engineer and His Importance in the Community," and Mr. Larrabee's subject will be, "The Economics of the Modern Power Plant."

This will be an open meeting and all manufacturers, engineers and others interested in power plant equipment are welcome to attend.

Coming to the Breed

The largest cast in the history of motion pictures enacts the scenes of Sundown, the First National feature-epic coming to the Breed. The cast comprises 5,000 human actors and 160,000 bovinces.

The immense herds of cattle, the migration of which forms the theme of the Earl Hudson story, are the majestic background for the action of the soul-inspiring story enacted by the human members of the cast.

Onward, ever onward the cattle trudge. In every scene there are thousands of them passing souththeir hoofs beating a funeral dirge the passing of the west's greatest industry, cattle raising.

Without doubt the scenes in Sundown showing the immense herds stretched as far as the eye can see, in one slowly moving procession, are the most spectacular of like nature ever seen on the screen.

At the Breed

When a picture comes along that offers something really new in the way of treatment, we make it a point to let our patrons know of our enthusiasm. Such a picture is The Snob, Monta Bell's first production under the Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer standard, which is the feature at the Breed theater today.

The Snob is a film version of Helen R. Martin's novel, and has for its central character a young man who seeks social fame, no matter how he has to get it. The role is certainly not the usual hero kind, and gives the audience a chance to enjoy a finely wrought characterization of great humorous and dramatic significance. This is partly due to Monta Bell, who is one of the newer school of directors, and to John Gilbert, who plays this exacting role.

The Snob will refresh and entertain you.

The Pathe news, a cartoon and an educational comedy make up the remainder of the bill.

Fanning Park Dahlia Catalogue.

TELEPHONE GIRL NOW WELL

Suffered Two Years. Relieved by taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

Marshalltown, Iowa.—"At the time I began taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound I was a telephone operator and had been suffering for two years with bearing-down pains and cramps in my legs so I could scarcely walk. At times I could not do any kind of work on account of my trouble. My mother was taking the medicine for the Change of Life and she thought it would help me and it did. I have also taken Lydia E. Pinkham's Liver Pills. I recommend your medicines to my friends and I will answer all letters asking about them."—Mrs. P. E. Everts, Box 149, Marshalltown, Ia.

Mrs. Norton's Experience

"Before I started taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound I was weak and nervous, and had such terrible dizzy spells that I could not stand some days. I had no appetite, was restless at night and felt all rundown. My husband got me a bottle of the Vegetable Compound and I am surprised at the results after taking it."—Mrs. Clarence S. Norton, 13 Pierce St., Dover, N. H.

Severe Headache and Constipation Relieved Over Night

At 53 She "Feels Fine" and Never Has a Headache

"After a serious illness I became very constipated. The Doctor's medicine relieved me only for a short time. I also suffered from awful headaches three or four times a month. One day I noticed your ads and sent for a box. Beecham's relieved me at once. I found that if I took them on going to bed I would feel fine in the morning. I never have a headache now.

"I am 53 years old and I do all my own housework. I lay it all to the wonderful help which Beecham's Pills have given me for 29 years."

SHOWING OUR ATTITUDE.

It was only a short time ago that this government let it be known that the ambassador selected by Japan to represent it at Washington would be welcomed. Further evidence of this was given by the greetings extended to Tsuneo Matsudaira on his arrival at San Francisco and by the communication from President Coolidge read at the dinner given in his honor in that city. It was a message of congratulations in which was expressed the satisfaction of this government at such an excellent choice and a recognition of the good judgment expressed at Tokio in placing its affairs in such able hands.

Perhaps this presidential communication will be looked upon in certain circles as unnecessarily early. It may be regarded that this government appears to be going out of its way in extending this welcome before the arrival in Washington of the Japanese ambassador. But it is to be realized that there has been a determined effort to give the impression that the relations between the two countries were not what they should be, that there had been a straining of the ties and that the right spirit did not exist. The effects of such a manufactured sentiment can be easily imagined, and certainly there could be nothing more desirable in an effort to set right the situation than an early expression on the part of this government. Thus when opportunities have presented themselves, even though such procedure may not be considered necessary on every occasion when ambassadors are named, special efforts have been made to give expression to the administration's attitude.

Whatever some people would like to do in the way of disturbing amicable relations it is evident that there is no intention on the part of this government to let them be the spokesman for Uncle Sam. Subtle methods are employed for the purpose of developing misunderstandings but the frankness and openness of the government quickly puts them into the discard where they belong. Friendship and peace between this country and Japan have existed for a long time and there is no reason to expect that they will not continue equally firm.

PAROLE DANGERS.

Only a few weeks ago the operations of the parole board of New York state were brought to attention in a manner that provoked much criticism. There were indications that favoritism was being used and that the welfare of the public was not getting proper consideration. So high did the feeling run that there were expressions to the effect that the board should resign, that its services should be ended by the government and, if it is the fault of the parole law, that the needed changes should be made therein.

Nothing resulted, however. A few reluctant restrictions were announced on the part of a conspicuous New York prisoner in order to smooth over the situation, but now there comes to light the case of another prisoner, who upon being released from the state reformatory returned to his career of crime and shot and killed a New York policeman. This was the case of a man with a prison record, one who had been paroled before, one who had violated two previous paroles, one who had convinced the board that he ought not to be at liberty, and yet he was treated in the lenient manner that might be expected in the case of the first offender. He was in fact turned loose to commit other crime, and there seems to be reason for believing that the parole board expected that it would not be long before he would be back in some one of the state institutions.

This case only piles up the criticism against the parole board, or the law under which it operates. It is a fine situation if a parole board must release a prisoner whose liberty is a recognized menace to the public. And it is even worse if a parole board recognizes that and is unable to do anything to prevent such a public danger.

It would appear that New York has received a sufficient demonstration of its parole law and parole board to demand an immediate change before there is a chance for any further repetitions.

TEACHING THE NEGROES.

Millions have been sent into the south for the education of the colored race in support of the belief that the future of that race lies in the help that it can get through educational institutions, through fitting as many as possible to be teachers of their own people.

A good start has been made through a number of excellent colleges and institutes. The result of their work is to be seen in many directions but that there is opportunity for the extension of what is being done and the undertaking of further endeavors is to be indicated from the funds which are being provided for such a purpose from time to time. This is indicated by the gift of $1,000,000 by John D. Rockefeller Jr. to the Hampton-Tuskegee fund.

Both of these great institutions is engaged in a wonderful work for the colored race. It is by no means new for those schools have been making steady progress for years and doing great things with the means at their command. These are doing a tremendous service to the south and to the nation, and while not alone in type of service rendered, they are meeting long needed requirements.

Involved in the raising of a five million dollar fund for building purposes, there is nothing that could serve as a stimulant to contributors like the records which have been established in their fields. Hampton and Tuskegee not only need to be continued but they deserve the chance to have their influences made available for even great numbers.

Education is certain to be of inestimable value in bringing about the solution of many southern problems. Through such schools the solution is bound to be obtained and as fast as the south can make good use of funds for providing advantages for greater numbers it will be for the welfare of the nation to see that the necessary money is provided. It is not a small job, but it is one which is being tackled in the proper manner and there is plenty of evidence of the beneficial results already accomplished.

A COMMENDABLE DECISION.

In view of the disposition which is frequently encountered to wink at wrong doing, or to take no steps which would be the means of interfering with business in endeavoring to being about reforms, there cannot fail to be interest in the announcement which is made by the proprietor of hotels ni Greenwich and New York, who declares that "no fraternity dances would be permitted at his hotels in the future."

What the basis for this decision is is not disclosed except the complaints were made that young people of high school age were not conducting themselves in a proper manner at midnight hotel dances. Whatever the specific conduct was it appeals to the hotel proprietor as being time to take a hand in the matter himself. Whether he has endeavored to stop the conditions in the past is not disclosed, but it is certainly a most favorable impression that he creates when he puts the ban on any more of the dances which have produced the complaints.

Whatever views he may hold in regard to the parental responsibility under such conditions, he is conscious of the fact that the complaints furnish warning aplenty to justify his action and there is good and sufficient reason for him to act without waiting for conditions to get worse. His refusal to permit any more fraternity dances may not insure the accomplishment of the desired reform, but it is evident that he is unwilling to allow his hotels to figure in any further demonstrations of the need, while the publicity given to this action may stimulate what appears to be a belated activity on the part of the young people themselves if not their parents. It is most commendable action.

WITHOUT BLOODSHED.

Differences have existed between Chile and Peru for years and got to the point where relations between the countries were almost at the breaking point. A complicated boundary situation, including a treaty of 1883 providing for conditions which had never been carried out, has kept that part of South America in a state of uncertainty for more than a generation. Instead of being good neighbors there was a spirit of ill feeling with each watching every move of the other with suspicion.

It was at such a stage that the desirability of clearing up this matter through submitting the difficulty to arbitration by this government was suggested, and after a conference at Washington agreement was reached upon such a proposition. What was begun during President Harding's term has now been completed under the administration of President Coolidge.

The facts in the boundary dispute have been dealt with in an impartial manner, and with each country agreeing to abide by the decision the situation promises to be smoothed out by the submission of the question as to what country provinces of Tacna and Arica should belong to a plebiscite in accordance with the terms of the treaty. One part of the territory which Peru insisted was not included under the treaty is ruled out by the decision.

Thus for the first time in nearly four decades a settlement promises to be reached, but this is an adjustment which could never have been accomplished except by arbitration without resulting to force. The preference for this method should be beyond question in future cases of this character.

EDITORIAL NOTES.

The last week in which to get your income tax return out and off.

The men on the corner says: How many signs of spring have you noticed?

With the railroads planning for daylight saving schedules summer is surely just around the corner.

Whether they needed such help, Vice President Dawes has provided the senate with something it ought to think about.

Isn't it about time for the senate to admit that the joke is on it and look to the enactment of legislation and the introduction of needed reform?

Numerous changes in diplomatic posts are predicted. It would be nothing unusual but time will show whether they are real predictions or just guesses.

According to Brookhart the only trouble with the republicanism of the republicans is that they didn't denounce the party and follow LaFollette as he did.

It has taken the U. S. senate too long to act upon the president's choice for attorney general. That ought to have been tacked onto the legislative pay bill as another rider.

WASHINGTON AFFAIRS

(Special to the Bulletin)

Washington, D. C., March 9th—When Secretary of War Weeks was asked why he had called Congressman John Q. Tilson back from the retired list and placed him on active duty for three months, as a member of the general staff, Secretary Weeks replied: "Because I believe Col. Tilson to be one of the best qualified men available to send abroad to secure information about certain phases of the arms and munition situation in Europe. His experience is wide and he is an expert on ordnance. So I thought it a good thing to utilize his knowledge." It has been understood that Col. Tilson, who was going abroad March 10th to bring back Mrs. Tilson and the children after a winter in France, was also entrusted with a mission by the president and war department, but the details were not made public until Secretary Weeks gave them out to a group of newspaper men.

The Connecticut delegation will leave here soon. Senators McLean and Bingham must wait for the adjournment of the senate, although all New England affairs are out of the way now, it is possible treaties may keep the senate here a week or more. Senator Bingham intends to travel through the country this summer, visiting forts and reservations, in order to familiarize himself with details of the work on which the military affairs committee acts. Bingham is a member of that committee. Congressman Freeman and Mrs. Freeman sail soon for Cuba and the Fenns will spend the spring in Europe.

Congress has adjourned, and except the short special session of the senate there are no signs of political life at the capitol. The senate will act on presidential nominations, and perhaps take up some of the pending treaties and then it, too, will shut down for a long recess. The regular session convenes the first Monday in December next, and unless some emergency requires an extra session President Coolidge has made it clear he does not intend to call one.

It has furnished, the nation with President Coolidge, with the republican floor leader, John Q. Tilson of Connecticut, the president pro tempore of the senate, Senator Moses of New Hampshire, the secretary of war, John W. Weeks, and though hailing now from other sections of the country. Many distinguished members of the cabinet, the supreme court, including Chief Justice Taft of Connecticut, are either natives or former residents of New England.

A noteworthy feature of the New England delegation in the 68th congress is that though there was much mud-slinging, criticism and unseemly accusations flying through the air, the delegation, regardless of party, was not touched by it. A record of which all New England may well be proud.

A decade of print development—It is a matter of common knowledge that during the past decade there has been a great deal of consolidation in the newspaper field, while among the smaller papers the mortality has been somewhat high due to increasing cost of operation and material. A bulletin just issued by the bureau of the census shows that in 1923 there were 10,267 establishments engaged in "printing and publishing, newspapers and periodicals." Turning to the U. S. Statistical Abstract we find that in 1914 there were 19,317 establishments in the country so engaged. This is a decrease of 48 per cent. in the decade.

But there the losses end and the gains begin, considering the industry as a whole. Comparing 1914 with 1923 it is learned that the number of wage earners in the industry, in round numbers, increased from 114,000 to 116,000 or 1.8 per cent. The aggregate paid in wages increased from $88,600,000 to $196,600,000 or 122 per cent. Cost of materials increased from $129,000,000 to $363,500,000 or 181 per cent. The value of products increased from $497,000,000 to $1,268,500,000 or 155 per cent. And the value added by manufacture increased from $366,800,000 to $905,022,000, or 146 per cent.

If we divide the total paid in wages by the average number employed for the years considered, we find that in 1914 the average per capita per annum wage of operatives was $774, while in 1923 the average was $1690. This includes part time and overtime, and all hands from the printer's devil to the foreman of the composing room. The bulletin does not include salaried officers and employes, nor proprietors and firm members, statistics for which will appear in the final report. The average per capita wage, therefore, shows an increase of 146 per cent. With the exception of bakers this wage increase is the largest in any trade listed in official statistics.

Congressional sessions—There is no more unworthy trick than for the members of the houses of congress to waste the time of their regular sessions, and then to ask for a special session in which to do the necessary or highly desirable work which they have neglected, and there could be nothing more unfair, not to say mendacious, than to attempt to throw the blame upon the president for the failure to enact needed legislation, in case he declines to subject the nation to the agitation and expense of the special session. In the present case, the president has done his full duty. He longe ago recommended to congress, as the constitution prescribes, measures which careful investigation and study had convinced him to be necessary for the welfare of the people; and congress had ample time to act upon them. So far as it did not do so, it alone is responsible, and it alone must bear whatever blame the nation may be moved to place upon it. If Congress would quit playing politics and "talking for Buncombe," and would address itself as directly and efficiently to the making of laws as the administration does to the execution of them, it could do all its work in much less time than it now spends in not doing it. Instead of needing extra or special sessions, it could considerably shorten its regular sessions.

IN THE PUBLIC EYE

This is the seventy-fifth birthday anniversary of Dr. Mary Mills Patrick, famous as the founder of the American college for Girls, in Constantinople, and for thirty-five years its president. While a native of New England, Dr. Patrick is a Western woman by education and training. Her course at the University of Iowa was, however, supplemented by prolonged study in Europe, where she won a doctor's degree, and where she has had other recognition as a scholar. In 1890 she was made the head of the college in Constantinople with which her name will always be identified; and, aided by wealthy and well-intentioned fellow countrymen and countrywomen, and by a faculty of American-educated teachers, she gave the institution in the Near East a high standing and won the respect of the Moslem people. Dr. Patrick resigned her position a year ago, after fifty-three years devoted to American education work in the Near East.

Today's Birthdays

Sir Clifford Sifton, veteran Canadian statesman, born in County Middlesex, Ont., 64 years ago today.

Rt. Rev. Theodore I. Reese, now coadjutor and soon to become bishop of the Episcopal diocese of southern Ohio, born in New York City, 62 years ago today.

Dr. Mary Mills Patrick, who served for 35 years as president of the American Women's College in Constantinople, born at Canterbury, N. H., 75 years ago today.

Today's Anniversaries

1851—Ohio constitutional convention, which had adjourned from Columbus to Cincinnati on account of cholera, completed its labors and adjourned.

1862—Marriage of Princess Alexandra of Denmark and the Prince of Wales.

1863—A great fire in Boston destroyed nearly $5,000,000 of property and several lives.

1899—The Utah legislature adjourned without being able to elect a United States senator.

1924—Henry Ford's bid for the Muscle Shoals power plant was approved by U. S. House of Representatives by vote of 227 to 142.

WHEN GERTRUDE TOLD

"H'm," said the surprised uncle who had happened along just as the very gloomy young man was removing a photograph from a large silver frame. "It can't be that you have quarreled with Margery?"

The very gloomy young man laid the picture carefully upon the desk and refrained from looking at it. "If she was just ordinarily rich it wouldn't matter, because then she wouldn't mind hopping down a peg or so to what I could give her—if she'd have me—but what's the use of thinking about a girl who has always lived like the princess of Kamswat and whose father has most all the money in the world, and what he hasn't got all her bachelor uncles and maiden aunts have corralled for her? I'm going to cut it all off right short and be a hero and all that! Why, I may be getting ten thousand a year some time—and that would just about buy her furs for the season!"

"Well, she seems pretty partial to you," suggested the uncle who had happened along.

"It'll be for her own good," the young man said, darkly. "She'll forget all about me when she is yachting in the south seas instead of wrangling with the butcher over the price of chops! My grief, can you picture Margery doing her own upstairs work and wearing a last year's hat again? It's asinine."

"But is it?" asked the uncle, lighting a cigar and frowning. "Funny how this reminds me of a girl and fellow I once knew. Her people were about the wealthiest in the town, while his folk belonged in the poor but honest category, owning a hardware store and eating dinner in the middle of the day. When they were children and he would see little Gertrude rolling by in her pony cart, her yellow curls flying, boy that he was, his heart went flip-flops. He thought she was the most marvelous fairy princess on earth and when she smiled at him, as she always did, life positively held nothing more.

"It being a small town, they knew each other well and all through the years the boy was her faithful squire. He was a nice, reliable boy, well brought up and standing on his own two feet and her folks did not worry when they knew that Gertrude was out somewhere in his care. And Gertrude really liked Arthur. It was a splendid friendship all through their early youth.

"Then she went away to school. It seemed to set a period to something and the boy had a bad half hour with himself after the train had pulled out, in spite of his memory of her eyes and her smile as they clasped hands at the last. She was so lovely, it now dawned on him, that in the world outside many would fight for her, those who could give her more even than she had and he could realize now that she had more than plenty. He was a little awed to think how casually he had taken all this up to now.

When she came back there was some barrier between them. Not that he could keep away from her, and if he had she would have summoned him to the big house on the crest of the hill. But he withdrew into himself. If anybody pursued it was Gertrude, accomplishing it after the delicate fashion of women with smiles and lifted lashes, eager interest and frank pleasure in his society.

"But Arthur was sensitive and fancied things, among them how her people must look upon his attentions. To be considered a fortune hunter was unbearable. He let his heart ache and held back. The years of school went on and he himself was away at college. Every vacation there was a brief breathless space of joy of looking into her eyes before he remembered and put up the barrier. He was most unhappy. Frequently gilded young men from other cities would appear in town and lay siege to the princess on the hill and at those times the less said the better about what Arthur felt.

"Finally he could not bear it and went away himself into the world of business, where he worked hard and let his feelings crust over. Two years later when he was earning about $300 a month he got the home papers telling all about Gertrude's wedding to one of the gilded ones, who took her around the world on their wedding trip and then made her life so miserable in one way and another that five years later the fairy princess, broken and finished, came back and died in the big old house on the hill.

"They sent Arthur a letter afterward which she had written just before she went on. It was a letter that made up for many things that Arthur had missed and never would have, all because of his silly pride. For he had known all the time that he was the man Gertrude really cared for. You see, his fault was that he refused to let her make her choice of her own free will. Well, so it was finished."

"I never did know what your middle initial A stood for," the gloomy young man said inconsequentially. He got up briskly.

"Where're you going?" asked the uncle who had just happened by.

"Oh," said the young man, casually "got to get a haircut—guess I'll drop in on Margery this evening." — Exchange.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Tokens Not Interchangeable.

Mr. Editor: We note in your issue of today that

Such a statement is absolutely incorrect as the instructions now effective do not permit conductors to accept tokens of The Groton & Stonington Traction Co. or any other company but The Connecticut company, and the publication of such a statement tends to make trouble for our conductors because it is misleading to our patrons.

Truly yours,
S. ANDERSON,
Manager.

Norwich, March 9, 1925.

Stories That Recall Others

His Business.

An energetic young lawyer had an account to collect and the letters sent to the person in debt were returned marked "Removed" and "Not Found." So the attorney went out to inquire of the neighbors as to where Mr. —— moved. The house where the man had lived was vacant.

A boy of about ten passed the house at that moment and the attorney asked the boy, "Do you know where Mr. —— has moved?" The boy replied, "No, sir, he moved about three weeks ago." "Do you know what his business is?" asked the attorney, or "where he works?" asked the lawyer. "He don't work for nobody. He's in business for himself."

The attorney still persistent asked: "Well, what business is he in, trucking, hauling, coal business?" "No, sir, none of them businesses. He's in the bootlegging business," was the boy's quick response.

Street Corner Politics.

Perhaps nothing affords more amusement than the reasons we hear people give for approving or disapproving certain political candidates. The following story is an incident in point, and also an illustration of the latest style of brand for any unfavorable candidate.

There was a group on the corner where some bootleg-filled men were discussing the merits of one of the candidates before a recent election.

"Why didn't you vote for him?" asked a tottering voter, "ain't he all right?"

"All right?" came the hiccoughed reply, "Where you been, man? Why, he's a wet!"

BURGESS BEDTIME STORIES

Weary But Triumphant

Who struggles on and won't give in Triumphantly at last will win.
—Plunger the Osprey.

My, my, my, such a splashing as there was on the sand bar that ran out from one bank into the Big River! How the water did fly! Plunger the Osprey had succeeded in getting the big fish he couldn't let go of out of deep water into the shallow water that covered that sand bar. Now he was no longer frightened. The water wasn't deep enough for him to be drowned. If he could just keep that big fish from getting back into deep water he knew that he would win the battle for his life.

"I'll not eat more of this fish now," said Plunger

The big fish knew the same thing. My, how he did flap and struggle! He did his very best to get back into deep water and drag Plunger with him. Plunger was by this time so tired that his wings ached with weariness. But if he gave up he would be dragged back. Either he must drag that fish to shore or the fish would drag him into deep water. So he flapped and flapped his great wings and struggled with all his might to get that fish ashore.

At last with two or three hard flaps of his great wings he dragged the big fish out on the sandy shore. Such a relief as it was to be clear of the water. He still couldn't let go of that big fish, but he knew that after he had rested he would be able to tear his great claws free. The big fish was doing his best to flop back into the water. He threw Plunger this way and that way. Plunger felt as if his legs would break. But now he was where he could use that great hooked bill of his, and in a few moments the big fish stopped flopping.

Plunger didn't even try to get his claws free just then. "I've got to rest," he panted. "I simply must rest. In all my life I never was so tired. But anyway I've got the fish, and it's the biggest fish I've ever caught. Won't Mrs. Plunger's eyes open when she sees it!"

Weary as he was, Plunger was experiencing the most glorious of all feelings—the feeling of triumph.

Sure that the struggles of the fish were at an end, Plunger was content to just lie there and rest for a while. He lay so still that had you come along and seen him you would have thought that both he and the fish were dead. Plunger's great claws were still buried in the back and sides of the fish. He was still a prisoner. But he was no longer a worried prisoner!

When he was sufficiently rested he got the claws of one foot free, and it was easier to get the claws of the other foot free. Such a relief as it was to be able to stand on his feet and to know that he was free! His toes ached, but he didn't mind that now. He ate a little of the fish and then he tried his wings. Now that he was rested the strength had come back to them.

"I'll not eat more of this fish now," said Plunger. "I'll go get Mrs. Plunger to share in it, and we will have a feast together."

Up, up, up he circled. Then he started straight up the Big River in search of Mrs. Plunger. How good it was to be high in the air! "I wish I could have brought that fish along," said he. "But after all it doesn't matter much. I'll soon be back with Mrs. Plunger and then we will have a feast."

In Scotland originated the fancy that a bride should be lifted over the threshold of her husband's home. Otherwise some mishap would befall her, either the evil eye or other witch's charm. This custom was widespread, for it survived until comparatively recent times in the north of England.

WILLIMANTIC LENGTHENS LIMIT FOR MAIN STREET PARKING

(Special to the Bulletin)

Willimantic, March 9—The March meeting of the common council was held with a full attendance in the town building this evening. Although the session lasted but half an hour, considerable business was transacted. The report of Street Superintendent John S. Sullivan, Chief of Police Allan McArthur and Fire Chief James J. Tighe were read by City Clerk James S. Donohue. Acting Mayor Hickey presided. Three claims for damages as a result of injuries in falls on icy sidewalks during the past two months were entered by Nellie G. [illegible] F. Clark and H. N. Congdon. The claims committee will [illegible] investigation.

Street Supt. Sullivan was authorized to cut two trees at the corner of Jackson and Ash streets on the Fry property as a preliminary step to improving the corner. The street committee will investigate the petition of Benjamin Hochberg to place a sign over the sidewalk at his place of business on Railroad street. Several residents of South street appeared to warn the board against the undermining of the concrete sidewalk on the east side of the street by washouts. The street committee will take up their petition to have curbings installed. The water committee was given power to act on the petition to install water on Ivanhill, Greystone and Blaine streets, three thoroughfares which are not as yet accepted by the city.

Acting Mayor Hickey was authorized to borrow the sum of $10,000 to defray current expenses. Further steps will be taken by the sanitary committee, James J. Lee, chairman, to cause the elimination of a smoke nuisance from the boilerhouse of the N. Y., N. H. and H. railroad in their local yard.

The light committee was authorized to install a street light opposite the W. A. Buck property on Main street. The outstanding business of the meeting was the amending of section No. [illegible] traffic ordinances to read:

"That no vehicles shall park on the north side of Main street between North and Church streets longer than 40 minutes." As the ordinance was accepted on Sept. 8th last, it called for a 15 minute limit. The amendment grants the petition of merchants in that vicinity who found that they suffered a loss in business as a result of the brief parking limit. Adjournment was taken at 8.30 o'clock.

Attended Voiture Meeting

Twenty-two members of Fletcher Post, No. 4, American Legion, representing Voiture No. 743 of this city attended the dinner and entertainment held Saturday evening in New Haven by the various voitures throughout the state. The local boys made the trip in a specially chartered Groton and Stonington bus driven by Ben Mellor. The bus carried a large sign reading "Voiture, No. 743, Norwich, Conn., The Rose of New England."

Burial was in the Brewer family plot in Yantic cemetery, Norwich, where Rev. Mr. Tobin read the committal prayers.

Among relatives in attendance was Mr. Brewer's niece, Mrs. Walter Wellington, of New York.

For over fifty years Judge Brewer had been prominent in the town of Groton and the final honors paid to him were a manifestation of respect and love on the part of the entire townspeople. Many Norwich relatives and friends joined the mourners for the services at the grave.

The Brewer homestead, No. 92 Washington street, Norwich, where Judge Brewer was born, was built in 1780 by his father, Lyman Brewer, the first president of the Thames bank, Norwich.

CLASS GIVES FAREWELL TO REV. W. H. BATH

The Costello Lippitt class of Trinity Methodist Episcopal church held its annual guest night Monday at the parsonage, No. 85 Williams street. The gathering took the form of a farewell reception for Rev. W. H. Bath, retiring district superintendent of the Norwich district of the New England Southern Conference. In behalf of the class Mrs. Andrew Crowe presented Mrs. Bath a set of ivory and a bouquet of flowers.

A feature of the meeting was a radio programme with Robert A. Gray as announcer, broadcasting from "Station R. A. G." Mrs. Olive Roberts gave a piano solo and Mrs. Lloyd Cochrane, Mrs. W. H. Bath and Mrs. Edwin V. Ross also took part in the programme.

Refreshments of chicken salad, cake, coffee, olives and wafers were served. Robert A. Gray was voted the most popular man present. The arrangements for the gathering were in charge of Mrs. Andrew Crowe, who was assisted by Mrs. Graham, Miss Mildred Plye and Miss Mildred Perkins.

MORE JOIN RANKS OF STRIKERS AT WILLIMANTIC

(Special to the Bulletin)

Willimantic, March 9—The local mills of the American Thread Co., will open Tuesday morning with only sufficient steam in the boilers to give heat to the various buildings was the basis of an announcement made Monday night by officials of the local union of textile workers who have been on strike since this morning. This result was scored at five o'clock Monday afternoon when a nearly 100 per cent. representation of the works department of the plant joined the ranks of the strikers. According to law a certain number of men must remain to attend the boilers but the force will not be large enough to produce the steam necessary to operate the machinery of the plant.

This movement gives assurance to the strikers that the 700 or 800 employes who had not become affiliated with the striking body Monday night would be practically forced to leave their jobs.

Departments to be added to the list of strikers Monday in addition to the works department included inspectors and the printers. Miss Amy Hooker, local president of the union, said on Monday night that the workers felt confident of receiving the cooperation of a large part of the manufacturing department Tuesday and that all of the 2,500 employes of the plant would have taken a "ten per cent. restoration" banner by the end of the week.

CITY COURT HAD LONG DOCKET AND BIG RECEIPTS FROM FINES

Something over $200 in fines came into the treasury of the city court Monday morning from the cases that were on the long docket of over 25 names, one of the largest that has faced Judge A. F. Libby for many a Monday morning. Every available spot where a spectator could squeeze into the court room was occupied.

Antonio Zigarella, 33, of No. 29 Rosch street, who shot and wounded his stepdaughter, Sarah, 14, early Sunday evening at their home was presented and had his case continued a week. The charge against Zigarella is aggravated assault. Bonds were set at $5,000 and were furnished by Angelo Laralone.

Zigarella's wife would not press the charge against him and neither would the stepdaughter. They wished the case against him dropped. Mrs. Zigarella and her daughter said he was a hard, industrious worker and blamed his rash act on drink. It is said he arrived at his home in an intoxicated condition and after some words made an attempt to shoot his wife. The girl stepped between husband and wife and got the bullet in her arm.

Michael Polichonopoulos, 35, known as Mike the Bandit and also as The Sea Hawk, was arrested on a charge of keeping a gambling house on Shetucket street. He was fined $25 and costs and given a suspended 30-day jail sentence. He paid his fine amounting to $35.50.

The nine frequenters found in the place during the raid late Saturday night were also fined. Seven were fined $10 and costs each, the individual bills being $12.25. Arthur Silva and Frank Bohara were fined $25 and costs each and given suspended 10-day jail sentences, as this was their second appearance.

Nine automobile drivers were fined and paid $5 each for violating the traffic rules.

A local man charged with intoxication and breach of the peace was fined a total of $21.10 which he was unable to pay. He went to jail to work out his fine. Another man drew a ten day jail sentence for violation of his probation and two other men were fined $5 and costs each for intoxication. They paid.

SPELLING BEE MADE FEATURE FOR BROTHERHOOD

An old fashioned spelling bee featured the monthly meeting of the Brotherhood of the United Congregational church Monday evening at the Community House, Church street. The 76 members present were served supper at 6.30, the menu being as follows:

Vegetable Soup
Saltines
Escalloped Oysters
Baked Potatoes — Cabbage Salad
Rolls — Coffee
Ice Cream — Cake

About 7.15 o'clock the business meeting was called to order by President Walter F. Lester. Louis Hawkins was delegated a committee of one to convey the appreciation of the members of the brotherhood for the delicious supper to the committee of women in charge, Mrs. Arthur M. Thompson, chairman. The reading of the minutes of the previous meeting was waived and three new members were voted into membership. The remainder of the meeting was devoted to unique entertainment provided by the entertainment committee, Charles F. Wells, H. Robbins, William Anderson, Loren Sampson and Edwin V. Ross. The tables were cleared away to provide ample room for the spelling match and C. A. Gager and Charles F. Wells were elected captains of the two teams. The team members were chosen by the captains after which the match started with Rev. Alexander H. Abbott, pastor of the United church, giving out the words.

The match was started by the word "corpse" which Captain Gager spelled without error. Captain Wells got the second word "metal." At the end of the first "round" a baker's dozen had been retired from the 60 spellers and this number was materially increased by the end of the second "round." Captain Bert Gager went down for the count in the third round and Captain Charlie Wells retired from active duty a couple of rounds later. Minus their leaders the remaining members of the teams withstood the onslaught of words, short and long, easy and difficult, for several more rounds, and finally the team members numbered but three, one on Captain Gager's team and two on Captain Wells' team. Dr. Hugh B. Campbell was the only survivor and brought in a hard earned victory for Captain Wells' aggregation.

The committee in charge of the supper comprised Mrs. Arthur M. Thompson, Mrs. William H. Oat, Mrs. Harvey M. Briggs, Mrs. H. W. Gallup, Mrs. E. A. Cudworth and Mrs. A. H. Lathrop.

BEGINNERS' CLASS HOLDS PRETTY DANCING RECEPTION

From 4 to 5:30 Monday afternoon at the Wauregan hotel ball room, the closing reception of the Monday beginners' dancing class taught by Mrs. Edward Andrews made a pretty event for parents and friends, who attended and watched with admiration the programme given with so much grace by the little people. The entrance march of fifteen couples was led by Evelyn Burbeck and Russell Edmond, with Junior and Janet Pullen as the second couple.

The following were the numbers on the programme: Waltz, Wavelets, Coming Through the Rye, Lullaby, Minuet Waltz, Trailing Arbutus, Polka, and Song of the Robin, concluding with the Russian Polonaise, led by Virginia Brown and Harriet Hazard.

A special solo number of the afternoon was the interpretive dance Soaring by Myrtle Fuller, danced with fairy grace with a toy balloon.

The class gift to Mrs. Andrews, a beautiful bouquet of roses and was presented by Evelyn Burbeck and Mrs. Andrews presented bouquets of pansies to her assistant, Miss Esther Evans, and to the pianist, Miss Gertrude Platt, and daffodils to the usher, Rosmond Chapman.

ALCOHOL FOUND IN AUTOMOBILE BY POLICE

Six gallons of alcohol were found in the automobile of Carlo De Sauter by local officers and state police when they searched his machine and placed him under arrest as he drove up to the curb at 24 North Thames street Monday afternoon about 2.30 o'clock. The man runs a store at this address, renting the place from Frank Ferry who went on his bond for $1,500 for his appearance in the city court. Sergeant Myron Morgan, Officer Henry Fenton and State Policemen Caron and Watson made the arrest.

The same officers arrested Paul Flagelli at his home, 102 Talman street Monday afternoon. The state policemen claim having evidence of sales of liquor against him. Joseph Falcone gave bonds for his appearance in court.

BOYS' CLUB MEETING WITH GORDON CRUICKSHANK

The Boys' club held a very pleasant meeting with Gordon Cruickshank of 121 Broadway, Friday evening. The members engaged in playing various games. A prize of a gold pencil was won by Master Clyde Hayden. Those present were Charles McNamara, Lester Lathrop, Francis Chapman, Leonard Clapp and Henry Vignot. Refreshments were served by Mrs. William H. Cruickshank and Miss Ruth Cruickshank. The guests left about 10 o'clock, after spending a very pleasant evening.

About all the use some men have for the golden rule is to measure the conduct of others.

32 MILLS REPRESENTED AT PLAINFIELD MEETING

At the regular March meeting of the Eastern Connecticut Mills association held Monday evening at the Plainfield Community house, 150 members representing 32 mills were present. The meeting was called to order by the president, Norman Parkhurst of Jewett City, who introduced the speakers of the evening.

The first speaker called upon was Frederick M. Blanchard, well known wool merchant of Boston, who explained the general construction of wool and its peculiarities to the textile industry. He spoke of the difference in wool fibre of the different parts of the countries and even in the different states of the Union, and told of viewing 28,000 sheep in one flock in the state of Montana and explained the modern methods of shearing and preparing wool. At the conclusion of Mr. Blanchard's talk he gave a very interesting cross word puzzle which was very amusing to those present.

John S. Lawrence of Topsfield, Mass., head of the Boston Selling house of Lawrence and Co., and one of the biggest mill men in the world was the next speaker introduced. Mr. Lawrence was chairman of the New England Week conducted by the Textile Industry of New England, chairman of the merchandising committee of the National Association of Cotton Manufacturers and is a descendant of the oldest family in the American textile history, his grandfather being an importer before the war of 1812. Mr. Lawrence took for his subject "Service," placing service above price and production, and entered into the psychology of women buyers 10 years ago and now, and also touched on the use of Eastern Connecticut mills made products. American made goods and New England made products. He asked those present who were wearing any articles in mills they represented to raise their hands but only seven of the 150 admitted wearing such, a very small percentage. He had with him charts showing the population of the principal textile centers in New England and the percentage of wage earners in the textile industry, these clearly illustrating that the textile industry is rated as the highest. He also stated that in the average town or city in New England the textile plants averaged and paid about one-third of the taxes and spoke of the general attitude of the public toward industry of all kinds in the north and south, giving illustrations showing that the people of the north were not as eager to finance or encourage new industries as in the south, concluded the speaker.

At the conclusion of this address, Frederick L. Babcock, editor of Fibre and Fabric, a textile journal, who was instrumental in getting the speakers for the evening, and Mr. Blanchard, were given a rising vote of thanks.

The meeting closed with the unanimous opinion that this meeting will go down on record as one of the most interesting regular meetings held by the association.

SEVERAL LEGISLATIVE HEARINGS SCHEDULED TODAY

(Special to The Bulletin)

Hartford, March 9.—Several of the legislative committees will hold hearings on various bills this afternoon. The bills that will be heard are mostly of a state-wide rather than pertaining to any special eastern Connecticut legislation. The committees holding hearings are:

Appropriations—Making an appropriation for the care and maintenance of oyster beds. Shell-fish commission maintenance and all bills. State board of fisheries and game maintenance and all bills. Executive session.

Banks—An act concerning interest charges allowable by small loan companies. An act concerning amending an act regulating the making of small loans and amending Section 13, Chapter 219, Public Acts. An act concerning an amendment to Section 1 of Chapter 223 of the Public Acts of 1923, relating to small loans. An act concerning the incorporation powers and supervision of credit unions.

NORWICH TOWN

Rev. Allan Shaw Bush, of Gales Ferry, preached at the First Methodist Episcopal church at the Sunday morning worship, in the absence of the pastor, Rev. James B. Aldrich, who was confined to the house because of illness.

The Power of Prayer was the theme of Rev. Mr. Bush's sermon. The text was I Samuel, 12-19. And all the people said unto Samuel, Pray for thy servants unto the Lord thy God, that we die not; for we have added unto all our sins this evil, to ask us a king. Mrs. Lewis Irish was the leader of the Young People's Christian Endeavor service in the evening, when the topic assigned was, The Master's Method of Winning Followers. John 1:35-51. The regular evening preaching service was omitted.

At the Methodist parsonage Thursday afternoon at 2.30 the March meeting of the Dorcas Home Missionary society is to be held with the president, Mrs. James B. Aldrich, as hostess.

The Law of the Harvest was the theme of Rev. Gurdon F. Bailey's sermon at the First Congregational church, Sunday morning. The text was Galatians 6-7. Be not deceived, God is not mocked; for whatsoever a man soweth, that shall he also reap. At the Young People's Christian Endeavor service at 6 o'clock, the leader was Mrs. Walter G. Hitchon, Jr., (Lucile Bailey). The topic was The Master's Method of Winning Followers, John 1:35-51.

At the mid week prayer service of the Congregational church, Thursday evening in the chapel parlor at 7.30, the theme will be, The Saviour Teaching and Healing. Luke 6:20-38; 7:1-10.

At the Sacred Heart church Wednesday evening at 7.30 there are to be Lenten devotions consisting of rosary, sermon and benediction of the Most Blessed Sacrament.

On Friday evening at this church at 7.30 there will be Stations of the Cross and benediction of the Most Blessed Sacrament.

The Lathrop Memorial Foreign Missionary society is to meet at the home of Miss Mary E. Bachelor of East Town street, Wednesday afternoon, at 3.30.

Rev. James B. Aldrich, who has been ill for several days at his home on West Town street, was reported Monday as improving.

Several from Norwich Town attended the union Lenten service Sunday evening at the United Congregational church, Norwich, when Dr. Edward Holyoke, of Providence, was the speaker.

Rev. Edward Huntington Smith, who is passing several months in Auburndale, Mass., returned recently after a few days' stay at the home of his mother, Mrs. Owen S. Smith of Upper Washington street.

Mrs. Mary Gaffney and daughter, Miss Margery Gaffney, accompanied by a friend, motored to Norwich Town Sunday afternoon and were callers at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Benjamin L. Kennedy, of Town street.

Mrs. Fitch Allen, who has been passing a number of weeks in Lexington, Mass., has returned to the home of Mr. and Mrs. C. M. Williams of Washington street.

Motorists who are beginning to tour through this section, whenever they make a stop to look about, are always greatly interested in the old schoolhouse on the green and generally will inquire where Benedict Arnold lived.

The Waves We Live In

It is rather startling to learn, and from high scientific authority, too, that we are living most of the time submerged in waves to which the greatest waves of the ocean are mere ripples in point of size. When a current of air blows across a water surface water waves are produced, and when a current of air blows across a surface of quiet air, or air having a different motion from the first current, then air waves are produced.

These atmospheric waves, we are assured, have all the phenomena of water waves—troughs, crests, foam, breakers and spray—but, since the qualities of air and water are so different the air waves have dimensions over 2,500 times those of the corresponding water waves.

Thus the great ocean waves of perhaps 25 feet height would have atmospheric counterparts extending upward a distance of 10 or 12 miles above the earth's surface.

The undulating movement of such air waves accounts in part for the intermittent gusts of wind which we notice so frequently in storms.

FLOATING HOTELS IN MIDATLANTIC

Hotels on floating islands in mid-Atlantic will be a feature of the new airway to be opened next Spring, which will make it possible to reach Buenos Aires by way of Paris in less than a week from London. The scheme has been prepared by Pierre Latecoere, the French airway magnate, and only the formal sanction of the French government is now required.

The floating islands in the Atlantic will be constructed to afford accommodation for passengers and seaplanes alike. They will be established on the route between Dakar (Senegal) and Fernando de Noronha Island, off the Brazilian coast.

BOSTON COLLEGE RELAY TEAM SETS NEW RECORD AT COLLEGE GAMES

New York, March 9.—A Boston College relay team established a new world's record for the 2,400 yard race at the Manhattan college games tonight, defeating Holy Cross and Pennsylvania, in 4 minutes 54 2-5 seconds. The old record, made February 5, 1910, by the Irish-American A. C. team, was 5.06 1-5.

A great sprint by F. L. McCloskey, Boston's anchor man, snatched from Holy Cross the victory which Walter Mulvihill had all but won. The Worcester collegian took up the baton for the last lap with a five yard lead, but the Boston flier slipped past him eight yards from the tape, to win by the scantiest of margins.

W. T. McKillop and P. M. Dillon kept the lead for Boston College for the first two laps, but Leo Larrivee, Holy Cross speedster, snatched the place from F. J. Daly of Boston as the third starter.

Larrivee turned over the baton to Mulvihill with plenty to spare, but the latter was unequal to McCloskey's supreme challenge.

Penn's team was Jensen, Starratt, Wobensmith and Branshaw.

De La Salle's relay quartet established a new indoor interscholastic record for the mile, beating Brooklyn Tech and Flushing High in 3 minutes 31 2-5 seconds. The old record was 3:33 4-5, made by Mercersburg Academy in Madison Square Garden two years ago.

NEW LONDON CITY LEAGUE MAKING PLANS FOR SEASON

(Special to The Bulletin)

New London, March 9—Although it is a long way off before baseball season will start, the New London City league which does not get under way until after the high school teams finish their schedules is laying plans for the season. There new teams, the strongest which could possibly be gathered in or about New London have made application for admittance to the league this year.

The teams which have filed an intention of entering are the Standard Oil company, the Coast Guard and the Submarine Base. Last year the league consisted of four teams, but the Corticelli nine has no intentions of reentering the league. If the Corticelli does drop out, and with three teams left, the Tabs, Knights of Columbus and the Fort Trumbull Stars, the league if it accepts the applications from the Standard Oil, Submarine and the Coast Guard, will be a six or an eight team affair. In all probability it will be a six team league with some of the strongest nines playing.

It is certain that the Submarine Base will enter a strong lineup. The gobs always do manage to give good account of themselves, and this year will be no exception, for the lineup of the squad gives a healthy outlook for the coming year. The Submarine Base is regarded as the strongest nine of the three new applicants to the league but in regarding the gobs as the strongest of the three teams, the president and his conferees forgot to include the Standard Oil nine as one of the brighest prospects on the diamond.

A fine gathering of real baseball stars will give the local fans a surprise when the Oil men step out on the diamond for their first night's play.

The Standard Oil has Letty Coullard formerly of Moosup and the State Hospital, Harran, Posick, of the State Hospital, and has intentions of adding Eddie Burns, Joe Barry, Bill Barry, George Sheffott and Tillie Daniels to its array of baseball material. Eddie Burns, is to pastime with a team in the Blue Ridge League, but if he does not make good he intends to sign up with the Standard Oil. There are a few more players of known ability who will perform with the Oil men, and they should have one of the best teams in the league if they carry the personnel outlined above. Joe Barry, George Sheffott and Tillie Daniels performed with the Duwells last year to the satisfaction of the management, while Joe Barry also saw some service with the State Hospital. The trio will perform with Bulkeley High this year and the early training they receive from this source will benefit them later in the season.

The Coast Guard will lineup with a strong team, for it was rumored that several former minor league players are stationed among the ships which will make this port a permanent base. The Submarine Base will have Lefty Harrell, Dinty Moore, Hawkes, Goldie and other players back with the nine this season. Several new men have reported for service at the local base from other points along this coast and the Pacific.

CHAPMAN MAY ENTER YALE BASKETBALL TOURNEY

(Special to The Bulletin)

New London, March 9—There is rumor afloat, that should Chapman Tech gain a victory over Westery High in the regular scheduled Eastern Connecticut interscholastic game which will be played at the school auditorium on Tuesday evening, that the Red and Black will be invited to participate in the tourney to be held at Yale on March 20-21. This announcement came from very reliable source, and it would not be a surprise if there was considerable truth in the statement.

BULKELEY RELAY TEAM IS PICKED FOR MEET

(Special to The Bulletin)

New London, March 9—Bulkeley track men assembled at the Y. M. C. A. under the direction of Coach Frank B. Hamjem for the purpose of ascertaining who will be the quartet of runners to represent Bulkeley in the relay race to be held at Hartford, on Saturday, March 14. George Sherbett, Norbert LeBlanc, A. Locke and Edward Henkle were chosen to represent the school.

Selections were made by the means of elimination. Those named above had the best time out of a field of early twenty runners, and were selected for that reason. Sherbet who had the best time of all and who negotiated the distance of five laps around the track in 44 and 1-5 seconds was followed closely by the time of Le Blanc who was but 2-5 of a second behind.

Practice will be held for the track team all this week, and Saturday the teams will depart for Hartford, where they are entered in one of the events which the great Finnish runner, Paavo Nurmi, Ritola and others will also perform. Bulkeley will oppose three high schools, New Haven Hillhouse, New Britain High and Hartford Public High. The relay run between these high schools will be preliminary before the matching of Nurmi and Ritola in the feature rum.

Try Joint-Ease For Rheumatism

Mike Foster, bowling partner of Roy Fillmore representing the Aetna Alleys in the Eastern Connecticut Bowling league, leads the league for the first round with an average of 107-59. Chip Dugas of the Taftville combination is a close second with 107-55, trailing the leader by the small difference of 4 pins. Roy Fillmore is in third place with 106-30 topping Harold Bosworth of New London by exactly four pins.

The individual honors go to Roy Fillmore with high single of 161 and to Mike Morin with 1047 for high match total. The Peerless duo has high team total with 2026. The averages follow:

	G.	Pf.	Ave
M. Foster	72	7763	107-59
Dugas	72	7759	107-55
Fillmore	72	7672	106-30

KEARNS NOT INTERESTED IN ACTION OF N. Y. COMMISSION

Los Angeles, March 9.—Jack Kearns, manager for Jack Dempsey, declared here today that he was not interested in the sayings or doings of the New York boxing commission, unless Dempsey is going to fight in New York."

But he added: "I believe Dempsey will fight this summer in California."

All this was apropos of the New York commission's announcement that its 24 hour ultimatum to Dempsey to accept or reject the Harry Wills challenge, was a mistake and that Dempsey had fifteen days in which to think over the Wills defi.

Kearns reiterated his previous declaration that Dempsey already had accepted Wills' challenge.

YALE MAY BUILD NEW SKATING ARENA THIS YEAR

New Haven, March 9.—Professor G. W. Mendell, chairman of the Yale Athletic association, and H. F. Woodcock, its general manager, returned today from Toronto and Stratford, Ontario, where they made a study of some of the recently built hockey arenas. Yale has been without a hockey arena since the burning of the Arena here last summer.

Both Professor Mendell and Mr. Woodcock reported that they were greatly impressed with the Canadian rinks and announced that if a financial plan could be arranged guaranteeing enough money, a fine but reasonably priced skating structure could be built at Yale field, conforming in general appearance to the Lapham field house nearby.

WESTERLY WINS SERIES FROM PURPLE COLLEGIANS

In the rubber game between the Purple Collegians of Worcester, Mass., and the Armory Five, resulting in a score of 30 to 24 in favor of the Armory Five, the basketball fans had all the thrills which go with a red hot basketball game, for first one team and then the other held the lead, in fact, the half time score was 16 to 10 in favor of the Purple visitors. Each team drew their first scores on foul throws and a near riot was precipitated when "Whitey" Bernot caged a field goal while Grayson on the floor had called for time out, Referee Hefron ruling the score did not count. Morley was not up to his usual game, while the new right forward, Kinney, from Newport, was a shining star and Wilbur staged a comeback. Brusso and Allen were the stellar players for the visitors.

GIBBONS READY TO MEET WILLS BEFORE DEMPSEY

Kane expects to meet Jack Kearns, Dempsey's manager, here Saturday to discuss the possibility of a match between Gibbons and Dempsey in California this summer.

The New York State Athletic commission is attempting to induce Dempsey to meet Wills before taking on any other opponents within its jurisdiction.

PLAINFIELD VS WANDERERS ON WEDNESDAY NIGHT

The third game in the Eastern Connecticut basketball tournament will be played at Baltic on Wednesday evening when the Plainfield team clashes with the Wanderers. The Plainfield team has been defeated twice by the Taftville team and is out to even up the standing by taking the series with Baltic.

Babe Ruth's Finger Fractured.

Mascart Sails Wednesday.

Paris, March 9.—Edouard Mascart, European featherweight champion, accompanied by his manager, M. Tietard, will sail for New York on the liner France next Wednesday. Both expressed satisfaction when they learned of a New York dispatch to the effect that Tex Rickard had decided to stage the Mascart-Kaplan bout late in May or early in June. Mascart prefers an open-air fight.

New York, March 9.—Solly Seeman and Benny Valger of New York and Jimmy Goodrich of Buffalo won their bouts in the second round of the lightweight elimination tournament at Madison Square Garden tonight.

SPORT WORLD BRIEFS

Professional football was not legalized in England until 1885.

American golfers use up something like 30,000,000 golf balls a year.

The oldest representatives of the greyhound family are the coursing dogs of the Arabs, known as Salukis.

Asheville, N. C., has two 18-hole golf courses in operation and four more under construction or projected.

Jacksonville, Fla., is said to be the largest city in the United States without representation in a professional baseball league.

Baltimore has sold five players to Newark. They are Ed Tomlin, and Geooge Brown, pitchers; Joe Faber, infielder; Harold Clark, outfielder; and Johnny Alberts, catcher.

The Los Angeles Pacific Coast league club is to have one of the largest and costliest baseball plants in the country.

Duke Floyd, young outfielder of the St. Paul American Association team, has been sold to Raleigh of the Piedmont League.

Dee Walsh, for four years utility man of the San Francisco League, has been released to the Lincoln Club of the Western League.

Austria and Hungary will seek admission to the International Lawn Tennis Federation when that body meets in Paris this month.

One hundred million dollars a year is estimated as the aggregate paid out by golf enthusiasts in the United States in the way of club dues.

Dave Bancroft, whose endeavor it will be to pull the Boston Braves out of the hole this season, is now the only playing manager in the National league.

Although the Olympic games are not carded for Los Angeles until 1923 the Southern California metropolis is already working out the plans for the big event.

Urban Shocker, former star pitcher of the St. Louis Browns and now on the hurling staff of the New York Yankees, began his professional baseball career as a catcher.

President Robert Gunther of the Quincy Fans' Association, has announced the signing of Outfielder Jimmy Thrash. He was with Waco last season and in 1923 was with Rockford.

Grover Alexander, veteran pitcher of the Chicago Cubs, before departing for Catalina Island, set his goal for the season at 20 victories. He said that the wrist broken last season is as strong as ever.

Because he was roughly ejected from Ebbets Field by special policemen employed by the Brooklyn National League during the 1924 season, H. B. Straud, a Brooklyn fan was awarded $1,000 damages.

New Haven has signed Gene Suggs, an infielder, who was with Beatrice of the Tri-State League, until the loop blew up last year. Suggs is 21 years old, weighs 150 pounds and hits left-handed.

Jeff Smith, who has been out of the ring for some time, will be seen in action again on the night of March 16, when he will shook up for eight rounds at Lancaster, Pa., with Brickton, a promising junior lightweight.

George Sisler manager of the Browns who is at Tarpon Springs, Fla., with his squad is reported to be again looking like himself at bat. He has been cutting them down the third base line and lining them to right with unerring regularity.

Dick Breen for the past three seasons manager of the Peoria team of the Three-I League, has been named manager of the Bay City team of the Michigan Ontario League. Breen has also managed teams in the Western and International League.

S. H. Day, one of England's famous cricket players, was compelled to wear spectacles when playing. Day was also a great football player some years ago, and did not discard the "gig lamps" even when he took the field in championship games.

President Bramham of the South Atlantic League, has announced the following staff of umpires for the season: Edward Markey, Eddie L. Goes, J. H. Schaeffer, Frank A. Schaeffer, Milton Dominique, James Shurman, Joe Burke, and Joseph L. Harper.

Mrs. J. C. Dunn, owner of the Cleveland Indians, has denied a report that she plans to sell the club. The rumor was that Mrs. Dunn, widow of the late owner of the club, had desired to make her permanent home in California and forget about baseball.

Three new players have been added to the Spartanburg Sally League team roster. They are Catcher Ritchie, from Mayfield of the Blue Grass League; Eddie Bean, an infielder who had a trial with the Washington Senators last spring, and Shortstop Novak, a semi-pro recruit.

The bat used by Babe Ruth is many ounces heavier than that used by any other batsman in the game. While the average player does his batting with a stick weighing from 35 to 36 ounces, Ruth knocks in his famous homers with a club that ranges up as heavy as 54 ounces.

The claim of another player involved in the 1919 World's Series scandal, Charles (Swede) Risberg, has been settled by the Chicago White Sox. Risberg had filed suits against Comiskey totalling $203,000 and called them off last week on the payment of $400. Two of the suits were for $100,000 each on alleged damage to reputation when he was barred from Organized Baseball and $3,000 for alleged back salary.

One young man who is getting considerable attention in the Yankees' camp at ... (Nick) Cullop, last of Omaha in the Western League. ... drew the following ... from Manager Huggins: "He's the best prospect I've seen in years." The chances are Hug will change his mind about trying to make a pitcher of him. Cullop was a heaver before it was discovered he was a great hitter.

Ted Hauk, third baseman, has been sold by Albany of the Eastern League, to New Haven of the same loop. Prior to playing with Albany he was with Hartford.

The Jersey City team of the International League will train in Petersburg, Va. It is expected that a squad of 24 players will report there March 12.

Oscar Stanage, the vteeran catcher, is back with the Detroit Tigers, this time as coach of pitchers. Stanage, who played with the Tigers for many years, was the first string catcher of the Toronto International League team last season, so it is to be presumed that Ty Cobb can also depend on him to fill in behind the plate if necessity demands. Stanage's acquisition gives the Tigers three coaches, George McBride and Otto Williams being the others.

Ty Cobb hasn't much regard for Atlanta policemen after what happened to him in the Georgia metropolis last week. It seems that an error was made in punching his ticket when he and George McBride had lunch in a beanery there. He told the young lady cashier in a nice way about it. Said young lady apparently had a grouch on or wanted to see a cop exercise himself, so she beckoned to the guardian of the law, who was inhaling some hash in the place. Without investigating, Mr. policeman called the wagon and Tyrus took a ride. Ty posted $11 bond money and beat it.

SCARLET FEVER OUTBREAK AT STORRS CAUSES E. C. TOURNEY TO BE CANCELLED

Storrs, March 9.—The Eastern Connecticut Interscholastic Basketball Tournament, which was to be held at Connecticut Agricultural college on March 13 and 14, will not be run off on those dates, according to the announcement of the college authorities at Storrs today, and unless some arrangement can be made to postpone the event to a later date, there is little likelihood of the tournament being held this year. A mild outbreak of scarlet fever among the students at the state college is given as the reason for the postponement of the tournament.

At present there are four students confined to the college infirmary with scarlet fever, and while the situation is well in hand and no occasion for alarm, it is felt at Storrs that it is best not to take any risk that might expose the high school teams to the disease.

Professor R. J. Guyer, head of the department of Physical Education, will communicate today with those schools that had planned to enter teams in the tournament, and it may be that the teams will come to Storrs on March 27 and 28, when all danger of infection will have passed. The athletic council at the state college will meet today to consider what course of action to follow, and it is expected that a definite statement as to whether or not the tournament will be held March 27 and 28 will be made. If the high school teams in question desire to keep in training two weeks longer for the purpose of entering the meet, it will be possible to hold it.

Schools that had already signified their intentions of entering the tournament include Tourtelotte, Woodstock, Danielson, Plainfield, Willimantic, Bulkeley, Chapman Tech, Stafford, Glastonbury, East Hartford and several others.

As previously announced, the Class C and D tournament, for high schools throughout the state, will be held March 20 and 21. President C. L. Beach of the college announced today that there would be no reason for cancelling that tournament, unless new cases of scarlet fever should develop within the next few days.

CHILD BORN IN TIMES SQUARE SUBWAY STATION

New York, March 9.—The stork visited New York's busiest subway station at Times Square at the 1 o'clock rush hour period today when Mrs. George Gatz, 21 years old, waiting for a train, suddenly became ill and was assisted to a waiting room.

The mother and child were taken in an ambulance to Bellevue hospital where both were said to be doing well.

Many a poor man has been arrested for forgery simply because he tried to make a name for himself.

MERCER PROPERTY, NEW LONDON, SOLD TO SCHWARTZ CO. AS BUILDING SITE

(Special to The Bulletin)

New London, March 9.—The Schwartz Furniture company today acquired the property at 166-170-172 Bank street owned by Frederick W. Mercer and it is understood that the purchasers will cause a two or three-story brick structure to be erected upon the site as a home for the business of the company. The building is a story and a half wooden structure and is at present tenanted. The property has a frontage of about 100 feet and a depth of approximately 175 feet and adjoins the tracks of the New York, New Haven & Hartford railroad.

Another important Bank street realty transfer will probably take place within a few days, for it became known today that Frederick W. Mercer has secured an option on the three story granite building, Nos. 208-218 Bank street, owned by the F. H. & A. H. Chappell company, and occupied by Eaton & Wilson, hardware merchants.

Albert George Links, about 15, son of Constable Jacob Links, Marlboro, this state, was taken into custody this morning by Traffic Officer William Graham on Main street, following the police being informed that the youth had run away from home. The boy was later returned home by the parent.

Nicholas Haddad was put out of the liquor business with four words from Judge Prince in the police court this morning. The words were $200 on each count. Then the judge tucked on prison sentences of thirty days on each of two counts, but he rendered that sentence void by suspending the execution of it for a year. So Haddad will have to get out of the business that is said to have been a very lucrative one to him as he has been engaged in it, according to information that is in the possession of the prosecutor and on which he has sought to get evidence that would convict during many months. But Haddad was slick enough to cover up his tracks and he was not apprehended. Saturday, information came to the prosecutor that the knock was reliable and he proceeded to get out a search warrant that gave the officers to whom he handed it power to go all over the premises. They found an abundance of alcohol and a mixture of the liquors that passed as whiskey. This was in jugs and jars and was confisticated by the police and held as evidence. The accused did not defend his conduct, but contented himself with a demurrer. This was a virtual confession of guilt and was so regarded by the court. The place has been the rendezvous of scores, chiefly under the pretense that they were having tailoring work done there. It was intimated that the callers might have been intoxicated when they went to the Haddad place and that in reality they had their liquor when they went in there, but the prosecution let it be known that the place was complained against some months ago when he had men here looking up liquor law violators and that Haddad would have been prosecuted them had the evidence sought been actually obtained.

Mike Baldassarra, responsible for the shooting of Mrs. Rosie Verdi at her home in Brewer street a month ago, escaped the penalty when presented in the police court this morning. He was fortunate in that, for he was charged with assault with intent to kill. The shooting was mysterious because the witnesses were not disposed to tell just what happened. They, Mrs. Verdi and her mother, Mrs. Sammatara, did say that a game of cards was in progress to determine who should pay for the ice cream that was to be served, but that was all they pretended to know about the matter. The substance of their testimony was that Mike had hung his coat up on a hook in the kitchen and that when he took it down the weapon was discharged and that the bullet from it struck Mrs. Verdi in the waist, a steel in her corset saving her from perhaps mortal injury. Try as he could, the attorney for the state could not make the women tell a different story, and an interpreter was necessary to get even that. But Prosecutor Cronin does not mean that the shooting affray shall end where it now is. He has charged Mike with carrying a concealed weapon with the necessary permission and on that charge he will be tried next Saturday. He is at liberty on a bond of $500 now.

Benny Ustach, who has been before the court several times for offenses against the peace of the community, was with his wife at a Polish child's christening Saturday night. When they returned Benny had what his wife and others called a "load." They brought a friend home with them and the friend was to be accommodated with lodgings. Now Mrs. Ustach is the mother of three children, one of them a two months' old baby. These were in bed and snuggled up for the night. The mother removed one of the children so that the friend could have a place to sleep, but this did not meet with the approval of Denny in his excited condition as he struck the wife a blow that raised a lump on her right eye and discolored it so that the mark was there today. She told of his abuse but she didn't want him imprisoned as he is the support of the family and she has children 4 and 14 years of age. Because of his lamentable situation and the fact that Benny has been at home but two weeks of late the court kept him from jail and suspended judgment for a year.

John McMahon, a gardener, has got through with his spree and gone to a farm to work. It's about time, for he was in court every day the past five days for intoxication. He paid fines every time and now, charity for him, he has been allowed to go to work. He may be a United States senator yet, he says.

M. W. Keens, a sailor was fined $10 today for intoxication. He had $20 after his drunk and that was about consumed in his fine and the costs. He says that for the first time in 41 years of life he has ever been arrested. "That's the end" said Keens.

James Hayes, Fred Lone and John Doherty, who were on the way from Worcester to Philadelphia, where Gifford Pinchot says no man shall drink, were arrested Sunday night for fighting on a train. Theare was no one who saw them to testify as to what happened, but the men all said they were drunk so they were prosecuted for that offense. They drew fines of $5 each and paid. They are off for the City of Brotherly Love now and they say they mean to stay there and cut out the drink.

William B. Waterman, 53 Glenwood park, treasurer of the Waterman & Wolf Co., whose automobile completely demolished the automobile owned by F. H. Bray, 113 Riverview avenue and injured Bray and his wife late Saturday night on Montauk avenue, was unable to appear in the police court this morning and answer a charge of operating an automobile while under the influence of liquor. Waterman is confined to his home under the care of a physician and the latter declared that it would be some time before Waterman would be able to appear in court.

Bray, who suffered among other injuries, a fractured pelvis, has developed internal injuries. It became known this morning, and during the day the patients suffered hemmorrages. His condition is now considered serious. Mrs. Bray, who suffered lacerations and bruises, is reported as resting comfortably at the Lawrence hospital, where her husband is also under treatment.

The funeral of Mrs. Charlotte Thompson Harran, wife of Thomas W. Harran, was held this afternoon at 2 o'clock at the residence of her mother, Mrs. George Thompson, 48 Blydenburg avenue. The services were conducted by Rev Myron E. Genter, pastor of the Methodist Episcopal church. Relatives of Mrs. Harran acted as bearers. Burial was in Cedar Grove cemetery.

A Studebaker Light Six, owned by Dr. J. Charles Satti, Montauk avenue, was stolen this morning while the physician was calling upon a patient on Main street. The New London, Norwich Westerly and New Haven police and the state police at Groton and Centerbrook were requested to be on the lookout for the stolen machine. Dr. Satti operated his machine to a point on Main street, near Federal street and left it parked by the curb while he made a sick call. When he emerged from the house 15 minutes later his automobile was missing. Investigation by the police disclosed that young men had been seen to enter the car and drive swiftly away.

This evening James Brown, chief of the Westerly police communicated with the New London police, stating that Dr. Satti's automobile had been found abandoned 24 miles east of Westerly and that it was being brought to the latter place. As soon as the machine reaches Westerly Dr. Satti will go there and recover his property.

A large area of brush on land adjoining Coleman street was ignited by youths this noon causing a lively blaze. So serious did the fire become that an alarm was rung in from box 41 corner of Coleman and Bank streets. With the arrival of the firemen the blaze was extinguished with chemicals and before buildings were ignited. A stretch of brush on land between Mohegan avenue and the Thames shipyard became ablaze and caused the Northwest and Thomas Hose companies to be dispatched to the place as a cottage was in danger of falling prey to the flames. A stream of water was necessary to drench the flames.

Youths started a fire on Broad street extension which threatened to reach a large garage. A still alarm resulted in the Northwest company being sent to the fire where it was necessary for the firemen to apply water in order to prevent the flames from reaching the building.

Just before noon the city's dumping grounds, off Shaw street, became ablaze and a still alarm resulted in the Niagara Engine company being sent there. The burning refuse was extinguished with chemicals.

R. C. Dodge, chief petty officer, stationed at the submarine base, was before Judge Cornelius Costello in the Groton town court this morning with manslaughter in causing the death of Miss S. Isabelle MacKenzie, late of 64 Latham street, Groton. The young women's death occurred a few days ago at Lawrence hospital from a fractured skull sustained when she was struck by Dodge's automobile on Thames street, Groton. The case was continued a week, as Coroner J. J. Desmond has not rendered his finding as to whether Dodge was criminally responsible for Miss MacKenzie's death.

Jacob Weisch was presented on a charge of reckless driving and was fined $25 and costs, the latter amounting to $15. Weisch took an appeal to the next term of the court of common pleas.

The residence of Ernest Watrous Benham Road, Groton, was slightly damaged Sunday afternoon by a chimney fire. An alarm was run in summoning the Groton fire department. The blaze was extinguished with chemicals.

Edgar C. Stoddard has been engaged as night clerk at the Hotel Mohican.

Mrs. Isabelle Catanzaro, 25, wife of Louis Castanzaro, died this afternoon at her home, 280 Main street, after an illness of a fortnight with brain trouble. Besides her husband, Mrs. Cantanzaro is survived by two sisters, Mrs. Sarah Porolo, and Mrs. Frank Caracausa and by three brothers, Leonard, Albert and Michael Rolle.

Mrs. Julia Quandt, of Cape Ann court, is a patient at Home Memorial hospital, having become seriously ill a few days ago. Miss Lena Quandt, employed in Boston, has been called to New London because of the seriousness of her mother's condition.

Dr. R. Scott Linsley spent Sunday as the guest of Mr. and Mrs. Paul W. Messenger, of West Hartford.

Mrs. Charles F. Grimpe, is at Miami, Florida, for the balance of the winter.

Three boys from Worcester, Mass., whose ages range from 13 to 15 years, were arrested this noon by Sergeant Nelson Smith and Special Agents Richard Kelly and Edward Montgomery of the New York, New Haven & Hartford railroad, at the request of the Worcester authorities.

The boys are implicated in a burglary of a bicycle accessory store in Worcester and Sunday ran away from that city. The boys got as far as New Haven and then decided to go to New York. They boarded a freight train, which they supposed was headed for New York, but which was bound for Boston. The youths were detected riding between the cars and a telephone message to the railroad police resulted in Sergeant Smith and the railroad officers awaiting the arrival of the train on the outskirts of the city. When the train reached a point near Ocean avenue out the train was stopped and the youths spying the officers, hopped off and ran to the nearby woodland, but they were quickly caught. This evening the fathers of two of the boys came to New London and escorted the trio of youngsters back home.

William L. Peck, 41 Blackhall street, formerly employed as night clerk at the Hotel Mohican, suffered the loss of a portion of his right leg today at which institution he has been under treatment for about a week. Tonight at the institution it was stated that Mr. Peck had rallied well from the operation, but that the outcome could not be forstold.

PLAINFIELD

The basketball fans took good naturedly the defeat of the local A and N club by the Taftville team. Manager Salisbury made no protests simply stating that the stronger team won. The large crowd at the Community House got a big surprise when they saw four Boston Whirlwind stars go through a short work out under the Taftville colors and knew that victory for the home club was impossible. The business men of the town are ready to put on a team that will make Taftville look like near-amateurs.

Townspeople are giving Mr. Sangster, superintendent of the Electric company much credit, as it was through his efforts that good service and up to date power are being furnished to the town of Plainfield. For the past three months he has centered his crew on the Plainfield power lines, putting in new poles and new conducting wire.

The army and navy club held a "post-mortem" at their club rooms Saturday night. Plans for a big reception banquet for the local players was discussed. Refreshments and cigars were passed after the meeting.

There were many calls to local garages the past week for two cars to pull motorists out of the mud.

Tourist cars bearing license plates of four New England states passed through town Saturday.

Lenten services are held every evening at St. John's church; benediction and the Rosary are held each evening.

Alfred Duchman and William Gallager of Fall River, spent the week end at the home of Mr. and Mrs. P. Burke.

Mr. and Mrs. Delardo Heaneault motored to Hartford, where they spent the week end with relatives.

Mrs. William Vike, who has been seriously ill at Backus hospital, Norwich, is reported to be on the road to recovery.

Mr. and Mrs. James O'Brien spent the week end with relatives in Fall River.

Mr. and Mrs. John Burns of Springfield spent the week end with Plainfield friends.

A new sign that amuses the men at the local barber shops reads "no women's work done on Saturday." Plainfield is one place where men come first—at the barber shops!

Clinton Peterson, president of the sophomore class at the local high school, presented a check of one hundred and fifty dollars to superintendent of schools John L. Chapman, for the use of the Athletic Association of the school.

Word has been received that Mr. and Mrs. Herman Chapman plan to leave for home on March 25th from Deland. They made the famous Coral Gables trip from Deland to Miami, Florida. They plan to visit Charles Richardson, in Orlando during the coming week as well as acquaintances from their home town who reside there.

Fearing a shortage of seed corn for plantings this year's crop, the department of agriculture has taken steps to provide farmers an adequate supply and has assured President Coolidge that there is no likelihood of a repetition of conditions which existed in the spring of 1918.

HOPKINTON

The March session of the town council and probate court was held Monday afternoon, March 2, in the town hall with all the members present. Bills to the amount of $636.85 were ordered paid. The sum of $500 was allotted to each of the four highway surveyors for repairs on the highways.

William F. McDonald Jr., and Elmer C. Smith were recommended as enumerators of the R. I. state census.

Wanton E. Edwards was appointed dog officer.

In the probate court Albert E. Bailey, administrator of the estate of the late Augustus M. Bailey, presented his first and final account and it was allowed and ordered recorded.

The following petitions were referred to the April meeting with order of notice, of Kenneth M. Clarke, a minor over 14 years of age, for the appointment of Maxson Kenyon as guardian of his person and estate, and of Maxson Kenyon for his own appointment as guardian of the persons and estates of Ariana May Clarke and Clarence Clarke, minors under the age of 14 years.

The following petitions were continued to the April session, of Bessie C. Lowe, administratrix of the estate of David C. Lowe, for permission to sell real estate belonging to said estate of Clarence E. Roche, attorney, for release of bond on estate of James Hepworth and of Herbert W. Rathbun, attorney for Laura A. Hepworth, removal of Lawrence H. Hepworth, as administrator of the estate of James Hepworth.

On petition of Nancy Partelo, Adelbert R. Clarke was appointed guardian of the person and estate of Mary J. Wright of full age. Opponents of this appointment filed notice of appeal.

In the death of Capt. Edward Slave, 95, last Sunday, this town lost its oldest resident. Born in England, he went to sea at the age of 12 and continued seafaring life for 45 years. For several years he was captain of a Newport coasting vessel and for two years captain of the Brenton's Reef lightship. The funeral was held at the home of his daughter, Mrs. H. C. Blacklock, in Hope Valley, where he died, Tuesday afternoon with burial in Newport.

A cottage prayer meeting was held at the home of Clifford E. Perrin last week Wednesday evening.

A surprise party was given in grange hall last Wednesday evening for William Bliven with about fifty attending. Two illuminated birthday cakes were presented him and music and refreshments were furnished.

ANOTHER BABY SAVED FROM PNEUMONIA BY Allen's Lung Healer

That our claim that Allen's Lung Healer will prevent pneumonia is based on facts the following letter from Mrs. Rogers will prove:

"We recently had occasion to use Allen's Lung Healer for our year-old baby with very gratifying results. For a week she had been suffering from a severe cold in the head and chest. Her nose and eyes were constantly running; her lungs were congested, her cough was deep, hard and croupy, and we feared she would develop pneumonia. The Lung Healer seemed to work like magic. She began to improve with the first few doses and in less than a week she was entirely cured, with all signs of a cough or cold entirely dispelled."

MRS. J. C. ROGERS,
22 Grove Street, W. Lynn, Mass.

There are positively no narcotic drugs or anything else in Allen's Lung Healer to harm the smallest infant. Less than 1 per cent. alcohol.

60 cents and $1.00 a bottle.

For that tickle in your throat that keeps you coughing, we recommend ALLEN'S BRONCHO THROAT TABS. (Allen's Lung Healer in Tabule Form) Price 25c.

You just KNOW it's well

Your baby, too, can laugh and coo and crow in the best of health.

You just know it's NOT well

There is no reason for your baby to look or feel this way.

CONSTIPATION means SUFFERING

Poor little thing! It can't tell when the milk is wrong, or it has a little cold, or any of the hundred things that might happen to one so young! But Nature can—and does. The baby becomes constipated, it cries, it frets. That is the warning to look out. Danger and disease are lurking in the body. All the poisons are bottled up in that little frame. Relieve this condition at once or you may have a very sick child.

Dr. Caldwell's
SYRUP PEPSIN
The Family Laxative

—relieves constipation and brings the little one back to health. It restores the bowels to normal activity and so gently that baby joyously laughs. It's Nature's relief for constipation—Egyptian senna, pepsin and pleasing aromatics in a pleasant tasting liquid combination prescribed by Dr. Caldwell for years in his extensive practice and used throughout the country for over 30 years.

Gentle As Nature—Pleasingly Sweet

Not a baby the only one who needs it. As effective for old as for young. Your bowels should act at least twice daily. Do they? If not, assist Nature as millions are doing annually. Buy a bottle of Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin now and use as directed. More than 10,000,000 bottles sold annually.

It is sold everywhere medicine is sold—and guaranteed. Try it at our risk. Your druggist will return your money if it fails to do as promised.

FINANCIAL AND COMMERCIAL

MARKET WAS UNEASY.

New York, March 9.—Speculative uneasiness over the money situation, growing out of the unusually high total of brokers' loans, the large deficit in reserve shown in last Saturday's clearing house statement, and the increased demand for funds incidental to the approach of tax day and the heavy governmental financing, was generally held responsible for the heavy selling of stocks in today's market. Call money opened unchanged at 3 1-2 per cent, but soon jumped to 4@4 1-2 and 5, closing at the top.

Extreme declines of 1 to 5 points took place in the standard industrials while a number of specialties sold 6 to 12 points below last week's closing levels. The decline was an orderly one, however, with indications of good support for most of the high grade railroad and industrial issues. Independent strength was shown by a dozen or more issues, most of which are believed to be under pool control. American Safety Razor soared nearly five points to a record high at 57 1-2, and Laclede Gas jumped nearly six points to a new top at 160 3-4, and then slipped back to 153 3-4.

Most of the so-called pivotal industrials lost ground. United States Steel common closed 1 1-8 lower at 123 7-8, after having sold at 125 1-4. American Can fluctuated between 171 5-8 and 182 1-2, closing at 180 3-4, for a net loss of one point. Baldwin opened at 140 1-8, yielded to 137 5-8, and then rallied to 139 1-8, off 1 5-8 on the day. Studebaker closed fractionally higher at 44 3-8.

Wilson and company preferred, which scored a sensational 21-point advance to 60 last Saturday, and then forfeited most of its gain, today broke to 30 1-2 and then rallied to 36, where it was off 7 1-2 points on the day. Atlantic Gulf and West Indies were heavily sold on publication of charges that the company had been granted excessive tax rebates, being quoted as low as 29 3-4, and then rallying to 32 5-8, off 2 3-4 on the day. Miami Copper broke over 3 points to 11 1-2, the lowest price in 15 years, on the reported depletion of its ore reserves. United States Distributing preferred broke ten points on one sale.

Weakness also was shown by Associated Dry Goods, Atlantic Coast Line, Commercial Solvents B, Federal Mining and Smelting preferred, International Paper preferred, Mathieson Alkali, National Lead, Twin City Rapid Transit, United Cigar, and United States Cast Iron Pipe, all of which showed net losses of 2 1-2 to 5 1-2 points.

National Enamelling responded to reports of a settlement of the stockholders' controversy for control of the company by advancing 3 1-2 points to 35, slipping back later to 31 on profit taking. Maxwell Motors A and B attained new peak prices for the year at 89 1-2 and 59 1-4, respectively. Butte and Superior responded to the resumption of dividends by advancing one point to 20 1-2. Good buying also was noted in American Hide and Leather preferred, Manhattan Electrical Supply and Republic Steel.

A large volume of stock financing is expected within the next few weeks. Public offering is expected shortly of 240,000 shares of common stock of the fair, Chicago's well known department store.

Time money rates held firm with 8 per cent. quoted for the 60 and 90 day maturities and 4 1-4 for the longer dates. Commercial Paper ranged from 3 3-4 to 4 1-4.

The feature of the foreign exchange market was a sharp break of 7 1-2 points in French francs which were quoted around 5.11 1-2 cents. Demand sterling held steady just under $4.76 1-2 and the other European rates showed narrow and irregular changes.

A Feeling of Security

You naturally feel secure when you know that the medicine you are about to take is absolutely pure and contains no harmful or habit producing drugs.

Such a medicine is Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, kidney, liver and bladder medicine.

It is scientifically compounded from vegetable herbs.

It is not recommended for everything.

A sworn statement of purity is with every bottle of Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root.

If you need a medicine, you should have the best. On sale at all drug stores in bottles of two sizes, medium and large.

However, if you wish first to try this great preparation send ten cents to Dr. Kilmer & Co., Binghamton, N. Y., for a sample bottle. When writing be sure and mention this paper.

BOND MARKET.

New York, March 9.—Reflecting the firmer tendency in money rates, bond prices turned reactionary today. Selling pressure was directed against a variety of foreign, railroad, public utilities and industrial liens, forcing recessions of 1 to 3 points throughout the list.

Although the time money market showed only a moderate stiffening, the sharp jump in call rates from 3 1-2 to 5 per cent. following the calling of between $30,000,000 and $40,000,000 in bank loans, aroused uneasiness and restricted the volume of trading. Total sales aggregated about $10,000,000, the smallest of any full five hour session this year.

Liquidation of railroad issues was not particularly heavy, but the absence of buying support brought declines of 1 to 2 points in many semi-speculative descriptions. Chicago and Alton 3 1-2s were weak and others which lost ground included New York, Westchester and Boston 4 1-2s, Seaboard Adjustment 6s and "Katy" Adjustment 5s. International Great Northern Adjustment 6s, after an early slump, responded to the declaration of interest at the rate of 4 per cent payable April 1.

Reports that a tentative reorganization plan for Wilson and company, Chicago packers, involved a scaling down of stock and bond issues caused breaks of 1 to 3 points from last Saturday's high levels. Pan-American, Skelly and Sinclair Oil liens fell back a point or more. Standard Gas 5 1-2s dropped 2 3-4 points and Pierce Arrow 8s 3 points.

A decline in French francs contributed to the heaviness of French obligations. Some of the South American issues also lost ground. A $15,000,000 Toho Electric Power bond issue was quickly sold.

CHICAGO GRAIN MARKET.

Chicago, March 9.—Sharp advances in the price of wheat resulted from big export buying and from correct belief that government figures on farm stocks of wheat would prove to be lower than the average of private estimates. The wheat market closed nervous, 1-2 to 3 5-8c net higher with May $1.33 3-4 to 1.33 7-8 and July $1.63 to 1.63 1-4, with corn varying from 1-4 decline to 1-2c gain; oats 3-4 to 1 1-4c off, and provisions showing 12 to 50c gain.

An unexpected upturn in Liverpool quotations helped to bring about active general buying as soon as the wheat market here opened. The fact that new export business was estimated as much as 3,000,000 bushels, however, was the principal early source of strength, and was sufficient to keep values pointing upward most of the day, despite numerous brief setbacks and notwithstanding that a decrease in the United States visible supply total turned out to be less than many traders had looked for.

Corn and oats were weak owing to liberal receipts of corn here, 631 carloads. Farm reserve figures were considered bullish on corn and bearish on oats.

Investment buying led to a late upturn in provisions.

CURB MARKET.

New York, March 9.—Reactionary tendencies prevailed in today's curb market in sympathy with the general decline on the "big board" but independent points of strength developed in nearly all groups.

Oils turned heavy on the announcement that the Union Oil company had brought in a big well in Colorado, but with the exception of Cities Service common, Standard Oil of Indiana and Penn Mex fuel, which declined a point or so, the net recessions were held to small fractions.

The industrial group presented several points of strength. Durant Motors was bid up 2 5-8 to 19 3-8. Car Lighting and Power its highest price in several years in further reflection of the recent sharp increase in unfilled orders and reports of heavy oversubscriptions for another electrical refrigeration issue to be brought out later in the week. Lehigh Valley Coal Certificates and Nickel Plate common each sagged about a point. Remington Noiseless Typewriter was admitted to trading, opening at 43 and then advancing to 45 1-2.

Radios displayed a firmer tone on reports that powerful banking support had been supplied to some of the recently weak issues. Practically all the active shares closed fractionally higher. Liberty Chain Stores —one of the few stocks unaffected by the recent break—duplicated its year's high record.

Public utilities were heavy. Electric Bond & Share and Lehigh Power Securities falling back 1 1-2 and one point respectively.

STATE'S HISTORIC SPOTS TO BE MARKED BY D. A. R.

A campaign of education on the historic spots of each state is to be started by the Daughters of the American Revolution as one of the best methods of teaching history. Chambers of Commerce and State Automobile Associations are to be urged to assist, by directing the attention of the traveling public to these sites and to so mark them on road maps that motorists may reach them with the least difficulty.

"Properly marked and kept up," Mrs. L. B. Gillentine, National Chairman of the D. A. R. Committee on Preservation of Historic Sites, said in announcing the movement, "the historical spots become an asset to any state." A number of states have already realized their value, Oregon is proud of her history and has made her historical sites accessible to all. California long ago recognized the value of her old Spanish missions. Tennessee has for years made object lessons of her historic spots and Colorado has recently awakened to her historic landmarks."

Mrs. Gillentine declared that while the D. A. R. had been for many years marking historic spots made sacred by the war for American Independence the society is now extending the scope of its work to cover all points identified with American history.

"Many who during the summer months tour New England," said Mrs. Gillentine, "visiting sites of battlefields and historic incidents of the revolution would be encouraged to go south later in the season through Valley Forge, Wakefield, Mount Vernon, Yorktown and through the Carolinas and Georgia. It is the hope of the Society of the Daughters of the American Revolution to have the route marked west through the trail made by Washington in the French and Indian war, linking up the historic sites in Ohio and Indiana, thence over the path of Lewis and Clark, the Covered Wagon and the Santa Fe trail, thus making visible the outlines of our history and the migrations of the American people."

BUILDING OPERATIONS IN NORWICH

The past week has seen no material increase in building operations in Norwich although the weather has been springlike and very favorable to construction work of all kinds. Favorable progress has been made the projects now in hand and several of the smaller jobs of alterations and additions have been started.

At the Norwich State Hospital work is fast nearing completion on the two new buildings that were started early last summer and it is probable that a third building will be started at the institution within a short time.

The Selias block on Franklin Square has been brought along with rapidity and it is expected that the building will be ready for occupancy within a month. The workmen are now engaged on the interior work.

Plans are being figured by local contractors on several projects in the city including a 17-room school building for the St. Joseph's church parish.

Carpenters are at work replacing the roof on the building on West Thames street, owned by W. S. Young which was damaged by fire recently. The interior of the house is also being refinished.

Several garages on the West Side are in the process of erection and will soon be completed. The excavaxtion work for the garage of Walter Abendroth on Union street has been started.

New London

Bids have been received for a store building for the Post & Lester Co., 332 Bank street, on a site adjoining their present store. The proposed building will be 45x120 feet, tapering to a width of 25 feet in the rear. It will be of brick construction, one story high, arranged for two stores. There will be a plate glass and copper front, steam or hot water heat and other improvements.

Bids have been received for a garage, 75x105 feet, for Sidney Sulman, 8 Shapley street, on Church street. The plans as revised include changes which will provide a fireproof structure of brick and steel. There will be a flat roof of steel, concrete foundation and floors, brick walls and metal ceilings. The building will be arranged for a showroom, workroom and storage rooms for both new and used cars.

Plans prepared for a dwelling on Montauk avenue for Abraham Gordan, 41 Federal street, are now being figured. As described before in these columns the plans call for a frame house, 29-37 feet, arranged for two seven room tenements. There will be steam heat, tile baths, fireplaces and other conveniences.

Work has been started on a dwelling and garage for Salvatore Cupello on Darrow street. Both buildings will be of frame construction. The house will be 25x52 feet, containing heat and other conveniences. The garage will be 30x18 feet.

The permit has been issued for a dwelling on Smith street for Ricardo Girl. The proposed house will be 20 x36 feet, of frame construction, two stories high. It will be arranged for six rooms. The owner will do the carpentry work.

John J. Dodds, 457 Ocean avenue, is erecting a frame building at 514 Ocean avenue, which will be designed for a carpentry shop and four garages. From private plans the building will be 20x40 feet, two stories high. It will have electric wiring and other improvements. Mr. Dodds is completing alterations to a cottage at Ocean Beach for C. J. Ducy, 40 Washington street. The interior of the house is being remodeled. The owner will award contracts for new electric wiring and painting.

Building Permits

Ricardo Girl, frame dwelling, Smith street, $3,000.

S. Cupello, dwelling and garage, Darrow street, $12,500.

Number of permits issued for the week, 4; estimated cost of building $16,800.

REAL ESTATE SALES AND MORTGAGE LOANS

During the past week in Norwich there were 7 sales of real estate as compared to 10 sales for the corresponding week in 1924. The mortgage loans for the respective weeks were $31,400 and $85,300.

In New London during the past week the sales of real estate numbered 5 as compared to 8 sales for the same week a year ago. The mortgage loans for the corresponding weeks were $29,000 and $8[illegible].

State Building Permits

The first of March shows no indications of activity in the building trade as compared with the like week of the previous years. During the week there were issued 363 permits in the leading centers of the state with $1,167,347 invested in building against 559 permits granted in the same cities in the like week of a year, for buildings over $1,[illegible]00 and in 1923 for the like week 472 permits for buildings costing $1,[illegible]

COLDS THAT DEVELOP INTO PNEUMONIA

Chronic coughs and persistent colds lead to serious lung trouble. You can stop them now with Creomulsion, an emulsified creosote that is pleasant to take. Creomulsion is a new medical discovery with twofold action; it soothes and heals the inflamed membranes and kills the germ.

1,000 MOTOR VEHICLE ACCIDENTS IN FEBRUARY

One thousand motor vehicle accidents have been reported to the state motor vehicle department for the month of February, a decrease of fifty-seven from the record for February 1924, notwithstanding the fact that the normal increase in registrations and the better driving conditions this winter have brought out constantly more traffic than last year. Ten of these accidents of the past month resulted fatally, making a total of twenty-five for the first two months of this year, as against thirty-one for the corresponding period of last year.

The record number of accidents in February occurred on a foggy day and many of them were attributed to the weather. That day was February 9, and seventy-seven accidents are checked against it. The following ten days were also foggy, but the records show a big drop in accidents, thirty-seven being listed for February 10 and twenty-four for February 11. The least number of accidents were reported for February 18, when the weather is recorded to have been "fair."

Only two of the fatalities occurred on extremely foggy days. Two children were killed by coasting into automobiles during the month. One man was killed when an automobile ran into a railroad train in Torrington, one boy on a bicycle lost his life when he got into the path of an oncoming truck, two men were killed by the overturning of their car, a child fell from one car and was fatally injured and in the rest of the cases pedestrians were killed by automobiles. All but one of the drivers involved in fatal accidents in February were men.

TAFTVILLE

Mr. and Mrs. Harold M. Pingree of Goodyear spent the week end with Mr. and Mrs. A. E. Pingree of North Third avenue.

Amedia Pion, who has been a patient at a New London hospital, has returned to his home on Hunters avenue.

Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Laramie of Plainfield have been recent guests of Mr. Laramie's brother-in-law and sister, Mr. and Mrs. Wilfred Smith and family of North B street.

Grand Knight John J. Daley presided at the meeting of Ponemah Council, No. 34, K. of C., which was held in the council rooms on Providence street, Monday evening.

Mrs. Fred Inca, supervisor of the home department of the Taftville Congregational church school, has sent out cards to the members, inviting them to a social to be held in the vestry this (Tuesday) evening.

Mr. and Mrs. Edmund Cote and family have taken a house on Norwich avenue.

Peter Lukoff of South B street spent the week end with Stephen Patrylo of Hallville.

Miss Ora Laporte has resigned her position with the spinning department of the Ponemah company.

Richard Krauss of Norwich avenue has been discharged from the Lawrence Memorial hospital in New London where he has been a patient.

Mr. and Mrs. Gustave Hedler and Curtis Hedler of Terrace avenue spent the week-end in Baltic with Mr. and Mrs. Christopher Hedler.

Mrs. Alfred Durand of South Second avenue is a patient at Dr. Lena's hospital in New London.

The Army & Navy club held its regular meeting Sunday afternoon at the club house on Dion street, with a large attendance. President Arthur J. Roy presided. Reports showed the club in good financial condition. The members are also taking a prominent part in the promotion of clean sports of various kinds. Young Coulon, who has achieved quite a reputation as a fighter in this part of the state, is faithfully training at the club preparing for the bout in which he is scheduled to appear next Sunday at New Bedford, Mass.

Frank Sydic of Terrace avenue has resigned his position with the weaving department of the Ponemah company.

One of the local radio experts said Sunday that there were now one hundred radio receiving sets operating in the village, with the number still growing. A year ago the number of sets could have been counted on the two hands.

MONTVILLE INDEFINITELY POSTPONES BUILDING OAKDALE SCHOOLHOUSE

The proposition to build a new schoolhouse in Oakdale brought special interest to the Montville town meeting on Monday afternoon when there was an attendance of between 60 and 66. Considerable opposition was developed against building the new schoolhouse for that section of the town and a vote to indefinitely postpone was carried 36 to 19, as indicated by the show of hands.

First Selectman Jerome W. House was chairman and Town Clerk Dan D. Home kept the minutes.

The meeting laid a town tax of 16 mills, with one tax more to take care of the town bonds, which was the same as last year.

North Stonington Meeting.

The town meeting of North Stonington, which was held Monday afternoon, with Henry Allen as chairman and Town Clerk Charles C. Gray as clerk, laid a town tax of 26 mills, which is the same rate as last year, but will raise a little more money than last year as the grand list is larger. More money is to be used on roads than formerly. The tax of 25 mills, includes 6 mills for schools. The school board asked 7 mills, but the meeting voted one mill less.

Salem Meeting.

The Salem town meeting, which was held Saturday afternoon, laid a town tax of 21 mills for the town expenses to be paid on the first of May and a tax of 7 mills to pay for the new schoolhouse that was built last summer in the fourth district. This tax is due and payable on Oct. 1.

Charles I. Beebe was chairman of the meeting and Town Clerk Charles I. Malona kept the minutes.

MAYFLOWER DESCENDANTS ADDING NEW MEMBERS

A meeting of the board of assistants of the Society of Mayflower Descendants in the state of Connecticut was held Saturday at the home of Governor Edwin H. Bingham in Hartford.

The following eight new members were elected: Mrs. Albert Dwight Briggs of Scarsdale, N. Y., 11th in descent from Francis Cooke; Mrs. Daniel Edgar Clarke of New Haven, and Dr. Frank Howard of Waterford, 10th from William Brewster; Mrs. William Haine of West Hartford, Mrs. Ralph Denison Keeney of Somersville and Mrs. Arthur Lynn Westphal of Hartford, ninth from William Bradford; Mrs. Louis Eaton Mallory of Springfield, Mass., ninth from Edward Fuller; and Miss Alice Satterlee of Gales Ferry, eighth from John Alden.

Mrs. Eliot S. Cogswell and Miss Katherine Cary Cook were appointed chairmen of the committee in charge of the spring meeting to be held at the Farmington Country club. Miss Addie S. Arnold was appointed as chairman of the nominating committee, and Mrs. Charles S. Armstrong of Bridgeport was appointed a member of the membership committee.

The secretary, Mrs. George B. Kingsbury, reported the following deaths: Mrs. Frank H. Arms of New London on Nov. 17, former Governor Charles E. Gross on Dec. 31; Mrs. H. Bradford Scott of Hartford on Feb. 5, and former Secretary George W. Ellis of Hartford on Feb. 20.

FEWER CATTLE AND HOGS SEND MEAT PRICES UP

Bearing upon the current increase in meat prices is the following statement by the local manager of Armour & Co.:

"Materially reduced receipts of cattle and hogs—particularly hogs—at the principal western markets have caused demand to greatly exceed supply, and as a result there have been sharp advances in the price both of live animals and meat. The average marketing of hogs for the week ending March 7th at 11 principal markets was 30,000 a day less than a year ago and in consequence hogs are 7c a pound higher than they were then. On current corn prices hogs are showing a profit to the farmer. Live cattle have advanced about 2c a pound since the first of the year.

"Due to the consumer's preference and demand for certain choice cuts, these choice cuts have to carry the major proportion of price increases. Pork chops, steaks and loin roasts, and other fancy cuts are costing from 5 to 15c a pound more than was the case several weeks ago, while pork shoulders, pot roasts, round steaks, boiling beef and various other parts and portions that are not in great demand have not shared in the upward movement to any considerable extent."

SCHULER TAKES LEAD IN WEST SIDE PINOCHLE

C. S. Peckham's high score of 7,200 in the West Side pinochle club Monday evening raised him from tenth to eighth place in the standing and Con Schuler who was second last week passed E. Peckham and took first place.

The scores for the evening: C. S. Peckham 7200, A. J. Bailey 6965, C. V. Pendleton 6740, Con Schuler 6635, A. Jordan 6485, J. Jordan 6420, Dr. J. T. Boynton 6115, Dr. N. B. Lewis 6090, J. A. Parker 5955, E. Peckham 5810, H. H. Pettis 5690, E. C. Underwood 5315.

The standing: Schuler 20,175, Pendelton 20,670, J. Jordan 20,315, E. Peckham 20,175, Dr. Boynton 20,095, A. Jordan 19,840, Bailey 19,790, C. Peckham 19,715, Lewis 19,565, Parker 18,375, Pettis 18,180, Underwood 17,955.

Have You Piles?

Then You Have Something to Learn

Thousands who have piles have not do the same for you.

learned that quick and permanent relief can only be accomplished with internal medicine. Neither cutting nor any amount of treatment with ointments and suppositories will remove the cause.

Bad circulation causes piles. There is a complete stagnation of blood in the lower bowel and a weakening of the parts. Dr. J. S. Leonhardt was first to find the remedy. His prescription is HEM-ROID, a tablet medicine, taken internally, that is now sold by druggists generally. Dr. Leonhardt tried it in 1,000 cases with the marvelous record of success in 98 per cent., and then decided it should be sold under a rigid money-back guarantee.

Don't waste any more time with outside applications. Get a package of HEM-ROID from Lee & Osgood today. It has given safe and lasting relief to thousands of people, and should do the same for you—it seldom fails.

KNOWLEDGE OF TRUTH WAS SPEAKER'S THEME

The Richmond Radiator meeting was held Monday at the usual hour and with the usual speaker under the direction of the Y. M. C. A. The subject presented was The Knowledge of the Truth.

The remarks were based on two passages of scripture: "who will have all men * * * come unto a knowledge of the truth." (I Tim. 2.4). "The earth shall be full of the knowledge of the Lord as the waters cover the sea." (Isa. 11.9). The world outside of man known to philosophy as the realm of "objective reality" is packed with the great truths of God. They are so obvious as to need no explanation. On the other hand is man with the capacity to know these truths. This fact is equally obvious. The main question, then, is how can these two forces be brought together: this outlying world packed with demonstrable truth, and man with the capacity to find it out and make use of it.

It is not easy to learn how long man has lived on this planet, but doubtless much longer than we were taught in early life. But it is in comparative recent years that most of these truths of God have been discovered in the fields of nature. To comprehend these truths which God has posited in this objective world, man must 1. approach them with the practical eye. It is the trained mind that gets there. Newton did not blunder into his discovery of the law of gravitation. Here discovery is the reward for intelligent inquiry. 2. discoverable truth must be plausible. Our reason is the arbiter which distinguishes truth from error. But plausibility is not enough to establish the certainty, hence.

3. It must be persuasive, i. e. convincing. It must appeal to us as something positive. It must use the language of St. Paul. "I am persuaded that neither life nor death, etc." Such truth is pervasive, takes possession of all our faculties, seeing, hearing, feeling, knowing 4, it is persistent, it will not let us go till it has accomplished its purposes, and 5, it is prevailing in that it conquers all obstacles.

As the speaker went along these points were emphasized with many illustrations.

NORWICH BOYS ATTEND CONFERENCE IN HARTFORD

The employed boys brotherhood of the Norwich Y. M. C. A. attended the employed boys conference held at Hartford last Saturday afternoon and evening. The conference was held at the Hartford association building with delegates attending from the clubs in Hartford, New Britain, Meriden, Tolland County, and Norwich.

Elmer Thienes, secretary of Hartford County Y. M. C. A., was in charge of the opening exercises. Following the opening of the conference the presiding officer, the president of the Hartford brotherhood, introduced the leader of the discussion period, C. H. Robinson of New York City. Mr. Robinson is the employed boys secretary of the national council of the Y. M. C. A. This hour proved to be one of help and interest to everyone present. Following this period, two hours were devoted to recreation, consisting of basketball, bowling, billiards, swimming, etc.

At six o'clock a splendid supper was served in the dining hall. Mr. Robinson was the speaker of the evening, and he gave a splendid inspiring address that will long be remembered by all who were present.

Cars to take the boys to Hartford and return were furnished by the A. C. Swan Co., Harry B. Ford, George H. Loring and W. N. Block.

The regular meeting of the employed boys brotherhood will be held at the Y. M. C. A. Tuesday night at 6.15. A. L. Peale will give a very interesting talk at teis meeting on local Indian History.

NORWICH HERMANN SONS WIN AT NEW LONDON

The Norwich Sons of Hermann pinochle team journeyed to New London Sunday afternoon and played the last game of a four-game tournament with the Sons of Hermann of that city. HISTORIC GEER LOOM COMES FROM POQUETANUCK

Charter House, New London, in its weaving department has the interesting and historic old Geer loom. This loom was presented to Charter House as a memorial to the Geer family by Mrs. Theophilus Brown and her two daughters, Mrs. Sanford Meech of Groton, and Mrs. Paul Hoffman. The loom comes from the famous old Geer house at Poquetanuck, built in 1735 by David and Mary Stanton Geer. Their sons, Isaac Wheeler Geer, married Experience Avery. Mary Louisa Geer, daughter of Isaac and Experience Geer, became the bride of Theophilus Brown. A small tablet of some enduring material bearing a suitable inscription will be affixed to the loom.

THEATRE ADMISSION TAXES DROP OFF IN SIX MONTHS

Internal revenue receipts collected in the Connecticut district from the tax on admission to theatres or other places of amusement, during the six month period from the first of August to the end of last January, were more than $426,000 less than during the corresponding six months the preceding year. The figures are from the internal revenue bureau of the treasury department.

Connecticut folks were taxed to the extent of $153,822.75 for their amusements during the six month period from August 1, 1924 to January 31, 1925, whereas, during the other six month period in review such collections amounted to $579,830.20, the decrease during the two periods being $426,007.45.

WIDENING BANK ST. IS PLAN IN NEW LONDON

(Special to the Bulletin)

New London, March 9—The city council this evening tackled the proposition to widen Bank street to the extent that traffic can be carried on uncongested and that building lines may be established there. The Chamber of Commerce brought the matter up in a petition to relieve congestion and recommended the adoption of a plan that contemplates the widening of the street by cutting back the sidewalks in the portion where the sidewalks are widest and cutting back the walks to a less extent where the walks are narrower. The establishment of building lines is also contemplated.

The report of the Chamber of Commerce represents that the merchants of Bank street are opposed to the making of Bank street a one way street, and some 150 merchants on that street in a petition to the council protested against any such arrangement. How it will end no one can tell, but it is certain that the lawyers will have a busy time of it.

The council also tackled the question of zoning the city, but the mayor advised that the problem was a difficult one and that the services of an expert would be necessary and a large appropriation would also of necessity have to be provided to go on with that work. While Councilor Whiton advised that in New Jersey, the first state to have a zoning law that difficulties are being encountered even now. Go slow was the advice of the steadier heads of the council. The zoning matter came up when application for a commercial business building was sought at 20 Williams street and it was denied for the present, as residents in that section had protested to members of the council during the day or as soon as they heard that such a plan was in contemplation. The privilege of establishing a gasoline tank at the same number on Williams street was also denied temporarily.

The city has reached an agreement with Miss Lina Beckwith as to her property on Broad street and Colman street extension. Miss Beckwith has long contended that the city took her property and she seems to have been right in her contention for she has now made an agreement with the city by which she shall be paid $400 and by which all alterations in her property to replace it in the condition in which it was when the city is claimed to have taken what did not belong to it.

There were fourteen applications for building permits before the council this evening and some of them contemplate structures that will require a considerable outlay on the part of the projectors. The city voted to buy auto tires to the extent of $440 and to procure oil and street repair material of that nature that will last during the year.

The city council was notified of a suit brought against it for entering forcibly the premises on Bank street known as the Fifth Avenue Candy Kitchen while the premises were under attachment. The city sought through the tax collector to levy that it might recover back taxes, and found that the premises and stock were already under attachment. The claim of the plaintiffs in the suit is that the premises were already in the possession of the court and that the city had no right to trespass and damage goods that were there. Damage of $1,500 are sought. Judge Waller has issued a temporary injunction to restrain the city from proceeding or from taking possession of the premises and stock. The case will be brought to a hearing on the injunction without delay.

CENTRAL VILLAGE MAN SHOT AT ROADHOUSE

James Farrell, 21, of Central Village, Conn., shot during a brawl at 4 o'clock Saturday morning at the Ledge Croft, a roadhouse on the Plainfield pike near the village of Mount Vernon in Foster, R. I., reported not shooting to a constable he met while driving in the direction of his home with the companions with whom he visited the resort, and was told to "get out of town."

The fact that the constable, whose name they did not learn, had ignored their complaint was brought out in the Eighth District Court at Cranston. Saturday morning when Christy Sessa, 29, alleged proprietor of the resort was arraigned on charges of violent assault and of maintaining a common nuisance.

Sessa pleaded not guilty to each charge. He was held in $5,000 surety on a charge of violent assault and in $1,000 bail on the nuisance charge.

Ruth Dalton, 29, of Cranston, and June Plantas, 31, of Chicopee, Mass., arrested at the resort, were arraigned on charges of revelling. Pleading not guilty, they were held in $300 bail for trial March 18, the date fixed for the trial of the other cases.

Farrell was one of a party of five young men who stopped at the Ledge Croft shortly after 3.30 o'clock Saturday morning, it was brought out in court. When leaving the place they were accused by Sessa of having stolen a motormeter from another car in the garage. Sessa is alleged to have struck George Young of Moosup, Conn., with his fist and is also said to have wielded a club, hitting Benjamin Boulet of Moosup, rendering him unconscious. Sessa is alleged to have drawn a revolver and to have fired five shots as the men were climbing into Goulet's machine and driving away.

Some distance away from the place Farrell told his friends that he had been shot. On the way to Connecticut they met a constable, whose name they did not learn, and told him about their escapade. The constable ignored their complaint and told them to get out of town, they said.

When they reached Central Village Farrell was taken to the office of Dr. W. D. McCormick, who found a bullet had entered the young man's right leg near the hip, and was located midway down the calf. After Dr. Campbell heard details, he called Chief Olney Knight of Foster, and as a result of the latter's investigation Sessa was taken into custody. Police were unable to locate the revolver, but one other man of the party made his escape in the meantime, and it is believed took the gun with him.

In court when the bail was fixed, Attorney Joseph Zenzialle protested the high bail, saying that the man was not seriously hurt. Chief Knight said the physician would be unable to determine for several days whether the injury would be serious and requested that high bail be maintained. Bail was furnished for the two girls by Vincenzo Fazzino, 215 Atwell's avenue Providence.

CHAPPELL AND AVERY TO BE RENOMINATED

Hartford, March 9. — Governor Trumbull will send the names of Frank V. Chappell, of New London, Christopher L. Avery, of Groton, and Myron R. Dunham, of New Haven to the state senate tomorrow as nominations for commissioners of rivers, harbors and bridges. The first two will be reappointments and Mr. Dunham will succeed the late Thomas I. Kinney, of New Haven.

CHASED AUTO DRIVER WHO BUMPED HIS CAR

After Tony Gall of Versailles, driving an automobile, had run into the car of Frank Treckman of Taftville, near Taftville station, he was chased to the city by Treckman, who picked Sergeant Mathew Delaney on the way and Gall was arrested on the charge of evading responsibility.

Both machines had fenders damaged in the collision.

Notes for Women

A new antiseptic has been discovered that is four times as powerful as Carbolic Acid.

It is much more powerful than bichloride of mercury.

Yet it is so harmless that one can drink it and so mild in its action that it is a healthful wash for the most delicate membrane.

Chemists say it will take the place of harsh poisonous germ killers. By getting a 60 cent bottle of Kojene at Lee & Osgood Co. or any good druggist women can learn much of personal hygiene that will be of benefit to them.

POETRY

Robin Singing in the Rain

Dear the Bluebird's dewy warble, passing dear the evening strain
Of the Hermit and the Veery; but within my heart hath lain

Bobolink's ecstatic music plucks the very thorn of pain;

I will tune my pipe to yours, dear, slender though its one refrain;

—Ella Gilbert Ives

Flow Gently, Sweet Afton

Flow gently, sweet Afton, among thy green braes;
Flow gently, I'll sing thee a song in thy praise;
My Mary's asleep by thy murmuring stream,

Thou stock-dove whose echo resounding through the glen,
Thou green-crested lapwing, thy screaming forbear;
I charge you disturb not my slumbering fair.

How lofty, sweet Afton, thy neighboring hills,
Far marked with the courses of clear winding rills;
There daily I wander as noon rises high,
My flocks and my Mary's sweet cot in my eye.

How pleasant thy banks and green valleys below,
There oft as mild evening weeps over the lea
The sweet-scented birk shades my Mary and me.

Thy crystal stream, Afton, how lovely it glides,
And winds by the cot where my Mary resides;
How wanton thy waters her snowy feet lave,
As, gathering sweet flowerets, she stems thy clear wave.

Flow gently, sweet Afton, among thy green braes;
Flow gently, sweet river, the theme of my lays;
My Mary's asleep by thy murmuring stream.

—Robert Burns

WITH DAWES TARDY SENATE REJECTS NOMINATION OF WARREN BY TIE VOTE

Vice President Was Sent For But Failed to Reach the Capitol in Time to Dissolve 40-40 Vote That Would Have Confirmed Charles B. Warren as Attorney General—Senator Overman, the Only Democrat to Vote For Confirmation, Switched His Vote as Dawes Entered the Senate Chamber—Irrevocable Action Was Later Taken When the Issue Was Tabled by 41 to 39 Vote.

Washington, March 10.—Charles Beecher Warren, of Michigan, failed to become attorney general of the United States by a single vote today in the senate.

His nomination was rejected, 40 to 40, Vice President Dawes failing to reach the capitol from his hotel in time to cast the deciding vote.

Administration leaders sought to delay announcement of the result in the hope that the vice president who would arrive in time to break the tie. He was rushing to the senate in a taxicab.

The victory in their grasp, democratic opponents of the nomination vigorously demanded that the roll call be closed with the announcement of the result, but even then republican leaders restorted to further strategy in an effort to save the nomination from defeat.

Senator Reed, of Pennsylvania, announced that he would change his vote from yea to nay so that he might present a motion to reconsider the question. That changed the final result technically to 39 for and 41 against confirmation.

As soon as Senator Reed had made his motion, opponents of confirmation countered with a motion to lay it on the table and demand a roll call. That vote, too, resulted in a tie, 40 to 40, and as the vice president, who could have cast the deciding ballot, entered the chamber, Senator Overman, of North Carolina, the only democrat to vote for confirmation, switched his vote.

That decided the issue, making the vote 41 to 39 to lay the Reed motion on the table, a final irrevocable action unless senate rules. The only way the nomination could again come before the senate would be for President Coolidge to re-submit it.

There was no indication tonight that the president's course might be, the White House having declined to comment on the matter. If he decides not to resubmit the nomination to the senate at this time or make a recess one he may either leave Solicitor General Buck in charge of the justice department until the next session of congress or make a recess appointment to fill the cabinet vacancy, during that period.

Excepting for Senator Reed, of Pennsylvania, whose vote was cast for strategic reasons, nine republicans, the one farmer-labor senator, Shipstead, and all of the democrats present except Senator Overman, voted against confirmation.

The vote on the nomination came with almost startling suddenness after 9 hours of debate in which Mr. Warren had been alternately defended and assailed because of his former connections with sugar interests.

More speeches were expected, and after presiding most of the day, Vice President Dawes retired to his hotel to make away for a rest, having received assurances from friends on both sides that there would be a vote before adjournment.

Even when the roll call started, administration leaders apparently were confident that they would have a vote or two, at least, to spare, and made no move to summon Mr. Dawes, concerning themselves merely with rounding up senators from the cloak and offices.

When the crowded galleries looked for such an air of expectancy, and themselves refrained from usual hubub, the roll call proceeded. The vote almost equally divided as the result standing at the call of [illegible] name, 40 to 39 in favor of confirmation.

Party marshals on both sides had lined up all their forces but opponents had in reserve a single senator, Bayard of Georgia, who declined to vote when his name was called because of a pair with Senator Phipps, republican, Colorado. A transfer was made for him, and his vote brought the deadlock.

While leaders on both sides were sending pages scurrying in search of one or two absentees and were eagerly watching the entrance doors. A drama of [illegible] was being enacted behind the scenes.

When it became apparents early in the roll call that the result would be extremely close, Vice President Dawes was summoned on the telephone. He had been told not to wait for his official car but to get a taxicab and make all speed.

The secretary, meanwhile, hurried to the main floor entrance, stopped the senate before it reached the porte-cochere and hurried the vice president to the elevator which had been waiting [illegible] from Senator Cameron, republican, Arizona, who had stationed himself on the front portico.

With the casting of Senator George's [illegible] vote on the first ballot—and on the nomination was rejected under the rules—there were hasty conferences of leaders on the republican side and the tally clerks paused in their work.

Senator Jones of Washington, the republican whip, arose slowly to announce that Senators Warren of Wyoming; Edge, of New Jersey, Greene, of Vermont; Phipps, of Colorado, and Ernst, of Wisconsin, all republicans, were absent.

SIX PRECEDENTS FOR WARREN REJECTION

Washington, March 10—Charles B. Warren is the sixth nominee for a cabinet portfolio to be rejected by the senate.

Official records show that the first unfavorable action was taken during the administration of President Andrew Jackson and the last in the administration of President Andrew Johnson.

Under Jackson—Roger B. Taney, of Maryland, to be secretary of the treasury, rejected, 23 to 18, June 24, 1834.

Under John Tyler—James M. Porte, of Pennsylvania, to be secretary of war, rejected, 28 to 3, January 30, 1844; David Heneshaw, of Massachusetts, to be secretary of the navy, rejected 24 to 8, January 15, 1844; Gabel Cushing of Massachusetts, to be secretary of treasury, rejected, 27 to 19, March 3, 1843.

Under Johnson—Henry Stanberry, of Ohio, to be attorney general, rejected 29 to 11, January 3, 1868.

HOW S. N. E. T. LINEMAN TURNED IN FIRE ALARM

Bridgeport, March 10.—A lineman of the Southern New England Telephone company, discovering a fire at the farmhouse of Patsy Puglio, on Chestnut Hill road, today, turned in an alarm by climbing a pole nearby and "tapping in" with his portable testing apparatus on one of the wires. He succeeded in completing his call to fire headquarters, but the distance which the apparatus had to travel was such that the house was a total loss before they arrived. The house was valued at $3,500. It is believed that an overheated stove in the kitchen started the fire.

SUMMARY OF YESTERDAY'S EVENTS IN WASHINGTON

The nomination of Charles B. Warren to be attorney general was rejected by the senate which then refused to reconsider its action.

Legislation providing heavier penalties for liquor law violators was recommended by a house sub-committee on alcoholic liquors.

White hose support was voiced for the action of the senate republicans in deposing insurgents from important committee places.

KURDISH REBELS REPULSED AFTER HARD FIGHTING

Constantinople, March 10 (By the A. P.)—The Kurdish rebels under Sheik Said made a determined effort today to capture Diarbekr, in Kuridstan, but were repulsed after 12 hours hard fighting.

During the course of the assault by the main rebel force on the northern part of the town, a party of the belegerers succeeded in penetrating into the southern quarter, allegedly with the connivance of some of the inhabitants.

AVIATOR DROWNED WHEN PLANE FELL INTO RIVER

Newport News, Va., March 10.—Captain J. C. McAvoy of Mountain Top, Pa., reserve officer and student aviator was drowned, and Lieutenant Colonel William E. Schauffler, of New Jersey, narrowly escaped death today when the airplane in which they were flying plunged into the Potomac river near Millenbeck, Va. Failure of the plane's motors when the craft was only a short distance above the water was said by Colonel Schauffler to have been the cause of the accident.

ANNIVERSARY OF THE BIG BLIZZARD THURSDAY

New Haven, March 10.—Commenting on the fact that Thursday will be the anniversary of the big blizzard of March, 1888, the heaviest snow storm which ever visited New England, Director Tarr of the weather bureau said tonight that conditions favor fair weather with mild temperature following increasing cloudiness and probably local showers tomorrow.

ARMY OFFICER INJURED WHILE TESTING A SHELL

Washington, March 10.—Lieutenant Commander Oliver W. Bagby, of Missouri, attached to the naval proving ground, Dahlgren, Va., was seriously injured today while testing a shell at the proving ground.

The navy department was informed that a piece of the exploding shell ricocheted out of the bomb proof compartment in which the test burst was fired, into that in which the officer was standing, striking him in the chest.

HEAVIEST SNOWFALL OF WINTER IN MANITOBA

Winnipeg, Man., March 10.—Winnipeg and other cities in Mantoba, Saskatchewan and Alberta, were completely snowbound today following one of the heaviest storms that has swept the prairie provinces in many years. Snow has been falling here continuously for 20 hours.

Street car service was paralyzed today and railway transportation was seriously affected by the storm.

GUARDING AGAINST A RELAPSE OF MUSSOLINI

Rome, March 10—Dr. Bastianelli, physician of Premier Mussolini, today urged the premier to further postpone his return to the Chamber of Deputies in order to avoid any chance of a relapse, after his recent attack of influenza. At his home today, the premier received numerous persons, including a representative of the queen mother, who called on him to present her congratulations on his recovery.

King George Progressing.

London, March 10.—Sir Milsom Rees, one of the king's physicians, stated this evening his majesty was progressing splendidly. The court physicians hope the improvement in the weather will enable the royal patient to get out a little before he starts on his trip to the Mediterranean.

Votes Against Summer Time.

The Hague, March 10.—The lower chamber today passed a bill abolishing summer time by a vote of 52 to 24. The minister of the interior declared that the advantages of summer time to town dwellers were insignificant compared to the disadvantages to the farmers.

DISCOVERED A TOMB 17,000 YEARS OLDER THAN "TUTS"

Boston, March 10—A cable received today by Dr. George A. Reisner, professor of egyptology at Harvard and director of the Harvard University—Boston museum of fine arts Egyptian expedition, definitely established the tomb just discovered by the expedition near the Giza pyramids, as being some 17,000 years older than the tomb of Tut-Ankh-Amen and of a period of which little has been discovered heretofore.

The cable was from Alan Rowe, chief assistant of the expedition, an Australian who has been working with Dr. Reisner for three years. The expedition was founded in 1905 and actual work began in 1909 in this district.

The tomb is not that of either Seneferu or Cheops. It was in existence when the first pyramid at Giza, that of Cheops, was built, and the superstructure of the tomb must have been cleared away by the architects of Cheops when they built the causeway which led from the valley to the temple in front of the Cheops pyramid. The tomb is to be dated probably to the reign of Seneferu.

SEES EVIL IN PROHIBITION AND VICE CRUSADES

New York, March 10.—Prohibition and vice crusades were blamed today by State Senator Benjamin Antin of the many underage and hasty marriages which a Bronx grand jury is investigating.

The senator and Mary E. Richmond, director on the Russell Sage Foundation, were principal witnesses before the jury which is seeking sufficient evidence to make a presentation to Supreme Court Justice Tierney suggesting remedies.

Four girl brides were among the others of the 34 witnesses summoned by District Attorney McGeeham, who testified today.

"Prohibition has caused a loosening of moral standards among young people," Mr. Antin said after he left the jury room. "The success of vice crusades had forced many men of low types into civil marriage contracts which they did not intend to continue."

DETROIT UNITED RAILWAYS PLACED UNDER RECEIVER

Detroit, March 10. — The Detroit United Railways, operating interurban and city lines in and between several Michigan cities, were placed under receivers upon the petition of the Yellow Coach Manufacturing company, in the federal court today.

At the same time a restraining order was issued enjoining all creditors and others from interfering with the operation of the lines during the life of the receivership.

Lack of assets to meet current obligations was given as the reason for the action.

The annual statment of the company December 31, 1924, gave the assets above all liabilities at $18,293,656.87.

GOV. TRUMBULL RECEIVES LETTER FROM PRESIDENT

Hartford, March 10.—Governor Trumbull has received a personal letter from President Coolidge expressing appreciation of the message of congratulation sent by radio on inauguration day. The letter, over which the president's signature, is as follows:

"My dear Governor Trumbull: Let me express to you my most generous appreciation of the message of congratulations and good wishes which came from you on inauguration day by radio, through the courtesy of the American Radio Relay League. I heartily reciprocate all your good wishes.

"Very truly yours,
"CALVIN COOLIDGE."

SENATE TO TAKE UP THE ISLE OF PINES TREATY

Washington, March 10—The senate late today agreed to a motion by Senator Pepper, republican, Pennsylvania, to take up consideration of the Isle of Pines treaty in open session tomorrow.

An amendment to the resolution for ratification offered today by Senator Willis, republican, Ohio would guarantee residents of the island the same protection as provided in the bill of rights of the United States constitution.

MINING CONDITIONS IN OHIO ARE DEPLORABLE

Bellaire, Ohio, March 10—Mining conditions in Ohio were described as "most deplorable" by Lee Hall, president of the Ohio mine workers, in an address at a sub-district convention here today. He attributed the cause of the condition he described to "diselling by the non-union fields of West selling by the non-nion fields of West Virginia and Kentucky."

Deplores Shortage Of Family Doctors

Educator Contends Medical Service is Headed Toward Breakdown or Revolution.

Chicago, March 10. — Conflict of opinion developed today at the annual congress of education of the American Medical association concerning the cause and remedy for what leaders agreed to be an ominous shortage of family doctors.

"The increased number of medical graduates, cited from this platform," declared Dr. William Allen Pusey, of Chicago, president of the association, "means no more to the needs of the ordinary citizen than does the increased output of $10,000 automobiles. Medical service is tobogganing toward breakdown or revolution. This is to be expected when the preparation for our profession costs seventy-five per cent. more than preparation for any other profession. As a result, medical graduates are preferring the better rewarded careers of specialists to ordinary service for the ordinary sick. The country doctor has almost vanished and the family doctor of the cities will vanish too."

Dr. Pusey replied vigorously to critics of his views, and took issue with views of previous speakers, who had warned against "lowering educational standards." He declared that medical education, "once the poor relation, now the spoiled child," of education, had become too luxurious to live within its inflated income. He insisted that three years of collegiate residence and a fourth of apprenticeship, rather than four or five years of collegiate residence, were ample for training ordinary practioner and that medical college requirements must be made less exacting.

"Don ot damn ideas with catchwords, or surpress them instead of trying to prove them wrong," he said. "I'm not scared by the bogey of lowered standards or the straw man of incompetent doctors. We can train twice as soundly as we do in half the time now required. Too much time is given to didactic lectures and the imparting of a mass of detailed knowledge; there is too little emphasis on sound apprenticeship and on habits of independent thinking and investigation. An apprenticeship need not necessarily be in a hospital. It may be well spent as assistant to a sound physician.

"Of 1,592 graduates of Johns Hopkins between 1897 and 1920, only 2.45 are engaged in communities of less than 5,200 population.

"We need institutions equipped like Johns Hopkins to train specialists and investigators, but we must have also small colleges that can train, at a cost not prohibitive to the student family doctors in their own districts. Let us provide as good an education as is economically distributable."

HEART DISEASE SUBJECT AT CONGRESS OF MEDICINE

Washington, March 10—Widespread prevalence and prevention of heart disease formed the principal topic of discussion by delegates today to the American Congress on Internal Medicine, after the holding of 131 clinics in various parts of the city.

Dr. Steward R. Roberts, of Atlanta, Ga., asserted that heart disease, is now a general in the army of death while pneumonia is a mere captain." He presented statistics to show that the ratio of deaths from heart disease and all other causes was one to five, with 150 deaths from the disease for every fifteen automobile fatalities and three for every death from pneumonia.

Sympathectomy, a treatment of angina pectoris by operating on certain nerves in the neck, which Dr. Harry H. Kerr of Washington, asserted has had encouraging results, will be demonstrated by him at a clinic tomorrow.

GERMANY IS WORKING TO ESTABLISH GOLD RESERVE

New York, March 10—For the purpose of establishing a gold reserve, the German reichsbank today began the withdrawal of $41,000,000 in "earmarked" gold which it has accumulated over the past year in the vaults of the New York federal reserve bank.

The first shipment of $2,500,000 already has been dispatched to Germany, the reserve bank announced, and additional exports will go forward within the next few weeks. Further purchases and shipments were expected to swell the total to $50,000,000 or more.

Since the coin has been carried here for the account of the reichsbank, the shipments will not affect the reserves of the federal reserve bank or its members and are not expected to have any infienc on the money market.

TROUBLE PILING UP FOR HERBERT LYON SMITH

New York, March 10.—When Madelaine Traverse, film actress, last year won $25,478 from Herbert Lyon Smith, coal and oil dealer, for default of a contract by which he was to star her in motion pictures, his wife read of the case and identified the defendant as her former husband.

As a result Smith today became entangled in legal proceedings for $34,606 back alimony.

The wife, Mrs. Fannie B. Smith, said she was married to Smith in 1876 and divorced in 1895, when he was ordered to pay her $25 a week alimony. She charged that he disappeared in 1896 and failed to make further payments.

He was the author of a number of works on the Far East.

Are To Request That Germany Join League

Council of League of Nations to Embody That Desire in Reply to German Note.

Geneva, March 10 (By the A. P.)—Lloyd Georges' epigrammatic warning at the Genoa conference that an angry Germany should not be driven into the arms of a hungry Russia, had a sequence at Geneva this afternoon when the council of the league of nations under the presidency of Austen Chamberlain, British secretary for foreign affairs, spent hours at a secret meeting in discussing how to handle the German notes concerning German admission to the league.

The meeting, which was attended only by members of the council and Sir Eric Drummond, secretary-general, started from the fundamental idea that German membership in the league is a necessity to true political rehabilitation of Europe. Hence the desire of all, but especially England, to adopt no attitude toward the German demands for a privileged position under the covenant which would have the effect of driving Germany further away from the league.

It was learned that after an hour's discussion the council reached an agreement to draft a reply to the German notes expressing the council's earnest desire that Germany join the league.

Simultaneously, however, Germany will be informed in effect and in diplomatic terms that no privilege can be accorded her as a preliminary condition to her application for membership, because this would destroy the principle of equality of treatment which is one of the fundamental features of the league.

The text of the council's reply to Germany has not yet been definitely framed.

The council also discussed general relations between Poland and Danzig, and adopted several measures calculated to tranquilize the delicate situation between them. It did not discuss the Geneva protocol, concerning which Austen Chamberlain will make his pronouncement at the public meeting of the council Thursday.

Today's developments at Geneva demonstrated clearly that the big things are being done either at secret session of the council or in private conversations between the members of the council.

QUESTION VALIDITY OF THE DENNISTOUN DIVORCE

London, March 10—The question as to the validity in England of the divorce secured in Paris by Mrs. Ian Onslow Dennistoun from Lieutenant Colonel Dennistoun, whom she is suing for sums of money she alleges she loaned him prior to their separation, was a problem developed today at the resumption of the proceedings brought by Mrs. Dennistoun.

Sir Edward Marshal Hall, counsel for Dennistoun, said it was not valid, while Sir George Lewis, Mrs. Dennistoun's solicitor, asserted that it was. The puzzle was left unsolved.

A heated argument arose when Sir George declared the case could have been settled any moment by a fair offer to the plaintiff, whereupon Sir Edward angrily demanded to know whether a man like Colonel Dennistoun would sit down under the charges made against him and agree to a settlement.

A surprising statement by Sir Edward was that Dennistoun did not dispute his domicile in France at the time of the divorce, that he did not dispute misconduct, and that he would say on the witness stand that the divorce was obtained by agreement between himself and his wife.

Once during the antagonistic outbursts between counsel, when Sir George said that if the case had not been fought the name of the former Dowager Countess Carnarvon, now the wife of Colonel Dinnistoun, would never have been mentioned.

TO REMAIN HEAD OF NAVY BUREAU OF AERONAUTICS

Washington, March 10—Reappointment of Read Admiral William A. Biffett as chief of the navy bureau of aeronautics for a second four years term has been recommended to President Coolidge by Secretary Wilbur.

Admiral Moffett is the first chief of the bureau, which was created four years ago. His term expires in June.

Secretary Wilbur said Admiral Moffett's administration had been very satisfactory to the navy department. The usual policy of the department in assigning officers as chiefs of bureaus only for a single term had been set aside, he explained, because it was felt the best interest of the new bureau required that the admiral continue the work of roganization and development which he began.

COURT RULES AGAINST THE PULLMAN COMPANY

Philadelphia, March 10.—The United States circuit court of appeals decided against the Pullman company today in a damage suit involving the question whether the railroad or the Pullman company was responsible for injuries to a passenger. Mr. and Mrs. Jacob S. Waln, Haverford, Pa., received $22,887 damages as a result of injuries to Mrs. Waln, when she was jolted off the vestibule platform between parlor cars at Baltimore.

The Pullman company contended that the negligence of leaving the door open was that of the railroad's employes, but the court decided otherwise.

MRS. CHAPLIN MAY HAVE HER HOME IN VANCOUVER

Hollywood, Cal., March 10—A statement from the studio of Charles Chaplin, screen comedian whose mother, Mrs. Hannah Chaplin must leave the United States by March 26, under a ruling by immigration authorities, said today that she would "probably make her home in Vancouver, B. C."

Mrs. Chaplin came to this country three years ago suffering from nerve shock due to the German air raids over London during the war. She has been living at a beach home provided by her son.

The statement did not say how soon Mrs. Chaplin intended leaving the United States.

HEAVIER PENALTIES FOR VOLSTEAD LAW VIOLATIONS

Recommended by a Sub-Committee of the House Alcoholic Liquor Traffic Committee—Would Amend Existing Law to Fix a Minimum Fine and Mandatory Prison Sentence For First Offense for Manufacture and Sale of Alcoholic Liquor—Opposed to any Increase Above One-Half of One Percent in Alcoholic Content of Beverages.

Washington, March 10.—Opposing any increase above one-half of 1 per cent in the alcoholic content of beverages, a sub-committee of the house alcoholic liquor traffic committee today made public a report recommending enactment by the next congress of legislation imposing heavier penalties for prohibition law violations.

The sub-committee expressed the opinion that "to increase the alcoholic content, but not to a point where it would become intoxicating in fact, would not satisfy those who demand alcoholic stimulants and would greatly increase the difficulty of law enforcement."

Amendment of existing law to fix a minimum fine and mandatory prison sentence for first offenses for the manufacture and sale of alcoholic liquor, and increasing fines for transportation and possession of liquors, was recommended.

The sub-committee, which was headed by Representative Hudson, republican, Michigan, also proposed establishment of a prohibition agency separate from any other bureau, that prohibition agents be selected under civil service, that the government buy all bonded liquors in government warehouses, and that appropriations for prohibition enforcement be sufficient to replace an adequate number of agents in areas where enforcement is difficult.

The problem of enforcement, the report said, is not as great as many sources antagonistic to prohibition would infer. The difficulties have been magnified while the benefits have been taken for granted, it stated, adding that "there is no evidence to justify any hope that the eighteenth amendment will be repealed."

Enumerating results of prohibition, which the report said were "secured with inadequate organization and law enforcement machinery," it listed reductions in violent crime, a decrease in the number of paupers, an increase in thrift, improvement of the realty market, a lower death rate, improvement of the general health of the nation, and a decrease in insanity.

"The total number of arrests in most cities shows a considerable increase over preceding years," it said.

"But violations of automobile or traffic laws, sanity regulations, school laws, and other minor ordinances make up the larger proportion of these arrests."

72-YEAR-OLD RABBI CHARGED WITH ANNOYING COOLIDGE

New York, March 10—E. B. M. Browne, 72 years old, former rabbi of a small Bronx synagoge, now closed, was brought into Yorkville court today on a summons charging him with sending annoying letters to President Coolidge. The summons was obtained by James M. Weitzman, a secret service agent. Magistrate Thomas F. McAndrews paroled Mr. Browne for a hearing next Monday.

It was charged that Mr. Browne wrote a number of letters to the president, Mrs. Coolidge and Frank Stearn, requesting reimbursement for campaign expenditures. He told the cort that he specifically requested $12,500 which amount, he said, represented half the sum expended by "the American Jewish seventy elders," during the last campaign in the interest of the president's election.

Jewish leaders here said they had never heard of an organization known as "the American Jewish seventy elders." Mr. Browne says he is the organiser and present head of the society. His name does not appear in available records as an Orthodox rabbi.

It developed that Mrs. Coolidge had trned over one of Mr. Browne's many letters to the secret service. This letter was signed, "Temple Zion, Dr. E. B. M. Browne, rabbi."

Mr. Browne prodced in cort letters which he said were written to him by Presidents Harding, Roosevelt, McKinley and Harrison as "evidence of their respect and friendship."

BEQUESTS IN WILL OF LATE ROBERT C. CLOWRY

White Plains, N. Y., March 10—The late Robert C. Clowry, former Western Union head, in his will filed here today left the bulk of hisestate, whose value was not given, to relatives and friends. The women's club of Chicago received $5,000 for distribution by its philanthropic committee, and $2,500 was set aside for the Telephone and Telegraph Life Insurance Association.

The major bequests included Mr. Clowry's contry home with all effects which he left to his sister, Mrs. Clara C. Esterbrook. Franklin J. Scherrer, his private secretary received $100,000 and became sole executor of the estate. His nephews and nieces were left $100,000 each. An additional $100,000 was requested to one niece, Nellie V. Bryne of Chicago.

Bequests of $10,000 each were named in the will for Mrs. Anna R. Evans, a former employee, "in grateful recognition of faithful services" and for Horace E. Roberts of Stamford, Conn.

TWO PERSONS REPORTED KILLED BY RHINOCEROS

London, March 10—A despatch to the Daily Mail from Naibori, in the Kenya Colony of British East Africa, reports that Mrs. Green, a noted Irish explorer from Dublin, and a British captain have been killed by a rhinoceros.

The British officer, Captain Atkins, accompanied by his wife, arrived later in a motor car at the scene. As they alighted from the car the rhinoceros charged them, knocking the captain down and trampling him to death.

Mrs. Green encountered the rhinoceros at Nanyuki. The woman fired with a small bore rifle and wounded the animal, which thereupon charged and fatally injured her.

Mrs. Atkins making her escape, later returning with gunmen who shot and killed the rhinoceros.

ILLINOIS HAD TORNADO WITH ELECTRICAL STORM

Terrehaute, Ind., March 10—A tornado, accompanied by severe electrical disturbances and followed by heavy rain and hail struck between Paris and Marshall, Illinois, near here this afternoon, razing houses, barns and silos and causing heavy property damage. No loss of life or livestock was reported.

In Edgar County, Ills., property damage was estimated at between $50,000 and $75,000. At McKeen, Ills., three ehouses were either destroyed or badly damaged.

$300,000 JEWELRY STORE ROBBERY IN CHICAGO

Chicago, March 10. — Three men brandishing pistols entered the jewelry store of B. Weinstein, here tonight, forced the owner and several clerks and customers into a rear room, and after ransacking the store, escaped with jewelry valued by the proprietor at more tan $300,000.

ARE SEEKING BANDIT WITH GRAY HAIR AND FLAT NOSE

New York, March 10.—Detectives tonight scoured New York in search of "a gray-haired man with a flat nose," as the leader of a masked trio which invaded the apartment of Mrs. Beatrice Fay Perkins, yesterday morning, attacked her and Milton Abbott, cotton broker, and stole $35,000 worth of her jewels.

This meager description was the only clue authorities had of the identity of the trio and was furnished by Mrs. Perkins. She had seen that hair and that nose when the silk handkerchief momentarily slipped from the face of the man who was slugging her with a pistol butt and snatching at the jewels on her person as Abbott lay nearby already beaten into unconsciousness.

Mrs. Perkins married Benjamin Perkins wealthy restaurant owner of this city in Chicago in 1918, when she was 17 years old. For several years, however, they have been estranged, occupying separate apartments.

Today, when news reporters called at Mrs. Perkins' home, they were smilingly greeted by her husband. He announced that their quarrel had been "patched up" declared "it's an ill wind," etc., and vowed he would henceforth protect his wife from such occurrences as that of yesterday morning.

Mrs. Perkins, her head and arms swathed in bandages, appeared beside her husband, later, and confirmed his announcement.

MRS. STOKES TO TAKE WITNESS STAND TODAY

Chicago, March 10—The wife he is charged with conspiring to defame in an effort to further his divorce suit will take the witness stand tomorrow in the trial of W. E. D. Stokes, millionaire hotel owner of New York.

Her testimony, marking a departure under the Illinois statutes which prohibits a spose appearing for or against a mate, except under three especial exceptions, will be severely circumscribed.

Mrs. Stokes, according to the decision late today of Judge W. N. Gemmill, will be permitted to take the witness stand and enter formal denial of the testimony of two sleeping car conductors yesterday, that late in 1922, she made overnight trips with men other than her husband.

Hal K. Gillig, young Chicago real estate man, cousin of Mrs. Stokes, and one of the numerous co-respondents named in Mr. Stokes' New York divorce suit, denied from the witness stand late today that he ever had travelled with Mrs. Stokes.

BUCKNER PROCEEDING WITH PADLOCK PLAN

New York, March 10—Federal Attorney Buckner today won the first of what he says may amount to 1,000 separate proceedings to padlock establishments selling liquor.

Federal Judge Hand ordered that the Lafayette Hotel in New Rochelle be placed for three months under a padlock injunction asked by the government, and further directed the cancellation of the tenant's lease.

The decree provided for closing the entire building and means, Mr. Buckner said, closing a furnishing store and restaurant on the ground floor and ousting fifteen other tenants.

In another proceeding, after Mr. Buckner had announced that if facts warranted he would seek to padlock the Ringler brewery, raided here last night. It was fond that such proceedings had already been filed by his predecessor, Colonel Hayward.

RAILROAD STRIKE MENACES RELIEF WORK IN GREECE

Athens, March 10—The general railroad strike in Greece which began last Sunday and which has cut off Greece from rail communication with the rest of Europe, now is jeopardising American relief operations.

The strike has paralyzed the relief train operated by the American near east relief. It is a former hospital train which the Americans outfitted for the purpose of distributing old clothes to the refugees in Salonika and Macedonia.

WILLIMANTIC

More better than four hundred of the eight hundred non-union employes of the manufacturing department of the American Thread company turning right about face as they approached the mill gates on Tuesday morning and lining up with the striking workers of the finishing and other departments who were picketed at the gates, the striking body found Tuesday highly favorable to their cause. The alliance of the boiler tenders and enginemen to the cause Monday night caused a general close-down of the mills Tuesday morning and lining up with the striking workers of the finishing and other departments who were picketed at the gates, the striking body found Tuesday highly favorable to their cause. The alliance of the boiler tenders and enginemen to the cause Monday night caused a general close down of the mills Tuesday afternoon. The tenders filed notice with the officials of the plant in the forenoon that they would quit their posts at noon, leaving only a sufficient number of men to keep up steam enough to heat the mills. These two decisive blows dealt the company spurred the strikers on to renewed activities and toward evening, Tuesday, employes who had not become unionized represented but a mere handful of the force of 2,000 operatives. Departments annexed to the cause were being organized into locals throughout the day, the work being in charge of Miss Mary Kelleher, of Scranton, Pa., and organizer. Among branches being taken into the union were the painters, plumbers, pipers, machinists, boiler tenders, enginemen, yardmen and all others affiliated with the works department and various sections of the manufacturing department, including the carders, spinners, twisters, etc.

The mass meeting held early in the morning was featured by a hearty welcome extended several hundred employes of No. 4 mill. The Polish workers of that mill were addressed by Mike Moryiako and John Lach in their native tongue. It was announced that as Labor Union hall was to be occupied by other parties today (Wednesday) all meetings would be deferred until Thursday morning at 10 o'clock when the Winders Local 1049 and representatives of the inspectors, packers, and works departments would convene. At 1 o'clock Thursday afternoon Local 671 of the Quill Spoolers will meet to complete organization.

Miss Mary Kelleher was the principal speaker at the mass meeting held in the Gem theatre at 7.15 a. m. For the benefit of those newly enlisted in the ranks of the strikers she repeated much of the talk which she gave on Monday morning. She reviewed the experience of textile workers within the past few years and her remark that they were now rising to get a decent deal, to get a self-supporting wage, was answered with cheers. With the earnings of the manufacturing concerns even under the present dismal slump in business, she saw little reason for their constant cry for cheaper help. She explained how manufacturers based incomes on a family wage. This she termed unfair, in making the statement that what the workers demanded and would secure is a saving wage as individuals. She then went on to show how reasonably high wages made for better business for all concerned. It meant more money in circulation. Expensive articles which are now "white elephants" to the merchants would be purchased with fatter pay envelopes and the merchant in turn would buy from the manufacturer to meet the demand for the goods, all of which would tend to lead to a constant flow of business.

Miss Kelleher stated that she did not entirely blame the manufacturer. He was justified in getting what he could in profits but she did blame the [illegible] had skill, in [illegible] efforts cheaply. [illegible] again warned [illegible] attention to the ranks of [illegible] and others and urged against any kind of open demonstration.

The strikers then listened to an eloquent talk by Charles D. Keaveney of Rochester, N. Y., organizer for the International Workers of America. Mr. Keaveney illustrated the benefits of unity and gave many illustrations of the methods employed to create a disruption among striking bodies. In closing the gathering to stick to the purpose in view he closed with the remark that more die of indigestion than of starvation. The enthusiasm of the meeting was roused to even a higher pitch when two announcements of financial backing were made. Sigfried Peterson, president of Local No. 825 of the Carpenters and Joiners' Association of America, pledged the whole-hearted cooperation of that body to the strikers and presented the presiding officer, Miss Amy Hooker, local president, a check for $100. Miss Mahoney, a member of the textile committee, then made the gratifying announcement that Local 66 of New York, an organization of plasterers, had promised material assistance to the amount of $3,000.

Agent Don M. Curtis of the local plant admitted that the exodus of over half of the manufacturing department employes and of the boiler tenders necessitated the closing down of the plant. All operations were suspended Tuesday afternoon, and will remain so until a sufficient number of operatives are hired or return to work so that business can be resumed. No decision to advertise for help has been reached as yet, although the approximate four hundred employes willing to remain at work are useless to the company at present. Agent Curtis announced that pay day this week will be on Thursday and a notice has been issued as to the hour for various sections to call for their pay.

A nearly one hundred per cent gathering of the Rotarians listened to an inspiring talk on the demand for civic improvements in the city and a discussion on the ways and means to attain them, by Secretary Charles W. Hill, at the weekly session of the club in the Y. M. C. A. Tuesday noon. President Harry W. Standish presided and appointed James P. Bath in charge of the entertainment program. Secretary Hill's talk was given in the absence of John Riley, who was to have given his life history. The subject of the talk was given as The Aftermath of the Successful Hotel Drive. At the close of the luncheon, communications were read from Rotary International headquarters relative to the Cleveland convention in June and the business methods a program for next year. James P. Mustard, James P. Bath and Harry Blanchette were selected by President Harry as an On to Cleveland committee. Doc Jones reported that arrangements for a ladies' night would be worked out at a meeting of the committee this (Wednesday) evening and a report would be made next Tuesday. Jim Bath gave a rather discouraging report of the program being made by the losing team of the recent attendance contest to furnish a banquet as a forfeit to the winners. Guests of the club were Jake Alpert and John Dean of Putnam. Both proved able orators and the former entertained with humorous anecdotes. For the Rotary welcome sign committee, Gus Greene recommended that the directors' vote an appropriation for five signs. The annual election of officers will take place in four weeks and in answer to a call for nominations for directors, Judge Foss moved that the entire membership be placed in nomination, the five members receiving the most votes to be elected to the directorate. Several Rotary songs, led by Doc Jones and John Ahern were executed in fine manner. When he took the floor, Secretary Hill was applauded as the man responsible for securing Willimantic's new hotel. As president of the chamber of commerce two years ago, Charles advocated urgently the need of a hotel here and continued in his efforts in the face of almost unsurmountable odds until the project was brought to a glorious close, less than two weeks ago.

The election of officers was held at the March meeting of the directors of the Willimantic Welfare Bureau, with First Vice President Mrs. R. H. Fenton in charge. The new officers are: President, John P. Carlsen; first vice president, Mrs. Robert H. Fenton; second vice president, John Reilly; treasurer, Pierre J. Laramee; secretary, Miss Elizabeth Anderson; auditors, Herbert D. Pollard and Fred A. Sanderson. The revised constitution of the organization was read and action on the proposed changes will be taken at a later meeting. The report of Miss Anderson for the past month was read and accepted. According to the financial report a fine income from membership dues has been realized. The board of directors of the bureau is composed of all the pastors of the various churches, one member selected by each organization paying dues and those chosen to represent the membership, who are, Charles F. Risedorf, John P. Carlsen, W. C. Norris, M. Eugene Lincoln, John Reilly, Mrs. A. E. Greene, Mrs. H. C. Lathrop, Mrs. C. C. Case Mrs. Robert H. Fenton, Louis H. Arnold, Aime J. Martineau and John F. Ahern.

Mary Lillian, infant daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Curgeon of Perkins Corners, died Tuesday morning. The funeral was held Tuesday afternoon at 2.30 o'clock from the late home with burial in St. Mary's cemetery, South Coventry. Arrangements were in charge of Hurteau-Bosse Corp.

The second division in Miss Marion Barker's advanced class in home economics entertained a party of children from the neighborhood, at Windham High school Tuesday afternoon, as a demonstration in practical child training. The children played games arranged for them by the girls and were served wafers and ice cream prepared in the cooking class. A story, "A Visit to Santa Claus" was told them by Helen Avery. Those present extended were Vernon Riordan, Howard Ide, Ivan Burleson, Billy Johnston, Iva Kearns and Marion Nason.

The members of the Sorority of the Methodist church entertained at a covered dish supper at the church on Tuesday evening, having as guests their husbands and the members of the members of the men's club. The supper was followed by a college social in which all participated in various stunts. The supper was under the arrangement of Mrs. William Webber. Mrs. Fred Williams was in charge of the stunts.

Mrs. Frederick C. Williams is the guest in Norwich today (Wednesday) of Miss Ina Ufford, attending a meeting of the Round Table held Tuesday evening at the home of Mrs. Emma Bailey. A paper on St. Patrick was read by Mrs. Williams.

"Home Acres" the three-act comedy given here by members of the Methodist church some time ago was repeated Friday evening in Stafford Springs and is to be repeated next week in Staffordville.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank Martin, who have been taking a ten weeks' tour through the south returned to their home the end of last week. After a three week stay at Welaka, they spent a month at Lakeland, Florida, returning with stops at Washington, Little Falls, N. J., Marathon, Ridgefield and Birmingham, N. Y. While traveling through the Kaaterskills they were especially interested in the great blocks of ice scattered and piled along the banks of the Susquehanna and Delaware rivers, indicating the unusually cold weather in that section, which had necessitated the dynamiting of the rivers in some cases to break the ice jam.

In two matches played Monday evening, the Goyer Manufacturing Co., defeated the Brothers by 48 pins and the Leonard Brothers "administered a coat of kalsomine to the Scrubs in all three strings." The first match was rolled on a total pinfall basis, while the second was decided on strings. Davis of the Brothers starred in the first match, while Belair was the feature of the second.

The engagement is announced by Mr. and Mrs. Steve J. Nascin of Brick Top Road, of their daughter Mary Elizabeth to John Francis Collins, son of Mr. and Mrs. Francis Collins of East Hampton. The marriage is to take place in May.

SEVERAL NORWICH BILLS ARE PASSED BY LEGISLATURE AT TUESDAY'S SESSION

(Special to the Bulletin)

Hartford, March 10—Today brought in numerous unfavorable reports on bills that have been before committees for hearings. Bills that brought strong opposition during the hearings were reported by the committee on agriculture were those that gave the bill giving the commissioner of agriculture power to confine dogs between sunset and sunrise during certain times and the bill that would penalize any person convicted of having any dog having killed sheep. The general deficiency bill was reported and was ordered printed in the journal. Notice was given that it would be called up for action on Thursday. The several Norwich bills that were passed in the senate last week were taken from the calendar and passed by the house today. These included territorial limits of Norwich (adjacent to Mohegan Park) the transference of 50 per cent. of the profits of the gas and electric plant to the city for general purposes.

The bill concerning the voting hours at city elections provides:

Section 1. At each annual or special city meeting of the city of Norwich held for the choice of any city officers required by law to be chosen at such meeting or at any special election in said city, the polls shall be open at the place designated for the purpose in each voting district from seven o'clock in the morning until seven o'clock in the afternoon.

The bill concerning election of assessors, provides:

Section 258 of the general statutes is amended to read as follows: In the town of Norwich, at the annual town meeting in the year 1925, there shall be elected two assessors, one for a term of two years and the other for a term of six years and at the annual town meeting in the year 1929, and biennially thereafter, there shall be elected one assessor for a term of six years. Any person elected as an assessor shall hold office until his successor shall be duly elected and qualified. The board of selectmen of said town may fill any vacancy which may occur in such office until the next town meeting at which assessors shall be elected as provided by this act, at which time an assessor shall be elected to fill such vacancy, the ballot used to specify the vacancy to be filled.

A bill concerning the bonds to be furnished by the state treasurer and the deputy treasurer was introduced at the suggestion of State Treasurer Rogers. The bill that has now passed the both houses provides:

Section 1. Section 91 of the general statutes is amended to read as follows: The treasurer, before he shall enter upon the execution of the duties of his office, shall give a bond to the state, with sufficient surety, in the sum of two hundred thousand dollars for the term for which he shall have been elected, which bond shall be conditioned for the faithful performance of his duties other than in connection with the school fund.

Sec. 2. Section 92 of the general statutes is amended to read as follows: The treasurer shall appoint a deputy, who shall be sworn to the faithful discharge of his duties and shall perform all the duties of the treasurer. The deputy treasurer, before he shall enter upon the execution of the duties of his office, shall give a bond to the state, with sufficient surety, in the sum of one hundred and fifty thousand dollars, which bond shall be conditioned for the faithful performance of his duties.

The committee on incorporations gave a hearing on the bill that would grant a charter to the Bozrah Light and Power Co. It asks for the power to "produce, generate and manufacture or purchase electricity, to sell in the towns of Lebanon and Bozrah, to illuminate the streets and buildings and sell [illegible] would create a commission on mental diseases. No one appeared in favor of the bill but it was strongly opposed by Dr. Franklin S. Wilcox of the Norwich State hospital.

THE HOUSE

Speaker Darbie called the house together today at 11.30 and prayer was offered by Chaplain Lewis. The use of the hall of the house of representatives was voted to the committee on labor for tomorrow afternoon for the purpose of a hearing.

The moving picture theatre bill, No. 822, which among other things provided children could go to picture theatre matinees where a chaperone was on hand to care for them, was killed on an unfavorable report from the judiciary committee.

The weavers' price ticket bill also received its quietus today on unfavorable report from the judiciary committee and rejection by the house. The bill has made its appearance in the last one or two sessions but the legislators do not think the legislation necessary.

On adverse report from the judiciary committee the house killed the bill—No. 28—giving judges discretionary powers in civil and criminal cases to admit hearsay testimony in certain instances.

Dog owners and lovers of dogs feel better that the house today killed bill No. 139, requiring owners to keep dogs confined between sunset and sunrise and allowing anyone to kill a roaming dog. Bill No. 141, placing a penalty upon any person having a dog which has killed sheep.

Mr. Floyd of Waterford in the chair:

Bills passed from the calendar: No. 773, authorizing the common council of the city of New London to use, for the purpose of building a new grade school, the money received from the sale of bonds provided for in 1919; No. 42 providing for use by the city of Norwich of a portion of the profits of its gas and electrical department; No. 44, extending territorial limits of city of Norwich for policing purposes; No. 68, requiring returns to bank commissioner by trust companies by November 1 in each year; No. 98, providing for filling vacancies that may occur in offices of treasurer, clerk and tax collector in Norwich; No. 106, concerning warning of city meetings in Norwich; No. 366, providing for election of assessors for six-year terms in Norwich.

On recommendation from the committee on labor the bill concerning employment of children who are in the seventh grade at school was referred to the committee on education. No. 362, exempting from the provisions of the general statutes, concerning taxation of untaxed property, money on deposit in any bank or trader in settling probate estates; No. 681, repealing chapter 302 of the public acts of 1919 concerning town roads and bridges injured by commercial motor vehicles.

DANIELSON

In his announcements for the week County Agent F. L. Davis states that he will be at the Thomas Mara place in Windham today and that his visit to Killingly will be made Thursday, when he will be at the John Z. LaBelle place at Ballouville. Mr. Mara is a director of the County Farmers' association for the town of Windham. Mr. LaBelle director of the association for the town of Killingly.

An effort that was meeting with success Tuesday has to do with a plan under which automobile battery houses here will be brought into agreement to make a charge for testing batteries and adding distilled water to them. The proposed charge is 25 cents. Heretofore this service has been free, but abuse of the privilege by some has aroused the dealers to action. However, even under the new plan, one dealer said, those who are willing to test their own batteries and fill them with water will not be charged the proposed fee. Where a man's time is taken up with this work, the dealers expect to exact a fee.

Reference in this column to the fact that a small flock of seagulls has been staying about in the Quinebaug river has brought the information that these gulls have been on the Quinebaug for a month. Norman Ross saw them early in February. It is also said that the appearances here of seagulls—on lakes and rivers—is much more frequent during the past five years than was the case prior to that time.

A fishing and hunting club with headquarters in Putnam has made an appropriation of $75 with which to purchase black bass to be placed in Alexander's lake, a beautiful body of water about midway between Danielson and Putnam. This liberal action in the interest of restocking will likely be duplicated by the Danielson Rod and Gun club, which is co-operating with other clubs in restocking fields and streams in various towns in the county with game and fish.

William Coleman, 92, who died Sunday at the home of his son, William Coleman, Jr., at Edgewood, R. I., was at one time employed at what then was known as the Sayles mill at Dayville, now the Assawaga Woolen company. Though nearing 93 he never had been ill in his life prior to the sickness that caused his death. Mr. Coleman was a native of Westbury, England, and was born September 20, 1863. With Mrs. Coleman he came to this country in 1869, settling first at West Killingly. He was engaged in the woolen manufacturing business during all his active years in this country, retiring in 1900. Mrs. Coleman died in 1907. For the past five years he had been making his home with his son William. He leaves another son, George H., who is an overseer in the Anchor Mills at Pawtucket and two daughters, Mrs. H. A. Mosher of Lowell and Mrs. Elizabeth Appley of Pascoag. Mr. Coleman will be buried at Pascoag.

A petition for a special town meeting will likely be completed today, Wednesday, and handed to the selectmen. This special meeting will be called, it is understood, to follow immediately after the adjournment of the adjourned annual town meeting next week, when the appropriations for the year will be made. The special meeting would be called specifically to pass upon the matter of an increased appropriation for Memorial day, this appropriation apportioned between Danielson, Dayville and East Killingly Memorial day organizations. It is believed desirable to consider this particular appropriation at a separate meeting rather than at the adjourned annual town meeting, that no question may arise as to the legality of acting upon it at that time.

Upon the arrival of the body from Waterbury, where he died, a committal service for Mrs. Phoebe Chase Potter, widow of Charles Potter, was conducted at the Chase cemetery near East Killingly, Tuesday morning at 11 o'clock, by W. D. Hetherington of the Union Baptist church of East Killingly. Relatives acted as bearers. A. F. Wilson was in charge of the arrangements.

Tuesday, the funeral of Mrs. Filindy [illegible] from the home of her son-in-law, Ray Johnson, in Dayville, at 1 o'clock at Allen's R. I. Rev. William Swainson of the Congregational church officiated the service. Burial was at [illegible]. Relatives acted as bearers. [illegible] E. Kennedy was in charge of the funeral arrangements.

Of special interest to the thousands of textile workers in mills in the county will be the announcement that the Quinebaug valley and to all others interested in their welfare is the fact that many mills are this season given to manufacturing fancy cotton materials, many of these products being in color. In this field the northern mills appear to have found their opportunity to get business with which southern mills have not been so generally successful.

Where such replacements are required about town, the Danielson and Plainfield Gas and Electric company is putting new poles to carry its lines. Such replacements have been made in various streets in the borough.

Lavender suits for men! They're here. The confections, for they seem nothing less, being so sweet, are known as London lavender. The dear boys will have their opportunity to be resplendent this spring. They are going to be just lovely. But they haven't got them to carrying handbags yet.

Out of Oneco within a few days should come to semi-annual weather and earthquake forecast and crop prospectus covering the vernal season. The Cloud Digger has had a bale of publicity good and indifferent, on his last forecast and that should warrant taking all the chances one does in making long-distance weather predictions.

Mrs. A. F. Wood will have the members of the Ladies' Aid societ of the Methodist church at her home for a meeting this (Wednesday) afternoon.

Of the Wood property on Oak St., Amadee Bernier has purchased the building formerly occupied as a blacksmit hshop and Nuttall Brothers have purchased the building they have occupied as a business location for a number of years.

A St. Patrick's program is planned by Killingly grange as a feature of its meeting scheduled for Monday evening of next week. Song numbers, trios, minstrel features and other attractions will be presented.

Tomorrow, March 12, is the 37th anniversary of the great blizzard that buried this section under blankets and huge drifts of snow and brought zero temperature. No winter storm of such violence has since visited eastern Connecticut.

The prospect is for an 18 mill tax in Killingly this year, which will be sufficient to raise the proposed budget requirements and leave a slight margin. The tax rate last year was 18 mills.

Carp that likely weigh as much as 13 pounds each have been seen recently disporting themselves in shallow coves in the Quinebaug river about a mile above Quinebaug bridge.

The attendance last Saturday at a meeting at which a Windham County Kennel club was to be formed here not being sufficiently numerous to warrant taking any action, it was decided to hold another meeting Tuesday evening, March 24.

William S. Brown and J. Carl Witter motored to Worcester Tuesday to attend a sale of pure bred Holstein cattle.

PUTNAM

The Putnam-Providence highway is not only a broad road to destruction for rum-runners but it has a reputation for being the location of more automobile accidents than any other road in this vicinity. There was one that happened on the night of the 24th of last October when a car owned by Edward Williams of this city and one owned by Emil Remillard of Woonsocket, R. I., came together between Putnam and Chepatchet. In the Williams' car was his wife and Mr. and Mrs. Julien Tattoon and their small child. There were other people beside Remillard in his car.

Before the accident Remillard estimated the value of his car as more than $750, after the collision he sold it for $175. He claims that the accident was due to Williams and brought suit to recover his loss. Williams says Remillard was in fault and the suit was tried Tuesday in superior court before Judge Frank D. Haines. Charles L. Torrey represented the plaintiff and E. C. Morse the defendant. One of the chief witnesses was A. L. Hawkins, town marshal of Chepatchet who was at the site of the accident shortly after it occurred.

Judge Haines reserved decision.

At the Methodist church in North Grosvenordale, Saturday evening, March 7th, Mr. and Mrs. Frederick Lynch of that town celebrated their silver wedding. In the presence of 160 friends, with Rev. Wilbur Newton of Attawaugan officiating, they went through the same ceremony as 25 years ago. The bride was dressed in blue silk crepe and wore a white silk picture hat and carried a bouquet of red roses. Their son, Reyburn, escorted her to the altar and Mrs. Frank Shepard, their oldest daughter, dressed in blue silk crepe, accompanied her father. Their daughter, Nina, wearing a pink crepe gown, and their cousin, Leroy Adams, of Danielson, were also of the wedding party and stood up with the couple.

Miss Vivian Newton played the wedding march.

After an informal reception an invitation was extended everyone present to remain for the entertainment and lunch. During the latter part of the evening music was furnished by Leach's orchestra of Wauregan, consisting of Mr. and Mrs. Leach and their two daughters, Mildred and Florence. Mrs. Wilfred C. Mills of Wilsonville gave two readings and pleased so much that she was encored each time. Mrs. Thelma Shepard played a Beethoven Sonata, she was also encored. Ryeburn Lynch sang a comic song which was well received.

While ice cream and cake were being served the orchestra played popular selections. Mr. and Mrs. Albert Copeland made the wedding cake. There were many beautiful presents from Ryeburn Lynch, a glass and silver serving tray; son-in-law and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. Frank Shepard, a silver gravy ladle; Mr. and Mrs. Henry Leach, Mr. and Mrs. Newton and Peter Talabac, each gave a glass casserole; Mr. and Mrs. Henry Kemp, silver berry spoon; Mr. and Mrs. Jondreau, Mr. and Mrs. Chaffe and Miss Molly Walsh, each a dozen spoons; Mrs. Berry Thompson, one-half dozen spoons; serving spoon, Mrs. Gertrude Austin, Mrs. G. P. and Orrin Austin; from their friends in Grosvenordale mills, a purse of $32; from Myron Cutler, $10; and money and other gifts from other friends including six pieces of tableware.

The Pin Shop of Putnam has organized a checker team which under the leadership of H. K. Burton went to North Grosvenordale where a win over the North Grosvenordale team was made in a tourney held in the American Legion rooms. Each man on both teams played a game with every man on the other. H. K. Burton, Lionel Bernier and W. Dupre, all of the Pin Shop made the best scores in this match, the score of which was 42 to 26 with thirteen draw games.

East Woodstock's bachelor bowlers beat the married men of the same village at alleys in Putnam. After losing the first string the single men came back strong and cleaned up the rest of the match. Bert Bosworth of the winning team was high man.

Godfried Swanson of Thompson was awarded damages of $94.04 by Judge Rieufort of the First District court, Webster, in a civil action wherein the plaintiff sought to recover from John Kroll, a Webster taxi driver, for money loaned. The defendant put in a counter-claim for $142 alleged to be due him for taxi hire, but on this judgment was also in favor of the Thompson man. According to the testimony of the plaintiff he loaned the money to the defendant during an automobile deal. The defendant testified that he had taken the plaintiff on several trips in his taxi and had not been paid, which was denied by the plaintiff.

Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Rosoff have gone to Boston and will attend the automobile show.

The quarterly county poultry meeting conducted by the Windham County Farmers' association, poultry division, will be held at Grange hall, Brooklyn, Friday, March 13, with the following programme:

2 p. m.—Question box.

Onisime Grenier, 68, committed suicide by hanging himself to a bedpost Saturday afternoon at his home in Grosvenordale. Despondency is believed to be the cause of the act. He was found by a member of the family when went into his bedroom shortly after one o'clock. With a short, thin rope fastened around his neck, he hung near the floor, strangled. One end of the rope was attached to the top rail of the bed.

No reason could be given for the act other than that he has been out of work for more than a year and was despondent over the fact. Officer Neri Codeere was called and medical aid was also summoned. A report of the medical examinter showed that death was due to strangulation. Permission was given an undertaker to prepare the body for burial. Besides his wife, he is survived by seven children, four of whom are married. He was born in Canada and has lived in Grosvenordale for a number of years, being employed in the mills of that town. The funeral was held Tuesday morning.

... and then he changed to Blackstone

Who wins?

Your Cigar or Your Matches?

It was one of those light-up and die-out cigars. And this smoker had struck three choked-draft cigars in a string. And then he changed to Blackstone.

This is what he discovered: There isn't a poor-drawing Blackstone in a thousand. There isn't a bitter puff in a box full. There isn't a leaf of any tobacco but costly, fragrant Havana in the Blackstone filler.

It's this unchanging goodness which accounts for the fact that nearly half of all Blackstones are bought in pocket packages of 5 and 10 foil-wrapped cigars — the same mild, full-sized Blackstones as those sold from the cedar boxes. It will pay you, too, to change to Blackstone.

Blackstone was a fine cigar 52 years ago. It was even finer 10 years ago. It is at its very finest in this year of 1925!

ANNOUNCEMENTS

Clothing Demonstration Postponed.

The talk and demonstration of color and design in clothing by Miss Edith Mason, clothing specialist of the Connecticut Agricultural college, to be given at the church in Bozrah street, Lebanon, Wednesday, March 25, has been postponed to Friday, March 27, at the same time.

Breed Theater

The passing of the Old West, the cattle barons, and the tremendous herds of cattle which roamed the plains, has been immortalized in Sundown to be shown at the Breed theater beginning tomorrow.

The news feature of the announcement is that the picture will be fact rather than fiction. The big scenes in the photoplays were taken during the movement of the largest herd in the history of the West.

The tremendous movement of cattle began at First, National cameras ground. The cattle more than 100,000, converged from the north rim of the Grand Canyon, from Flagstaff, Ariz., Columbus, N. M., and Texas, and were driven south to Mexico.

As battery of ten camermen rode with the cowpunchers.

The movement of the cattle was made necessary by the encroachment of the smaller farmer—the "nester" in the vernacular of the cattlemen—whose small farms and holdings year by year are slowly driving the big range into comparatively small ranches.

This epic of today, the passing of the big herds with adventure and romance is the theme of Sundown for which scenes of the big cattle runs were taken, as a historical background for the romantic love story told by the stellar cast of which Hobart Bosworth, Bessie Love, Roy Stewart, Charlie Murray, Arthur Hoyt, Charles Sellon, Charles B. Crockett, Bernard Randall, Wilfred North, Hal Wilson and Jere Austin were members.

A roaring Mack Sennett comedy titled The Half Back of Notre Dame, Bennie Leonard in Flying Fists and the Fox news make up the remainder of the bill. Owing to the length of this bill there will be but two shows daily at 2:15 and 7:30 P. M.

Palace Theatre.

Ed Coville opens the show with a swinging trapeze act and does some wonderful and daring stunts. Harry Beeson, the Broadway entertainer is very clever with his snappy sayings and jokes and is a fifteen minutes of good wit and humor. Emmery Sisters made a decided hit. Leon and Mitz are a very clever single-hand balancing act and makes the audience hold their breath. Mack and Fern are two clever rube steppers and provide great entertainment. Adele and Doris are two six year old youngsters and are a very clever pair of song and dance comediennes which make up a perfect seven act bill.

The feature picture is Breath of Scandal with Betty Blythe, Lou Tellegen and Patsy Ruth Miller. Here is what Lou Tellegen says about Scandal:

Scandal is a blight on harmonious civilization. The Peace Award should have been made to the person through whose lips scandal has never passed.

Broadway Theater

Roy Rogers hails from Erie where he was a policeman but he was not the ordinary type of policeman. He was an athlete of the Jiu-Jitsu kind and so he was in charge of the physical training of the Erie Force. Then he sought for new worlds to conquer and as he conquered he learned. He began knocking around the world. In the far east he learned to juggle and to conjure. In Spain he learned to twang the guitar and the mandolin and he kept on learning until he had eleven different accomplishments to his credit.

Then he followed the stand of most accomplished people and went on the stage and as an actor he scored a hit in practically every part of the world. When he came home he did not return to Erie but continued as an actor playing the principal American theaters. For this purpose he has produced an act called Kicks of 1925. He has the support of several girls and the kicks are all the dancing kind. It is a fast speedy dancing act with Mr. Rogers doing a miscellaneous assortment of stunts and providing novelties as well as fun.

This is only one of the big Keith acts that is scheduled for the Broadway theater the last half of this week. Here is a show that you are going to rave about.

Strand Theatre

Who would think that a few ants could change the course of a man's life. They weren't trained either.

In "Horse-Sense" an Arrow 'Great-Western' playing at the Strand Theatre next week, Dick Hatton meditates long and deeply on the endless perseverance of the ants.

On the same program will be Kenneth McDonald in "Yankee Speed." This picture was recently advertised at the Strand but at the last minute was delayed in transit and did not reach Norwich in time for showing, however it will positively be at the Strand today and Thursday. In Yankee Speed this clever screen dare devil will be seen in feats that cause the average person to wonder how a man can do them and still come up smiling. The Strand management announces for Friday night as an added attraction a real old fashioned country store will be held and twenty prizes each one worth ten times the amount of admission will be given away. The capital prize costing more than twenty five dollars will be a gift worth while.

As Utterly Different In Results Now As a Year Ago

To the best of our knowledge there had never been a 3-inch motor capable of producing 68 horsepower, a speed of 70 miles an hour, with gasoline economy safely over 20 miles to the gallon, until the Chrysler Six arrived on the market last year. There is no other today.

That is what scientific engineering in the way of perfected gas distribution, special combustion chambers and heat distribution does for the Chrysler Six.

There has never before been a motor in which all sense of vibration has been so completely eliminated, never before a car in which side-sway and road-weaving are absent, never before a car with an overall length of 160 inches that afforded so much usable space—generously roomy for five large adults.

Examples might be cited by the score. But you can see for yourself how utterly different the Chrysler Six is and why the eager public bought more than 32,000 Chrysler cars the first year, if you drive the car but a few minutes. We are anxious to give you a Chrysler ride, to prove it the best-built car you ever sat in.

RAIDING THE COUNTRYSIDE.

Along with the changing conditions which have stimulated the belief that spring is near at hand, there will soon be a flocking to the countryside of those who admire and revere. Perhaps there are sections which have felt that they suffered more than others. There is no certainty of a general distribution of depredations, but with wails coming from various states it becomes evident that human nature is more or less alike whether it is encountered in Connecticut, out in Indiana, or elsewhere.

That that class of persons who considers it has a perfect right to raid the property of others, taking away crops of one kind or another, trees flowers and most anything that strikes the fancy, is not entirely local is disclosed by the complaint of the Hoosier Horticulture, which says:

"The open season for autoists is near and the farmer will soon have his religious convictions sorely tried by those who take unwarranted liberties with his property and make their getaway before he can eventually vent his indignation. Branches of apples and peaches full blown make beautiful decorations and the fact that they do serious damage to the trees by breaking and splitting branches never appears to enter their heads. Then later; what do a few apples and peaches amount to? They just grow without any effort on the farmer's part. Why shouldn't he divide? Wild flowers are eagerly sought and are fast disappearing from our meadows and woodlands which were formerly carpeted with bright hued flowers every spring. It is only just to admit that the great majority of autoists have a regard for the property of others, but the minority, which by the way do not always drive the cheapest cars, is sufficient to do untold damage. Where it is possible to get the name or auto number of this class of depredators, legal and fine for trespass, with accompanying publicity will make them cautious in the future."

This is a complaint that will make an appeal to a large number of people. Unless we are mistaken it will be regarded as rather a mild complaint in comparison with what might be said or what many people experience. Nevertheless the desirability of giving depredators the kind of treatment and lesson they deserve is certain to arouse a widespread sense of outrage.

A MUSCLE SHOAL COMMISSION.

Probably in a few days it will be known whether the president will [illegible] appears that have been [illegible] to name a commission [illegible] matter of making a study of the Muscle Shoals proposition before [illegible] and the time for the next congress to convene. Nothing can be done about the war ? time limit on which the government has control much money until congress [illegible]. Perhaps congress would not be disposed to listen to the recommendations of a commission, but it is evident that the idea of a commission has been previously advocated by the president and there is now time for congress to act without causing any delay in disposing of the matter.

As for the matter of government operation of the plant it has been definitely determined that such is not [illegible]. There is a desire that the government should get out of it all [illegible] possible that it should safeguard the national interests therein and that the matter should not be allowed to drag along indefinitely.

Many plans have been said about the plant one way and another. Offers for it have been made and it is not improbable that prejudice has prevented a fair consideration of such. That all that was to be gained from the proposal of Henry Ford in withdrawing his offer, including the impression was evidently that he had offered far less than it was worth [illegible] a commission of experts could be trained to take into consideration the various phases of the proposition, the power possibilities, the fertilizer side, the production of nitrogen for use in case of war and present the whole matter in a comprehensive manner there would then be before congress facts upon which there should be need for no long delay in arriving at a decision as to what is the best thing for the government to do.

With time in which to do its work the services of a nonpolitical commission equipped to go thoroughly into the engineering features of the proposition should do much to hasten the disposition of Muscle Shoals.

IS BASEBALL SLIPPING?

That was a statement which is said to get much attention when John L. Griffith, executive vice president of the National Amateur Athletic Federation, said that the great American game of baseball is being deserted by the young Americans.

We can hear plenty of demands for proof from all points of the compass. Some who haven't been cognizant of [illegible] deduction of interest will seek an explanation, and others will have facts of their own to submit to prove the contrary. Perhaps there are those who have seen the conditions that Mr. Griffith has, and share his views, but whether there is support for his opinion there will be followed with no little concern the outcome of the effort which the federation is to make to demonstrate the advantages of baseball as a healthful sport to 30,000,000 American boys.

Baseball invariably appeals to the youngsters regardless of the healthful feature. That would of course reinforce the arguments of the boys when parental opposition was encountered, but as for other sports replacing baseball it is believed it will be a long, long time before that great game is shelved by the boys.

Investigations no doubt have disclosed that there is less ball playing in the streets, that much interest is found in golf, tennis, basketball and football. Topspinning and marble playing might be included, but none of these take the place of baseball. Where ball playing is curtailed in the streets because of the automobile traffic it is forced to go elsewhere. Where it is restricted because of building activities it moves to the outskirts, or to playgrounds. These other sports have their attraction in their season, but with the exception of golf and tennis they do not conflict with baseball, the great outdoor game for the development of individuality and teamwork, and unquestionably a healthful sport.

We should hate to think that the boys of the present day are less keen than their fathers for the great American game.

THOSE IN GLASS HOUSES.

For some time it has been the evident purpose of Senator Couzens to discredit the work of Secretary Mellon of the treasury department. He has shown his animosity on several occasions, and it has been no secret that his attitude has caused the resort to personalities.

Senator Couzens didn't appear in the best light concerning his opposition to the elimination of the tax exempt securities, when it was established that he was paying an income tax on a very small amount while the great bulk of his big fortune is tied up in tax exempt securities.

In connection with the disclosures which has made as the result of investigation of the treasury department there is pointed out certain conduct by that department through the internal revenue bureau which is held up for criticism without giving any explanation of the situation. Departmental explanations put an entirely different light on the matter.

When, however, the treasury department indicates that Senator Couzens' income tax of 1919 must be reopened for the assessment of $10,000,000 or more in taxes which should have been paid but were not, the senator from Michigan is again receiving publicity about what he doesn't like but clearly it is only what he has invited.

If his aim is to pick flaws in what has been done concerning others, but intentionally overlooking what has been done in his case and perhaps with others, he has made a serious mistake. As he prolonge what appears to be a personal contest with the secretary of the treasury he fails to make any headway. Those in glass houses ought not to be throwing stones.

INJUSTICE RECOGNIZED.

When there was a move made recently on the part of the New York port authority to have the New Haven and Pennsylvania roads permit the New York Central to use the Hell Gate bridge jointly with them for the movement of freight destined to localities which that expensive piece of road building serves, it was opposed by the New Haven. That opposition took such form and was apparently so sound in its reasoning that the port authority was convinced that it would be unjust to undertake to push through its endeavor.

The port authority was desirous of relieving the congestion in the waters of New York harbor by having the freight which the New York Central transports on floats moved over the rail system in question. The aim was for relief in one direction without consideration for the effect which such relief would have upon the railroad system affected. The New York Central had no reason to object any more than a child would that had been offered candy. The New Haven did object and it presented its objections to competition of that character in such a convincing manner that the effort to better the traffic situation by such a move has been abandoned.

The situation might have been different had the New Haven not had ample facilities for rendering the very service which the port authority was endeavoring to make easy for a competitor. The difficulty of convincing the New Haven that it ought to bear the injurious economic effects of relieving New York's barber jam is apparent.

COULDN'T UNDERSTAND.

The old-fashioned grandmother folded her hands and sighed as her very young granddaughter hung up the telephone. "I was trying to follow your conversation, my dear," said the old-fashioned grandmother, "but I could not quite make out what you were discussing."

"Marian was handing me the raspberry," explained the young girl, and I must say I wasn't so good with the applesauce."

"Some kind of canning that you girls are doing in your cooking classes, perhaps," hazarded the grandmother.

"Canning!" echoed the young girl. "Believe me, I wish I had done some canning last night! I should have shown a certain goof out the window on his ear. Still, the great heart began to beat with compash, and I couldn't do it. I'm just a young girl trying to get along, I said to myself, and anyway all roads lead to East Egg."

Her grandmother stared at her in amazement. "I simply don't understand you, my dear. I come from a town where English is spoken."

"I begin to comprehend you," said the grandmother slowly. "For instance when you say, 'be yourself' as you do twenty or thirty times in the course of any conversation, you mean that you think fun is being poked at you, or that a jest is intended. Am I right?"

"Stop spoofing is what I mean, or come out of it, or let's see," the young girl wrinkled her brows in thought and then brightened as she explained 'quit kidding.' That's what 'be yourself' means. But no! It means more than that; it means, lay off the Ritz."

'Lay off the Ritz is a new one,' said the grandmother. 'Does that mean stop joking?"

"Oh no!" said the young girl in alarm. "It means—oh you know! It means, where do you get that J. P. Morgan stuff. You see if I had strutted the Ritz myself last night when the bunch were high-hatting this poor plug, I wouldn't have got stuck with the askcan—"

"You got stuck in an askcan!"

"With one," corrected the young girl, "not in one. An ashcan is an egg with a shoddy line. As I said before, this visiting askcan from Philadelphia was a frost with the bunch, and, believe me, he would have passed out cold if it hadn't been for the well-known heart! I felt sorry for the poor nut and instead of strutting my stuff for the home team I play up to the wandering Romeo out of pure Polyanna. Naturally the girls gave me the razz about it."

"Why didn't the other girls like this boy?" asked the grandmother.

"Too quiet,' said the granddaughter. 'You've got to shake a mean ankle. Pash those girls understand, but not compash, so this ashcan—"

"This young man who is visiting, you mean? I see, but what did you mean by saying that you were quite young and that all roads lead to East Egg? That rather interests."

"Oh, grandma, be your—I mean, you understand," said the young girl. "I said I was a young girl trying to get along—that's just an expression and it means that I don't intend to go dead on any party, and as far as all roads leading to East Egg goes you ought to know that if you've studied history or literature or anything."

"I have certainly heard the expression all roads lead to Rome," said the grandmother, "but that means that if you can't get to your destination one way you can go another."

"Righto, grandmother! I told you not to try to be upstage. You know as well as anybody that I meant that every ashcan you get is so much velvet, cause no girl can step out with a shiek every night. And this Wesley Briggs is going to be here all winter—"

"Wesley Briggs?" echoed her grandmother. "Wesley Briggs of Philadelphia? Why I know his family well, and they are most attractive people. Wesley is the youngest child but he comes into a million dollars when he is 21, and he also played on the football team during his sophomore years at Yale, which makes him quite popular in Philadelphia. A very quiet boy though I don't suppose he told anybody any of these things—why, where are you going, child?"

The young girl had risen and was dancing across the room to the telephone with the greatest hilarity. "I'm on my way to pass the applesauce right back to that bunch of dumb-bells who picked Wesley for an ashcan last night," she cried.—Chicago News.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Onion Hill

Mr. Editor: Your correspondent in Plainfield is away off on "Onion Hill," Onion Hill was so named on account of Henry C. Starkweather, father of the Henry we all call "Pen," making onion raising a success on the land afterward used as a ball ground for many years. Mr. Starkweather was not only the most live political man in town, a general all around good fellow, but he proved to "Joe Hutchins" that onions could be raised in Plainfield. He also went from farm to farm planting onions and instructing in their culture.

From then the hill was known as Onion Hill. Mr. Starkweather used to pay the boys well to help him weed onions and the writer was one of them.

BURGESS BEDTIME STORIES

A Dinner for One Instead of Two

Now the world is ruled by might. Instead of being ruled by right.
—Plunger the Osprey.

Flying straight up the Big River high in the air Plunger the Osprey moved swiftly. It wasn't long before his wonderful eyes saw far, far ahead of him a speck. He knew that speck was Mrs. Plunger. As soon as he was near enough he called to her. It was a shrill whistle that could be heard a long distance. Mrs. Plunger answered it and flew to meet him.

He paid not the slightest attention to them

"What luck, my dear?" cried Plunger as soon as he was near enough to talk.

Mrs. Plunger shook her head. "Poor luck," said she. "I've caught only one small fish. It was hardly a mouthful. What are you looking so excited for?"

"I told you I was going to catch the biggest fish I could find to celebrate the finishing of our new home, didn't I?"

Mrs. Plunger nodded. "You did," said she. "Where is it?"

"It was so big that I couldn't bring it!" cried Plunger. "I had to leave it on the shore because I couldn't lift it in the air." Then he told her all about his adventure with the big fish and how near to being drowned he had been. "So as soon as I could fly I hurried to get you. We'll go back down there and have a wonderful feast. That fish is plenty big enough for two," concluded Plunger.

Together they started back to where Plunger had left the big fish on the shore. They flew swiftly, and it wasn't long before those wonderful eyes of Plunger's could see the place where he had left the big fish. And they saw something else. There was some one sitting by that big fish. Worse still, that someone was very busy. At that distance Plunger couldn't see just what was happening, but he could guess. That some one was eating the fish with which he had planned to celebrate with Mrs. Plunger.

With a scream of anger Plunger increased his speed. Now Mrs. Plunger also saw what was going on, and she too screamed with anger. "Thief! Thief! Thief! Leave that fish alone! It is ours. Go away from it, you big robber!" screamed the Plungers as they swooped and circled above the place where the big fish had been left.

A pair of fierce, yellow eyes looked up at them from a snowy white head. Then as calmly as if the two big Fish Hawks were nowhere about, King Eagle resumed his feast. Already he had torn apart and eaten a large part of that fish. But there was still enough left for Mrs. Plunger to see what a big fish it had been. Whistling, screaming, Plunger and Mrs. Plunger darted and plunged and whistling wings as close to King Eagle as they dared. He paid not the slightest attention to them. For a few moments he went on with his feast. Then, with the remainder of that fish in his great claws, he spread his great wings and took to the air. He was taking that fish home.

For a short distance Plunger and Mrs. Plunger wheeled about him, screaming, "Robber! Robber!" at him. Then they gave it up. They knew it was useless. They did not dare attack King Eagle. The feast they had counted on for two had become a feast for one, and that one the only one who could take a dinner away from them. From far away King Eagle had seen the struggle of Plunger with the big fish. He had arrived just after Plunger had left to look for Mrs. Plunger. Had Plunger remained he would have lost the fish just the same. King Eagle would have taken it away from him.

IN THE PUBLIC EYE

America's oldest art body the National Academy of Design, which is now celebrating its centenary, has as its president Edwin Howland Blashfield, one of the most popular, successful, and civically useful of the mural painters of the country. After the customary study of art in Paris and exhibitions of his work at the Paris Salon and at the Royal Academy, London, Mr. Blashfield returned to New York City, where he was born, and for several years exhibited genre pictures, portraits and symbolic works like his well known Christmas Bells and The Angel With the Flaming Sword. With the advent of the Columbian Exposition in 1893 he had a chance to swing out into the decorative and mural adornment form of art, which he has since followed with much pecuniary and professional success. In the homes of millionaires throughout the country, and in public buildings, churches and university halls he has made his record permanent.

NURSERYMEN ARE AGAINST ESTABLISHING STATE NURSERY

Four weeks having passed since the legislative committee on state parks and reservations gave a hearing on a bill authorizing the state park and forest commission to establish and maintain a state nursery for reforestation with the proceeds of a state bond issue of $5,000,000, a report from the committee is expected within a few days. This bill was introduced by Representative Edwin A. Buck, democrat of Ashford and was mentioned for attention at the democratic caucus two weeks ago.

Undismayed at the vehement opposition from all sections of the state expressed at the hearing, the proponents of the bill are still trying to get a favorable report, or at laest a divided majority and minority report. They are handicapped by a situation cited at the committee hearing arising from the action of a prominent water company in the southwestern section of the state which several years ago purchased seedling stock from the state and then after growing it for a few years sold it to private individuals.

The Connecticut Nurserymen's Association composed of 125 heavy tax payers and large employers of labor is flatly opposed to the bill—objecting not so much to the given purposes as which they claim will be quite the opposite of the stated objects. W. W. McCartney of New Haven, says he recently retrned from an inspection of nurseries as far west as Chicago and "there is absolutely no shortage of planting stock." Former president, Henry W. Gottschalk of Manchester doubts that the products of a state nursery would be used exclusively for reforestation of state lands and adds: —"Such stock may be bought on the market cheaper than the state can grow it, provided the overhead cost of planting and handling is charged to the stock and not to some obscure item of state administration."

The nurserymen claim the proposition in the Buck bill, aside from the fiscal wisdom of a big bond issue, is mentioned for attention at the democratic caucus two weeks ago.

After all else failed, Kellogg's ALL-BRAN brought sure relief from constipation

Constipation exacts a telling price. Its hideous poisons lead to over forty devastating diseases. But let Mrs. Rench, of Iowa, tell her story:

Kellogg's ALL-BRAN is the very best I ever used for chronic constipation. I have used all kinds of medicine and nothing helped me like ALL-BRAN. It has such a nice flavor and it is cheaper than paying out hundreds of dollars seeking relief.

Yours truly,
Mrs. A. P. Rench,
Box 167, Marcus, Iowa.

Don't neglect constipation. Drive its terrible poisons out of your system. Eat Kellogg's ALL-BRAN regularly—two tablespoonfuls daily, or in chronic cases, with every meal. ALL-BRAN brings sure, permanent relief. It is what doctors call a bulk food. It sweeps the intestine clean and stimulates normal, natural action.

Kellogg's ALL-BRAN is ready-to-eat with milk or cream. Also try the recipes given on the package. Results guaranteed or your grocer returns the purchase price. Made in Battle Creek, Mich. Served in leading hotels and restaurants. Sold by all grocers.

Rub the Chest

For Deep, Heavy Colds

Here is the best way to get rid of a bad cold. First apply hot wet towels over throat and chest to open the pores of the skin.

Then massage briskly with Vicks for five minutes, spread on thickly and cover with two thicknesses of hot flannel cloths. Leave the bedclothing loose about the neck so that the vapors arising may be freely inhaled. These vapors, inhaled with each breath, carry the medication directly to the affected parts.

At the same time Vicks is absorbed through and stimulates the skin, helping the vapors inhaled to relieve tightness and soreness.

Mrs. Henrietta Adelaide Randall, widow of Captain Jason L. Randall, died at her home, 67 Ramsdell street, Groton, at 9.30 o'clock, Monday night after an illness of five weeks from a second attack of cerebral hemorrhage. Mrs. Randall suffered a shock shortly after the death of her husband two years ago. Her second attack was more severe than the first and resulted in her death Monday.

Mrs. Randall was born in Ledyard October 30, 1856, the daughter of Stephen Morgan Stoddard and Henrietta Allyn. When she was 20 years of age she attended Wilbraham Academy, at Wilbraham, Mass. Upon graduating from Wilbraham she taught school for a short time in Ledyard and the next two years in Waterford, where she was married to Captain Jason L. Randall who originally came from Long Island.

Captain and Mrs. Randall lived in Groton for 42 years, during the greater part of which they resided in the house in which she died.

Mrs. Randall was a strong advocate of temperance and for 20 years she was president of the New London County Women's Christian Temperance Union, of which she was still a member at the time of her death. She was president of the Women's Foreign Missionary society of the Congregational church until her death. Mrs. Randall was a devout member of the Congregational church and was also a member of the Anna Warner Bailey chapter, Daughters of the American Revolution.

She is survived by a daughter, Miss Adelaide Randall, who lived with her mother, a son, Henry R. Randall of Denver, Col., who is district manager for the General Electric Co., Henry D. Randall is married and is the father of two children, Henry D. Randall, Jr., and Hart Randall. Mrs. Randall is also survived by two brothers, James Stoddard of Long Cove, near Gales Ferry, and Albert Stoddard of Vallejo, Cal.

Mrs. Joseph M. Fitch.

Monday morning at 8.45, Mrs. Annie Fitch, widow of Joseph M. Fitch, passed away at the home of her niece, Mrs. Minnie Kelsey, 8 Maple street, after a short illness.

Mrs. Fitch came on a visit from her home in Waterford six weeks ago. Mrs. Fitch was born in Ireland 84 years ago. She is survived by an only sister, Mrs. Margaret Chapel of Montville and several nieces and nephews in Montville, New London, Norwich and Plainfield, N. J., and a granddaughter, Mrs. Roy Harrison of Jersey City, N. J.

The funeral was held a funeral parlors in New London at 1 o'clock Tuesday afternoon. The Rev. George H. Strouse of the Jordan Baptist church officiated. Burial was in Great Neck cemetery, Waterford.

Mrs. William A. Thompson

In failing health since she suffered a shock Feb. 28, Jane C. McNelly, widow of William A. Thompson, passed peacefully away Monday evening, at her home, 48 Otis street. She suffered a second shock Sunday, March 1, and had been unconscious since then. During her final illness, her daughter-in-law, Mrs. Philip E. Thompson, came from New York and tenderly cared for her until the end.

Mrs. Thompson was the daughter of Henry and Jane English McNelly and was born in Norwich Sept. 11, 1843, and was married here Sept. 24, 1868 by Rev. H. C. Kinney to William Adolphus Thompson, whose death occurred Oct. 1, 1909. She was the mother of three sons, William C., Harry A., and Philip E., all newspaper men, and all having passed away before the death of their mother.

Kindly and charitable in her disposition, she was ever ready to extend a helping hand to those in need and in her more active years had given much of her time to the work of the United Workers of Norwich. She was a devout member of Trinity Episcopal church and for a number of years was a member of the Parish Aid of the church.

FUNERALS

William A. Hawes

The funeral of William A. Hawes was held from the United Congregational church Teday afternoon at 4:30 o'clock with a large attendance of relatives and friends. The service was conducted by Rev. Alexander H. Abbott, pastor of the church, and burial took place in the family plot at Yantic cemetery. The bearers were Dwight L. Allen, Herbert B. Cary, Frank A. Bill and Herbert W. Gallup. Rev. Mr. Abbott conducted a committal service at the grave.

The Henry Allen & Son Co., were in charge of the funeral arrangements.

Alfred V. Van Buren

The funeral of Alfred V. Van Buren, who died suddenly Friday at Miami, Fla., was held from his home, 200 Elk avenue, New Rochelle, N. Y., Tuesday morning.

At the Holy Family church at 10.30 o'clock, requiem high mass was celebrated. Burial was in Woodlawn Cemetery. Relatives from Norwich were in attendance.

Karl H. Hoefer

The funeral of Karl H. Hoefer was held Tuesday afternoon at 2 o'clock at his home, 2 Highland avenue, Taftville, with Rev. H. Hunzinger, pastor of the First German Lutheran church, conducting the service. There were many beautiful floral remembrances. Burial was in the family plot in Yantic cemetery where Rev. Mr. Hunzinger read the committal service. The bearers, four brothers-in-law, were Erhardt Bauer, Alwin Kampf, Martin Kraus and Henry Hedler.

Relatives and friends from New Bedford, Willimantic and other places attended the services including delegations from the Sons of Hermann and the Taftville Maennerchor of which Mr. Hoefer was a member.

Undertaker George G. Grant of Taftville was in charge of the funeral arrangements.

On College Committee

Robert H. Gremley of Mystic and E. Gerton Rogers of New London are among five Connecticut students at the College of Business Administration, Boston University, who have been appointed to the freshman service committee of the college.

AUTOMOBILE BATTERY AND RADIO SET STOLEN FROM JOHNSON STORE

Sometime Tuesday evening the Johnson Co., auto supply store at No. 107 Franklin street was broken into and a radio set and an automobile battery stolen. The break was discovered about 10.30 o'clock by Officer Patrick Shahan while making his rounds. Officer Shahan noticed a small piece of glass broken in one of the windows at the back part of the store. The chief had broken the glass and reaching inside removed a prop set against the window frame and opening the window crawled inside the store.

John O. Johnson, manager of the store, was notified and an investigation revealed the fact that a radio and the battery were missing.

During Monday night attempts were made to get into The Household and the Providence bakery on Franklin street, but without success. The would be burglars tried the panel of a door and a window.

BIRTHDAY CAKE PRESENTED HOME CHAPTER ANNIVERSARY

When the March meeting of Home Chapter of the King's Daughters was held Mopday afternoon at the Johnson Home, there was an unusually large attendance, 75 members being present.

The 28th anniversary of the chapter was observed at this meeting at which the leader, Mrs. William E. Manning, presided. The chapter was organized March 29, 1897, having first formed a circle of five members, of which Mrs. Benjamin Lewis, chairman of the house committee, is the only active member of the original five.

The membership had to increase to 50 before the organization could become a chapter and work for one object. Having once been formed, Home chapter's principal object was to provide a home for worthy Protestant women.

In the course of ten years, through solicitations and contributions, the chapter raised a sufficient amount to enable it to purchase the original Sterry mansion at Norwich Town, situated at the corner of Town and West Town streets, now known as the Johnson Home, named in memory of Mrs. Martha Johnson of Norwich. The chapter has steadily grown until now its membership is about 150.

At the meeting Monday, after the introductory exercises, reports were submitted and approved and the reception of new members took place, one new member being voted on.

It was announced that during the past month, the sewing society has made several garments for a local institution. A silver collection was taken. Mrs. Charles Burke sang and also responded to an encore. Mrs. John Olsen accompanying at the piano. In honor of the anniversary two potted plants were presented the chapter by Mrs. Abner A. Robinson and these became the property of the Johnson Home at the close of the meeting.

A pleasing feature of the afternoon was the musical guessing contest. While the leader, Mrs. Manning, read the story, Mrs. John Olsen at the piano at intervals played several old familiar melodies, the titles of which were guessed by those present. These names, Annie Laurie, Ben Bolt, etc., when guessed, furnished the necessary word as Mrs. Manning paused, thereby enabling her to continue with the story.

A social hour followed when, under the direction of Mrs. Charles Marsh, chairman of the entertainment committee, ice cream and cake were served. Enough was provided so that members of the Johnson Home family shared in the treat. The hostesses assigned to assist Mrs. Marsh were a former leader, Mrs. John C. Atterbury, Mrs. Arthur Armstrong, Mrs. John Botham, Mrs. Herbert R. Branche, Mrs. Charles S. Burke, Mrs. Albert Boardman, Mrs. Samuel Billings, Mrs. Frank Avery, Mrs. Charles Burdick and Mrs. William Bell, all having responded except the last three mentioned.

The next meeting of Home Chapter sewing society is to be held at the home of Mrs. William H. Whiteman of West Town street, next Tuesday, members to assemble at 10 o'clock for an all day sewing bee.

One other feature in re[illegible]on of the chapter's anniversary, was a large decorated birthday cake, presented by Mrs. Herbert R. Branche. The cake was frosted white and the inscription, Home Chapter—1897-1925—was done in chocolate. This was cut and distributed.

MRS. ROOSEVELT WRITES TO JOHN R. BOWMAN, JR.

Reference was made earlier in the week to the interest in which Mrs. Theodore Roosevelt always shows in Norwich and its residents.

This was demonstrated by a message received by John R. Bowman, Jr., of 23 Greene avenue, from Mrs. Roosevelt, just before she sailed for Europe Saturday. When in New York recently, Mr. Bowman visited the Roosevelt estate, Sagamore Hill, at Oyster Bay, but Mrs. Roosevelt was not at home. The caller left his card with her secretary, explaining that his home in Norwich was not far from the house in which Mrs. Roosevelt was born.

Under date of March 3rd, the following card came from Mrs. Roosevelt:

My dear Mr. Bowman:

You did exactly the right thing in calling. I only regret that I have been kept away in Chicago with Mrs. Longworth and missed the pleasure of seeing you.

Perhaps you will come to New York again.

Sincerely yours,

EDITH KERMIT ROOSEVELT.

The letter came franked from New York, the widow of the former president having that privilege.

STARTING TREE PLANTING MOVEMENT IN CITY

At the suggestion of the zoning committee of the Chamber of Commerce of which Walter F. Lester is chairman, it is proposed that more shade trees shall be planted in the city. Residents of certain streets are to be asked to plant shade trees on their property, inside the sidewalk line, thus enhancing the beauty of the streets from both a civic and a private point of view.

Lindens or hard maples are to be the trees suggested for planting, and if enough of the property owners express their willingness to fall in with the suggestion, it is expected that the trees can be set for $2.50 each, including the price of the tree and the planting.

POLICE FIRE SHOTS AFTER TIRE THIEF

Police are on the lookout for Frank Knowles of Water street, Mystic, whose abandoned Ford coupe was found in Noank Tuesday morning after a similar car driven by a man had led the officers a chase from Stonington through Mystic, the driver meanwhile throwing out four tires, which he was seen taking from a truck in front of Bousa's garage at Stonington Monday night.

As the fleeing car passed through Mystic, the police fired a volley of bullets at him, but he kept on and made his escape.

JAIL SENTENCES AND FINES GIVEN IN LIQUOR CASES

Fines and costs collected by the city court Tuesday morning amounted to nearly $300. Carlo De Sauter, charged with actual sale of liquor at 24 North Thames street and illegal transportation, was presented before Judge Arthur F. Libby. After several witnesses had testified for the state the accused changed his plea of not guilty to guilty and Judge Libby imposed a fine of $200 and costs and 30 days in jail, on the actual sale charge and on the second count, illegal transportation sentenced the accused to 90 days in jail. He paid his fine and went to jail to serve the two sentences, 120 days in all.

Witnesses for the state were State Policeman Fred Caron and State Policeman Henry Watson, Police Sergeant Myron O. Morgan and Officer Henry Fenton of the local police force. They testified to going to the accused's place at No. 24 North Thames street, Monday afternoon, armed with a search warrant and of finding bottles containing a small quantity of alcohol.

They testified that while they were at the place they saw De Sauter drive up in front of the place and start to go in the door. He left hurriedly on seeing the officers but was captured by Officer Watson, who set out in chase. A five gallon tin container of alcohol was found on the seat and under the seat was a gallon jug of alcohol. De Sauter claimed he did not know how the liquor came to be there or where it came from.

About a month ago a stool pigeon in the employ of the state police secured evidence of an actual sale at De Sauter's place. It is said that De Sauter, suspicious of the stool pigeon menaced him with a large carving knife and an ice pick. After the stool pigeon and a "friend" had bought liquor from him he put them out.

Paul Flagelli, alias "Jimmie" a fruit vendor of No. 102 Talman street, was found guilty of violating the liquor law and got thirty days in jail. The accused has a wife and five children, the oldest child being twelve years of age. For this reason no fine was imposed by the judge. Evidence of an actual sale was secured some time ago and he was summoned to court Monday.

On a charge of violation of the motor vehicle law in evading responsibility Tony Gall of Versailles, pleaded guilty and was fined $25 and costs, his bill amounting to $35.50. He sideswiped an automobile owned by Frank Treckman of Taftville, at rear of Taft's station, Monday night, and failed to stop. Treckman put after him and picking up Sergeant Matthew Delaney on the way, Gall was captured and locked up.

SCHOOL CHILDREN GIVE CINDERELLA OPERETTA

An audience of nearly 400 people witnessed Cinderella in Flowerland, an operetta given Tuesday evening by the children of the Elizabeth Street school in the school hall. The operetta, comprising a prologue and four scenes, was splendidly staged by the young people who were showered with well deserved applause. The stage was prettily decorated in evergreen background with imitation rambler roses at each side. The children appeared in attractive costumes, representing various flowers, bees, butterflies, etc. Between the scenes music was given by an orchestra comprising Harry Fishkin, violin, Harry Russell and Alphonse Fournier, cornets, George Moore, drums and Miss Nina Perry, piano. The accompanist for the operetta was Mrs. Reuben P. Potter. The cast was as follows:

The prologue, Fairyland, sung by Louise Odgers, was followed by Scene I, Prince Sunshine's Invitation. Scene II, Godmother Nature Equips Daisy. Scene II. The May-Day Ball and Shower. Scene IV, The Princess of Sunshine Castle.

The proceeds of the operetta will be used to purchase song books for the school hall. The theatrical was given under the direction of Miss Nina Perry.

WOMAN IS PRESENTED ON BENCH WARRANT

Brought in on a bench warrant Tuesday afternoon and presented before Judge Allyn L. Brown in the superior court in this city, Mrs. Antonia Harackiewicz, alias Gorrick, wife of Joseph Harackiewicz, of Westchester in the town of Colchester, was bound over to the superior court on the charge of violation of the liquor law. She was arrested by County Detective William Lewis and Deputy Sheriff George Hoxie.

There are two counts against her, sale of a bottle of liquor on Nov. 7 to Daniel Kelly and sale of four drinks on Nov. 22 to Daniel Kelley and Leon Benkosky.

Bonds were placed at $1,000. The couple own a well stocked farm in the Westchester section.

Additions to Membership.

Received into the fellowship of the Central Baptist church recently were: Mrs. Alice Church, Miss Bernice Church, 306 Laurel Hill avenue; Miss Sarah B. Hemmings, 22 Church street; William Noyes, Sunnyside avenue; Mrs. Frances E. Parkhurst, 35 Park street; Mrs. William Shortell, 115 Roath street; Mrs. Frank Weaver, 12 Warren street; and Donald F. Whitney, 7 Cedar street.

WHITE LEGHORNS TAKE LEADERSHIP AT STORRS

Meadowedge Farm's pen of White Leghorns from Sterling Junction, Mass., have grabbed the lead in the Storrs laying contest. Hannon's Leghorn Farm from Corvallis, Ore., that have been the pacemakers for the last three weeks are trailing by five eggs. Hobart E. Rice, another Leghorn breeder from Barre, Mass., is just around the corner thirty eggs behind. In other words, there are two Massachusetts pens right ready to take the pole whenever the Oregon birds let up for a minute. There was also a shift in the Barred Rock class and strangely enough this too was an Oregon pen owned by Mrs. H. C. Kleinsmith of Beavercreek. For 13 weeks the Oregon pen led its class until passed by Merritt M. Clark of Brookfield Center, Conn. The Oregon birds then dropped to third place when passed again by E. C. Foreman of Lansing, Michigan, and now R. W. Davis & Sons of Rockland, Me., have crowded them out of third place. In the White Rock class, Ameling Farms from Rolla, Mo., climbed up to third place last week but have been unable to hold the gains they made. The ground they lost has been captured by W. C. Matthews of Wilmington, Delaware.

In the 18th week of the contest the Massachusetts pen of Leghorns owned by Meadowedge Farm was the high scorer with a yield of 52 eggs. Barred Rocks owned by E. C. Foreman from Lansing, Mich., were second with a record of 49 eggs. A Connecticut pen of the same breed entered by Keewaylin Farm at Darien, Conn., was a close third with a score of 48 eggs. Two pens of Rhode Island Reds owned by F. S. Chapin of Longmeadow, Mass., and the Hayes Hennery from Dover, N. H., tied for fourth place with 47 eggs each. The total production for all pens was 4,075 eggs, or a yield of nearly 42 per cent. This is 190 eggs less than for the previous week and is believed to be the bottom. There are sure to be some big jumps and other shifts in the lineup during the next few weeks.

NORWICH EAGLES AT OLD AGE PENSION HEARING

A delegation from the Norwich Eagles was in Hartford Tuesday to attend the hearing on old age pensions before the judiciary committee of the legislature.

The bill was opposed by Representative Marjory Cheney of Manchester who said the bill appeared to her to be thoroughly bad as legislation.

Emil Burns of Ohio presented the main argument for the Eagles saying that he represents 20,000 members of that organization. He said that a measure pending in Ohio provided that the money for the old age pension should be raised by a tax of $1 on each automobile in the state.

The bill introduced in Connecticut provides for the pensioning of persons of seventy years or more whose income is less than $300 a year. The maximum pension provided for is $300 a year.

Representative Li Pirsio of Meriden spoke in favor of the bill.

The appointment of a commission to study the old age pension need in this state was urged by some advocates of the bill.

The American Federation of Labor was reported as favoring old age pensions.

It was suggested by Chairman Alling of the committee that the matter of making the proposed investigation could be placed in the hands of the department of state agencies to report two years hence.

The reply of the advocate of the bill was that this would be satisfactroy if a real and thorough investigation were made.

APPEALS FINE GIVEN IN STONINGTON COURT

Frank H. Redden of 361 Bank St., New London, appealed a $100 fine before Judge William A. Wilcox in Stonington town court Tuesday morning when he was arraigned for driving a motor vehicle while under the influence of liquor.

Through his attorney, John F. Gallagher, the young man entered a demurrer to the charge, which was overruled. Judge Wilcox imposed a fine of $100 and costs amounting to $14.80. Attorney Gallagher claiming that there was doubt about who was the driver of the car, took an appeal, and Samuel P. McDowell of Stonington became surety for a $200 bond.

Redden was arrested by Patrolman William Ostman at about 1 o'clock Sunday morning when the Redden car was passing through Stonington.

Counsel for Redden in demurring to the complaint stated that there was doubt as to the identity of the driver of the automobile which the officer had charged Redden with driving. Redden claims that the car was not in motion at the time of the arrest; that he had not been driving the car, and that the actual driver was one of his three companions.

FINED $100 AND COSTS IN WATERFORD COURT

His arrest Sunday followed a head-on collision between his car and an automobile operated by Alex Robenchuck of Uncasville, in Quaker Hill. The accused paid his fine.

Charles A. McCracken was arrested by State Policeman Albright Monday night on charges of reckless driving and driving with improper brakes, and fined $6 and costs on each count in Waterford town court. He paid the fine.

EAST HAMPTON LABELLED FOR FLYERS' BENEFIT

East Hampton is to be the first town in the state to label itself for the benefit of aviators. White letters five feet high on the roof of the Summit Thread company factory will proclaim to the wandering airman what part of the country he is traversing.

After a flyer was forced to descend there one day last fall, having lost his bearings, the Business Men's association appointed Harold F. Scranton to investigate the feasibility of marking the town's identity. After communicating with the army air service headquarters in Washington and Hiram Percy Maxim, head of the Hartford aviation commission, the present method was decided upon and the thread company's roof was offered by General Manager E. Gordon Cone. Letters of thanks have been received from aviation officials.

Authority On Zoning to Speak.

When the March membership meeting of the Chamber of Commerce is held next Monday evening at the Wauregan hotel, the topic will be one of special importance to the citizens of Norwich as the subject of the speaker for the evening will be "Zoning." This will be discussed by Prof. K. B. Flint, director of the bureau of municipal affairs, Norwich University, Vermont, who is well qualified to show what a bearing on the future of a community the adoption of a zoning system will have.

Workmen's Compensation.

Workmen's compensation agreements as follows have been approved by Commissioner J. J. Donohue:

Inland Paper Board Co., Versailles, employer and Edward Jackson, 9 Franklin street, employe, finger injured, at rate of $8.12.

Julian L. Williams, Norwich, employer, and Edgar Archeambeault, Taftville, employe, fingers lacerated, at rate of $15.00.

Aspinook Co., Jewett City, employer, and Elmer Crouch, Norwich, employe, pain in side, at rate of $11.10.

Celebrated His Birthday

Sam Sakelarides of the Chelsea Lunch celebrated his 32nd birthday by entertaining a party of friends on Monday evening at his home, No. 33 Spalding street. Dancing and music by an eight piece orchestra, Robert Colberg, leader, were enjoyed and refreshments were served.

Celebrated Birthday.

Mrs. H. U. Neff of 465 Main street celebrated her birthday pleasantly on March 9th, when her daughter, Mrs. Ernest Whittemore in company with Miss L. N. Giles of Putnam spent the day with her. Mrs. Neff received many useful presents and had a number of callers.

Connecticut College

"The proper study of mankind is man," quoted President Marshall in introducing to the gathering at convocation in the Connecticut college gymnasium on Tuesday afternoon, Glenn Frank, editor of the Century Magazine. "The teacher, preacher, and editor have each the office of prophet. They meditate and then speak upon what they see."

Mr. Frank had for his topic "The Outlook Upon Western Civilization." His lecture was very interesting, since he spoke quite informally, yet with great forcefulness, carrying his hearers with him all the time. He said in part:

"This topic has perhaps a far-away sound, but that is not so; it has in reality an intimate relation to the men and women of 1925. If we are to put to ourselves the question, 'What is the outlook for western civilization for the next fifty years?' what would the answer be?

"There are three important answers to this question. The first one is that our western civilization is domed. 'It will go into the dark ages period of decline,' says Dean Inge. 'We are witnessing the suicide of the race.' If Dean Inge were the only one who says that all would be well, but he is only one of a great group of people. Biologists step forward to add their bit. 'The world is reproducing from its lower stock, rather than from its best stock. Breezy, snappy groups of modern psychologists say, 'Yes, Dean Inge is probably right for very obvious reasons, we are seeing fine independent men being pushed aside for the crowd-minds.' A gloomy-looking group then, the economists, declare that this civilization is degenerating, for in the industries people sooner or later put quantity before quality. Then a scholarly group comes forward, the historians and declares that the world moves in cycles. A culture will begin to crystalize which produces a civilization. The civilization is the first stage in the death of the culture. Now there comes to the fore a prosperous, well-tailored group, the great administrators and executives of the time. They, too, declare that we are going into a period of decay. They claim that the modern world is so big that they are unable to cope with it any more. The disease of business in its bigness and complexity involves us. The political scientists say that this democracy is not delivering the goods they thought they would. Sooner or later the jealousy of masses will weed out more intelligent men and women and uninterested crowds will then put their fingers into the political pie. The moralists advance with the same old theme that they always have in some form or other; the younger generation, they always have the haunting fear that the present generation is running amuck without any rudder. These specialists have during the past eight or ten years produced literature of despair.

"Secondly, is the answer that our civilization isn't going into the dark ages but will have twenty-five years of frivolity. We are standing in a transition period and don't know whether to look to the right where there are all the old customs of the past or to the left where there are arraigned all the new thoughts and ideas that are ours for the sifting. Harding, Bonar Law, and Coolidge all advocated some srot of equilibrium. There are, however, two kinds of equilibrium, the first is balance, definite poise like that of a boulder that has been standing for many years without moving, and the second is momentous equilibrium, that of a moving wheel that is going somewhere. And it is the second that should be sought.

"Then there is the third group that claim that we need not go back in our civilization to the dark ages; we may be living in the renaissance of the the western civilization. It is that third group that Mr. Frank would join; not because the other groups are all wrong, not because he is a Pollyanna who would see only the bright side of things and wilfully blind himself to the faults of others. We can not be like Peter Pan. Nor can we wish ourselves into the new civilization. Mr. Frank would join them because all the raw materials are waiting for some spirits to bring them together. We must comb out all the germinal ideas, comb our way through biology, science and philosophy of the modern mind. With these and with religion will come the renaissance of western civilization."

BASEBALL CANDIDATES ANSWER FIRST CALL OF SEASON AT STORRS TODAY

(Special to The Bulletin)

Storrs, March 10—Connecticut Aggie baseball for the 1925 season will get under way in earnest tomorrow, when Coach Sumner A. Dole will put his ball tossers through their first workout of the year. For the present, the candidates will practice daily in Hawley Armory, though as soon as ground conditions will permit their activities will be transferred to Gardner Dow Field.

A preliminary meeting was held yesterday, at which time Coach Dole met with the squad and outlined the work ahead for the approaching season. With a schedule of 15 games already lined up, and a limited supply of experienced men available, the prospects for the 1925 season at Storrs are none too bright. Dole lacks a sufficient number of experienced groundsmen, and every effort will be made within the next few weeks to uncover some latent pitching ability among the members of the squad.

But six letter men remain from the 1924 team from which to form a nucleus of this year's nine. Wells seems to be the most likely prospect in the pitchers box, and it is certain that he will have to be called on often this season. Last year he turned in some good work for the Connecticut nine, and he should be a big help to the Aggies this year. Nanfeldt, who alternated between first base and pitching last season, is also available this year and he will add much to the strength of the Aggies twirling staff. Gilbert, who was the regular backstop in 1924 is available again this season, which will leave that position well fortified. Captain Ahearn, O'Brien and Seymour are veteran letter men who are available for the infield. Dole will have to build an entirely new outfield, as last year's was all let via the graduation route. The return to college of "Bill" Makofski should take care of one of the outfield berths, for Makofski held down the center field position in 1922 and 1923, and he is a good man in the position. At the close of the 1923 season, Makofski was elected to captain the Aggie nine in 1924, but his transferring to Cornell necessitated the election of another man. Makofski will be given a tryout by Dole in the pitchers' box, a position he filled last summer with an independent team in New York State.

Others who are expected to report for the first workout tomorrow include "Ernie" Speers of Hartford, pitcher; Wardle, catcher; Schofield, Hardsley, Tiernan, and Ajello, members of the 1924 freshmen nine; Saymon, a heavy hitter who was ineligible last year; and several others.

Manager Reginald T. Putnam '26, of Bloomfield, has announced that there have been several changes in the schedule that was announced earlier in the winter. The first Trinity game will be played in Storrs May 6, instead of Hartford as first announced, with the second game coming in Hartford May 30. Maine has been added to the schedule, and the Pine Tree Staters will play at Storrs April 30. The game with St. Stephens, which was to be played at Storrs May 2 has been cancelled. The first Springfield game will be played in Springfield May 8, instead of May 9.

The Aggies will play 15 games, with 8 at Storrs and 7 away. Newcomers on the Connecticut slate are Colby and New Hampshire, who are taking places held last year by Tufts and the Army.

The correct schedule: April 18, Brown at Providence; April 22, Wesleyan at Middletwon; April 28, Colby at Storrs; April 30, Maine at Storrs; May 2, Trinity at Storrs; May 8, Springfield at Springfield; May 14, Clark at Storrs; May 15, Rhode Island at Storrs; May 20, Springfield at Storrs; May 25, New Hampshire at Storrs; May 29, Clark at Worcester; May 30, Trinity at Hartford; June 6, Rhode Island at Kingston; June 13, Massachusetts Aggies at Storrs; June 13, Massachusetts at Amherst.

YALE SWIMMING TEAM SMASHES 2 WORLD'S RECORDS

New Haven, March 10.—The Yale varsity six-men relay swimming team broke two world's records here tonight in an exhibition match with a freshman team. The team covered 150 yards in 2.02, the previous record, made by the Yale team with a match against Dartmouth two weeks ago being 2.03 2-5. In the same race, the team, covered 300 yards in 2.27, the previous record being 2.27 4-5.

Four new records in events never entered in intercollegiate swimming meets before also were made. A four-man breast stroke relay team covered 400 yards in 11.30 1-5. The same team with another man added covered 1,000 yards in 14.13 4-5.

A five-man back stroke relay team covered 600 yards in 7.47 and 750 yards in 9.50 3-5.

Arne Borg of the Swedish Olympic team swam an exhibition 250 yards in 2.42, the record being 2.41. A. White, high and low board Olympic diving champion, also gave an exhibition.

Referee Named For Yale-Navy Bouts

New Haven, March 10—William A. Roap, of Philadelphia, today was appointed referee of the Yale-Navy boxing meet to be held at Annapolis next Saturday. Charles L. Ornstein, of Baltimore and Daniel E. Buckley, of Waterbury, Conn., will be the judges. The officials were named by Francis M. Grant, secretary of the intercollegiate boxing association, both the Navy and Yale agreeing to the selections.

MEDICOS TAKE CLOSE MATCH FROM PSYCHOS

Two teams composed of nurses at the Norwich State Hospital gave a pretty exhibition of bowling last evening before one of the largest and most enthusiastic audiences that ever witnessed a match on the Riverview alleys. The nurses of the medical wards, led by Capt. Rose Mallon, defeated the nurses of the Psychopathic ward led by Capt. Helen MacIntosh. The last box in the last string decided the match, when, amidst applause that shook the rafters of the club house and the pulses of the opposing team, Miss McMahon rolled a six pin spare which won the match by the narrow margin of four pins.

N. Y. COMMISSION AWAITS REPLY FROM DEMPSEY

New York, March 10—No word has been received from Jack Dempsey or his manager, Jack Kearns, by the the challenges of Harry Wills and state athletic commission relative to Tommy Gibbons, Chairman James A. Farley of the board announced today. At the same time, it was announced that no action will be taken to force an answer until the expiration of the 15-day period in which a champion has to answer a formal challenge.

Walt Miller, manager of Tiger Flowers, was indefinitely suspended when he failed to appear at the commission office today in answer to a summons. The suspension includes his entire stable and will be effective until Miller appears in answer to the summons. No reason for asking Miller to appear was announced.

Al Smith, Albany boxer, was suspended for 30 days for failing to fulfill a contract to fight at the Knickerbocker A. C., in Albany last week.

George E. Brower, former chairman, did not attend the meeting but sent his congratulations to Chairman Farley together with the assurance that he would attend Friday's meeting.

AMATEUR BOXERS IN ACTION AT BALTIMORE TONIGHT

Baltimore, Md., March 10.—The National Junior boxing championship tournament of the Amateur Athletic Union will get under way here tomorrow night and will be concluded on Thursday night.

Sixty-six boxers, a record entry list, will compete for titles in eight classes from flyweight to heavyweight, light-heavyweight and middleweight divisions tomorrow night, and competition in the lighter classes will advance to the semi-finals.

The semi-final and final rounds in the classes from flyweight to welterweight will be staged Thursday night.

The tournament will be representative of the country, fighters coming from as far north as Boston, as far south as Quantico, Virginia, and across the Mississippi to the west.

New York, Brooklyn, Philadelphia, Boston, St. Louis, Baltimore, Washington, Norfolk, Camden and half a dozen other cities have entered their city, state or sectional champions.

NOTRE DAME FOOTBALL PROSPECTS NOT VERY BRIGHT

St. Paul, Minn., March 9.—Prospects for the 1925 Notre Dame team "are not very rosy right now," according to Coach Knute Rockne, who drove the 'Four Horsemen" to Gridiron fame last fall.

"It looks like we will have a fair defensive team, but will not be very strong on the offensive," said the veteran mentor, who is being entertained in the twin cities by Notre Dame alumni.

"I lost 11 of the 1924 first string men, seven of the second string and five from the third squad. You can't lose that many men in one season and expect to do much the following year."

TWO NEW WORLD MARKS MADE AT CLEVELAND MEET

Cleveland, March 10.—Ugo Frigerio, 1924 Olympic walking champion, set a world's record of 25 minutes, 21 1-5 seconds for 5,500 meters in a track carnival featuring Paavo Nurmi here tonight.

Another world's record was broken when Willie Ritola, Finnish distance runner, ran three and one-quarter miles in 15 minutes, 58 2-5 seconds.

The previous record for the distance was 16 minutes 9 3-5 seconds, made by Hannes Kolehmainen in New York 12 years ago.

Nurmi failed to break his record for the mile and three-fourths, covering the distance in 8 minutes 2 2-5 seconds.

WANDERERS AND PLAINFIELD IN THIRD GAME OF TOURNEY AT BALTIC TONIGHT

Tonight at the Baltic Gym the third game of the Eastern Connecticut championship will be played when the Plainfield team clashes with the Baltic Wanders. This is the third game for the Plainfield team but is the Wanderers first championship encounter. The Plainfield team has two defeats against them which were administered by the Taftville Army-Navy club last week.

The Wanderers have lost but two games on their home surface and besides that will play an all-local lineup which is more than the other two teams in the tourney can boast. In another encounter earlier in the season the Wanderers defeated the Plainfield team 25 to 18 and hope to repeat the performance this evening. The Wanderers deserve no little credit for developing a team from local talent that can compete with teams made up of the pick of basketball players of the state. Because of this fact the general feeling is that Baltic should win the title to be truly representative of Eastern Connecticut.

The Wanderers are taking this series very seriously and for the whole season have been perfecting an attack and defense that should work to good advantage against their opponents on the small playing surface. The Baltic team will have the following to draw upon: Ridgeway and Simoneau, forwards; Charron c; R. Robertaille and Swanson guards; Sullivan, W. Robertaille and Coady subs.

The Plainfield team will send the following into the game: Dessinger and Normandin, forwards; Norris, center; Benson and Provost, guards. This team has but one local player in its line-up.

GIANTS OPEN SEASON BY BEATING CHAMPIONS

Palm Beach, Fla., March 10.—The New York Giants opened their spring exhibition series with the world's champion Washington Senators here today by smashing out an 8 to 7 victory over their contenders in the fall classic.

Two typical Giant rallies clinched the game, the first coming in the fifth when a single, three triples and Southworth's home run accounted for five runs. Ross Young won the game in the eighth by driving a single to left, scoring Groh and Southworth.

Score by innings:

Washington 2 0 0 0 3 1 0 1 0—7 12 1
New York, 0 0 0 5 0 0 0 3 x—8 11 1

PRINCETON BEATS DARTMOUTH FOR THE SECOND TIME

Princeton, N. J., March 10.—Princeton, with the champion of the Eastern Intercollegiate Basketball league already assured, conquered Dartmouth for the second time here tonight, 30 to 19, its ninth league contest without defeat.

Carl Loeb, substituting for Alexander, led a rally at the end of the first period which placed the teams on even terms, 10 to 10. The second half found the Tigers in exceptional fettle, Captain Cleaves and Loeb leading them to victory.

Rawlins Wins Harvard Squash Title

Cambridge, Mass., March 10—Herbert N. Rawlins of New York today won the quash racquets championship of Harvard College by defeating 3 to 2, George D. Debevoise of New York, defending champion and captain-elect of the Harvard team. Both men played on the Harvard team which won the national championship recently.

Savannah, Ga., March 10—E. A. McAvoy of Boston, who claimed to be the discoverer of John L. Sullivan, died here today after being taken ill on a train coming from Miami.

Junior Boys 'Athletic Contest.

Much interest is being manifested in the athletic contest now in progress among the junior boys' gym group at the local "Y," where the lads meet several times per week to engage in athletic events and games, in addition to the regular gym class exercises. Nunzi Grieco is now leading the individual scores, followed closely by Herbert Harkness. Austin Covey and Robert Burke, who are setting a fast pace for the other young athletes. In team scores the Giants are in the lead, and consists of the following players: Herbert Harkness, captain, Cecil Henschel, Edward Shanley, John Ryan, Paul Grieco, Howard Dickerman, Percy Browning and Earl Swan.

CHAPMAN OVERWHELMS WESTERLY IN LEAGUE GAME

(Special to the Bulletin)

New London, March 10.—Chapman Tech came into its own this evening at the school auditorium and broke a bad losing streak which had reached the total of nine straight by overwhelming Westerly High, 56 to 21, in an Eastern Connecticut interscholastic league game and went into a tie with the Rhode Island team for first place. Heavy scoring by the locals in the last half turned the game into a farce for Tech. Westerly had things her own way in the first quarter and led by a 6 to 5 score. Overcoming this lead Chapman Tech had a score of 16 to 8 at half time. The second half found Chapman Tech dropping in goals from all angles. The scores:

The Biggest Bird

The moa, a species peculiar to New Zealand, is supposed to have been the biggest bird that ever lived on the earth. Probably it was no taller than the giant orerich of Madagascar (the original of the fabled "roc"), but it was much heavier, a full-grown specimen weighing as much as 1,000 pounds.

The moa was extremely stupid, and very slow and clumsy in its movements, its legs being enormously heavy and bulky. Not only was it incapable of flight, but it could not even run at a rapid gait.

Apparently the species was wholly wiped out about 500 years ago by an extraordinarily cold winter. The birds gathered about hot springs in flocks for warmth, but perished in great numbers—the result being that at the present time their bones are dug up by the ton in some places, especially swamps.

A few of the eggs of this remarkable bird—not more than a half a dozen—exist today. One of them, in the Museum of Natural History in New York actually contains the bones of an unhatched moa. It is as big as six ostrich eggs, and a silk hat would just about contain it.

YOUNG NEW LONDON MAN LOCKED UP ON CHARGE MADE BY EX-SOLDIER

(Special to The Bulletin)

New London, March 10.—Robert E. Finn, 26, residing at 13 Thompson court, was arrested this evening on the serious charge of soliciting for a woman for immoral purposes. He was locked up pending the convening of the police court tomorrow morning.

Finn, it is alleged, went to the Salvation Army lodging house about 5 o'clock and there picked up an acquaintance with Harold Burgess, who had been but recently discharged from the army. Finn asked Burgess, it is stated by the latter, if Burgess desired to meet some of Finn's female acquaintances and when the ex-soldier expressed a willingness, Finn escorted him to the home of a friend and there introduced Burgess to the girl. Later Finn demanded of Burgess $5 for the services that the latter had been given and it was then revealed that Burgess had paid the young woman a sum of money. Burgess then went to a Bank street rooming house where he was induced to purchase drinks and while seated in a chair in the room with Finn and several sailors Burgess declares that a sum of money and a pair of gloves were removed from his pocket. Burgess, going to the police station, lodged complaint against Finn. The latter was found in the Bank street place by Patrolman William Manice, who placed him under arrest.

Burgess was also locked up so as to make sure that he will be on hand tomorrow morning to appear as a witness against Finn.

Clan Cameron is holding a social session in Union lodge room this evening with a large attendance. Refreshments were served after the meeting.

Brainard Masonic lodge worked the master Mason degree in short form this evening and balloted on candidates for membership.

The proposition to widen Bank street that came before the city council last evening is the topic discussed everywhere and so is the plan to establish building lines. The Bulletin's allusion to the latter change has aroused the greatest interest in the matter for it disclosed that there are property owners along the north side of the street who will not take kindly to the plan and who hold that they are the owners of land now used as a sidewalk, but which they will not yield to the city without compensation, if building lines are established.

There were very large congregations at St. Joseph's church this evening where Lenten services were held and at St. Mary's church where a mission for men is in progress. Tomorrow evening there will be a union service of Congregationalists at the Second church when Rev. Dr. Oscar E. Mauer of the Center church, New Haven will preach.

Montauk avenue is being patched with gravel and tar for the roadway has become so uneven that some repairs were absolutely necessary. Drivers are hopeful that another year there may be a stretch of pavement laid there that will be permanent.

The deed transferring the property, 202-218 Bank street, formerly known as the Bassett house and at present occupied by The Eaton & Wilson company, from the F. H. & A. H. Chappell company to Frederick W. Mercer, was received for record at the office of the city clerk this afternoon. The building is three stories and of granite construction and has a frontage of 200 feet and a depth of about 226 feet, adjoining tracks of the New York, New Haven & Hartford railroad.

Mrs. Rose Mansfield of Poquonoc Bridge, Groton; Mrs. Matthew Rogoff of Bank street; Mrs. Patrick Ahearn and infant son, Maple avenue; Miss Marie Maywood, Pequot avenue; Miss Hope Whaley, Montauk avenue, and Miss Florence Magnolia, Westerly, patients at Lawrence hospital, were dismissed today.

Daniel J. Lucy this afternoon lodged complaint with the police because of his garage at 49 Garfield avenue, having been broken into. The entrance to the place was forced and a quantity of plumbers' tools and books were stolen. Mr. Lucy requested that the offenders be arrested and prosecuted.

An alarming brush fire on Eastern Point road, Groton, close to the plant of the former Groton Iron Works, was discovered about 2.30 o'clock this afternoon. An alarm was rung in, to which Pioneer Hose company responded. When the firemen reached the burning area nearby buildings were threatened with being ignited but a liberal application of chemicals resulted in the blaze being extinguished but a short distance from the threatened buildings.

William Lewis of Montville was before Justice of the Peace Frederick L. Goss, Waterford, this morning, charged with operating a motor vehicle while under the influence of liquor. A fine of $100 and costs was imposed. Lewis was taken into custody Sunday night between New London and Quaker Hill by State Police Officer Giles Watson and following the automobile Lewis was operating colliding with another machine. Both machines were damaged and Lewis sustained severe bruises.

While scouring Long Island, Fishers Island and Block Island sounds, early this morning, for rum-running craft with supplies of liquor from the supply ships at anchor off Montauk Point, the crew of the United States Coast Guard destroyer Cassin sighted the barge Traffic, New York, laden with coal and bound to an eastern port, in distress, 21 miles east of Montauk Point. The destroyer steamed alongside the barge and deciding that the latter craft was in danger of sinking, she was taken in tow by the Cassin and brought into port, reaching the harbor about noon. Because of the rapidity with which the water was entering the hold of the barge she was towed to the mud flats off the plant of the Morgan Iron works and grounded, to prevent her from sinking.

John McDonough was sent to jail from the city court for a six months' term as a common drunkard. He has been arrested some 30 times.

State Police Officer Giles Watson, stationed at Groton barracks, will enter Lawrence-Memorial hospital tomorrow where he will undergo an operation, not believed to be of a serious nature.

There is no change today in the condition of Frank E. Bray, 113 Riverview avenue, who suffered a fractured pelvis and internal injuries, on Saturday night, when his automobile was wrecked by a machine owned and operated by William B. Waterman. At Lawrence hospital this afternoon it was stated that although there was no change in Mr. Bray's condition, the patient was resting as comfortably as could be expected. Mrs. Bray, who was also injured, is still under treatment at the hospital. Mr. Waterman continues to be under the care of a physician at his residence, 53 Glenwood park, and it will probably be the latter part of the week before he is able to appear in the police court and answer to the charge against him.

Bessie Williams Johnson joined the kitchen staff at the county jail here, this morning. Her engagement is for 30 days. Bessie was drunk on the street this morning at 3.30. She could not see the difference between a police officer and an automobile. At Church street she encountered Patrolman George Laboue and to him she told a tale of the night before and the morning after. It was to the effect that she had been at the home of Joseph E. Jackson, also colored, and that there she had indulged in liquor so freely that she was as she said "pifficated." She also said that when she had drank so freely that she was denied more liquor so she wanted Jackson arrested for violation of the liquor law. But when Bessie came into court today she had been "seen" and she had forgotten all that took place last night other than that she was drunk. She didn't recall that she had been at the Jackson house nor did she realize that there was liquor for sale there. She would admit nothing except that she was drunk. But Bessie didn't anticipate what was in store for her and that she was going to jail for her conduct. She was surprised when Judge Prince had her brought close to him and he told her that she had imposed on the court and that she was to spend a month in prison. She pleaded for probation, or to be allowed to pay a fine, but the court was obdurate and would not have such penalty imposed. Mr. Jackson was in court and he pleaded not guilty of any violation of the law. The state could not convict him without the evidence of Bessie and that was not to be had.

The city is to protest probably an application for the establishment of a bus line between New London and the Rhode Island line. The application comes up for a hearing on the 16th inst. when an application from Michael Baldini to change the route of the bus line from here to Niantic will be sought. Mr. Baldini desires to go by way of Ocean avenue and Willetts avenue to the Boston post road (Town Hill). There seems to be no objection to this change on the part of the council, but on the establishment of a line from here to the Rhode Island line there is apt to be an outbreak, as the line will interfere perhaps with the trolley line now established and the ferry line long an acquisition of the city and which the city is at an expense as is the town of Groton to Maintain.

Freedman & Ralph, who leased property from the city on what is known as the Hillside Farm land, which lease has a year to run, wants now to abrogate the lease and they have petitioned the city council to allow them to give up the lease. They claim that the heat necessary costs them more than is the rental of the premises, but the council replies by asking of what need there is for heat in the months that are now at hand. The city went to a considerable expense to make the premises convenient for the lessees, removing walls and partitions and placing hanging doors and so it does not see that there is justice in allowing the lessees to get away from the lease. There was talk of holding to the lease and collecting what was due the city. That course may be taken before the matter is settled.

...mplicity—2 Corinthians, 11:3 was ... theme of Rev. George Smith Brown's sermon, in the M. E. church ... Sunday morning. The anthem, Because, He Loved Me So, (Charles H. ...rfield) was sung by a quartette, ...ers Grace A. Chapman and Gertrude Allen, D. E. Povey and C. E. Collier. Mrs. Eugene La Fontaine organist. The church activities for the week includes a meeting of the Woman's Home Missionary society, at the home of Mrs. Harmon D. Perkins, Tuesday afternoon, with an invitation for the society, from the W. H. M. society of the Methodist church in New London to attend a meeting in their church parlors, Wednesday afternoon to hear Mrs. Robert A. Bitgood in an address as Conference Organizer. The announcement was made, that March 15, Sunday morning, was to be Budget Sunday, and subscriptions would be asked for the budget of this church; and that a community canvas would follow that afternoon, for this purpose.

At the Sunday school at noon, brief addresses were made by Rev. Mr. Brown, On Who is the Greatest Among You? and by Supt. Colver on an incident in the recent inauguration of President Calvin Coolidge, when he took the oath of office of the president of the United States, with his hand on the bible, given him by his grandmother in his early childhood.

Rev. Mr. Brown spoke on the parables of the Pharisee and the Publican—Luke 18:9-10 at the evening service. The hostesses for the social hour following were Mrs. Charles Hoyt Mrs. Walter Duffy and Miss Mabel Smith. Cake, saltines and cocoa was served and the following program was given. Solo, The Last Chord, Mrs. Walter Duffy, Mrs. Rufus W. Hurlbutt at the piano. Reading, a selection, Dudley C. Perkins, solo, The Old Arm Chair Mr. Perkins reading, Johnny's recitation, Mrs. J. Edmund Norman, reading, One Minister's Sermon, Mrs. Rufus W. Hurlbutt.

At the meeting of the Girls' Cooking club Friday afternoon, with Mrs. Walter T. Clark, director the members cooked one-egg muffins, and corn muffins with great success. Plans were made to serve a simple luncheon at the next meeting March 20 thus making practical use of some of the receipts used at previous meetings, Miss Marjorie Gates will act as hostess, Myrtice Coman as waitress while three members prepare the meal and another three will clear up after it. Three guests will be invited: The menu chosen by the hostess, will be cream cheese on toast, escalloped onions, baked apples, and hermit cookies.

Mrs. Harmon L. Perkins reached her 78th birthday at her home here, Friday March 6. Mrs. Perkins' husband Harmon L. Perkins died about six weeks ago, and the day was passed quietly by her. But the event was remembered, by many friends who sent flowers, a shower of post cards, and many gifts.

Mr. and Mrs. C. E. Colver entertained from 7 to 10 o'clock Thursday evening at their home at the Submarine Base on the fifteenth birthday anniversary of their only son, C. E. Colver, Jr., a party of young friends. Games were played and music enjoyed. The table decorations were rose pink and yellow. Sandwiches, cake, ice cream and cookies were served. Those present were, Misses Em-Beth Bennett, Ida Erickson, Matilda Harold, Helen L. Colver, Margaret S. Colver Stanley Faford, Paul Miller and Alfred Erickson.

Friends here have received the Middletown Press, of February 19, which had a half column article on the 80th birthday anniversary of Addison T. Chapman, a retired police officer of that city. Mr. Chapman was retired in 1919, after serving 29 years. Mr. Chapman is in vigorous health, and celebrated his 80th wedding anniversary a few years ago. Mr. Chapman resides at 27 Wall street, South Farms and his most arduous work is now about his place where he has a fine garden each summer. He is remembered by some of the older residents of this place, as he was born at what is now the submarine base, a son of Courtland and Prudence Stoddard Chapman and his early life was spent there.

Mr. and Mrs. J. Otis Winchester of Norwich were at their summer home at Perkins place for the day Thursday.

Fred Fable and daughters, the Misses Fable of Hartford motored here, and were callers Saturday.

Mr. and Mrs. John Harold and daugheter Matilda Harold, Mrs. Marie Cathcart and Mrs. D. D. Clark, all of the Submarine base motored to New York City, Saturday to call on Pay Clerk D. D. Clark who has been a patient at the navy hospital there for two weeks. The party were guests for the week end of relatives there.

WESTERLY

By deed recorded in the office of the Westerly town clerk on March 9th, Harry J. Leon conveyed to Thorp and Trainer, Inc., a parcel of land at Pleasant View on the south side of Atlantic avenue.

His attention being attracted to a Studebaker light six coupe, N 3921 Conn., which was in the same place off the road three miles east of Noose Neck Inn near the Big River bridge in the town of West Greenwich, R. I., on his return home from Providence, late Monday afternoon, as he saw the car on his trip into Providence in the morning, Irving Thompson, of Westerly, reported his discovery to Traffic Officer Robert Kessel, on duty in the Dixon House square. A check-up was made and it was found by Chief of Police Thomas Brown that the car was the one which Dr. J. C. Satti of New London had reported to the police as stolen from in front of a New London residence Monday morning, while the doctor was making an official call there. At the direction of Chief Brown the officer and Westerly man returned to the abandoned car, which was out of gas with doors locked and some of the parts of the distributor head missing, the switch locket and the spare auto tire locked inside of the automobile. One of the windows was forced downward so that an entrance was gained to the machine, but it was found necessary to make a trip back to Westerly to get new parts for the distributor, which was broken.

Dr. Satti was informed that his car had been located and he came to Westerly and recovered it at about 4 o'clock, Tuesday morning.

Judge Charles A. Walsh in the Tesday morning session of Superior court for Washington county took up the automobile damage case of Frank E. Brown vs. Mrs. Marriet M. Green.

An action of trespass, growing out of an alleged accident on Broad street in the afternoon of Oct. 22, 1923, when it is claimed a car owned by the defendant, Mrs. Harriet M. Greene of High street, Westerly, and driven by Mrs. Helen Bromley of New Britain, Conn., struck and injured Frank E. Brown. The amount of damaged claimed is $10,000.

The jury impaneled was: George A. Knowles, Herbert E. Harvey and Harold L. Spink, North Kingstown; Oliver Plante, Robert N. Chapman, Martin Dykstra and William A. Hathway, South Kingstown; Ray B. Kenyon, Westerly; John V. Woodmansee and Charles D. Peckham, Hopkinton; Thomas B. Richmond, Exeter, and John C. Tucker, Charlestown. Marten Dykstra was appointed foreman. Immediately after the impaneling of the jury the motion of Attorney Rathbun for a view by the jury was granted. The jurors were taken to the site of the alleged accident, which was almost directly in front of the town hall and court house building.

Attorney Rathbun in presenting the case to the jury said that the plaintiff, Frank E. Brown, employed by Harry Coleman, as an electrician, was returning to the place of business, accompanied by Mr. Smith. He was walking down Broad street in front of the Westerly high school building, when an automobile owned by the defendant, Mrs. Harriet M. Greene, and operated by Mrs. Bromley in making the turn from Elm street on to Broad street, went on to the sidewalk and struck Brown. Brown was swept up and taken to a point some distance from the curbstone before he was disentangled from the machine. One ear was torn, Attorney Rathbun said, so that it hung by a thread, and he was rushed to the office of Dr. John Champlin on Granite street. The testimony would show, he said, that Brown had a pair of pliers in his pocket which caused severe injury to two joints, when he was struck. He said his client was kept away from work for a period of 20 weeks.

A. L. Leon, engineer of the highway department of the town of Westerly, was the first witness called.

Engineer Leon was followed by the defendant, Mrs. Harriet Greene. A recess was taken and in the afternoon the witnesses were Chief of Police Thomas E. Brown, Bert Smith, Harry H. Coleman and Dr. Michael H. Scanlon. Court will resume sessions this (Wednesday) morning, with Dr. Scanlon on the stand.

Robert Day of Bradford was in Westerly Tesday en route to Providence on a business trip.

Mrs. Stiles F. Stanton and Miss Laura Wood of Stonington borough were automobile visitors in Westerly Tuesday.

Patrolman George Champlin begins this (Wednesday) morning a week's tour of day duty, succeeding Police Patrolman Robert Kessel, who returns to the night shift.

Day Patrolman C. Wilson Brown was in Stonington borough Tuesday morning.

EXPERIENCE OF MRS. FULLER

"My health has improved wonderfully," says Mrs. T. H. Fuller, of Walpole, N. H., "since taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. For months I was in such pain that I could not work, but thanks to this splendid medicine I am now strong enough to do all my own work and have two dear babies to care for besides. I want to recommend Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound to women who are weak, run down and nervous."

PAWTUCKET THREAD MILL NOT AFFECTED BY STRIKE

(Special to The Bulletin)

Westerly, R. I., March 10.—While the Willimantic mill of the American Thread company is crippled by the strike of employes, the William Clark mill, A. W. Bell, agent, of the American Thread company, in lower Pawcatuck, is operating under a four day or 35 hour schedule, which has been the rule since last week. Notice of this short schedule as posted stated that the reduced time was due to lack of orders and the business situation. The previous four day schedule was in operation just before Christmas then a five day work period for two months was followed by a full time of 48 hours.

The William Clark mfg. employs from 300 to 350 operatives when running full time. The mill manufactures yarn for insulation and its customers are the General Electric company and other electrical and wire manufacturing concerns. Recently some of the twisters have been taken out of the plant and more mule spinners added, to increase the spinning department. On full time 500,000 pounds of finished cotton has been the output when the raw cotton has passed through the preparation, speeder, mule room and finishing departments. Orders have been received at times for May and June deliveries and then asked for in April. Jan. 12 a 10 pr cent. cut was made in wages as the business outlook was poor and the mills have passed dividends. It seemed bitter at the time to have a shorter working schedule, with a 10 per cent. cut, than a full working time with a 70 per cent. working reduction. Industrial trouble is not looked for by either the management or the employes who are members of the Mule Spinners' union, but are not affiliated with the Westerly Central Labor union.

DSLOCATED SHOULDER WAS DUE TO A FALL

(Special to The Bulletin)

Westerly, R. I., March 10.—Patrick F. Quinn, 54, a dyer at Arcadia, was brought to Westerly Tuesday night suffering with a dislocated right shoulder. At the Westerly police station Dr. Michael H. Scanlon was called to attend him and reduced the dislocation. The injury was sustained by a fall in the town of Richmond; Quinn stated that he had taken moon shine but was not drunk—"just in between."

OLD MYSTIC

The third meeting of Mystic Grange No. 171, members living here was held at the home of Joseph Austin Monday night with an attendance of about 30. Masters J. W. Pollard and Dr. C. F. Congdon of Mystic and others were present. The quartet furnished music and instructions were given in the work, so the members now fully understand the trial of the order. Refreshments were served by the hostess.

Mrs. Gerda Turner of Norwich spent the week end with Mrs. G. R. Swain.

Henry and Perry Eldridge were called to Fisher's Island Sunday to see their brother, Ralph Eldridge who is seriously ill with pneumonia.

William Holmes and son Kenneth of Brooklyn, N. Y., are spending a few days with the former's mother, Mrs. G. R. Swain.

MYSTIC

Mystic had an unusual opportunity Monday night when the Parent-Teacher association of the Academy had Secretary of the Navy Josephus Daniels deliver a lecture on the Scholar in Politics. The tickets had been on sale for two weeks and the large auditorium of the Baptist church was well filled, people coming from near by cities to hear the man who took such an active part in the World war. He is a fluent talker of commanding appearance and treated his subject with great ability. This is probably the last time the church can be used for such a gathering as it is to be remodeled. The trustees have granted permission for it to be used free for these lectures.

A. C. Latham camp, No. 19 Sons of Veterans held a meeting Tuesday evening, in G. A. R. hall, Jared Avery camp, No. 20 of New London were their guests. A class of candidates taken in.

The attendance in Sunday school at the Baptist church Sunday was 198 and the collection, $8.03.

Mrs. Rowland Wilcox of East Main street is ill with a cold.

MARKET WAS WEAK

New York, March 10—Further weakness developed in today's stock market, despite a sharp rally in wheat prices, and publication of a favorable earnings statement by the United States Steel Corporation. Heavy selling of stocks, many of which dropped 5 to 6 points, generally was believed to have been inspired by speculative uneasiness over the money situation and reports that spring business in some lines was not up to early expectations.

Selling pressure was directed chiefly against some of the so-called pivotal industrials. American Can broke from a high of 180 3-4 to 175 1-2 and then rallied to 176, where it was off 4 on the day. Baldwin showed a net loss of 4 5-8 at 134 1-2.

United States Steel common closed at the year price of the day, 122 5-8, off 1-4. Studebaker yielded fractionally to 136 1-8.

The steel corporation reported an increase of 257,448 tons in unfilled orders as of February 28, or about 50,000 tons above preliminary estimates. While this statement generally was regarded as bullish, it failed to have any effect on the steel shares, probably because of a feeling in some quarters that the increased business represented a last minute rush of orders to take advantage of the lower prices prevailing in the first quarter. Ludlum Steel broke 3 1-4 points to 44 3-4 or against 10 points below its recent high.

American Bank Note broke 22 points to 164 on one sale. Nash Motors dropped 9 1-8 points to 253 1-2 on a small turnover, net declines of three points or more also were recorded by American Car and Foundry, American Express, Associated Dry Goods, Chicago Pneumatic Tool, the Commercial Solvents issues, Loose Wiles Biscuit, Porto Rican Tobacco, Savage Arms, Tidewater Oil, United States Cast Iron Pipe, Ward Bakin A, Western Union Telegraph and Wilson and Company preferred.

Further selling of the St. Paul issues reflected growing concern over the road's ability to take care of its maturities this year without being refunded through a reorganization. The common duplicated the year's low of 13 1-2, while the preferred dropped 1 1-4 points to 32. Recent heaviness of New York Central was said to be due to liquidation for the account of Union Pacific subsidiaries. Baltimore and Ohio, and Rock Island common each dropped more than two points while a number of a point or more were recorded by "Katy" common. New Haven, Hartford and Western, Northern Pacific, Atlantic Coast Line, Chicago Great Western preferred, Chicago Northwestern, Lackawanna, Kansas City Southern, Lehigh Valley and several others.

Independent strength was shown by Allis-Chalmers, Manhattan Electrical Supply, the preferred steel car issues and Western Pacific, which closed 1 to 2 points higher.

The foreign exchanges displayed a firm tone. Demand sterling ruled about 1 cent higher around $4.76 3-4 and French francs improved slightly to A19 1-2 cents. Other European rates showed only nominal changes.

Call money held steady at 4 1-2 per cent, time money and commercial paper rates were unchanged with business in small volume.

CURB MARKET

New York, March 10—All groups of stocks yielded to selling pressure in today's curb market, which continued to move in sympathy with the decline of the "big board."

A break of 7 1-2 points to 192 in cities service common was the feature of the trading in the oil shares. Net losses of 1 to 4 points in that group also were recorded by cities service new stock, Continental Oil, Prairie Oil & Gas, South Pennsylvania Standard Oil of New York and Vacuum.

Revival of selling pressure against the Radio issues resulted in losses of a point or so in Dubilier and Ware, but net recessions in the other issues were held to fractions. Glen Alden Coal dropped 4 points to 131 and marked heaviness was shown by Lehigh Valley coal certificates, Continental Banking B, Goodyear Tire and Dus, all of which closed more than one point below yesterday's final figures. The declines in public utilities were held to a point or so.

METAL MARKET

New York, March 10—Copper easy. Electrolytic, spot and futures 14 1-2 -14 5-8.

Tin easy. Spot and nearby 53.25; futures 53.37.

Lead steady. Spot 6.00.

Zinc easy. East St. Louis spot and futures 7.40-7.45.

Antimony, spot 16.00-16.50.

MONEY

New York, March 10—Call money firm; high 4 1-2; low 4 1-2; ruling rate 4 1-2; closing bid 4 1-2; offered at 4 3-4; last loan 4 1-2; call loans against acceptances 3 1-2. Time loans firm; mixed collateral, 70-70 days 4; 4-6 months 4 1-4; prime commercial paper 3 3-4 a 4.

COTTON

BOND MARKET

New York, March 10—Bond prices crumbled today under selling inspired by the unsettlement in the stock market and continued apprehension over the current tightening of money rates. Adverse developments affecting certain corporations contributed to the general uneasiness, which was reflected in numerous recessions of one to three points.

The growing belief in the financial district that plans to readjust the St. Paul Railway's financial affairs would be unfavorable intensified selling pressure against the road's bonds and depressed the maturing 4s more than two point to the lowest level in two years.

Lack of buying support for other rail issues was reflected in losses of a point or so by New York Central 6s, Prisco Adjustment 6s Norfolk & Western Convertible 6s and an assortment of other investment and semi-speculative mortgages.

Appointment of a receiver for the Detroit United Railways was followed by a break of 2 1-4 points in the company's 4 1-2 per cent. bonds. Standard Gas 6 1-2s fell back two points and Pan-American 6s with a two point loss, led the active oil issues lower.

Publication of a tentative reorganization plan for Wilson and company, proposing an exchange of new stocks and bonds for present holdings, led to further selling of the 7 1-2 per cent. bonds, but the decline was limited to a point.

Foreign and United States government bonds moved irregularly lower. The local federal reserve bank announced that subscription books had been closed on the treasury's $450,000,000 offering of bonds and certificates.

CHICAGO GRAIN MARKET

Chicago, March 10—Sudden broadening of demand for wheat today led to a lively advance of 5 1-2c. A bushel. May delivery. Support over government figures disclosing scarcity of wheat in country mills and elevators acted, as a decided stimulus to buyers. As a result of profit-taking, however, top prices failed to hold. The wheat market closed unsettled, 1 to 4c. net higher with May $1.87 1-2 to 1.87 3-4 and July $1.64 1-4 to 1.64 1-2. With corn 1 5-8 to 1 7-8c up, oats showing 1-8c to 1c gain, and provisions varying from 10c decline to a rise of 15c.

Although something of a rush to buy wheat was witnessed at the opening, and at various subsequent times it was only in the last half hour of the date that the upward swing of values became remarkable in good earnest. Earlier much attention had been given to the government report as a whole, but as the day neared an end, the trade turned almost exclusively to notice of the fact that rural mill and elevator stocks of wheat was given officially were about 35,000,000 bushels less than had been estimated recently by a recognized unofficial authority.

Leading commission houses and in particular those with eastern and Florida connections took an aggressive hand in the late buying, and brought about a stampede among recent speculative sellers. The advance which ensued lifted the May delivery to $1.89 1-4, a rise of more than 12c. from the low point touched a few days ago.

Corn and oats followed wheat sharply ungrade.

Exports sales of 1,000,000 bushels of oats were announced.

Provisions averaged higher, sympathizing with grain.

TAFTVILLE

Monday the home department of the Taftville Congregational church school held a social in the lecture room and parlors of the church. A clever sketch presented by some of the members of the Ladies' Benevolent society furnished entertainment for the evening and there was also music. Refreshments were served and there was also music. Refreshments were served and a social hour followed. The supervisor, Miss Fred Ince was in charge of the affair.

John Hargreaves entertained at cards Monday evening at his home on Ocean road in a series of games between the married men and single men of the vicinity. The benedicts were victorious, inflicting a defeat upon the bachelors to the tune of 5 to 4. Miss Lillian Hargreaves acted as scorer, and following the playing, sandwiches, cake and coffee were served by Mrs. Hargreaves, assisted by Mrs. Annie Laycock. The party broke up about 11 o'clock.

The first big flock of English starlings arrived in town Tuesday morning, and began immediately to make a nuisance of themselves with their chattering and fighting. Introduced into this country only a few years ago in the hope of exterminating the English sparrow, they have multiplied to such an extent that they are already more of a pest than the sparrow ever was. At different periods of the year, immense flocks have visited the village putting everything else to flight and creating a general disturbance with their noisy squabble. It now appears that the town must again be an unwilling host to these birds.

With the ice completely gone from the Shetucket river and various bodies of water, known as mud-holes in the vicinity of the town, small boys may be seen daily prowling along the shores watching for the first "kivver" to make its appearance from the mud at the bottom of the pond. It is still too early and the water too cold for "kivvers" to do much swimming about as yet, so the young anglers of the town will have to be content with other varieties of fish until their favorite appears.

The current issue of Fibre and Fabric, a textile journal published in Boston, Mass., says "The Ponemah Company of Taftville, is one of the more modern mills installing the automatic loom."

Many of the farmers in the outlying districts are reporting a surplus of eggs. Even with the big demand at this season of the year for eggs for hatching, there are enough on the market to have brought the price down considerably. One man who keeps several hundred hens prophesied Thursday that at the present rate, the market price of eggs would not be more than a quarter a dozen by Easter.

There was a business meeting of the Ponemah Wheel club Tuesday evening at the club house on Norwich avenue.

Fred Sheldon of New Haven, has been a recent visitor in town.

Mr. and Mrs. Franklin Grant Peck of Honor, Mich., have been recent guests of their son-in-law and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. E. Tracy Clark and family of North Third avenue.

Joseph Leveux who has been confined to his home by an attack of the grippe, is able to be out.

Frank Baker has gone to New Bedford, Mass., where he has accepted a position.

Raoul Blanchette is a patient at the William W. Backus hospital following an operation for appendicitis.

Time and court-plaster heal most wounds.

VERDICT FOR CONTRACTOR WHO DID WORK AT HACKETT'S POINT

Judge George E. Hipman of the superior court before whom the case was tried some time ago in this city has just handed down a decision for Frank M. Roche of Waterford, a builder, to recover $8,423.55 and costs from John C. Robinson of Middletown for whom Roche did a large amont of work in remodelling and repairing a summer cottage at Hackett's Point, Waterford.

Memorandum of Decision.

In his memorandum of decision, Judge Hinman says;

The defendant employed the plaintiff to make several changes in, additions to and repairs on his summer residence at Hatchett's Point, and to make such general repairs and do such work and furnish such material as the plaintiff found necessary in order to put the house into first class shape—beyond the necessity of any further repairs or alterations in the near future. Such references to the probable cost as occurred in the conversations between the parties were necessarily indefinite and speculative and there is no valid foundation for any claim of an agreed price. The plaintiff is entitled to what the services performed and materials furnished are reasonably worth.

About $6,000 of the amount of the bill of particulars is made up of bills of other workmen and material men, most of which are not seriously and none effectively attacked. The legitimacy of the Robinson mason bill, which was the one principally questioned, was substantiated by the evidence, and the criticism of the Hawthorne bill was too indefinite to overcome the fact that the materials were necessarily obtained and furnished, and were paid for by the plaintiff. The percentage charged for interest and profit on these bills is moderate.

The principal serious contentions relate to the charges for transportation, and the amount of time and wages charged for the workmen employed by the plaintiff direct—principally carpenters and painters. The court has painstakingly compared the plaintiff's books of original entry with his bill of particulars and is convinced that, with the exception of the errors hereinafter mentioned, all the time charged for was actually expended on the job and no more than the plaintiff found necessary in order to complete the work in accordance with his understanding with the defendant. That the total number of days labor appears disproportionate to the results accomplished is characteristic of most present-day operations involving the employment of labor, especially in the building trades, and particularly in the remodeling and rejuvenation of old buildings. The plaintiff was his own bookkeeper and analysis of his labor account discloses some minor errors and discrepancies. Giving the defendant the benefit of all such as he is entitled to, a reduction of $469 on this account is arrived at.

The second ground for reasonable complaint is the per diem price charged by the plaintiff for carpenters and painters. He obtained practically all these mechanics for $4.80 per day, although he paid a few less and a few more. This was a low price considering the prevailing wage rates, but the plaintiff makes a flat charge to the defendant at the rate of $7.20 per day, an advance and consequent profit, which, even including compensation insurance and transportation is considered to be more than reasonable to the extent of $1 per day. An allowance of $689 is made on his account.

The plaintiff has distributed through his ledger account and bill of particulars, in addition to charges for drawing water and other materials which were made at the time and are allowable, charges of transportation of workmen aggregating $536. These charges were confessedly made at or after the completion of the job and were an after-consideration intended to cover depreciation and damage to the plaintiff's truck by reason of its operation over the bad roads to and from the job. This amount is also disallowed.

The reasonableness of the amounts and prices of the materials furnished by or through the plaintiff himself is sufficiently established and not successfully controverted.

The above mentioned deductions amount to a total of $1,694, leaving the balance due on the bill of particulars $8,423.55.

As to interest, which the plaintiff claims should be allowed from the date of the last charge item, the defendant's claimed right to at least substantial modifications, in the amount of the plaintiff's claim had sufficiently apparent foundation and the amount ultimately payable was so uncertain, that the detention of the paid balance until the actual amount remaining payable was determined was reasonably excusable, and the demands of justice do not require that interest to the date of judgment be allowed.

The expense incurred by the defendant on account of these improvements is doubtless much larger than he contemplated or expected, but he must assume not only the legal but in large part the moral responsibility for this result. It is hard to conceive that so competent a business man as the defendant appears to be could give a carte blanche order for the complete and thorough rehabilitation of an old building, to be done during a season of adverse weather and road conditions, particularly as applied to the location in question, and then go abroad leaving the enterprise without even nominal regulation by him or on his behalf, and expect other than a resulting expenditure which would unpleasantly surprise, even, as here, without bad faith or incompetence on the part of the plaintiff in the performance of his work.

Judgment that the plaintiff recover of the defendant $8,423.55 and his costs.

TAFTVILLE MAN GONE BEFORE WARRANT SERVED

State police of the Groton barracks hold a warrant for the arrest for liquor law violation against Whitey Tanquay, formerly a Taftville pool-room proprietor and now of parts unknown.

A civilian in the employ of the state police visited the pool room a short while ago and is alleged to have bought liquor at the place. Authorities now believe that the man suspected the police were after him and has fled in consequence.

When a detail of officers visited the place for the purpose of raiding it a few nights ago the store was closed. The police have since then learned that Tanquay had sold the premises and left town.

APPOINTMENTS FOR M'LEAN IN THE U. S. SENATE

(Special to the Bulletin)

Washington, March 10.—In committee assignments today Senator McLean was reappointed chairman of senate committee on banking and currency; also made ranking member on committee on finance owing to the demotion of Senator LaFollette. Should a vacancy occur in the chairmanship of this powerful committee Senator McLean will no doubt be made chairman. He was also appointed a member of the foreign relations committee and committee of manufacturers. From point of service he is now tenth on the list. There are only nine senators, including republicans and democrats who have been in the senate longer.

Dr. Merton E. Fox, of Montville, reckless driving; George Brown, 28 West Coit street; Clyde Gates, Colchester; John Rynszko, 324 Main street; Harry Stewart, Fitchville; Albert Fischer, Westerly, and Joseph A. Lairon, Putnam, operating while under the influence of liquor; Frank Lavant, Norwich, evasion of responsibility, and Morris Dorsky, 55 Connecticut avenue, accident, had their licenses returned to them at the New London court house Tuesday afternoon when the drivers were given a hearing by Commissioner of Motor Vehicles Melvin E. Snow. The only driver whose license was not returned to him was John T. Watt, Montville, who failed to appear.

Demonstration by Champion Typist

Albert Tangora, 21, of Paterson, N. J., twice winner of the world's typewriting championship, gave a demonstration Tuesday morning at the Norwich Free Academy. In a one-minute test writing from copy, he typed 118 words and in a concentration test from printed copy 165 words. While typing he answered questions asked by the pupils and in a second concentration demonstration, during which he wrote from printed copy and added up a set of numbers called off to him by his Manager A. J. Smith, he typed 156 words. He is the only winner of the world's typewriter championship, who has not been an expert pianist.

GERMAN ART GALLERIES DESCRIBED TO ASSOCIATION

The regular meeting of the Art association was held Monday evening at Slater Hall. At the business session Mrs. Philip A. Johnson gave a report of her work as docent in the grammar grades of the public schools of the city. This practical educational work done for the community by the Art Students' association is invaluable and is being more fully developed year by year.

The fourth of a series of "Evenings in the Great Galleries of Europe," was in charge of Mrs. Ozias Dodge and Charles I. Dyer.

Mrs. Dodge reviewed the winter's work giving a general idea of the four periods of Greek art—the Archaic, the Transition, the Great Period and the Hellenistic.

Mr. Dyer's talk was in the nature of personal reminiscences. He described the five galleries in which the art treasures of Germany are to be found. They are the palace of Emperor William I, the palace of Emperor William III, the royal armory, the museum and the national gallery.

About forty lantern slides were used to illustrate the talks of the evening and a list of Greek sculpture in the German museums corresponding to casts in Slater museum collection was given as follows:

Berlin, Archaic Head of a Man, 6th century B. C.; Marsyas Statuette from Pergamum, Apollo Archaic bronze statuette, 6th century B. C. from Naxos; Head of a Goddess, 5th century B. C.; Female Head from Pergamum; The So-Called Praying Boy, 4th century B. C.; Dancing Bacchante; Zeus and Athena in Combat with Giants, marble relief from the altar at Pergamum; Restoration of the Nike, conjectural, by R. Gruttner, a sculptor of Berlin.

Munich—Statue of Apollo or an Athlete, 6th century B. C.; Group from a Temple of Athena in the Island of Aegina, these figures form the centre of a group from the west pediment; A Youth Pouring Oil into His Hand, style of 4th century B. C. School of Myron; Irene and Plutus, a copy of a group by Cephisodotus (father of Praxiteles); Rondanini Medusa, a Roman copy of a work probably of the 4th century B. C.; The So-Called Ilioneus, 4th century B. C.

MITE BOX OPENING BY MISSION CIRCLE

The Woman's Mission Circle of the First Baptist church met at the home of Mrs. William G. Gilchrist, 54 Peck street, on Tuesday afternoon. The meeting opened with singing "Give of Your Best to the Master," followed by scripture reading, remarks upon stewardship and prayer offered by the president of the circle. The subject of the meeting was "The Hebrews," Mrs. Frank P. Church having charge of the programme. An article entitled "Jews and Christians Confer in London," was read by Mrs. Church. Mrs. Herbert Willey and Miss Marion Lathrop read papers on the Hebrews. Current Events showing Missionary progress were read by Mrs. Charles Burke, Mrs. L. A. Huribut, Mrs. E. LaRue Bliven, Mrs. Samuel Billings, Miss Mary Ford, Mrs. Frank Tyler, Mrs. John J. Parsons and Mrs. George Rathbun. As this was the annual mite box meeting there was a special offering which amounted to $43.04. There were 25 present at the meeting which closed with the Mosaic benediction.

A social hour followed, Mrs. Parsons reading an interesting story entitled "A Church With a Woman in It." Delicious refreshments were served by the hostess.

C. OF C. DIRECTORS TALK OF PARKING SITUATION

At the Wauregan hotel Tuesday noon the directors of the Norwich chamber of commerce held their monthly business meeting at which time the financial statement of the chamber for January was heard and accepted. An attractive booklet on the proposed state park at Fort Shantok on the Thames river has been issued for publicity purposes by the state park committee of the chamber. The booklet contains an article on Fort Shantok written by Arthur L. Peale, chairman of the state park committee of the chamber. The directors approved the action tagen by the committee.

The board received and approved a solicitation agreement. It was pointed out that the business men of Norwich, professional, manufacturers and merchants are visited practically every week by representatives of fraternal, social and religious organizations, to advertise in special programs or to donate money for prizes, very often donating prizes, until the abuse of this method of raising money has become not only a nuisance but a tax upon the finance of the business men of the community. Requests for financial aid come not only from the people located within the confines of Norwich, but also from the surrounding towns and villages. Those who enter this agreement will not contribute money either for prizes or for space in advertising programs unless the solicitor has an approval card issued by the chamber after a special committee has investigated the request for financial aid. It is conservatively estimated that the business men of Norwich contribute well up into the thousands of dollars each year through the various and frequent calls that are made upon them for financial assistance, by the various organizations.

The parking situation in Norwich came in for considerable discussion at the meeting. A conference with the New Haven road officials is awaited to see if some arrangement cannot be made to have the parking space at the New Haven station again opened to the public. Other locations are also being investigated.

An official of the chamber commenting on the parking situation in the city said: Norwich rightly claims to be the banking and business center of eastern Connecticut. The available parking space in Norwich is extremely limited, yet a great deal of the success of Norwich depends upon the accommodations furnished to out of town people who come to Norwich on business, to park their cars during business transactions or attendance at local attractions. There is however, a great deal of abuse of the parking privileges in Norwich by local people. It would be of untold value and assistance to this vexatious problem which is confronting every community if the local automobile owners would take into consideration the greatly restricted parking areas of Norwich and who would not use our public streets for a private garage.

There should be enough civic pride among the automobile owners of Norwich for the welfare of our city to permit every available parking space to be utilized by those who come here to transact business. It seems pure carelessness on the part of our people, and the chamber of commerce respectfully calls the attention of our local automobile owners to the need of doing everything possible to help our community along to industrial and commercial expansion. And this question of parking is a vital factor which deeply concerns our community. It is believed that there is greater need for better police supervision of the down-town parking and that extra policemen should be placed in the business section to effectively and efficiently take care of the down-town parking situation.

There will be an important conference on Wednesday the 18th, concerning the question of zoning. There are some dozen cities in Connecticut including Norwich which has applied for permission to create a zoning commission. This conference will consider the question of supporting the state enabling act which will permit any city or town throughout the state of Connecticut to establish zoning ordinances by local option. The chamber of commerce monthly meeting to be held next Monday will consider this question of zoning when Prof. K. R. B. Flint of Norwich university will address the members and their friends on this subject, explaining in detail what zoning is and the benefits of city planning for the community.

Upon request of the chamber of commerce a hearing will be held in Norwich in the near future concerning the establishment of a proposed bus line from Norwich to Middletown via Hadlyme passing Gardner's Lake and the State Park, the Devil's Hopyard. The directors voted their support to the proposed bus line and the chamber will be represented at this hearing.

Another matter taken up and discussed was the proposed itinerant vendors law which will come before this session of the legislature. Itinerant vendors are becoming more and more numerous each year going from house to house canvassing for orders to the detriment of local business. It is estimated that every city throughout the country loses thousands of dollars annually through the practice of the house to house canvasser or solicitor. The people of Norwich depend upon Norwich merchants to furnish them up to date goods, maintain modern stores and sell their merchandise at a reasonable price consistent with fair merchandising dealings. Local merchants employ local people, pay local taxes and support local banking institutions. To be a successful community Norwich must have successful stores as well as succesful factories. The people of Norwich are urged by the chamber of commerce to patronize local merchants insofar as it is possible to do so, because in helping local merchants they are helping the community and in helping the community they are assisting themselves. What pertains to local merchants also pertains to local industries in of course a much smaller degree.

Some time during April, the local Council of United Commercial Travellers will have a large meeting in Norwich attended by representatives from cities located in Connecticut and from surrounding states. In order to show its appreciation to the efforts of the local council of the United Commercial Travellers the chamber has donated a silver loving cup as one of the prizes to be offered the visitors. It is not very often that Norwich has the opportunity of entertaining large delegations or gatherings of organizations and the hospitality of the citizens and business men generally should go out to the visiting delegates. The local council of the Commercial Travellers is to be congratulated upon bringing to this city such a large gathering of business men.

WILL CALL NEW SCHOOL THE BISHOP SCHOOL

The new school which is being erected in the East Side district is to be called the Bishop school, according to a decision reached at the regular meeting of the town school board on Tuesday evening in Superintendent Graham's office at the court house.

The title for the new school building honors the memory of the late N. L. Bishop, who for forty years was connected with the schools of Norwich, first as principal of the Greeneville school from 1869 to 1877 and then as superintendent of the central school district from Jan. 1, 1877 to the date of his death, Oct. 11, 1909, a total period of 40 years of association with Norwich schools.

President Walter F. Lester presided at the meeting and the minutes were kept by the clerk of the board, Judge T. J. Kelly. It was voted to re-engage the teachers, regular bills were ordered paid and the report of the buildings committee showed fine progress being made on the new school building for the East Side.

POETRY

To Daffodils

Fair Daffodils, we weep to see
You haste away so soon;
As yet the early-rising sun
Has not attained his noon.
Stay, stay,
Until the hasting day
Has run
But to the even-song;
And, having prayed together, we
Will go with you along.

We have short time to stay as you,
We have as short a spring;
As quick a growth to meet decay,
As you, or any thing
We die
As your hours go, and dry
Away
Like to the summer's rain;
Or as the pearl's of morning's dew,
Ne'er to be found again.
—Robert Herrick

Prayer to the Wind

The shadow of trees is the toss of the wind's wide garment.
The river-foam is the wake of his naked stride.
He will pluck the sun from the sky to crumble and scatter,
For the magpie night to discover and snatch and hide.

His hands are strong to shake the seas or the jungle.
He leads the wild goose home, stamps aircraft under his feet;
He brings the lion to kill, he cheats the bee of honey;
He wipes the sour smell of poverty out of the street.

O wind, whose lips can whistle the snow from the mountains,
Who clashes the leaves like brass when summer is high and bright,
Who treads the autumn fires, whose voice is the surf of heaven,
Will you not save us at last, and lift us above delight?

Can you not strike at our shames as you strike death from the forests,
Nor fill the spirit of man as you fill his thousand sails?
You know with the hands of the blind his cairns and his cities;
If your touch avail not to move him, what shall he feel that avails?
—Babette Deutsch in Yale Review

HUMOR OF THE DAY

Cherry Soul (to friend)—Lawks my dear, wot a turn you give me! I fought you was dead—strite, I did. I've 'eard several people speakin' well of yer lately.—Punch.

Clark—What do you do with your dull safety razor blades?

Mike—I am, begorra.—West Pointer.

He—That little brother of yours says he saw me kiss you. What shall I give him to hold his tongue?

She—He usually gets half a dollar.—Tyrihans, Christiana.

Look at the drunken guy lying in the gutter over there.

Go on, he ain't drunk; I just saw him move.—Stamford University Chaparral.

Two schoolmates met after many years.

"At any rate, you don't have to worry about what to wear."—Louisville Courier-Journal.

Man—Rather a large funeral isn't it?

Old Irishman—It is that.

Man—Who is dead?

Old Irishman—Well now I don't know for sure, but I think it's the man in the hearse.—Walter Reed Come-Back.

"Say, dad," exclaimed little 5-year-old Dorothy, "I want to ask you an important question.

"What is it, Dorothy, dear?" asked her father.

"Well," replied the youthful diplomat, "tomorrow's my birthday and I'd like to know what you think I'd like to have for a present."—Chicago News.

KALEIDOSCOPE

The rapid increase in the use of motor trucks and machines in China during the last ten years, reports to the department of commerce show, has resulted in the steady and constantly rising growth of the gasoline trade. The total imports in 1923 amounted to 6,366,000 gallons as compared with the 1914 figures of 823,000 gallons.

Justice McLaughlin, of Buffalo, N. Y., frequently takes a kindly interest in the characters that drift into his court room. When a prisoner from Pittsburg was arraigned on the charge of vagrancy the judge thought he had a subject for moral sausion. "What can I do for you?" he asked. "I am here to help you." "Lend me $2," the man suggested. "Thirty days," was his answer.

Jean Matti, a baker of Pully, Switzerland, asserts he has discovered a method of keeping bread fresh for two years. After bread has been baked in the ordinary way, Matti merely puts it again into an oven which has a temperature of 104 degrees Fahrenheit. Experts who have investigated Matti's bread say that specimens which he turned over to them eleven months ago are still fresh and edible.

Among conveniences for the comfort of passengers on board the ocean liner Leviathan, one of the latest is a branch bank, established by an eastern trust company. About 4,000 persons use the bank each trip. The cashing of checks, the changing of money into the currency or another, issuing of letters of credit and the paying of money on wireless orders, are some of the chief activities of this sea going bank.

PIMPLY? WELL, DON'T BE

People Notice It. Drive Them Off with Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets

A pimply face will not embarrass you much longer if you get a package of Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets. The skin should begin to clear after you have taken the tablets a few nights.

Cleanse the blood, bowels and liver with Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets, the successful substitute for calomel; there's no sickness or pain after taking them.

Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets do that which calomel does, and just as effectively, but their action is gentle and safe instead of severe and irritating.

No one who takes Olive Tablets is ever cursed with a "dark brown taste," a bad breath, a dull, listless, "no good" feeling, constipation, torpid liver, bad disposition or pimply face.

Dr. Edwards spent years among patients afflicted with liver and bowel complaints and Olive Tablets are the immensely effective result. Take one or two nightly for a week. See how much better you feel and look. 15c and 30c.

TORONTO COURT DECISION FAVORS U. S. GOVERNMENT

H. S. Osler and Six Others of the Defunct Continental Company, Ltd., Must Tell Some of the Things They Know in Connection With the Teapot Dome Oil Leases—Case Involves the Alleged Payment of $90,000 in Liberty Bonds to Albert B. Fall, Former Secretary of the Interior.

Toronto, March 11.—The United States government was victorious today in its fight to compel H. S. Osler, K. C., and six others of the defunct Continental Trading Company, Ltd., to tell some of the things they know in connection with the Teapot Dome oil leases.

Osler and his associates lost their appeal from an order of Justice Riddell handed down last December 13, when the appellate division of Ontario ruled today that they must answer certain questions put to them by the United States special attorneys in the oil scandal prosecution.

The Canadian end of the famous case came to light last September when the American lawyers brought Osler into court alleging contempt in that he had refused to answer "certain questions" put to him by United States Counsel Shantz, acting as o commissioners.

Osler is now out of the country—last reports had him in a hospital in Cairo, Egypt, recovering from blood poisoning incurred on a hunting trip in the Sudan. He left Canada for the Sudan in December, before Justice Riddell's ruling. His attorneys assured the court that it was merely a holiday, and in no manner an attempt to escape the courts' jurisdiction.

The questions put to Osler and his associates—Britton Osler, Suneva Margaret Fordyce, Louise Samuels, Harley H. Brugis, N. E. Strickland and Harold E. Boston—concern a somewhat intricate series of American oil deals out of which $90,000 worth of Liberty bonds are alleged by the American government to have been paid to Albert B. Fall, former secretary of the interior and the man charged with having been instrumental in the lease of Teapot Dome to Harry F. Sinclair.

In September, 1921, Osler met an "unnamed client" in New York, and shortly thereafter he returned to Canada to form the Continental company. Today's majority opinion of the appellate court held that the information of this company "was an afterthought of Mr. Osler's suggested for his own rather than his client's protection, and was not thought of until some time after the client had made known to Mr. Osler his name in connection with the confidential business in respect of which he sought Mr. Osler's advice."

It came out at the hearings that the Continental company, which went out of existence in February, 1924, had contracted with the Humphreys Texas company and the Humphreys Mexico company on November 17, 1921, for the purchase of 33,333,333 barrels of crude oil at $1.50 a barrel. It was said that the execution of the agreement was guaranteed by the Sinclair Oil Purchasing company and the Prairie Oil and Gas company.

The contract was said to have almost immediately been sold, by the Continental company to the Sinclair Crude Oil Purchasing company and the Fairies Oil and Gas Company at an advance of 35 cents a barrel, a transaction which between January 1, 1922 and May 26, 1923, was said to have netter the Continental company profits exceeding $2,000,000.

These profits, the United States claimed, were invested in Liberty bonds, purchased in New York through the Dominion Bank of Canada, and then distributed to shareholders and holders of stock warrents of the Continental company under Osler's direction. The United States wants to know who got these bonds and if any of them were given to former Secretary Fall.

In a lone dissenting opinion filed by Justice Hodgins today, that jurist found something "rather remarkable" in the Americans' presentation of its case against Osler

"It is quite apparent," his opinion read, "that counsel for the complainant have in the bill of complaint studiously refrained from any allegation that the $90,000 of United States Liberty bonds which it said were found in Mr. Fall's possession in June, 1921, were paid or given to him as a bribe, or that the alleged fraudulent conspiracy between Fall and Sinclair, in regard to the oil leases in question, involved in any way the transfer of these bonds to Fall. The studious absence of any allegation involving such an inference is rather remarkable. * * * It may be that the government of the United States is reluctant to charge a former cabinet minister with receiving a bribe, but on the present state of record, and under condition disclosed by the appellant, evidence regarding the distribution of profits of the Continental Trading company and cognate facts would not be admitted in any court unless counsel undertook to connect it reluctantly to the charges in that record."

TRIAL OF TEAPOT DOME LEASE ANNULMENT SUIT

Cheyenne, Wyo., March 11. (By the A. P.)—Depositional testimony of Theodore Roosevelt, former assistant secretary of the navy, and the introduction by the government of a mass of letters and telegrams intended to show that Albert B. Fall, former secretary of the interior, attempted to keep secret the fact that he had caused the Teapot Dome naval oil reserve to Harry F. Sinclair's Mammoth Oil company, today made their way into the swelling records of the Teapot Dome lease annulment suit, being tried here before Federal Judge T. Blake Kennedy.

Outstanding in Roosevelt's testimony was his statement that he insisted on a modification of the executive order drafted for signature by President Harding, transferring the Teapot Dome reserve from the navy to the interior department, so that the navy would have the "final say," in administrative affairs connected with the reserve.

Roosevelt said that the tentative draft of the order which came from the interior department was not satisfactory to him—that he at first took the position that the reserve should not be relinquished to the interior department, as it was signed by the president, he said in the deposition, the navy was to have been given control over matters governing administration of leases to private concerns.

After receiving the original draft of the order, Roosevelt averred, he conferred with Rear Admiral Griffin, and others in the navy department, some of whom suggested changes. That various revised drafts were then made and submitted to Edwin Denby, then secretary of the navy.

"If you get Fall to agree to the modification I will agree," Roosevelt quoted Denby as saying. After both secretaries agreed, the deposition said, the document was taken to President Harding who signed it May 31, 1921.

Roosevelt's deposition said he knew neither of the leasing of the Elk Hills naval reserve in California, nor the Teapot Dome lease until they were publicly announced and that he had always been under the impression that it was not the intention of the navy department to permit leasing of the entire fields.

Letters and telegrams to Fall inquiring into the possibility of leasing the naval reserves, from N. M. Tabor, of Denver; the late Senator Samuel D. Nicholson, of Colorado; Joseph W. Clark, of Lawdville, Colo.; Patrick Sullivan, Casper, Wyo., oil man; Peter Q. Neiss, Great Falls, Mont., were read into the record, as were the requests of several congressman for information on the possible leading of the reserves.

INCREASE IN NET INCOME OF CLASS ONE RAILROADS

Washington, March 11.—An increase in net operating income of Class One railroads was reported today by the bureau of railway economics in making public figures for January, when the total reached $65,842,000 as compared with $51,387,200 in January, 1924.

On the basis of reports filed by the carriers with the interstate commerce commission, the bureau placed the gross operating revenues on these carriers at $484,773,600 in January, 1925, an increase of $15,787,400 over the same month of the previous year, while operating expenses totalled $383,734,800, a reduction of $1,357,200 from the figure for January, 1924.

Only 27 Class 1 carriers operated at a loss in January, the report showed, as compared with 33 in December, 1924. Of these roads 11 were in the eastern, three in the southern, and 13 in the western districts. There was virtually no change in maintenance expenditures during January of this year as compared with the first month of 1924.

CROWDS VISIT THE NEWLY DISCOVERED TOMB OF GIZA

Cairo, Egypt, March 11 (By the A. P.)—Crowds of people visited today the scene of the discovery of the tomb of Giza which it is hoped may prove to be that of an important person in the reign of the Pharaoh Seneferu of the fourth dynasty, if not that of the monarch himself.

It was learned that a mirrow placed at the bottom of the deep shaft to reflect the sun's rays into the tomb showed the contents much more clearly, especially the alabaster coffin, which appears almost transparent. Several articles are resting on top of the sarcophagus, on the sides of which lies the cartouche.

The mortuary chamber apparently is 18 feet by 12 feet. A number of curious articles were discerned in the dim light, some of which resemble an umbrella and others the head and hoofs of an ox. It is noteworthy that on one side the chamber appears to have been plastered up, seemingly indicating the existence of further rooms.

FATAL FALL INTO MACHINE USED TO CUT UP BAKED CLAY

Middletown, March 11.—Angelo Ropa, 47 years old, of East Berlin, an employe at the R. O. Clark brickyard in East Cromwell, was killed this afternoon when he fell into a machine used to cut up baked clay.

Ropa was called upon by other workman to repair the machine and was standing on top of the apparatus when he fell and was badly mangled by the knives.

Acting Medical Examiner Dr. John E. Loveland and Coroner L. A. Smith conducted an investigation and the coroner set Friday afternoon at 3 o'clock as the date of the inquest.

Peace Protocol Will Be Debated Today

Britain Has Not Abandoned the Policy of Settlement of International Disputes by Arbitration.

Geneva, March 11.—(By The A. P.)—Foreshadowing the debate tomorrow on the Geneva protocol by the council of the League of Nations, British spokesmen emphasized tonight their hope that the American people would not get the idea from the statement to be delivered by Austen Chamberlain, British secretary for foreign affairs, that Great Britan has in any way abandoned the policy of settlement of international disputes by arbitration.

When Mr. Chamberlain has outlined the British objections to the protocol, M. Briand, whose speech has been carefully gone over and approved by the Paris government, will present the French viewpoint. League officials predict that the French declaration will be in strong support of the protocol, with readiness to listen to any suggestions calculated to improve it and make it suitable for all nations including Great Britain.

DR SUN YAT SEN, SOUTH CHINA LEADER, IS DEAD

Peking, March 12.—(By The A. P.)—Dr. Sun Yat Sen, the South China leader died this (Thursday) morning.

Few if any statesmen, past or present, have known more ups and downs, more victories and defeats, more loyalty or more treachery that Dr. Sun Yat Sen, the first provisional president of China, frequently called "the father of the Republic" and often referred to as the "George Washington of the Far East."

The name of Dr. Sun first began to appear in newspapers of the Western World back in the late 80's, when his vigorous pronouncements against his arch-enemies, the dynastic Manchu emperors of China, attracted some slight attention. He was then living in the Hawaiian Islands with his widowed mother, who had migrated to Honolulu with her husband, an agent of a Christian mission, when Sun Yat Sen was an infant. Since 1895, however, when he essayed the first of his many revolutions, his name has become almost as well known to the Occident as it is to the 400 million Chinese nationals on behalf of whom he spent a lifetime of unremitting hardship and constant danger.

In dealing with the career of Sun Yat Sen, it is essential to note that practically all of his best work in the overthrow of the Manchu emperors and the various revolutions which followed was done when he was thousands of miles from the shores of China.

There are few parts of the world to which he was a stranger. Wherever there were Chinese he had been, always with the same mission, the same appeal—a Chinese Republic. A small, quiet, stoop-shouldered man, with a thin, grayish mustache, pointing upward at the ends, Dr. Sun moved about the world holding his life in his hands every moment of the day and night, for it would have been worth $200,000 to any one who could plant a knife between his shoulders.

Dr. Sun, although few of his associates knew it, was a Christian. He was born in Honolulu in 1862 and received his medical education in the Hong Kong college. He was married quite early in life and was the father of two children, a son and a daughter.

GERMAN TENOR FELL 25 FEET INTO A PITFUL OF SCENERY

New York, March 11.—Disregarding broken bones, injured when he fell 25 feet into a pitful of scenery, wood and iron, under the stage of the Metropolitan Opera house, Curt Taucher, German tenor, continued in the title role of Siegfried today during the ensuing final scene of 45 minutes.

Although the curtain was not lowered, the audience did not know of Toucher's fall, which was hidden from them by a screen of steam across the front of the stage.

The tenor was carried back to the stage, but refusing to answer inquiries as to his injuries, he went on with the final scene. It was learned later that both hands were sprained and two fingers broken in the fall.

AUNT CHARGED WITH ABDUCTION OF NEPHEW

Stamford, March 11.—Anthony Mele, of New Haven, came here this morning with a New Haven policeman and a warrant for the arrest of Genevieve Johnson, of New Haven, charging that she had illegally taken away his son, Edward Mele. Local police ade search for Miss Johnson and the child. They found that she was here yesterday but had returned to New Haven. Mele has two children. His wife is dead. Miss Johnson is his late wife's sister.

Lansing, Mich., March 11. — The Michigan house of representatives today adopted a resolution favoring the confirmation of Charles B. Warren as United States attorney general and refruting the stand taken by Senator James Couzens.

The resolution read as follows:

James Couzens, senator from this state, made the statement yesterday that he expressed the view of nine-tenths of the people of Michigan in opposing the confirmation of Charles B. Warren.

"Wherefor, we believe the great majority of the people and the republican party of Michigan desire such confirmation.

"Be it resolved, This house go on record as approving the appointment of Mr. Warren by President Coolidge and favoring his confirmation by the United States sennte."

COLUMBIA GIRL GOES TO JAIL IN DEFAULT OF $5 FINE

New York, March 11. — Convicted twice in one day of traffic violations, Miss Helen L. Mendelsborn, 19 year old student at Columbia university and City College night schools, today went to jail for 24 hours in default of a $5 fine.

She was the second woman in the history of the traffic court to go to jail. When she is released, she must pay another fine or return to jail for two days more.

"It will be a good experience for me," she said, as she prepared to enter the patrol, "since I want to be a lawyer anyway."

"This has even the most thrilling and the most delightful day of my life," Miss Mendelssohn said after she was released from Jefferson Market prison at 4 o'clock.

Miss Mendelssohn said that while she was incarcerated she became inspired to write the following verse:

'I'm standing in prison with my face to the wall

SUBS PIERCED LINES OF INVADING BATTLESHIPS

Aboard U. S. S. Seattle, at Sea, off the Coast of Lower California, March 11 (By the A. P.)—Uncle Sam's newest submarines, those of the "S" type, after cruising 2600 miles from the Panama canal, pierced the lines of "invading" battleships early today in the greatest naval sham battle staged in the Pacific and left a much harassed "enemy" at his base on the west coast of Mexico.

One hundred and nine ships, divided into the black, or invading fleet, and the blue, or defensive fleet, came to blows on the moonlit sea off the Mexican coast last night. Until an hour before dawn the engagement went on over hundreds of square miles of ocean.

This morning found the great problem—the dense of the Pacific coast against invasion—finally worked out. A decision on the result of the battle will come later.

FOUR STOCKBROKERS ARE HELD IN $10,000 BAIL EACH

Patchogue, N. Y., March 11.—Four stockbrokers operating in New York under the firm name of Townsend and Co., were held in $10,000 bail each by County Judge Firman today, charged with obtaining money under false pretenses from storekeepers of this section.

They were Louis O. Manes, Edward Rosenberg, Sigmund Levy and Charles Greenhaus and were alleged to have used the long-distance telephone in a "sell and switch" scheme of stock-selling.

The cases were prosecuted by Attorney-General Albert Ottinger, who said the accused had victimized persons in Massachusetts, Pennsylvania, New Jersey and other states. They were held for trial in Yolk county supreme court in April.

CHARGED WITH PASSING FORTY WORTHLESS CHECKS

Philadelphia, March 11.—A young man who said he had been a student at the Yale Divinity school and who gave his name as Zacharias Allison, was arrested here today charged with passing forty worthless checks aggregating $1,500. After a hearing he was released in $600 bail.

Police declared that he had admitted passing the checks, giving as the reasons his inability to find employment and a desire to care for his wife who is ill and to continue his studies.

Allison was said by the authorities to be wanted in New Haven and Chicago on charges similar to those preferred against him here.

Allison said he was a son of the Rev. T. A. Allison, a prominent clergyman of Gorin, Mo.

GENERAL STRIKE IS IN FORCE IN LIMA, PERU

Buenos Aires, March 11.—A delayed despatch to La Nacion, which was filed at Lima, Peru, on Tuesday, indicates that a general strike began in the Peruvian capital at midnight on Monday as a protest against the award of President Coolidge on the Tacna-Arica controversy between Chile and Peru.

The despatch says that Tuesday morning vehicular traffic had ceased, that many factories and shops had closed and that the newspapers had not appeared. During the day, however, some of the shops reopened.

The despatch adds that the people, "discontented with the decision, calmly but feelingly reject it."

CREW OF EIGHTY MEN OF AN ICE-CRUSHED SHIP RESCUED

Sealing Steamer Stella Maris Was Caught in Ice Floes While Bound For the Northern Grand Banks—Wireless Reported the Steamer as Sinking—Members of the Crew Were Rescued by the Sealing Steamer Prospero.

St. John's, N. F., March 11.—The crew of the sealing steamer Stella Maris, which was reported crushed in ice floes and sinking early today, was rescued tonight according to a radio despatch from the sealing steamer Prospero, one of the two vessels which had been searching for the Stella Maris and her crew.

The crew was found by the Prospero and rescued early tonight, the despatch from the sealer stated.

The Prospero started in search of the Stella Maris when a radio message at daybreak told of her plight. She was hampered, however, by heavy ice. Late today the Newfoundland government dispatched the freighter Sable Island to join the search for the distressed steamer, reported 90 miles from Notre Dame Bay, off the northeast coast of Newfoundland.

The Stella Maris and the Prospero were members of the sealing fleet which started Saturday for the Northern Grand Banks on their annual hunt.

BOY MADE KIDNAPPING CHARGE AGAINST FATHER

New York, March 11.—A ten-year-old boy today caused his father to be held for hours as a kidnapper. The lad walked into a police station with a highly colored story.

"I am Paul Pendleton of Columbus, Ohio," he said. "Three weeks ago a man and woman threw me into their automobile and brought me here. I have been watched closely.

He told of his clever escape.

"Today my first chance came. They gave me 15 cents and an empty bottle and sent me after milk. I used the nickel for carfare here."

He held up the empty bottle and a dime. Police went to look for the kidnappers.

In another part of the town police detained a man who said he was Charles McLean and had come to report the disappearance of his ten-year-old son, whom he had sent after milk early in the morning. Four hours later the man and the boy met face to face.

"That's my son," the man said.

"Paul Pendleton," tearfully admitted it. He said he had read of the kidnapping of Pendleton at Columbia. The rest he blames on the movies.

Police suggested punishment. "I'll attend to that," said McLean.

MOVEMENT FOR KNIGHTS OF PHYTHIAS STATE HOME

New Britain, March 11.—A movement was started here tonight for a state home for the Knights of Pythias of Connecticut. The plan was announced at Past Chancellors' Night of St. Elmo lodge of New Britain and was received with enthusiasm. A number of grand lodge officers including Grand Chancellor Fred M. Parsons, of Seymour, were present and the project was fiiaht advanced by Past Supreme Representative Manlius J. Norton.

With the endorsement of the grand lodge officers, it is proposed to launch a campang for $100,000. Workers will campaign for this fund throughout the state. A committee appointed to advance the project included Past Grand Chancellor William Cowlishaw, Deputy United States Marshal A. P. Marsh and Mr. Norton. One case donation was made tonight.

The project is expected to result in the purchase of a suitable site for the home in some section of the state yet to be determined.

Members of the lodge were present from several parts of the state, including Bridgeport, Hartford, Waterbury, Seymour and Torrington.

NOVEL QUALIFICATIONS FOR PRESIDENTIAL NOMINEE

Munich, Barvia, March 11.—Perhaps the most novel suggestion advanced for a nominee for presidency is that of the Barvarian national weekly Das Bayerische Vaterland, which holds that Ex-Tsar Ferdinand of Bulgaria, who now lives in Coburg, would make an ideal German president. The papers believe that this would satisfactorily dispose of the quarrel between the houses of Hohenzoller, Prussia, and Wittelsbach, Bavaria, as to who should govern Germany.

About Ferdinand, it is said that besides having once lorded it over the Bulgarians he is a great hunter, an acknowledged authority on botany, a devoted lover of music who visits the Bayreuth Festivals regularly and exceedingly popular with the ladies. He should therefore, it is argued, appeal to monarchists, sports loving people, men of science, devotees of the fine arts and women voters.

BOYS SOLD FOR 10 CENTS RARE BOOK VALUED AT $800

New York, March 11.—A rare old book valued at $800 was sold for 10 cents by boys ignorant of its value, and was returned "because its covers were soiled" by an equally ill-informed purchaser, it was revealed today.

The volume was one of a collection of 150 rarwe books, valued at $20,000 and stolen by boys from the garage of Miss Ruth Lawrence, where she stored the collection.

The boys had sold about 33 of the choice books for 10 cents each before police licated, and saved the remainder.

HELD CONVERSATION FIVE MILES APART IN THE AIR

Dayton, Ohio, March 11.—Today for the first time in history, according to army aviation officers here, two men several thousand feet in the air and more than five miles apart, held conversation.

This feat was accomplished at Wilbur Wright Field by Major H. J. Kneer and Lieutenant M. N. Stewart during a test of new radio equipment.

POPE IS TO HOLD SECRET CONSISTORY ON MARCH 30

Rome, March 11 (By the A. P.)—The pope has decided to hold a consistory on March 30 to create as cardinals Monsignors Ilundainy Esteban, archbishop of Seville, and Casanova Y Marzol, archbishop of Granada, Spain. The consistory will be a secret one only because the "red hats" will be sent to Spain to be conferred by the king there.

CLAIMS THAT TESTIMONY VINDICATES GEN. MITCHELL

Washington, March 11.—Chairman Lampert of the house aircraft committee, said in a statement today that Brigadier General Mitchell, assistant army air chief, appeared to have been thoroughly vindicated in his testimony regarding the deficiencies in equipment and personnel of the air service.

The general's statement in regard to a lack of an adequate defense against attack from the air, Mr. Lampert said, also appeared to have been borne out.

Mitchell's testimony Lampert declared, was given because he considered it his duty and "with the expectation of discipline which seems to have been meted out to him."

The committee chairman said General Mitchell was the outstanding witness of the aircraft inquiry and that the "directness of his testimony was refreshing to the committee when compared with seeming restrant on the part of so large a number connected with the air service."

"While $433,000,000 may have been spent during the last five years there has been no proof of waste or extravagance," continued the statement. "However, the fact seems to stand out that the conservatism in the army general staff and navy general board has prevented expenditures for the acquirement of modern aircraft equipment in sufficient numbers to establish American supremacy in the air.

"Trifling without national security must stop.

"Startling revelations were made to the committee showing that even today the services are buying aircraft which does not seem fit to fly and orders are out that many planes shall not be flown. Testimony was given which indicates that better planes are offered the services than have been bought. The lives of our aviators must not be sacrificed on an altar of conceit, reared by engineers whose judgment can be swayed away from the dictates of fact and science."

FILIBUSTER IN SENATE ON ISLE OF PINES TREATY

Washington, March 11.—A filibuster against ratification of the Isle of Pines treaty developed late today in the senate with Senator Copeland, democrat, New York, announcing that he was prepared to speak at least for several days.

Accepting this challenge, republican leaders indicate they were ready to force night sessions to bring to a vote the convention with Cuba, which has been pending for more than 20 years and by which the United States would formally recognize Cuban sovereignty over the Isle of Pines.

With other opponents of this convention, Senator Copeland desires that action be postponed until the new congress assembles. They take the position that new members of the senate should have more time to study the question.

Senator Copeland served his notice after more than five hours of debate. Previously he had asked for unanimous consent that a vote be had on December 17. To that Senator Bruce, democrat, Maryland, objected.

Taking the floor after Senators Willis and Fess, of Ohio; Wadsworth, of New York, and Bingham of Connecticut, had voiced their views, Senator Copeland spoke from behind a barricade of more than a score of weighty reference volumes and bulky documents on his desk. He intimated that if necessary this material would supply him with subjects for arguments for a week or more.

Despite this, Senator Pepper, republican, Pennsylvania, in charge of the treaty, declared the pact would be kept continuously before the senate until a vote was had. Senator Copeland had the floor when the senate recessed and planned to resume his argument tomorrow.

AWARDED $10,000 DAMAGES FOR LOSS OF LEFT ARM

New Haven, March 11.—John F. Jeffcott, of this city was awarded damages of $10,000 for the loss of his left arm by a jury in the superior court today, the verdict standing against the Connecticut company.

On the evening of December 29, 1923, Jeffcott was a passenger on an out-bound Waterbury-Cheshire trolley car. At Spring Glen he proceeded to leave the car. The last thing he remembered, he testified, was stepping upon the lower step, and the next that his left arm had been severed. It appeared that he fell and the wheels of the cad passed over his arm. Just how he came to fall he himself did not know, nor any of the witnesses.

LOCATE MORE VICTIMS OF SWINDLER KORETZAN

Chicago, March 11. — Additional thousands of the $2,000,000 or more obtained by Leo Koretzan, swindler, who died in state prison in January, have been located, it was intimated today by an assistant district attorney.

How much of where the missing fortunes has been found, he declined to state. The disclosure was made in connection with the withdrawal of the government's income tax claims against the $140,000 recovered by the Chicago Title and Trust Company.

WILLIMANTIC

Investigation of reports that some of the class rooms at Connecticut Agricultural college had been closed to avoid a threatened epidemic of scarlet fever proved Wednesday that stories of the closing of any part of the college were untrue. Prof. William F. Kirkpatrick, secretary of the school committee of the town of Mansfield, of which Mrs. F. O. Vinton of Eagleville, is chairman, stated that the closing of school rooms in that vicinity merely affected the grade schools. The eighth grades of the grammar schools at Storrs are included in three different buildings, two of which are owned by the college and one by the town. Grades 1, 2 and 3, under Miss Keene, are located in the town school building opposite Beebe's store near the college. Grades 4 and 5 taught by Miss Saunders are in the building formerly used as the office of the buildings and repair department and grades 6, 7 and 8 are in the basement of Whitney hall and are in charge of Mrs. Edmonds. The eighth grades represent about 90 pupils. Late last week Miss Saunders, teacher of grades 4 and 5 was suddenly taken ill with scarlet fever and as a precautionary cautionary measure the committee voted, on recommendation of the school inspector, to close the three rooms for a period of ten days. As near as could be determined none of the pupils have contracted the disease and it is planned to resume classes late this week of next Monday.

The Willimantic Exchange club held its meeting Wednesday noon with an excellent attendance. The president, Dr. George E. Wilcox was in charge. The minutes of the previous meeting were read by Secretary Robert H. Fenton. Two new members, George Stiles of Windham and Prof. H. L. Garrigus of the animal husbandry department of Connecticut Agricultural college, were given a rousing welcome. Guests of the club were Rev. William J. Reynolds of Lisbon who was introduced by Geo. W. Fraser and William Bohn, district superintendent of the Swarthmore Chautauqua, who accompanied Rev. F. C. Williams. The Exchange club committee of five members which will join similar committees from the chamber of commerce and Rotary club to form a planning commission, was announced to be President Wilcox, George E. Elliott, Dr. C. E. Simonds, Frank M. Lincoln and Harold C. Lincoln. Rev. Mr. Williams was put in charge of the entertainment. He called for song numbers, which were led by Charles H. Caswell and then presented Dr. Harry Ballou, assistant superintendent of the Mansfield Training School and Hospital, who read a highly interesting paper on "The Feeble-Minded." Dr. Ballou told of the importance of the subject, making this statement more forceful by saying that in Massachusetts alone there were about 50,000 feeble-minded persons and that the average in every state, especially along the Atlantic seaboard was alarmingly high. He dwelt to some extent on the founding of institutions to care for these unfortunate defectives. In 1857, Dr. Henry E. Knight opened the first hospital of this kind in Lakeville. He was succeeded by his son Dr. George Knight in his humanitarian work and the property was taken over by the state. In 1915 the legislature appropriated a sum for the founding of the Mansfield Hospital and School and successive appropriations have enabled the institution to grow to a high standard. Even its present large dimensions, however, are hardly sufficient and there is a constant waiting list. Some 437 children are now awaiting entrance and recent additions will offer room for about two-thirds of that number, making a total of about 800 children being cared for.

After explaining the functions of the social service department and the interest which the board of education has taken in feeble-minded people, Dr. Ballou concluded with an outline of the methods used in assisting defectives. He pointed out the need of industrial and vocational training for inmates low in mentality and advocated some form of permanent registration to prevent the inter-marriage of feeble minded people who are not confined in hospitals. "The causes of imbecility and general low mentality are now 80 per cent. heriditary," he stated, "and some definite measure should be taken at once to reduce this danger which is eating at the core of the nation." Adjournment was taken at 1.35 o'clock.

Funeral services for Hudson Austin were held at 1.30 o'clock Wednesday afternoon at his home in North Coventry, Rev. E. M. Pickop officiated. Burial was in the Center cemetery, North Coventry. Arrangements were in charge of Avery and Van Zandt.

Considerable brush was burned Wednesday afternoon on land situated on South Park street and owned by Robert E. Mitchell. The blaze was discovered by Raymond McNaikle, a resident of this section. An attempt was made to halt the flames by a band of volunteers but all efforts proved unsuccessful and at 3.45 o'clock a still alarm was sent in to Engine Company No. 1. Chief Tighe and Hoseman Martin and Reynolds responded with the chemical truck. The fire was extinguished with a foresters' pump. There was no damage.

Merchants were deploring the fact Wednesday that the strike at American Thread company plant had caused a noticeable drop in business which they fear will become acute if the strike continues over a period of several weeks or even months. Many expressed the opinion that this is a splendid opportunity for the chamber of commerce to swing into action and make an effort to settle the difficulty.

The mild temperature the past few days came as a direct contrast for older residents of this city who recall the famous blizzard of 37 years ago when from March 12 to 14 the snow and wind swept over Willimantic.

STRIKE SITUATION UNCHANGED AT AM. THREAD CO. PLANT

(Special to the Bulletin)

Willimantic, March 11—The strike at the American Thread company plant here was settling down Wednesday to activities in preparation for a long term of waiting. Other than meetings of various striking branches of the mill, where the secretaries filed lists of the names of single persons, heads of families, number of families and the like, there was little to record.

Agent Don H. Curtis's statement for Wednesday consisted of but one long sentence. "The power in the plant is off and operations are suspended."

A delegation of several hundred strikers congregated at the gates of the mills at 7 o'clock in the morning and remained there until 7.30 to check up those entering the mills. Overseers and minor officials who had business in the shops were the only ones entering the plant. The operators formed in procession at the gate leading to No. 4 mill and marched to a point opposite the spool shop opposite the Jackson and Main street corner. There they listened to a brief address by Miss Mary Kelleher, the national organizer who is assisting Miss Amy Hooker, local president in leading the strike here. The crowd then dispersed, some returning to their homes and others going to Central Labor Union Hall for group meetings.

Assurance was being given during the day that no striking operator need have the fear of becoming in need of financial backing. A committee is outlining a plan—to give assistance in two forms, by drawing orders on merchants for food, fuel and clothing and to provide certain amounts of money. Various textile and building trades unions from several parts of this and surrounding states telegraphed words of encouragement and promised financial backing.

Miss Amy Hooker, local president, received a sympathetic visitor, Dr. Samuel J. Turcotte who presented her a check for one hundred dollars. The committee gave three rousing cheers for this show of generosity.

Operatives of the Holland Silk Manufacturing Company signified their plan to give assistance and Wednesday noon girls were stationed at the mill doors and received most gratifying contributions. A strikers' parade was held at 1.15 o'clock in the afternoon. The line of march led up Main street to High street, down Valley and Bank streets to Main, where dismissal was ordered at Labor Union Hall. A corps of pickets has been appointed by the committee to occupy stations at the thread company plant and observe conditions. Several meetings are scheduled today (Thursday) for organization purposes.

fore the committee on cities and boroughs, at the state capitol Wednesday, one of the bills taken up was house bill No. 522 a repeal of the private act requiring the town of Windham to ratify appropriations made at a town meeting by ballot vote. Representative A. Linn Weatherhead presented a substitute bill in which there is a provision that will submit the acceptance by referendum to the voters of the town.

Only three more days remain for the filing of income tax returns, the time expiring Monday, March 16 at 5 p. m. Leon T. Wilson of Putnam and F. F. Hickey of Hartford, deputy collectors of internal revenue have been busy at their temporary office in this city during the past few days.

Mr. and Mrs. William Shortell entertained Tuesday night in celebration of the birthday of their grandson "Sonny" Benoit. In addition to games, Miss Claire Foley entertained on the violin, with Mrs. Ruth Harrington at the piano. Lunch was served. Others present were Dorothy Shortell, Louise Warrender, Helen Rajchell, Eileen Iline, Thelma and Lucile Smith, Dorothy Harrington, Gertrude O'Neill, Ray Desrosiers, John Rajchel, Roland Girouard, David Rondeau and Ruel Tannant.

The men friends of members of the Sorority of the Methodist church were entertained this week at the church parlors. Mrs. William E. Webber was chairman of the supper committee.

Rev. and Mrs. William J. Reynolds of Lisbon are guests for a few days of Mr. and Mrs. George W. Fraser of Windham road.

Sidney Scheinmann, a local boy was notified Wednesday that he had won $100 in a cross word puzzle contest conducted by a Hartford concern. Scheinmann is a student at Windham High school.

One applicant took the examination for the U. S. poultry departmental expert position for which tests were given at the town buildings Wednesday forenoon, in charge of J. Cyprian Pauluas, local civil service secretary.

Former Selectman Ernest P. Chesbro is at St. Joseph's hospital, suffering from an injury to his left knee as the result of falling on ice in the yard of his home, Tuesday morning. In attempting to save himself from the fall Mr. Chesbro wrenched the ligaments in his knee. An operation was performed on the limb Wednesday noon. It was found that several of the ligaments had been entirely pulled away from the bone.

About a hundred members of the Social Corner of The Bulletin from Willimantic, Norwich and surrounding towns gathered in Labor Union hall on Wednesday to attend the celebration which marked the fifteenth anniversary of Social Corner No. One, Willimantic. Dinner was served at 12 with Mrs. William Greene hostess. The long tables had been very attractively arranged by Mrs. Albert Gilman of South Coventry, with decorations of yellow crepe paper, (the corner color) and flowers. Mrs. Green was assisted in serving by Mrs. Charles Lamb, Mrs. Jennie Randall, Mrs. Fenelon McCullum, Mrs. Albert Bothom, Mrs. Mary Mary Russ, Mrs. W. C. Elmandorf, Mrs. William Chaplin, Mrs. Sarah Pendleton, Mrs. William Bell, of South Windham, Mrs. Elijah Woodward and Mrs. Albert Gilman. On the menu were cold meets, potao salads, brown bread, rolls, baked beans, pickles, baked macaroni, pie, doughnuts, cheese, ice cream, cake and coffee. The editor's cake, baked and decorated by Mrs. Herbert Robinson, known to the sisters as "Helper" was on exhibition. Following a social hour a very entertaining program was given. Four musical numbers were given by Mr. and Mrs. Albert Gilman of South Coventry and William Hernberg of Mansfield Depot, with mandolin, piano and violin, "Follow the Swallow," "The Tail Cedars," "Kiss of Spring Waltz', and "Peter Pan." A reading was given by Mrs. George McCracken, entitled "That Quieted Them" and she received an encore. Mrs. Amanda Billings read "Entertaining the Minister," responding to an encore with "The Proposal." A piano solo was given by Miss Florence Hoffman of Norwich, who played "Meadow Brook" an encored gave "Old South." A duet, "Whispering Hope," was sung by Mrs. Charles Lamb and Mrs. Albert Bothman, accompanied by Mr. and Mrs. Gilman with piano and violin. Among the visitor from Norwich were Mrs. Henry Tetreault, Mrs. Frank Palmer, Mrs. W. A. Goodwin, Mrs. F. A. Gardiner, Mrs. H. A. Kendall, Mrs. Robert Breckenridge, Mrs. Albert G. Minor, Mrs. William Weaver, Mrs. Frank Bushnell, Mrs. H. O. Smith and Mrs. Charles Browning.

Mrs. Maude Kelley spent Tuesday in Hartford.

A meeting of the play committee of the Hebron Players' club was held Wednesday evening at the home of the secretary and treasurer, Mrs. Edmund Horton, for the purpose of casting the three one-act plays for the circuit.

The meeting of the A. O. U. W. was held in Labor Union hall Tuesday evening with Master Workman William Costello in the chair. Reports of officers were read and accepted.

The Ladies' Aid society of the Methodist church was entertained Wednesday afternoon at the home of Mrs. Nellie Powell.

Two of series of benefit whists given by the Woman's Relief Corps in the interests of the G. A. R. fund for veterans, to defray expenses at the coming convention were given Tuesday afternoon at the home of Mrs. Charles Woodward and Mrs. A. P. Benner. Fifty dollars toward the fund has already been sent to headquarters by the local chapter.

About noon Monday, two Hartford youngsters, Clifford Sanderson, 10 and Albert Babkirk, 11, decided to make a trip to New York, so played hookey from the Brown school and started. They walked over the Boulevard to East Hartford and took a trolley to Manchester, from where they proceeded on Shank's mare to South Coventry. Here they boarded a trolley car and arrived in Willimantic about dark. They attended a show at one of the local theaters and then sauntered out onto the street, where they attracted the atention of Officer William Hurley, whom they informed, after a few minutes' conversation that they were going to New York. A few minutes later at the police station, they told the officer who they were, and word was sent to the Hartford police who notified their parents of their whereabouts and their intentions. The boys' parents came on to Willimantic Tuesday morning and returned with them to Hartford.

There were sixteen tables of whist in play at a card party given Monday evening by the Windham Girls' club at their rooms. Hostesses for the evening were Mrs. W. I. Crane, Miss Rose Moreau and Miss Mabel E. Payson. The first prize, a silk scarf, was awarded Miss Sadie Fitzgerald; second, a string of beads, to Mrs. Anna Nelson, and a third prize to Mrs. R. H. Worden. The color scheme was green and white. Supper was served.

A surprise miscellaneous shower was given Monday evening at her home to Miss Marjorie Case, noting her approaching marriage with Clarence Adams of Windham Center. Miss Case received numerous gifts. Lunch was served and music and games were enjoyed.

This new kind of soap does the washing-leaves you just the rinsing—

CONNECTICUT'S FIRE LOSS $5,433,973 IN YEAR

It is evident that Connecticut continues to supply plenty of material for the flames to feed on. Any doubt of this fact is removed by the figures of the state's fire waste during 1923, just issued by the National Board of Fire Underwriters. From its actuarial bureau, the center of American fire loss statistics, the national board finds that to the grand total for the United States, $535,372,782, Connecticut contributed no less than $5,433,973. (The national figure includes 25 per cent for unreported and uninsured losses.)

This fire loss—which places Connecticut 26th among the 48 states—compares with destruction of $332,868,868 in 1918. It thus shows an increase in five years of $2,065,105.

Analysis of the elaborate tabulation published by the national board establishes the fact that of the 20 so-called originating causes, "matches-smoking" was chiefly responsible for this monstrous waste. Its share of the damage inflicted was $470,055. Following "matches-smoking" came "defective chimneys and flues" with $354,773; "stoves, furnaces, boilers and their pipes" to which was attributed $310,532 loss. All three fell within the "strictly preventable" classification, which lends support to the contention of fire prevention engineers that fully 75 per cent of the country's perennial fire destruction always is clearly avoidable, because to that extent it is due to public habits of carelessness and to ignorance.

Turned to use, instead of into smoke, such a sum as Connecticut lost in 1923 would have built no fewer than 54 modern, fire-resistive schoolhouses at an individual cost of $100,000. Applied to the construction of good macadam roads, to the erection and maintenance of hospitals or to any one of a score of public works, this amount of money would have served the two-fold purpose of improving conditions and at the same time lowering taxes.

Furthermore, there were sundry incidental losses, apart from the main one, that should not be forgotten. All of the property destroyed was automatically removed, at least for a time, from municipal tax rolls, which, of necessity, meant an increased levy upon other property holders. The heavy cost of extinguishing the many individual fires that resulted in the $5,433,973 total is one which must be reckoned with, and this expense, too, was borne by the public.

Regrettable beyond everything else, however, and completely overshadowing the combined financial burden, were the loss of life and the injuries from fire, which, in company with the rest of the states Connecticut had to record. To realize that at least three-fourths of the life and property sacrifice might have been avoided by the exercise of care and knowledge, and not to feel strongly the urgency of public instruction in the prevention of fire, is scarcely possible for anyone who has at heart his own best interests and those of his native state.

CONSIDER BILL FOR TAX ON TRUCKING

A bill advocating a fee of one-half cent for each ton of freight transported one mile by motor truck has been prepared by Motor Vehicle Commissioner Stoeckel for presentation to the legislative committee on roads, bridges and rivers. It also provides that, beginning Aug. 1 each truck operator shall make quarterly reports to the motor vehicle commissioner of the number of ton miles operated during the preceding calendar months. Suspension of registration is provided for failure to pay the tax and a $100 fine for failure to make a correct return on ton mileage.

A meeting between representatives of motor truck interests and Commissioner Stoeckel and Highway Commissioner Macdonald was held Tuesday at the capitol at Hartford, to consider this plan. The trucking interests admitted that something should be done to meet the damage done by heavy truck traffic on state highways. There was a difference of opinion as to the method.

Many of the operators were in favor of an increased tax on gasoline, offering this as a source of revenue instead of a ton-mile tax. Commissioner Stoeckel explained that the proposed plan would raise enough money to defray at least a part of the expenses of repairing the damage done by trucks and is apparently the most equitable method of assessing damage reimbursements.

MRS. STOKES DENIES CHARGES OF MISCONDUCT

She denied that she was ever an inmate of a Chicago underworld resort, and also the testimony of two sleeping car conductors that she twice had travelled with male overnight companions.

Her testimony virtually was the last heard and shortly after she left the witness stand the state rested its case against the aged man and his co-defendant, Robert E. Lee, Chicago negro, charged with conspiring to defame Mrs. Stokes.

Women in China have organized a woman's equal rights party which will aim to bring about equality of women and men before the law and equal opportunity in education and other matters.

ANNOUNCEMENTS

Breed Theater

Cattle from a thousand hills, assembled in a great rodeo, carry the stellar role in the picture Sundown, First National's epic of the range country, now showing at the Breed theater.

Like The Covered Wagon, America, The Birth of a Nation, it depicts a significant phase of our national life —the close of the pastoral era. Sundown has historic perspective and scope; it is a film document of a vanishing breed of men and beasts and the hand they prepared for closer settlement.

Human drama rides in stirrup and chuck wagon beside the hoofed legions; drama springing from encroachment of homesteaders upon the cattle provinces of the elder west, from stampede, prairie fire, financial crisis and hard straits.

But the individual actors, giving of their best, are dwarfed by the massed animals, 100,000 strong, winding from the foreground to the horizon through the picture in the slow curving line of melancholy, the line of yearning and regret which gives Sundown its distinctive touch.

The film is from an original story by Earl Hudson, production supervisor of First National, based upon recent cattle drives from the Southwestern states to Mexico for adequate range, and a pathetic exodus it is to folk along the Rio Grande.

Bennie Leonard in Flying Fists, a Mack Sennett comedy titled The Half Back of Notre Dame and the Fox news make up the remainder of the bill. Two shows daily at 2:15 and 7:30 P. M.

St. Patrick's Dance.

Under the auspices of the united divisions, A. O. H., the annual St. Patrick's dance will be held Friday evening, March 13, at the Norwich state armory with a programme that will furnish a real Irish night, with the old and new dances, and all the plans made to make the evening thoroughly enjoyable for all who attend. TODAY'S EVENTS

One year ago today New England was visited by the worst blizzard recorded in 20 years.

Today is the date originally set up for celebration as "Russia's Independence Day." That was eight years ago.

One hundred years ago today was born Edward Peter Doucet, the famous Jesuit educator who was an intimate friend of Edgar A. Poe.

This is also the centenary of the birth of Ludwig S. Filbert, the Philadelphia physician who invented the granolithic paving used in many American cities.

Today ends the first of the American Holy Year pilgrimages, led to Rome by Cardinal O'Connell of Boston. About half of the pilgrims will sail from Naples today for home, while those remaining will start on a tour of the famous shrines of Italy, France and Ireland.

ANNOUNCEMENTS

Broadway Theatre.

According to the lineup of the B. F. Keith vaudeville acts that open at the Broadway theatre today we are willing to wager that this show is going to be talked about by everyone that is interested in shows and will even create new theatregoers.

Very little need be said about the big feature attraction which is Roy Rogers with his six beautiful girls in Kicks of 1925. You'll agree that it is vaudeville's greatest offering.

Jack Fitzgerald will present Odd Bits of Nature, which is a distinct comedy novelty called Near Bird?

Nan Travelline, the songstress with a personality, again makes her appearance in Norwich with Irving Cellers at the piano as an added attraction.

Those comediennes of recognized worth, Flo and Ollie Walters, will hold down fourth spot with Telling Tales.

Melino, Lizette & Kogan, who returned to the Keith big time in January have a comedy act without equal. They have just returned from a tour of the Pantages, western vaudeville circuit.

The Broadway theatre also announces Listen Lester, as the attraction at that house today. It is a screen adaptation of the famous stage success of the same name and is hailed as the best comedy film of the year. The Sacramento Pictures Corporation produced the film which is being distributed through the Principal Pictures Corporation. The all-star cast includes Harry Myers, Louise Fazenda, Alec Francis, Eve Nowak, Lee Moran, Dot Farley and Eugenia Gilbert. William A. Seiter directed.

Strand Theatre.

In announcing the coming of Over the Top With the Allies at the Strand next Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday, these pictures of the World war were taken by the United States government and in taking 11 men were killed while photographing the various scenes. After developing etc., they were placed in the vaults at Washington to be used for historical purposes. One of the well known film distributing organizations prevailed upon the government to be permitted to distribute the film over the United States and that practically explains why the theatregoers will see what is without a doubt the most realistic scenes of war ever undertaken. The showing of these films will be under the auspices of the Richard E. Hourigan Post, 594, Veterans of Foreign Wars, and tickets are now in the hands of the members of this organization, who will gladly supply all who intend witnessing a performance at the Strand next Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday. These pictures will not be seen again in Norwich.

Palace Theatre.

Owing to the splendid support given the first three days of the week the management of the Palace theatre are pleased to announce another three big bargain days with seven big acts, every act being carefully selected with the utmost care to please the most fastidious tastes, this together with the feature picture, Husbands and Lovers, will complete a perfect program. Songs and Kicks, a marvelous singing, dancing comedy act; D'Amra Five, five marvelous musicians; The Three Kokillas, sensational novelty act; Bingham and Meyers a comedy classic on Ray and his little Chevrolette." Sandy McPherson, the Scotch comedian; George Hunter, a black dot of joy; LaDore and Beckman, thrilling dancers, is the vaudeville program.

Strand Theatre.

Dick Hatton in Horse Sense, one of the fastest western pictures seen for a long time, and Kenneth McDonald in Yankee Speed, will be seen for the last times today at the Strand. Friday night in conjunction with the regular big feature picture program a real old fashioned Country Store will be given away and each one worth many more the price of admission and for a grand present a genuine brown leather three-piece parlor suite valued at $125, will also be given away. The parlor suite can be seen in the lobby of the theatre and for those who question the quality and value Schwartz Bros. will gladly furnish information relative to value, etc., of this present.

MAKES FAT PEOPLE SLIM

The loss of as much as a pound of excess fat a day with no harmful results is the record made by many patients of Dr. R. Newman, a licensed practicing physician of 286 Fifth Avenue, New York, who announces that he has perfected a treatment which has quickly rid fat people of excess weight. What is more remarkable is the Doctor's statement that he has successfully treated thousands of patients for fat reduction without change of diet or unnecessary exercise. It is also said that fat people who suffer from chronic rheumatism, gout, asthma and high blood pressure obtain great relief from the reduction of their superfluous flesh. Realizing that this sounds almost too good to be true, the Doctor has offered to send without charge to anyone who will write him, a free trial treatment to prove his claims, as well as his "Pay-when-reduced" plan. If you want to rid yourself of superfluous fat, write him today, addressing Dr R. Newman, 286 Fifth Avenue, New York City, Dept. R-6.

DANIELSON AND PUTNAM NEWS

DANIELSON

Announcement was made at Hartford Wednesday that Speaker Elbert L. Darbie, of the house of representatives, has been advanced in rank from captain of national guard reserves to be a major of infantry and is assigned to duty as commandant of special troops of the 43rd division. This division is made up of troops in Connecticut, Maine, Vermant and New Hampshire. In his new appointment Major Darbie will have supervision of the special troops, a position of great honor and responsibility in time of armed conflict, of the 43rd division and will have direct command over from 12 to 15 officers. The appointment came as a great surprise to Major Darbie as it did also to his many military friends here in Danielson.

Major Darbie's military record goes back to August 19, 1901, when he enlisted as a member of F company of the old Connecticut infantry, in Danielson. He served until the company was disbanded on February 27, 1902. Its place was taken by M. Company of of the Third regiment of the C. N. G. and in this new organization Major Darbie enlisted on October 15, 1902. He was promoted to a corporal, later to the rank of first sergeant and on August 7, 1906, became a second lieutenant of M company, which on December 14, 1907, was reorganized as the Thirteenth company of the Coast Artillery corps. December 18, 1907, Major Darbie was promoted to the rank of first lieutenant and became a captain on December 1, 1909, after which he commanded the company until December 1, 1916, when he was transferred to the national guard reserve corps with rank of captain and has since remained in the reserve, though he made every effort to be placed on the active list during the world war, even to the extent of seeking to enlist as a private and claiming no exemption under the selective service act.

In his new office in peace time Major Darbie's duties will be largely honorary, though it will involve certain duties pertaining to the special troops of the 43rd division, of which the 192d Field artillery of Danielson is a part, as is also the infantry company at Putnam.

Construction work in North and South Carolina, is booming, but the textile business down there is not so good as it might be, says Charles A. Tillinghast, recently returned from a visit with her father, T. A. Tillinghast, at Salisbury, N. C. An almost endless amount of highway building is under way in both states to provide fine highways all through that section of the south. The new roads are splendid. Motor bus lines by the score have been established and are doing a tremendous business. Labor is not as well paid down there as in the north. Common labor is available in limitless quantity at $2.00 for a 10 hour day and teams get only $6.00 a day. And they are worked hard at these low prices, too. Brick going into structures down there is available at from $13 to $15 per thousand. Clay is available about everywhere. The cost of building construction in that section of the south is about 60 per cent. of the cost in Connecticut.

These interesting facts are presented as informative. Here in the north with living costs what they are labor could not live on such wages.

As to land values in the south, there is another story to tell. The speculative feature is wide-spread and tremendous prices are commanded for properties that do not look too good to a northerner. Mr. Tillinghast saw a hillside property that might be described as two hoots and a holler from nowhere that was sold a few weeks ago to a manufacturing concern at $1700 an acre. It would not command a tenth of that in Connecticut. That is but a sample. Everyone is talking development and expansion and land prices have gone sky-high.

In some of the textile cities which Mr. Tillinghast visited he found that manufacturing concerns had very progressive ideas relative to the well-being of their employes. They were renting them homes at 50 cents a week for small houses and 75 cents for large ones. In case of illness of the head of the family, rent was given free. Every effort is being made to keep out textile workers' unions. The south does not want them and is not too friendly to other labor not native that happens in when some big construction contracts are undertake

The death of Mrs. Sarah Baton, 84, widow of Joseph Baton, occurred on Wednesday morning at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Aldrich at East Killingly. Mrs. Baton formerly was a resident of Moosup.

Wednesday morning, the funeral of Edward William Mitchell, infant son of Mr. and Mrs. Fred Mitchell of Goodyear, was held from their home, with services conducted by Rev. Ignatius Kost at St. Joseph's church in Dayville at 9 o'clock. The body was entombed at St. Joseph's cemetery. L. E. Kennedy was in charge of the funeral arrangements.

It is recalled when a new historic blizzard raged out of the north 37 years ago today snow had piled so high by nightfall, when the storm was still raging, that many could not get to their homes from their places of employment and had to spend the night at homes or other places where shelter was available. The following day there was no train service, while some people who were snowed in out in the country districts could not get to Danielson for a week.

So sparing has been the distribution of certain income tax forms this year that the supply of them in Danielson was exhausted Wednesday and the demand for them still insistent.

PUTNAM

The trustees of the Grove street cemetery association believe that the people of Putnam and vicinity, especially the business men and other taxpayers, should be given an opportunity to learn more about the investment of trust funds, whether of a public or semi-public character. With that end in view they have arranged for a public meeting to be held at the Chamber of Commerce rooms next Tuesday, March 17, at 2:30 o'clock when Clement Scott of Hartford and State Bank Commissioner John B. Byrne will talk on the subject. They have issued the following statement:

To the Citizens of Putnam:

The trustees of the Grove street cemetery association are of the opinion that there should be a wider and more thorough knowledge of the proper investment of trust funds, of how they can be invested so as to yield the most returns, as well as being made as safe as is humanly possible. This applies to public funds, as well as those of a semi-public character.

It is a conceded fact that funds handled by individuals do not yield with equal safety as large a per cent. of income to the beneficiaries as the same funds when handled by modern trust companies.

In order that the citizens of Putnam, the taxpayers can be made acquainted with the conclusions of modern financiers on this very important subject, the cemetery trustees have arranged for a public meeting to be held at the Chamber of Commerce rooms on Tuesday afternoon, March 17, at 2:30 o'clock.

Clement Scott, of the Hartford Connecticut Trust Company, a recognized authority on the subject, and John B. Byrne, state bank commissioner, will be the speakers. They will outline the accepted methods of handling trust funds in the light of present knowledge of finance. Business men and citizens generally are urged to attend. This is not in the interest of any banking institution, but, as stated, is to give our citizens fuller information on a subject that is of vital interest.

They said that everyone, residents and visitors, was interested in its arrival and regretted that no landing could be made.

Postmaster Archie Macdonald will go to a Worcester hospital next week, to undergo a serious surgical operation. After suffering several months from indigestion which did not yield to the usual treatment he consulted a specialist who had several X-ray pictures. The official told Mr. Macdonald that an immediate operation was imperative. When told in reply to an inquiry that he would be required to stay in the hospital three weeks or longer the postmaster said that he would go home and fix up some business affairs and return to the hospital about the first of the month. "You will return the first of the week," the surgeon replied, "an immediate operation is imperative."

Mr. Macdonald is widely known throughout the state. He served several terms in both houses of the General Assembly and during each term was chairman of the committee on roads, rivers and bridges, one of the most important assignments in the city five terms, and in December, 1922 legislature. He has been mayor of the city five terms, and in December, 1922 became postmaster. John A. Macdonald, state highway commissioner, is his son. Mrs. Macdonald, who has been visiting in New York came home yesterday, when informed of her husband's condition.

Dana Bliss Champlin, son of Mr. and Mrs. Lewis T. Champlin celebrated his fourth birthday by giving a party to his young friends. Many games were played and refreshments were served and each of the guests received as a favor a candy horse made of gumdrops. The guests were Robert Phillips, Barbara and Debora Lown, Nancy and John Russell Moss, Kay Macdonald, Frances and Donald Cutler, Betty Keith and Hamilton Myers.

CITY ZONING.

In connection with city planning and development, there is more and more attention being given today to the merits of zoning. Zoning has for its purpose the adoption of certain ordinances that will regulate future development along certain definite lines, that will deal with certain problems which arise from time to time by anticipating them, that will give protection to the appearance and value of property by preventing injurious structures on adjoining property.

Zoning is not an untried proposition. It is because it has been put into operation in so many places and found to be so desirable that it is at the present time being urged for Norwich and is before the general assembly at the present time seeking permission for this city to join others in the state in adopting zoning ordinances.

Regularity of building lines, the character of buildings in various sections, sections to which business and industries are restricted are all matters which have come up from time to time with more or less annoyance in reaching adjustments. In every instance it is invariably felt that something to prevent controversies of such a character ought to be provided, but nothing has ever been done. Restrictions apply to all alike in the various zones concerning the future activities, and when it is realized that there are 26 or more million people living in communities which have zoning ordinances there is reason for feeling that the idea has gone.

Likewise the feeling is natural that if such a provision is good for other communities it ought to be good for Norwich.

With such a matter up for consideration it is a time for all to get in touch with what is involved and what it is hoped zoning will do for this city. Later on Norwich will have a chance to act upon it, the consent of the legislature being first obtained but it is none too soon to get acquainted with all that zoning means in the way of protection and restriction. Norwich has seen the time in the past when zoning would have been beneficial. That is one of the best arguments as to why it should no longer be neglected.

STREET DANGERS.

One of the typical cases where children of today are being killed in the highways is furnished by a youngster of seven years in Adams, Mass., who was on his way home from school and attempted to get a ride on the back of a truck. Not being able to get aboard his mind was occupied with getting to the sidewalk, so much so that when he ran from the rear of the truck he failed to notice a trolley car coming and dashed directly in front of it, was struck and received such injuries that he died on the way to the hospital.

Cases very similar to that one have featured the highway accident list for the past several years. There will be more of them without a doubt because of the disposition to dash needlessly into the street in search of pleasure or in the spirit of play without regard for the real danger that exists there.

There was the time when the streets were pointed out as dangerous when only horse-drawn vehicles were to be found there. Today the situation is so much worse as to be beyond comparison. Fast moving, quietly traveling vehicles permit of little escape when a person steps from in back of a standing or a moving truck or auto. It is a case of rushing into danger with full knowledge of what others have done and what can be expected under such circumstances. The drivers of vehicles or the motormen of trolleys are helpless under such conditions.

With adults there is little excuse for failing to anticipate danger and looking before crossing. With children it is more difficult to have good judgment exercised under such conditions, but that only emphasizes the need for keeping before them the peril that is involved in running into the streets without regard for what is coming or the harm that may befall them there.

Each year shows greater need for keeping out of the streets, crossing them at the proper places and respecting highway dangers by keeping away from them.

GREECE AND TURKEY.

War clouds rise without trouble in the Balkans. There are times when they can be dispelled without much trouble and occasions when the attempt is not successful.

There were prospects of more than a backfence wrangle in the resentment that was displayed by Greece over the manner in which Turkey expelled Constantinos, the Greek patriarch, from Turkey, but in the interest of peace there cannot fail to be satisfaction over the manner in which an adjustment has been effected. It is a victory for Turkey, but Greece is able to retain the patriarch at Constantinople through the selection of another than Constantinos for that important post in the Greek church. The outcome is in keeping with the terms of the agreement previously made, the differences having apparently developed over the individual rather than over the patriarch's location in the former Turkish capital.

Under the treaty Turkey permitted the Greek patriarch to remain in Constantinople. It was also arranged that there should be a repatriation of Greeks and Turks and Patriarch Constantinos came within the class that must leave Turkey. Turkey was unwilling that he, as an individual, should remain. His deportation took place under that condition, Turkey agreeing, however, that another patriarch could be named and pointing out that if one was selected who was a subject of Turkey and yet a prelate of the Greek church there would be no interference. It is this solution of the trouble that will prevail. Greece will act in that manner, the head of its church will be where it has been anxious for him to remain and the danger of a clash between the unfriendly nations appears to have been overcome.

The case was one where unwillingness to listen to reason could cause no end of trouble. It was likewise one where efforts to maintain peace were of first importance, and it is gratifying to more than the nations directly involved that such as the result.

THE WARREN CASE.

Had the senate which went out of existence on the fourth of March been the one to refuse to confirm the nomination of Charles B. Warren as head of the department of justice in the president's cabinet, there would have been much less surprise than was occasioned by the refusal on the part of the present body, to which confirmation was left under the belief that there was no question of the ultimate approval. Opposition had been voiced and opposition was expected, but confirmation was expected by a substantial majority.

There was a combination of circumstances which contributed to the outcome. The absence of regular republican senators, the unfortunate absence of the vice president and the chance that was afforded to the democrats to again cast their lot in with the insurgent republicans, of whom there continues to be several even with the exclusion of the LaFollette quartette.

In spite of the manifest sentiment of the people for Coolidge and against such senatorial tactics as have been experienced, and in spite of the generally recognized fact that the president is responsible for his own political family, the senate has decided to bother and embarrass. It bespeaks anything but a forward looking upper house of congress. Rather does it promise the continuation of obstructive methods which have been denounced and which it was hoped the people had succeeded in eliminating. The repudiation of the action of the Michigan senators in opposing the nomination of Mr. Warren by the Michigan house of representatives is expressive of the feeling over the senate's action.

FORESTRY NEEDS.

Secretary Jardine, the new head of the department of agriculture, puts himself on record early for greater efforts to properly meet the forestry needs of this country. He was directing attention to and urging support of American Forest week, April 27 to May 3, but when he pointed out that "about 80,000,000 acres of idle forest land in this country must be put to work growing timber crops," that "man caused fires which every year sweep about 8,000,000 acres of forest land must be stopped" and that "our productive forests must be made permanent sources of timber supply through intelligent management" he may have been covering old ground but there is no questioning his sincerity or his viewpoint concering the matter at hand.

It is a matter which has been urged with much emphasis in the past. It is a matter which must be kept constantly before the people in order that it may get proper consideration and the necessary response.

Well does the secretary say that "farmers especially, should be awake to our country's forestry needs," for it is to be realized that in many states the forests are in the hands of the farmers and through their efforts a much larger production would be possible, especially on unused land and cut-over land, through reforestation work.

The chance for cooperation on the part of federal, state and local governments in meeting the forestry situation before it is too late ought to be clear enough to be recognized and improved.

EDITORIAL NOTES.

Think of the Ides of March and Friday the 13th coming in the same month!

The man on the corner says: Probably the traffic cops envy the fellow who limits himself to his daily dozen.

It may be all right to hitch your wagon to a star, but the big problem these days is where to park your car.

Perhaps you'll be surprised at the size of the membership in that New York club where none under 95 will be admitted.

Those rebels who read themselves out of the republican party are going to have plenty of time for thought and repentance.

Two members of congress have refused to accept the recent pay increase. That's another way to help the economy programme, and it is not a bad political investment.

Think of judges in Massachusetts reducing the sentences of prisoners because they have gotten the idea that a penitentiary is not up to date, while those who have inspected it find nothing to condemn.

There are those who have been urging an extra session of congress and yet it is impossible to keep the members of the senate in Washington to attend to a few matters which rest entirely with that body.

WASHINGTON AFFAIRS

Washington, March 11—The failure of congress to pass a much-needed measure for the relief of the agricultural interests of the country is to be regretted. But there can be no doubt concerning responsibility for it. It was due, in bitter irony, to the agricultural block itself. That discredited and moribund organization retained in the dying days of the session power for nothing more than mischief. It caused a division of counsels which proved fatal. The president had done his best. He had recommended a measure based upon the results of painstaking investigation, but it was rejected by a combination of agricultural bloc members and democrats, obviously moved by partisanship and personal spite. It was a lesson to the great agricultural states, to choose representatives in both senate and house who will not play political ducks and drakes with their constituents' vital interests.

The development of water power for industrial and agricultural purposes, too long neglected, bids fair to be a leading feature of our national economics for some years to come. It is really discreditable to our enterprise and energy to have lagged so far behind other countries in a matter for which nature endowed us with resources and advantages unsurpassed by those of any other land. We have consumed hundreds of millions of tons of coal, at great cost, to produce energy that could far more easily and more economically have been supplied by the "white coal" of our rivers. Seeing that such development and use of water power will be almost entirely interstate, its regulation obviously belongs to the national government, just as does that of the railroads. But also, like the railroads, the works for generating and distributing water power should be under private ownership and operation.

The national forest reservation commission has just authorized another purchase of 13,000 acres of land in ten eastern states, for addition to the national forest domain, at an average cost of about $5.24 an acre. Meantime, even in this elementary stage of their development and culture the national forests show a net profit of several million dollars a year, beside their vastly larger indirect benefits, and their simply inestimable potential value for the future. The policy of forest conservation and culture, founded and promoted by republican administrations, is not unworthy to be ranked with that embodied in the homestead act, adopted by that party's first national administration.

The Boston and Maine railroad system in New England is petitioning the interstate commerce commission for permission to abandon, or to transform into motor truck highways, nearly two hundred miles of its branch lines, on which traffic has so decreased that they are now operated at a loss of more than half a million dollars a year. To secure that in order to keep those branches running, and to make its accounts balance, it is compelled to charge the patrons of its other lines higher rates than it otherwise would, so that it is making the patrons of some lines pay for the service rendered to those of other lines. That argument is obviously sound, and indicates a state of affairs that it is difficult to justify. It is interesting to speculate upon what would happen if that railroad system, were owned and operated by the government. Would the people of the whole country be taxed to cover the deficits on lines that did not begin to pay the costs of operation, but were kept running for the accommodation of just a few persons or for the benefit of a few towns? If the government undertook to abolish them, as the Boston and Maine company wants to do, it is easy to imagine the political agitation and wire-pulling there would be against such a measure. The case presents a strong argument in favor of leaving the roads in private ownership.

The department of agriculture reports that the fur output of Alaska, not counting the immensely valuable seal furs from the Pribiloff Islands, amounts to fully $2,000,000 a year. The seal furs amount to about $1,000,000 more. But even those are picayune figures, by the side of $23,000,000 in minerals and $36,000,000 in fish. The total exports from that territory to the United States range from $55,000,000 to $65,000,000 a year. Yet some of us can remember when a great republican secretary of state was ridiculed, lampooned, and austerely denounced for squandering the people's money, because he had purchased Alaska for $7,200,000! It was said of old, "where there is no vision, the people perish." Certainly, where there is no vision, there is no progress, and no profit. The republican party has been censured and reviled for many years for its "expansionist" and "imperialist" policies. Its first act of that kind was its acquisition of Alaska; and every subsequent act has proved similarly beneficent.

Promote the air service.—That is a welcome and encouraging announcement, that the president is earnestly in favor of the government's getting, as soon as possible, out of the business of carrying the mails through the air. That does not mean, of course, that the air service, which has proved so highly successful, is to be abolished, but rather, we should hope, that it is to be greatly extended and improved. What it means is that such service is to be placed upon the same basis as the carrying of mails on railroad trains and on steamships. The government is to make contracts with private individuals or corporations for the transportation. It is agreeable to note that the announcement to which we have referred was made on the occasion of the president's signing an act of congress authorizing the making of precisely such contracts.

At the end of the world war the government was glad to make haste to get out of the railroad business, in which it had engaged as a war measure, and which it had conducted at a staggering loss. It has for some years been trying to get out of the shipping business, in which it similarly engaged, and in which also it—that is, the people—suffered appalling losses. It will do well to get out of the commercial aviation business before it gets any more deeply into it.

There is nothing in the argument that it is the proper business of the government to carry the mails, and that therefore it should create and conduct its own aviation service. The rule is that the government shall have the mails transported by common carriers wherever such service satisfactorily exists, and shall do the work itself only where no commercial traffic exists or can be created. It is true that there is as yet no general system of commercial aviation in this country. It is also true that one of the best ways of securing such a system would be for the government to seek mail-carrying contracts with commercial aviators. There would be no doubt about their responding to the call and embracing the opportunity. How shamefully far we lag behind other nations in the development of aviation is suggested by the fact that in 1923 France invested in a hundred million francs of airplane equipment, and in 1924 in nearly two hundred million francs; and she has a vast system of regularly operating lines, for passengers and freight, running to various parts of Europe, Africa, and Asia. We ourselves more than doubled our output of airplanes between 1923 and 1924, but our nearly $800,000 worth in the latter year was for export. We make more planes for other countries than for our own use.

There is no doubt that by seeking contracts on reasonable terms for aerial mail transport, the government can secure a great improvement in the postal service, in both speed and security, and at the same time encourage the development of commercial aviation on a scale at least comparable with that of any other nation. The land in which the airplane was invented should not lag behind others in the use of that marvelous device.

Snowden, the Cripple.

At certain times in the life of Sir Philip Snowden the future seemed to offer no hope whatever.

Born in modern circumstances he spent his boyhood in Kreighley, Yorkshire, England, the little village of his birth. He was compelled to earn his way through a board school and to study under private tutors at night.

Filled with the enthusiasm of youth he entered the British Civil Service at 22 and was making a good record at the time he was injured in a bicycle accident. For awhile it was thought he would not live and for two years he lay on his back, a complete recluse.

To occupy his time he read and drifted into the study of Karl Marx, Kropatkin and other socialists. When he was able to leave his enforced solitude he was a cripple and from that time could walk with great difficulty and only by the aid of two canes.

Having been converted to socialism he retired from the civil service at 29 and devoted himself to journalism and lecturing in the cause. Developing as an orator he entered politics and as a member of the labor party was elected to the house of commons at 36. Three years later he became chairman of the independent labor party, serving three years.

As a member of a minority party his duties were few and his efforts seemed almost useless at times, but he continued his battle for labor. While crippled in body he was brilliant in mind and his speeches always commanded rapt attention.

When the World war broke out he was against all wars and favored peace for England. His vigorous campaign caused him to be one of the most hated men in all England of the Liquor Central Board, which restricted the use of alcohol, he was still more unpopular, and his political outlook looked gloomy.

Returning to favor in 1917 he was made chairman of the labor party once more and after it was victorious last year he was appointed chancellor of the exchequer in the cabinet of Premier MacDonald.

IN THE PUBLIC EYE

Representative John Q. Tilson, of Connecticut, who will be the republican floor leader in the 69th Congress, is a native of Clear Branch in the mountains of Tennessee. He worked his way through a small college of his native state and later went to Yale where he again depended upon his own resources to pay his college expenses. Having completed his law studies in New Haven he decided to locate there instead of returning to Tennessee. He always has been interested in public affairs and especially in question pertaining to the national defense. He saw active service in the war wih Spain and in the Mexican border troubles in 1916. Mr. Tilson began his political service by representing New Haven in the Connecticut general assembly for two terms. He was elected speaker of the Connecticut house of representatives in 1907 and has represented the Third Connecticut district in Congress for fourteen years.

Solution of Yesterday's Puzzle

GETTING ACTION

Allie Gray bent over her vanity case and savagely dabbed more red on her already red cheeks and fresh powder on her more than snowy nose. "I'm sick of it!" she announced fiercely to the assemblage watching her from all sides. "All of you pick on me! Isn't it enough that I hafta have a mother that picks on me, but here's Aunt Lou and gramma, and all three of you just sit around looking for something about me to find fault with. I wish you'd leave me alone!"

The assemblage of three were still silenced when Allie banged out of the front door. "Grandma" began to hunt hurriedly for her cough drops and Aunt Lou openly sniffed back tears. "When it's just for her own good!" she addressed nobody in particular.

Allie's mother heaved a great sigh and shook her head. "I'm sure I don't know what to do," she said, getting up to go at the breakfast dishes. "You just can't say a word to her any more."

Downtown Allie attacked her typewriter with a vigor that was a hangover from the scene at home. The keys rattled like bird shot. She sniffed hard frequently. Much they knew how hard a girl had to work these days to be popular and attractive! They didn't like dead ones. You had to be up to date. When she married some millionaire maybe they'd wake up and be sorry.

Allie had to admit to herself, however, that she numbered no millionaires among her circle of masculine acquaintances. It was a large circle but singularly unproductive of serious suitors except the kind that talked too much and said little and were very particular about neckties and socks matching and that their hats were tilted just so. M. Harvey Little never tilted his, she thought suddenly, and she had heard he bought everything in London, too, on his regular trips over there for the firm of which his father was the head. Without realizing it, it was suddenly clear to Allie that Harvey Little was much more correct in his inconspicuous apparel than any of her friends.

That afternoon Harvey Little's sister chose to drop in on her brother and as she passed through the outer office she looked it over with a quick, comprehensive glance from her big, indolent eyes. When she had shut Harvey's door behind her there was not a girl in the office who could not have detailed her costume to the last button.

"Well, they're not wearing 'em fussy in Europe!" declared the office cutup. "Not a thing on that dress but the cloth."

"I wanta know how she gets that look!" chattered the girl next to Allie. "She didn't have on a bracelet or a scarf and no rouge, and yet I thought for a minute there was a procession going through! I'll bet they knock their heads on the floor three times when she goes to a party! Oh, boy!"

Allie did not hear her. Being nearest Harvey Little's door, she became aware that it had not been shut tightly. His sister's low pitched but carrying voice reached her ears.

"It's dreadful," she said. "I noticed as I came in—most of them would be really pretty girls if they did not look so unutterably common with all that paint and eyelash stuff—why do they do it? Why, the one at the last desk here—I'd like to take the poor child and do her over from her frizzly head to her heels, because there's such good material there for a real beauty!"

"She's like all the rest," Harvey told her. "Not an idea in her head but jazz and the boys. I've heard her talk and the child thinks grammar is a kind of breakfast food, I believe! It's quite hopeless, if you're planning any unlift, Natalie."

Twenty minutes later Allie was still sitting in stiff, belligerent attitude, staring with hot eyes at nothing at all. Turmoil in the depths of her soul was new and agonizing.

It was not many days before her mother voiced the thought prevalent in the family.

"I can't see what's come over Allie," she said. "The way she's behaving—stays home and reads and she gave away that horrid party dress that hasn't much of any top, and never gets saucy any more!"

"Well, it's about time she paid some attention to what we've been telling her!" declared Aunt Lou importantly. —Exchange.

A Little Talk on Thrift

Thrift in the "G. E." Plant

Many small manufacturers could learn a great deal by studying the salvage methods employed by such concerns as the General Electric company. In the G. E. plant at Schenectady, N. Y., where nearly 25,000 persons are engaged in a variety of manufacturing operations, the value of waste material salvaged annually is close to $2,000,000.

In a centrally located building at the Schenectady works a by-products department is maintained. It is connected with the manufacturing building by an electric railway equipped with dump trains. All scrap or waste material is transported via this railway to the by-products building where it is assorted for re-sale or remanufacture. Between fifty and seventy-five thousand tons of scrap material is turned into good account each year.

In the various manufacturing departments, where machines are operated, the chips, mixed borings and turnings are sent to the by-products building, each container being tagged as to weight and class of material, to aid in sorting and preparation for shipment. Credit is given to the department from which the material is sent, as an aid in computing the running expenses of that department.—Thrift Magazine.

He feels Like a Boy at Forty

"For over a year I suffered from headaches and constipation, other remedies having failed. I told someone at my club, who suggested that I try Beecham's Pills. I tried them, and they relieved me. I'm only forty and I feel like a boy again after taking Beecham's Pills.

At home that night the young man found that he had entered a deposit twice. His account was overdrawn. Then it dawned upon him that he had mailed another check to a friend out of town and written in the letter accompanying the check: "Here's your new Easter hat—cash this if you can." The friend had cashed it.

Stories That Recall Others

"Let It Hang."

This little girl was in the habit of visiting her father in his office. On these occasions one of the father's greatest problems was the care of her hair, which was unusually long and thick. Very often the janitor was called in to help.

This time a friend was in the office, and after watching the girl's father brush the girl's hair thoroughly asked:

"Dearie, how does your mamma fix your hair?"

"Oh," she answered, "Sometimes she braids it and sometimes she lets it hang."

The advice of the friend to the father was, "Well, Jim, I say this time, we just let it hang."

Allow Benefit of Doubt.

The young man who had a checking account received a call from a merchant who told him a check sent the company had been returned marked, "no funds." Partly surprised, but more indignant, he replied that such could hardly be the case. He recalled to himself that his balance should have taken care of the check, with one or two dollars to spare, and spoke to the merchant as if it ought to cover a dozen such trivialities. In an apologetic manner the merchant muttered something about banks always

Harvard Honors For Stamm.

Samuel S. Stamm, son of Rabbi and Mrs. Max Stamm of this city, a freshman in Harvard college, has won a place in the second group of the Rank list, as a result of his work in the recent mid-year examinations, according to an announcement by the college office. Stamm won this honor by receiving half A's and half B's in his required courses.

Gas on Stomach Made Her Nervous

For many years Mrs. Cook had gas on the stomach and was nervous and short of breath. Finally she took Adlerika and it did her a world of good. Adlerika helps any case gas on the stomach unless due to deep-seated causes. Because it is such an excellent intestinal evacuant it is the very best remedy for constipation—it often works in one hour and never gripes. OBITUARY

Mrs. Lindley Hoffman Chapin

Mrs. Cornelia Garrison Chapin, widow of Lindley Hoffman Chapin of New York, a member of an old New York family, died Tuesday in her apartment in the Hotel Gotham, Fifth avenue and Fifty-fifth street, where she had resided for the last three years. A brief illness culminated in a heart attack. Mrs. Chapin was a daughter of the late Barret H. Van Auken, was born at 421 Fifth avenue and her residence had always been in New York. She was a granddaughter of Cornelius K. Garrison, one of the early developers of American railroads and steamship lines. Mrs. Chapin was a charter member of the Colony club.

She is survived by two daughters, Mrs. Francis B. Biddle of Philadelphia and Miss Cornelia Lee A. Chapin, who lived with her mother and by a son, L. H. Chapin of Mount Kisco, general manager and counsel for the Compo Bond Corporation, 512 Fifth avenue.

Mrs. Chapin for years made Goshen Point, Waterford, her summer home. The Chapin family were among the wealthiest people who summered there and the Chapin mansion was the most pretentious residence in the vicinity. The mansion together with a chapel which stood nearby was burned about 25 years ago. It was rebuilt by Judge Andrews, late step-father of Mrs. Chapin, but again razed by fire later.

The property was then sold to the Rumrill family and is now owned by Mrs. Edward Hammond of Waterford, onl heir to the Rumrill estate.

Mrs. Geroge E. Duysters

Word has been received here of the death last week in New York of Fannie Parlin Duysters, widow of George E. Duysters. She received injuries in an accident about a month ago and had been making good progress towards recovery, but complications brought a sudden turn for the worse.

Mrs. Duysters was a niece of the late William A. Hawes and the daughter of S. R. Parlin, a well known jeweler of 50 years ago who lived on Center street, Laurel Hill, and had a store on Main street. She graduated from the Norwich Free Academy in the class of 1878. She is survived by a daughter and a son and also leaves a brother, Charles Parlin of Brooklyn, N. Y., a former resident of this city.

FUNERAL.
James Shea

Funeral services for James Shea were held Wednesday morning at 8:20 from his late home, No. 10 Page street, with solemn high mass of requiem in St. Mary's Memorial church at 9 o'clock. Rev. Frederick M. Coholan was celebrant, assisted by Rev. L. Paradis, deacon, and Rev. Henri F. Chagnon, sub-deacon. At the offertory Henry LaFontaine sang Pie Jesu. For a waiting hymn, Beautiful Land on High, was sung by Miss Sadie Driscoll. Nearer My God to Thee was sung by Dr. Carrigan and the choir.

Burial was in St. Mary's cemetery where the committal service was read by Father Coholan. The bearers were Joseph Donovan and James Shea of New Haven, Carl Peters of Westfield, Mass., and Patrick Sullivan of Norwich.

Relatives and friends attended the service from New Haven, Westfield, Mass., Pawtucket, R. I., and other places. The floral tributes were numerous and beautiful.

Arrangements were by Hourigan Brothers.

POSTAL EMPLOYES WILL RECEIVE SALARY RAISES ON MARCH PAY DAY

Announcement of a general increase in domestic postal rates, in order to meet the salary increase recently granted to postal employes, was received at the Norwich post office Wednesday, the new rates to go into effect on April 15. As a result of the signing of the postal wage increase by President Coolidge on February 28, employes in the postal service will receive their increased salaries on the next pay day, March 17. The increase, made retroactive, went into effect as of January 1 of this year.

There is no increase in foreign rates. On April 15, private mailing post cards will require a two-cent stamp, a jump of one cent, but government postal cards will remain at one cent and letters at two cents. As a result of this change in rates, the United States postoffice department has ordered 1,000,000 government postal cards from the public printer in expectation that many business men will use the one cent card in order to escape the increase.

New Service Charge.

Newspapers mailed by the public will be two cents for each two ounces or fraction of that weight not exceeding eight ounces. When in excess of eight ounces the parcel post rate will apply, plus a two cent service charge. This service charge is a new feature since it does not exist under the present rates. The old rate was one cent for every four ounces or a fraction thereof. The increase is on a graduated scale according to weight.

An increase has also been made in the rates for third class mail, of printed matter and merchandise up to and including eight ounces. The rate has jumped from one cent for two ounces, to one and one-half cents; from two cents for three ounces to three cents; two and one-half cents for four ounces to three cents; three cents for five ounces to four and one-half cents; three cents for six ounces to four and one-half cents; four cents for seven ounces to six cents; and from four cents for eight ounces to six cents. However, books, bulbs and catalogues will remain at one cent for each two ounces or fraction thereof up to eight ounces.

Special Handling Stamp.

The service charge is also put on fourth class mail, which includes all books, circulars, printed matter weighing over eight ounces, except newspapers, but not over 75 pounds in the first three zones, and 50 pounds for the rest of the country. They shall not be over 84 inches in length and girth combined, nor in any form to injure the employes who handle this kind of mail. If a person desires to mail a package and pay 25 cents, in addition to the service charge of two cents for special handling, the package will be handled as first class matter. There will be no service charge to Canada or Cuba.

Registered letters are affected in that the fee for indemnity up to $50, which at present is ten cents, has been advanced to 15 cents; and from $50 to $100, now 20 cents, will be 20 cents under the new schedule of rates. The fee for Canada, Cuba, Mexico and foreign countries will not change.

Return Receipt Feature.

Another new feature is the establishment of a return receipt at a charge of three cents for this service payable in stamps, something which is now done free of charge. If the sender wants his letter delivered in the hands of the person addressed, and asks for a return receipt, the post office will notify him upon delivery of the letter provided the three-cent charge is paid. Stamps for that amount will be placed on the article as near as possible to the endorsement of "return receipt requested."

Parcel Post Insurance.

A radical change has been made in the fee for collections on parcel post. The present rate is 10 cents for $50 collected and 25 cents for collections from $50 to $100. These rates have been established as follows:

From one cent to $10, 12 cents; from $10.01 to $50, 15 cents, and from $50.01 to $100, 25 cents.

Special Delivery.

The new charge for special delivery is based upon weight. The present charge of ten cents for letters and parcels is all that was required for any parcel or letter up to 70 pounds. But the change here is drastic, the present rate applying only to matter weighing two pounds or under. Parcels weighing over two pounds after April 15, but less than ten pounds, shall require a fee of 15 cents, and those weighing over ten pounds to the limit of seventy pounds to different zones will be 20 cents.

The special delivery messenger will get most of the profits from the advanced rates in this class. He will receive eight cents on each 10-cent fee, 11 cents on the 15-cent fee and 15 cents on the 20-cent charge.

New Money Order Rates.

The increased revenue from money orders will come mostly from the smaller fees, since the new schedule calls for a reduction in the two largest. The new rates are:

From one cent to $2.50, five cents; a jump of two cents; from $2.51 to $5, seven cents, increase of two cents; from $5.01 to $10, 10 cents, increase of two cents; from $10.01 to $20, 12 cents, jump of two cents; from $20.01 to $40, 15 cents; from $40.01 to $60, 18 cents; from $60.01 to $80, 20 cents, and from $80.01 to $100, 22 cents. The present fee on orders from $30 to $40, has been eliminated, the new plan putting a fee on orders from $20 to $40, instead, and correspondingly changing the schedule up to $100. The present charge from orders from $40.01 to $50 is 18 cents; from $50.01 to $60, 20 cents; from $60.01 to $75, 25 cents, and from $75.01 to $100, 30 cents.

New Harding Stamps.

Advices from Washington state that President Harding's picture will appear again on United States postage stamps when the new rates go into effect. The same portrait which appeared on the Harding-Memorial two-cent stamps will be on new one and one-half cent stamps now being prepared for the new rate on third class mail. The new stamp will be printed in light brown. A one and one-half cent stamped envelope bearing the present design with Washington's profile also is being prepared.

Three other new stamps will be on the 15-cent special delivery stamp, bearing the same design as that of the 15-cent stamp, printed in light canary yellow color. The 30-cent stamp will bear the picture of a motor mail wagon standing before the Washington post office. A 25-cent "special handling" stamp will be printed in plain blue.

The aim of the government is to reap its revenue from the more popular and voluminous classes of mail.

CONNECTICUT GIRLS WILL ACQUIRE MEAT KNOWLEDGE

At least 106 Connecticut high school girls are determined that if a survey of housewives is taken a few years hence, it will not reveal the same general lack of meat knowledge as shown by a recent government investigation, which was conducted throughout the United States. Through their home economics instructors these many young women of the state have entered for competition in the second national meat story contest, according to the National Live Stock and Meat Board, which is sponsoring the educational event.

Cities in which these contestants are located and the number in each are as follows: Seymour 45, Wallingford 20, North Grosvenordale 15, Plainville 6, and Meriden 20.

The board also announces that entries for the entire United States have now passed the 13,000 mark with additional schools coming in daily. As the contest which includes cash prizes totalling $2,500, does not close until May 1, it is expected that the number will far exceed the enrollment to date.

WHIST AND PINOCHLE AT EAGLES' LADIES' NIGHT

Ladies' Night was held Wednesday evening by Norwich Aerie, No. 367, F. O. E., at the Eagles rooms, Shetucket street. There was a large attendance and the evening proved a most enjoyable one for all present. Whist and pinochle were played and the prizes were won as follows:

Whist, ladies, first, Mrs. Carter, 36; second, Mrs. Barry, 35; consolation, Mrs. J. Foley, 16. Men, first, S. Carden, 42; Mrs. E. Hull, 33; consolation, George Bellows, 15.

Pinochle, ladies, first, Mrs. J. Leirich, 6440; second, Mrs. H. Clements, 5715; consolation, Miss M. Opitz 4005; Men, H. Clement, 5695; second, J. Leirich 550; consolation, Mr. Hawkins 3440.

Refreshments of cake and ice cream were served under the direction of the committee in charge, E. J. Mullins, R. A. Krohn, J. Leirich, J. Oney. The scorers at whist were Miss Edna Hastedt and Miss Anna M. Mullins. The aerie is planning to hold another ladies night the latter part of April, this to be the final one during the present administration of the lodge.

APPROPRIATION COMMITTEE WILL MAKE VISIT HERE

The appropriations committee of the legislature is due to make a visit to the Norwich state hospital Friday morning. The members of the committee are to arrive here at 11 o'clock and will be given a chicken dinner. Afterwards they will be shown about the hospital premises by Dr. F. S. Wilcox and members of the staff in order that they may become acquainted with the institution in regard to the needs for which it is asking appropriations from the legislature.

It is expected also that the committee will visit the Norwich tuberculosis sanatorium, which is also asking appropriations from the legislature.

Voluntary Bankruptcy.

Charles L. Bushnell of Norwich has filed a voluntary bankruptcy petition in which the liabilities are placed as $926.03 in unsecured claims. No assets.

CHARLES DAVID GEER MAKES SIGMA Xi AT YALE UNIV.

Another and much coveted honor has been won by Charles David Geer, son of Mrs. Geer and the late Charles D. Geer of Poquetanuck, who, according to the Yale News is one of the seventy-two elected to Yale chapter of the Society of Sigma Xi, as an associate member from Sheffield Scientific School. This honor is conferred "for noteworthy achievement in research —or in science.

Besides this, Mr. Geer, 1925 S, ranks first in the Electrical Engineering Division—or rather is tied for first place with John Louis Biach, 1925 S, of Providence, R. I.

Strangely enough, young Biach is the son of former Norwich residents, Dr. and Mrs. L. C. Biach (Louise Edith Silva, Norwich Free Academy 1889).

Mr. Geer was a leading honor pupil when he was graudated from Norwich Free Academy with the class of 1921. Since then the ambitious young student has maintained a high stand in every year at Yale. What his latest achievement means may be measured by the fact that of the 72 elections to Sigma Xi, ten members are from Yale faculty.

FISHERMEN ON WATCH FOR SMELTS TO COME

Several smelt fishermen of the city have been out with their scoop nets along the bank of the Shetucket river in the last few days, watching for the first run of little fish, but none so far have rewarded them.

Smelts struck on at Westerly some time last week. It is said that they may be expected in the Shetucket about two weeks after they first appear in Westerly so that the net men will contipue their watch and expect soon to report the first catches.

Loeb; Dr. Charles Somerset; Dr. R. M. Lewis and Dr. George Fahy.

RECEIVED SCALP WOUND IN AUTOMOBILE ACCIDENT

A Taftville man by the name of Lurette was brought as a patient to the office of Dr. George Thompson on Wednesday evening, where he was treated for a bad scalp wound.

It was reported that he received the injury when his automobile was upset near the arch on the Newent road and he was picked up in a dazed condition and brought to the physician's office.

Comfort Circle Meets.

The leader of Comfort Circle of the King's Daughters, Mrs. Stanton W. Brown, had the fortnightly meeting of the circle at her home at Norwich Town, Wednesday afternoon. Thirteen members and two children were present. A portion of the sewing for the Needed Workers having been finished, the afternoon was devoted chiefly to business matters. The next meeting is to be held with Mrs. J. M. Allen, of Church street.

LINCOLN APPEARS FOR REFORESTRATION BONDS

Appearing before the committee on state parks and reservations on behalf of House Bill No. 463, which he introduced, and which calls for an appropriation of $750,000 to promote state policy of conservation and reforestation extending over a course of years, Representative Lincoln of Ashford endorsed the programme of State Forester Hawes, which plans that within fifty years Connecticut shall be in a position to provide its own timber for domestic uses. Mr. Lincoln also emphasized the relation of forests to the public health and recreation, and especially to agriculture. He remarked that officials in high place had said that the state must meet the heavy burdens of its delinquent and dependent classes before embarking upon extensive programmes of constructive development; but, he inquired, if we have reached a point where the destructive influences hold back reconstruction, what sort of a civilization have we?

He emphasized the necessity of wise constructive policies in agriculture, education and highway development, especially the opening of interior Connecticut for the return of population to abandoned or undeveloped farms. He maintained that the application of brains, brawn and capital to intelligent and efficient agriculture, right here in Connecticut, offered better returns for a life worth while than to work for high wages in mills that are so often disturbed by upset industrial conditions. The statement is often made, said Mr. Lincoln that Connecticut should provide a larger portion of her own food supplies, and it certainly can be done with the aid of wise laws and constructive policies pointing in that direction. Interior highway development, radiating from central trunk lines to the soil will relieve the problem of high rents and the high cost of living, and also tend to conserve the public health.

Asked by the chairman of the committee if he would favor the issue of state bonds to promote forestry, Mr. Lincoln replied that while he was in favor as a rule of the "pay as you go" policy, the policy of forest restoration was certainly of large benefit to future generations, and he believed that a reasonable bond issue would be justifiable.

Mr. Lincoln also called favorable attention to House Bill No. 945, introduced by Representative Buck of Ashford, and providing for the establishment of a state nursery, in order that trees for reforestation may be obtained at less cost than now, he thought that this plan merited careful investigation. He believed that private nurseries would realize the practical wisdom of cooperating with an intelligent state policy of reforestation rather than to seek to make undue profit out of a movement which means so much to the public welfare.

STRIKE SETTLED AT HYGIENIC FIBRE MILL

Fourteen or fifteen girls in the napkin department of the Hygienic Fibre Co., Inc., at Versailles, who had been out on strike peacably for a week, tried intimidation methods when other girls were put to work Wednesday morning and state policemen were called from the Groton barracks to keep the peace.

In the afternoon three representatives of the strikers were in conference with General Manager Brightman and Superintendent Harold C. Mosher of the mill, as a consequence of which an agreement was reached and the girls in the department are going back to work at once. No other department was affected by a wage reduction, nor was there a strike in any other department.

General Manager Brightman said Wednesday afternoon that the cut had been approximately 33 1-3 per cent and was put into effect because it was a business necessity because of competition and business conditions. There had been no cut in wages in the mill, he said, since the war time and the industry had been kept running steadily even though orders were not on hand but it was desired to keep the organization together and provide uninterrupted work for the employes. The business need for making the cut in this department had been explained to those who were affected before it was put into effect.

AMERICAN WOOLEN OPENS FALL LINES OF WEAVES

About 80 per cent. of the lines of coat, suit and dress fabrics shown in staples or piece dyed weaves which feature a large range of fancy colors. This is a distinct departure from recent seasons in which novelty patterns have formed a large portion of the lines. Officials of the company described the change as likely to facilitate larger advance orders. The goods, being piece dyes, can be ordered in the gray with color specifications left open until the cutter-up is more confident about the colors likely to be in most demand.

Executives of the company made no official estimate of any price advance, asserting that there are only five repeat fabrics in the entire line of 125 different styles.

The complete line of fabrics opened comprises poiretsheen worsteds, Poiret twills, repps, flannels, broadcloths, suede duvetyns, chamosuedes, pile sheen coatings, velours and polaires. In addition, the company is offering "Donnybrook" flannels for the dress and skirt trades and a range of "Bobby" sport fabrics for the cap trade.

PHIL PLANT TO WED BEFORE YALE GRADUATION

Philip Morgan Plant is to marry the winsome Judith Smith on June 3 at St. Bartholomew's church, thus advancing a wedding date of interest to all society folk of the city. After the wedding there will be a reception at the Ritz Carlton hotel, New York.

This announcement Tuesday revealed a departure from the previous determination of the young people to wait until young Mr. Plant had completed his studies at Yale. When the formal announcement of the engagement was made a month ago by Mr. and Mrs. George Hunter Smith of 101 East 64th street, parents of the bride, it was thought that the ceremony would be deferred until the course had ended.

Mr. Plant is one of the heirs to the estate of the late Commodore Morton F. Plant and is among the best known young men in society circles of New York and the continent.

Hartford-Saybrook Bus Plan Rejected

The public utilities commission has rejected an application for a license certificate from John J. Peretti, who wanted to operate a route between Hartford and Saybrook Point.

Mr. Paretti proposed to operate at least two trips daily, each way, at a fare of $1.75 each way. The distance between Hartford and Saybrook Point is about 45 miles. His running time was to be two and one-half hours each way. About sixty Hartford residents signed a petition for the jitney service.

The commission finds that the existing public transportation service is adequate. Mr. Peretti wanted to operate under the name, New England Transfer company.

The fuel required each winter to heat the different buildings of St. Patrick's parish plant reaches a figure in the thousands. The collection the coming Sunday is to be the annual fuel offertory.

EASTERN CONN. INTERSCHOLASTIC BASKETBALL TOURNEY MAR. 27-28

(Special to the Bulletin)

Storrs, March 11—The Eastern Connecticut Interscholastic basketball tournament, originally scheduled to be held at the Connecticut Agricultural College on Friday and Saturday of this week, will probably be run off March 27 and 28, according to Professor Roy J. Guyer, head of the department of physical education at the State College in a statement today. High schools that had planned to enter teams in the meet at Storrs have been asked to consider the possibility of postponing the tournament for two weeks, because of a mild outbreak of scarlet fever at the state college, and reports that have been received at Storrs today and yesterday would indicate that most of the schools in question will be able to prolong their seasons a couple of weeks longer.

The High school authorities of Stonington, Woodstock and Stafford Springs, and of Chapman Tech of New London have notified the physical education department at Storrs that they are fully in accord with the plan of the college to postpone the tournament until all danger of scarlet fever will have passed, and that they will be able to bring their teams to Storrs later in the month. Windham High of Willimantic has made no definite decision as yet concerning the tournament, though it is expected that an answer will be forthcoming within the next few days. Bulkeley High of New London has a game scheduled with Deep River that will conflict with the proposed dates for the tournament, but if arrangements can be made to play the game off before that time, the New London five will be on hand. Reports have yet to come in from Killingly High of Danielson, and the high schools of East Hartford, Rockville and Glastonbury. Tourtellotte High school authorities have definitely stated that their team will be unable to participate in the meet for the reason that several members of the team will be in Washington on a sightseeing trip.

There have been no new cases of scarlet fever at Storrs and with the situation well in hand there is no occasion for further postponement. As soon as reports are received from other high schools, the physical education department of the college will issue a definite statement as to whether or not the eastern Connecticut tournament will be held.

Class C and D interscholastic tournament for high schools of the state will be held as scheduled on March 20 and 21, as was previously stated. This meet is purely an invitation affair, and it is limited to those high schools with enrollments of not more than 200 students. Only those teams that have made good records for the present season will be admitted, and the selections for this tournament will be made by the state committee of the Interscholastic Athletic Association. Invitations have already been extended to the following schools: Deep River, Collinsville, West Hartford, Litchfield, Terryville and Westport. The Eastern Connecticut teams who will enter have yet to be selected as it was first planned to select them on the basis of the showing made in the Eastern Connecticut tournament, which was to be run off first. It is expected that three teams from the eastern part of the state will enter, as well as one more team to be selected from the state at large.

BASKETBALL AND BASEBALL SITUATION AT BULKELEY

(Special to The Bulletin)

New London, March 11—Bulkeley will have a chance to right two wrongs with a victory over Stonington High in a basketball game which is scheduled for this (Thursday) afternoon at the Y. M. C. A. gym floor. The calling off of the Eastern Connecticut tournament which was to be held at Storrs College, has necessitated a substitution in plans for this week. In order to keep the team busy as formerly expected, an effort is being made to have another game scheduled for either Friday or Saturday.

The basket ball squad had a day off on Tuesday, but continued its practice this afternoon. The schedule which was to terminate with the contest with Bridgeport High at Bridgeport on March 21 has been extended to a longer period, and the day of cessation of basketball activities will be March 28 the game with Deep River to conclude the schedule.

The prolonging of the season in basketball has a significance on the opening day for baseball practice. From present aspects it looks as though the first baseball gathering will not come until after the last basketball game, but there is every indication that earlier practice with Captain Tillie Dancels in the lead until Coach William Canty is ready to assume his baseball tasks, will probably cause the opening of the first baseball practice to be earlier.

This afternoon, the first preparation for the coming baseball season was made, when the members of last year's team were measured for the new uniforms which are to be had for the coming campaign. The uniforms are of light gray, and will have the school name written across the chest. All of last year's veterans of which this number includes six players outside of the pitchers, are "rarin'" to go.

The schedule is rapidly assuming the proportions of a big league program and with the announcement of the in-town schedule, the out of town schedule will be ready for announcement soon. At present there are but five contests which appear definitely scheduled, and these are New York University, Freshmen, Fordham College, Freshmen, South Manchester High, Windham High and Norwich Free Academy. Bulkeley's schedule will be mostly with home games, and the State High school title will be decided in this city, for the strongest nines in the state are to oppose the nine.

Bulkeley will be forced to pay high guarantees to all the teams coming to New London, and a total of nearly $900 will be expended for guarantees alone, besides other incidental expenses which will make this total soar to unprecedented figures.

BABE RUTH IS FAR FROM BEING "BROKE"

New York, March 11—Babe Ruth is "far from broke" and has "at least five more years" of major league campaigning ahead of him. This was the statement tonight of E. G. Barrow, secretary of the New York Yankees, made with reference to a story published today by a New York newspaper asserting that the Yankee home run star, "growing old and fat," has "nothing to show" for his spectacular diamond career and that "his best days are behind him."

"The New York club has no facts concerning the suit brought against Ruth, growing out of alleged racing debts," declared Mr. Barrow, "but as for the assertions that Ruth is 'broke' and a physical wreck, I cannot deny them too vigorously. I know that the Babe has worked more faithfully this year than ever before to put himself in condition for what he hopes will be one of his best years. Witness the battle he staged with his waist-line at Hot Springs.

He is now suffering from a slight injury to his finger but his general condition, according to all advices I have from Manager Huggins, is excellent and there seems no reason why he should not be fit to eclipse some of the remarkable performances he has made over the past few years.

"Last year was probably the Babe's best, from the viewpoint of all-around usefulness. He led his league in batting for the first time. I can see no indication in that to put him on the downward path, even considering his long major league service.

"As for Ruth's financial condition, I can say with authority that he is far from being "broke". His yearly salary from the Yankees is $52,000 under a contract which has two more seasons to run. Taking into consideration his earnings outside the game, I would place Ruth's annual income at between $70,000 and $75,000.

"Under an agreement Ruth has with Colonel Ruppert, president of the club, a good share of his salary is held in trust until the end of the season.

"It may be true in the past that Ruth has gambled away a good deal of his money and spent unwisely at times, but I can say that Ruth has turned over a new leaf in this respect. He does not patronize the races now."

BASEBALL PRACTICE STARTS AT CHAPMAN NEXT WEEK

(Special to the Bulletin)

New London, March 11—It is probable that the first call for baseball candidates at Chapman Tech will be issued after the basketball game with the Mercury five of this city which will be played at the school auditorium Friday evening. The game with the Mercury outfit is supposed to be the final engagement of the year, unless the coaches at the local institution think it best to await the announcement of the day which will find them trending towards Storrs college.

But the local mentor is reluctant of keeping the team in condition nearly two weeks more with no apparent games on the list until the contests in the Eastern Connecticut tourney are played. For that reason the attempt to keep the team in condition until the officials at Storrs reset the date for the tourney may be met with the announcement that the team will make its first effort on the diamond. There are several men on the Tech basketball squad who also make up the baseball team, and for that reason the thought of going to the tourney will be abolished.

GIANTS BEAT SENATORS IN 12-INNING GAME

Palm Beach, Fla., March 11—The New York Giants advanced another step toward the spring world's series championship with the Washington Senators, coming from behind in a hard fought, closely contested 12 inning pitchers' battle today, to win, 2 to 1.

The Giants, led by Hugh Jennings, won the opening game yesterday, 3 to 1.

Walker scored the tying run in the eleventh on Frisch's single after driving out a long three bagger. The Giants clinched the game in the twelfth. Jackson opened the season with a walk, Southword singled and Maun won the game by getting a scratch hit to the infield. Harris scored the Washington run in the first on a single and two consecutive errors.

MAINE GIRL ELIMINATES FAVORITE AT ST. AUGUSTINE

St. Augustine, Fla., March 11—Miss Helen Payson, a Maine girl, who has been playing tournament golf only one year, eliminated one of the favorites of the Florida east coast women's championship golf tournament here when she defeated Mrs. H. P. Turnbull, experienced Philadelphia golfer, today in a hard fought match that ended two up.

Another feature match of the day was between Mrs. H. D. Sterrett, holder of the Missouri valley championship, who won the qualifying medal yesterday and Mrs. Stewart Sterrett winning 3 to 1.

NAVY CREW TO ENTER THE POUGHKEEPSIE RACE

New York, March 11—The United States naval academy's varsity eight has filed its [illegible] Poughkeepsie regatta, to be held June 22, when the midshipmen will attempt to regain the laurels they held in 1921 and 1922.

This announcement, made today by the intercollegiate rowing association, practically assures the varsity classic on the Hudson of seven entries, with the chance that a record array of eight shells may compete. In addition to the four members of the I. R. A.—Cornell, Columbia, Syracuse and Pennsylvania—Wisconsin also has indicated it will come east again, while either Washington or California or both will represent the Pacific coast.

The status of Washington and California is not yet certain and depends largely upon the outcome of their annual race on the coast next month.

The Naval academy has not rowed on the Hudson since 1923 when the Midshipmen lost to Washington, the crown they had held for two seasons.

Columbia Beats Cornell

New York, March 11—Columbia assured itself a tie with Dartmouth in the eastern intercollegiate basketball league by defeating Cornell here tonight 21 to 11, excellent play by Mannheim and Rothenfeld in the second half accounting in great part for the victory.

Boston, March 11—Willie Ritola, Finnish American A. C. athlete, who was suspended recently by the New England association of the amateur athletic union for failing to run in a track meet here, was restored to good standing tonight by the registration committee.

JUNIORS TAKE LEAD IN AGGIE CLASS BASKETBALL

(Special to the Bulletin)

Storrs, March 11—The Juniors went up into first place again in the interclass basketball league at the Connecticut Agricultural College, when in this week's game they defeated the Seniors 13-10 after a hard fought battle. The Sophomores, with whom they were tied for first place did not play this week which enabled the class of 1926 to gain 1 game on the under classmen. A mild upset was furnished when the Freshmen team defeated the school of Aggies 10-3. It was the first of 6 games that the yearlings had won, but it comes too late to have any bearings on the present standing of the teams.

Unless there is a complete upset of the dope during the games of the next two weeks, the results at the close of the regular schedule will see the Juniors and Sophomors tied for first place with a record of 7 victories and 1 defeat for each team. The Juniors have yet to play the School of Ag, and they should win that game with little difficulty. The Sophomores have games scheduled with both the Freshmen and School of Ag fives and it seems likely that they will cop both games. If this happens, it will be necessary to play an extra game between the Juniors and Sophomores for the interclass championship at Storrs, and as the situation shapes up at present, the extra game will be necessary.

PLAINFIELD TAKES GAME FROM BALTIC BY TWO POINTS IN OVER TIME PERIOD

Plainfield and the Baltic Wanderers battled to a 29 to 29 tie score in the Eastern Connecticut basketball championship at the Baltic gym on Wednesday evening and then in the five-minute overtime period the Plainfield team scored three points while Baltic was only able to cage a solitary foul, the final score being 32 to 30 in favor of Plainfield. No faster or harder game has ever been played on the Baltic floor than took place last evening.

The teams were evenly matched as the score will indicate and there was little to choose between the two. Each team caged 10 field baskets but as the game was hard there were frequent fouls, the Wanderers counting on ten of the free tries while Plainfield made twelve of them good. The extra two points on th fouls proved to be the deciding factor of the Plainfield victory for it was by these two points that Plainfield went into second place in the league.

spectator's stand-point as the score The game was exciting from the swung this way and that all during the fray. In the overtime period the excitement was intense and with the hall packed to capacity it was a regular bedlam. The outcome was disappointing to the Baltic fans but they have lost no faith in their boys for it was a good fight and they gave everything they had. Plainfield on the other hand was jubilant but realized that although Baltic is strictly a local team they are every bit the equal of the professional team that Plainfield boasts.

W. Robitaille was the star of the contest shooting six field baskets and caging three fouls. Dessinger was the star of the Plainfield team and his accurate shooting of fouls materially helped his team.

Baltic however redeemed itself somewhat in the preliminary game when the Baltic Beavers severely trounced the Plainfield Buddies, 43 to 16. The score:

NEW LONDON PASTOR SPEAKS TO ROTARIANS

The weekly meeting of the Norwich Rotary club held on Wednesday noon at the Wauregan hotel was largely attended. President Hugh B. Campbell presided and Rev. Alexander H. Abbott asked divine grace. The song leader for the luncheon was Alex McNicol. The singing was of the usual spirit and there were several special features which included a trio number by three members of the club who recently returned from Atlantic City. There were many guests at the club meeting and they favored with a chorus number.

At the business session sixteen names were placed in nomination for directors for the year. Of these 16, eight will be elected as directors, four of them to serve two years and the remaining four for one year.

Chairman Herbert B. Cary announced that it had been decided to change the date of the annual ladies' night from April 15th to April 22d owing to so many other social events taking place during the week following Easter. Chairman Cary said that this year's affair would be one of the most prominent of the social events of the club of the year. Plans are being made to give out favors and to make the affair a general good time.

The matter of Boys' Week in Norwich was spoken of and it was decided that this year it would not be strictly a Rotary affair but would be made a community event. In view of this decision E. A. Harris, Dr. R. R. Agnew and Edward W. Jewett, were appointed a committee to confer with other civic organizations regarding the matter. It is expected that the Boys' Week will be the week of April 26th.

The speaker of the day was Rev. J. Beveridge Lee of New London who was introduced by Dr. Campbell. Rev. Mr. Lee took for his topic, "What Is Religion," and in a very clear and comprehensive manner outlined his conception of God and religion. He said that a person might have thousands of definitions of God but it was not until we had the spirit of God in the heart that we really understood what this Supreme Being really is. Religion, said Rev. Mr. Lee, is a consciousness of our relation to God. Every man must find this out for himself as the only approach to God is through the man himself.

At the conclusion of his talk Mr. Lee was given a rising vote of appreciation for his address which was in keeping with the Lenten spirit. The meeting closed with the singing of The Star Spangled Banner.

SHOULD CORRECT CHILDREN'S DEFECTS IN VISION

"I can't see that far." This was heard frequently at the recent Winter Exposition, at Hartford when people visited the state health exhibit and attempted to get the message at the other end of the telescope which had been installed as a publicity device to interest people in a yearly health examination. The distance was only seven feet, but many could not see clearly though the pictures and printing were well lighted and distinct.

This calls attention to the fact that many people have imperfect vision and yet have done nothing to correct this defect. Perhaps some are not conscious of any defect, never having had clear vision. Like the little girl of ten who was taken to the oculist for the first time. When fitted to glasses she discovered a wonderful mountain which she had never seen: many miles away, to be sure, but plainly visible to people in that city and an inspiration at all times with its changing light and shade.

A recent bulletin published by the eye sight conservation council has called attention to the extent of defective vision. They state that more than 60 per cent. of all people gainfully employed in the United States have defective vision, and as this contributes to fatigue, inefficiency, wasted effort, time and material it becomes a serious economic, as well as health, problem. To emphasize the seriousness of this it is stated that out of a group of 10,000 factory and commercial employes 66 per cent. had defective vision, but only 13 per cent. of these had these defects corrected.

Prevention of physical defects is the key note today. So it is among the children that eye defects should be discovered and corrected in early life. It is estimated that out of the 24,000,000 school children in the United States 25 to 40 per cent. have errors of vision. If these were corrected in time, general health would be greatly improved and children would be better able to complete their school work. At present thousands of children are retarded in their grades, this representing from 25 to 70 per cent., as shown by studies which have been made in many cities. When eye defects have been corrected the majority of these have progressed normally. Eyes are our most precious possession, although we are not always conscious of this fact until some defect has brought it to our attention. Eyesight can be conserved only by careful safeguarding. Attention to certain rules will do much to eliminate eye strain which affects general health, and may lead to serious eye trouble.

OVER 75,000 JEWISH FARMS THROUGHOUT THIS COUNTRY

The progress of Jewish farmers in the United States is described in the report of the Jewish Agricultural Society, Inc., of Fourteenth Street and Second Avenue, New York, made public this week by Fabriel Davidson, general manager.

When the society was organized a quarter of a century ago, the report says, there were about 200 Jewish farm families in the United States and the total acreage tilled by them was not more than 12,029. Today more than 1,000,000 acres are under cultivation by a farm population of more than 75,000. The value of their holdings is placed well over $100,000,000.

Every state in the union now has Jewish farmers, the report says. The society operates a farm loan department which since 1900 has granted 7,441 farm loans, aggregating $4,762,000. The farm labor department has secured employment for 15,355 Jewish young men since 1908 and last year it placed 683 men. Many of those placed bought farms later.

The farm settlement department gives advice and guidance to those who odesire to buy farms, and in the past seven years 7,587 applicants registered. Farms were found fro 665, of whom 311 received loans.

The extension department maintains a staff of Jewish agriculturists who in twenty-five years have visited 7,510 farmers and held 674 meetings, field days and demonstrations. Scholarships for 263 sons and daughters of Jewish farmers were granted in the state agricultural colleges of eleven states.

The sanitation department operates in the Jewish farming districts of New York, New Jersey, Connecticut and Massachusetts.

The society has made loans for synagogues and community houses and has initiated a plan for rural religious education.

The officers of the society are Percy S Straus, president; Eugene S. Benjamin, vice president; Lewis L. Straus, treasurer, and Reuben Arkush, secretary.

The Plungers Are Respected

How very great would be the waste
If all of us agreed in taste.
Welcome Robin.

"We wont see much of Blacky Pussy in the Old Orchard as long as he is about."

Plunger the Osprey and Mrs. Plunger are thought much of by their neighbors. They are respected and looked up to, and at all times are welcome. No one has other than good words for them. When the little people of the Old Orchard and the Green Meadows and the Green Forest found that Plunger and Mrs. Plunger were going to build a new home not far from Farmer Browns there was great rejoicing.

"Once upon a time I wouldnt have believed that I ever would have a good word to say for a single member of the Hawk family, said," Welcome Robin. "That was before I knew Plunger and Mrs. Plunger. They are fine people. With them about I am not worried at all of unexpected visits from other members of the Hawk family. They all know better than to come around where Plunger and Mrs. Plunger are nesting."

"Yes," piped up Kitty the Catbird, "the Hawks will keep away, and there are others who will keep away. Those eyes of Plunger's are wonderful. We won't see much of Blacky Pussy in the Old Orchard as long as he is about. And the same is true of Mrs. Plunger. Have you ever noticed that even Farmer Brown's biddies pay no attention to Plunger and Mrs. Plunger, while they run as fast as their legs will take them when another member of the Hawk family appears in sight? I have been told, though I cant say that I quite believe it, that Creaker the Grackle and Mrs. Grackle have even built their nest and have raised a family there.

"It is quite true, broke in a creaking voice. It was the voice of Creaker himself, who had happened to come along just in time to overhear Kitty the Catbird. "Mrs. Creaker and I have done that more than once. We would do it again this year, only the new nest of the Plungers is not big enough. Perhaps another year, when they have enlarged it, there will be room for us.

Just then there was a shrill whistle from Mrs. Plunger, at once answered by Plunger himself. Mrs. Plunger was on her nest. She had three precious eggs she could not leave. But she was none the less watchful, and she had been the first to see a strange cat. So she had given the alarm. At once Plunger had darted down toward that cat, whistling shrilly. With a bound the strange cat started away as fast as her legs could take her. Plunger followed her far enough to see that she was not likely to return. Then he returned to perch on the edge of the cartwheel platform on which he and Mrs. Plunger had built their nest.

"Isnt it splendid to have some one always on the watch like that?" demanded Welcome Robin. "Big as the Plungers are and fierce looking as those hooked bills and great claws make them, there is nt a thing in the world to fear from them by any one who wears feathers or fur. But I'm glad I'm not a fish. Yes, sir, I'm glad I'm not a fish. Everybody to his own taste. I prefer worms myself, nice plump earth worms."

POETRY

Hurrah for Old New England

This is our own, our native land,
Tho' poor and rough she be,
The home of many a noble soul,
The birthplace of the free.
We'll love her rocks and rivers
Till death our quick blood chills,
Hurrah for old New England
And her cloud-capp'd granite hills!

CHORUS

Hurrah for old New England.
And her cloud-capp'd granite hills
Hurrah for old New England.
And her cloud-capp'd granite hills!

Shall not the land, tho' poor she be,
That gave a Webster birth,
With pride step forth to take her place
With the mightieth of the earth?
Then for his sake whose lofty fame
Our farthest bound'ries fills,
We'll shout for old New England
And her cloud-capp'd granite hills!

They tell us of our freezing clime,
Our hard and rugged soil,
Which hardly half repays us for
Our toiling-time care and toil.
Yet gayly sings the merry boy,
As his homestead farm he tills;
Hurrah for old New England
And her cloud-capp'd granite hills.

Others may seek the western clime;
They say 'tis passing fair,
That sunny are its laughing skies
And soft its balmy air,
We'll linger round our childhood's home
Till age our warm blood chills,
Till we die in old New England.
And sleep beneath her hills.

Lines Written in Early Spring

I heard a thousand blended notes,
While in a grove I sat reclined,
In that sweet mood when pleasure thoughts
Bring sad thoughts to the mind.

To her fair works did Nature link
The human soul that through me ran;
And much it grieved my heart to think
What Man has made of Man.

Through primrose tufts, in that sweet bower,
The periwinkle trailed its wreaths;
And 'tis my faith that every flower
Enjoys the air it breathes.

The birds around me hopped and played
Their thoughts I can not measure—
But the least motion which they made
It seemed a thrill of pleasure.

The budding twigs spread out their fan
To catch the breezy air;
And I must think, do all I can,
That there was pleasure there.

If this belief from heaven be sent,
If such be Nature's holy plan,
Have I not reason to lament
What Man has made of Man?

KALEIDOSCOPE

Foreign style buildings are increasing in number in Japan.

Eight sons of the Rev. Charles Bowman, of Peterborough, England, have been ordained as ministers.

A musical instrument has been invented in Spain with a single string. It is played with a bow stretched between a needle and a phonograph diaphragm, a horn increasing the sound.

When William Pronger, who lives near Burlington, Ia., felled a tree, he unexpectedly sent eight towns into darkness. The tree carried down an electric transmission wire and cut off all electric current for nearby towns. Factories had to dismiss their workmen and elevators in office buildings could not operate.

By a simple device the problem of an overflowing ice box pan is at once solved. All that is necessary, says the Scientific American, is to attach this alarm to any pan and, when the water rises to the level set, the float to which the alarm bell is attached is pushed up to the point where it will start the bell ringing and thus give ample warning. The pan can be emptied and the alarm rewound to act as a reminder on the next occasion.

Speaking of Uganda, the land where men sew and women plow, Dr. Homer Shants, agricultural explorer of the United States department of agriculture, said it is a great mistake to try to alter tribal customs. The men hold that farming is beneath their dignity; their place, they feel, is in the home. Once it was on the warpath, but since that is stopped their chief occupations are hunting, cooking, house building, and textile working. The women, splendidly developed by life in the open air, suffer in health if they are induced by misguided whites to take to the frying pan. As for the needle, they care little enough for sewing, since they wear no clothes.

WOMAN PRESIDES OVER THE HOUSE FOR FIRST TIME IN STATE'S HISTORY

(Special to the Bulletin)

Hartford, March. 11—As the members of the assembly were waiting this morning for the appearance of Speaker Darbie to open the session, they were startled to hear the gavel sound and looking toward the speaker's desk they beheld a woman calling the assembly to order in the person of Mrs. Clarissa Nevius of New Fairfield. Although not possessing a strong voice she conducted the business of the day in an able manner. To Mrs. Nevius belongs the honor of being the first woman in Connecticut to receive this distinction.

A bill, favorably reported this morning by the committee on fish and game, is a substitute bill, prepared by the committee. It provides for the leasing of streams and lakes by the commission with trespass rights of ingress and egress with power to declare open and closed seasons. It is the purpose of the commission, if the bill is passed, to heavily stock the streams so leased. The main object is to provide a way by which the fishermen of the state may obtain some benefit of the stocking by the state and as far as possible the leasing of the streams by private parties and shutting out the general public.

The bill reported adversely today by the committee on public health and safety would have, in the event of its passage, virtually taken the control of mental defectives out of the hands of the hospital authorities and placed it in the hands of an outside commission of five members. The bill was strongly opposed by Dr. Franklin S. Wilcox of the Norwich Hospital.

The general deficiency bill that was reported yesterday by the committee on appropriations contains items relating to New London and Windham counties as follows: Superior Court New London County, bills of costs $3000; Windham county, bills of costs $5,000; common pleas court, New London county, criminal side, sheriffs attendance an dother expenses $500, jury debentures $500, bills of costs $500.

Board of prisoners in county jails, New London county $6,000; Windham county $5,000; County health officers, New London county $250, Windham county $500. "The bill as announced will come before the house for action on Thursday.

Appropriation Committee to Visit Norwich

The committee on appropriations will make a visit to the Norwich state hospital on Friday that they may inspect at first hand the objects for which appropriations are asked.

The condition of affairs that was revealed in the actions of Former State Treasurer Gilpatric called to the attention of the state that no restrictions were placed upon the state treasurer in the investment of state funds. A bill introduced by Senator Cronin, of New London, on request of State Treasurer Rogers, was passed in the senate last week and today came up before the house and was passed. It now goes to the governor for his approval. No investment of any funds held by the treasurer shall be made by him without the approval of the chairman of the state board of finance or the bank commissioner, and the treasurer shall report at each meeting of the board of control each investment of such funds made subsequent to the last preceding report.

THE HOUSE.

The house was called to order today by Mrs. Nevius of New Fairfield in the speaker's chair. Chaplain Lewis' prayer was one of thankfulness for women in the world.

The teachers' certificate bill, No. 77, was rejected on adverse report by the committee on education. On unfavorable report from the judiciary committee the house rejected bill No. 45 providing that state aid for the blind should cease upon their removal from one town to another. Other bills rejected on unfavorable report from the judiciary committee were:

No. 129, providing a simple and effective procedure for the collection of small claims No. 250, concerning disposition of obsolete tax lists; No. 817 providing for four persons appointed by the governor to sit with the state board of equalization.

An adverse report from the committee on claims, the house rejected the claim of Sebastian Gardino for $261 damage to a truck while he was passing over a culvert in a road being constructed in Baltic.

Bills rejected on adverse reports were: Public health and safety—No. 558, creating a commission on mental diseases to take over management of institutions for the feeble minded. Roads, bridges and rivers: No. 936, providing for uniform track of vehicles on public highways; No. 937, providing that all negligence in motor vehicle cases be attributed to owner; No. 939 ,conferring on public utilities commission jurisdiction over all public service vehicles; No. 914, providing for inspection by motor vehicle commissioner of commercial motor vehicles; No. 893, providing for inspection of motor and factory numbers before applying for registration of motor vehicle; No. 921, prohibiting parking on trunk line highways more than three hours, between 11 p. m. and 6 a. m.; No. 915, prohibiting transportation of animals on running board or fenders.

Favorable report from the committee on appropriations was received on a bill providing $2,000 to meet deficiency in the governor's office. Mr. Clark of Haddam explained that two years ago the usual appropriation of $5,000 for extraordinary expenses of the governor's office was made, but the audit of the state treasurer's accounts had been paid from that and there are about $1500 of bills to meet, the $500 more being expected to carry the office along to July. The bill was passed under suspension of the rules.

Tabled for calendar and printing on favorable reports were bills from the agricultural committee: No. 76, providing for exemption from Dec. 1 to March 1 each year from the requirements of permits for kindling fires in the open air; No. 708, providing for protecting live stock from contagious and infectious diseases; No. 450, providing for control of plant pests by director of Connecticut Agricultura; Experiment station, quarantine to be established only after public hearing had on due notice.

Fish and Game—No. 739, providing for a closed season on raccoons from February 1 to October 31; No. 584, providing that close season for wild hares and rabbits does not apply to European hares; No. 616, requiring a license for the practice of taxidermy. Cities and boroughs, No. 172, concerning sealers.

The house adjourned at 12.30 until Thursday at 11.30 a. m.

SENATE.

In the senate today Executive Secretary Kelly presented communications from Governor Trumbull making the following nominations which were referred to the committee on executive appointments:

Frederick T. Simpson of Hartford to be consulting physician at the state prison for two years from July 1, 1925.

Directors of the Connecticut Reformatory: Louis R. Cheney and Charles Hopkins Clark of Hartford and John P. Elton of Waterbury each for four years from July 1, 1925.

Harbor commissioners for New Haven: Frank W. Rowley of New Haven for five years from July 7, 1925; Henry B. Harrison Hurd of New Haven for five years from July 1, 1926; Frank H. Quinley of New Haven to fill a vacancy for an unexpired term ending July 1, 1928.

The committee on the judiciary reported unfavorably on the bill establishing a single and economical procedure for the determination of small claims; and for the appointment of a legal aid director. Both bills were rejected as recommended by the committee.

Substitute for senate bill No. 72, concerning payment of forged checks, was explained by Senator Challenger, the chairman of the committee on banks, and passed. It provides that a bank shall not be responsible to the depositor for the payment of a forged or raised check unless it shall be notified, with six months after the depositor has been notified that paid checks were ready for delivery, that the check was forged, altered or raised.

The committee on education reported unfavorably on the bill to allow school districts to establish kindergartens. The bill was rejected.

On the motion of Senator Cronin a bill was passed on suspension of rules for the appointment of W. Stanley Finney as the successor of the late W. J. Ferris in the deputy judgeship of the local court of Greenwich and it was transmitted to the house.

The commitee on executive nominations reported favorably on the governor's nomination of Frank V. Chappell, of New London, and of Christopher L. Avery, of Groton, to be members of the rivers and harbors commission, and the nominations were confirmed under suspension of rules.

WINDHAM

Clarence Beckwith, who has been staying at Jack Thompson's for several weeks, has left there and is rooming in Willimantic for the present. Mr. Beckwith is employed by John F. Woods.

Plans are perfected for a chicken pie supper to be given by the men of the Congregational church this week. A sextette from Storrs college will furnish the programme.

Mr. and Mrs. George Stiles and Miss Elizabeth Abbe of South Windham, Dr. and Mrs. F. E. Guild, Miss Elizabeth Clarke, Mrs. Ada Larrabee, the Misses Clara and Sarah Johnson and Miss Gertrude Arnold were guests of Mr. and Mrs. John L. Woods and Miss Marie Rizzo, at a bridge party Saturday evening.

Rev. and Mrs. James G. Graham entertained the members of the South Windham C. E. society Friday evening.

The attendance at the third in the series of Fathers' Nights of the Parent-Teachers' association Friday evening proved the success of the idea of entertaining the fathers at every other meeting. An excellent programme was given by some of the grammar school children under the direction of the teachers, Mrs. Moseley, Miss Hopkins, Miss Healey and Miss Ericson. There were dances, songs and recitations by the smaller children. An amusing play, The Little Old Folks Concert, in which two maiden sisters, Betty Barber and Elizabeth Webster entertain members of the chorus at a rehearsal was very funny. Edward Bailey was the conductor. Marion Bailey took the part of Old Granny Lumpkins Whitney Sandetion was the corporal. Bobby Oehrig the client and Margaret Oehrig were Fidgety Sue, whose antics kept every one laughing. The old fashioned costumes and hoop skirts were quaint and droll. There were twenty in the chorus. Miss Ericson deserves much credit for her work in training the children. A sale of parcel post packages and a silver collection added $21 to the playground equipment fund. Earle Potter was the pianist.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Larrabee returned Sunday from Hartford where Mr. Larrabee was a patient in the Hartford hospital for ten days. He is much improved in health.

CHAPLIN

At a special town meeting held in the town building Saturday it was voted to lay a tax of 25 mills which is two mills less than the previous year. The 1924 grand list is $277,829, an increase of over $17,000 on the 1923 list. A 25 mill tax it is hoped will run the finances of the town this year and may pay some to reduce the debt of the town. At the meeting it was voted to raise the salary of some of the officials as follows:

The assessors were voted $15 each for making the assessment for 1924, and a fee of $25 was voted W. B. Gallup for clerical work in perfecting the grand list of 1924. That the fee allowed by the town for making out the annual town report for printing thereof be $15.

That the board of relief for 1925 be paid at the rate of $4 per day, eight hours to constitute a day's work. The salary of the town treasurer to be $100 per year.

The assessors are to revalue the property of the town next fall, when their compensation will be fixed at the annual town meeting in October.

Wilfred E. Burdick, who has conducted a general store in the village for the past eight years has sold his buildings and business to Alfred F. Siswick, of Stafford. Mr. Burdick will continue to carry milk for a number of farmers in Ashford and Chaplin to Willimantic where the milk is shipped to Providence. Mr. Burdick also carries the high school children to Willimantic.

The local society of Christian Endeavor attended the meeting in North Windham Sunday evening.

Joseph Variens received 200 White Leghorn chickens the past week.

Mrs. Kinsel who has been in California this winter has returned home.

SOUTH WILLINGTON

Mr. and Mrs. C. C. Freeman and son Oscar of New London were week end guests of Rev. and Mrs. E. E Sundt.

John Richardson and George Richardson of Hartford were week end guests of Mr. and Mrs. John Richardson, Jr.

Mr. and Mrs. Henry Costello and daughter of Willimantic were week end guests of Mr. and Mrs. James Service.

Miss Helen Comstock of Manchester is visiting Mrs. Lucy Tucker.

Mrs. John Brownell who has been seriously ill is somewhat improved and able to sit up.

Alfred Haturo who had been a patient at St. Joseph's hospital in Willimantic is now at home.

Miss Isabelle Service, teacher of the primary grades who had been ill this past week is again able to take up her duties in the school.

Mrs. Thomas Wonshasek and daughter Anna attended the funeral of Mrs. Wonshasek's brother-in-law, J. Livingstone in New York this past week.

Master George Mathews has recovered from his recent illness and has returned to school.

Misses Agnes Klicak and Frances Tessar left last week for a visit to New York, to be gone about ten days.

Mrs. I. Tilden Jewett of Tolland was a substitute teacher here this past week, The regular teacher Miss Hazel Lutz being ill at her home in Rockville.

Mrs. Ruth Colburn, worthy matron of Climax Chapter Order Eastern Star, attended the meeting and inspection of Hope Chapter of Rockville last week.

Mrs. Jerome Wonshasek and son of New York have joined Mr. Wonshasek at the home of his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Wonshasek.

The meeting of the Willimantic cemetery association is to be held Monday evening.

Miss Elizabeth Rodgers, secretary of the Hartford county Y. W. C. A., was the guest of the Girls' club Tuesday evening.

COLUMBIA

About 50 persons attended the town meeting on Saturday afternoon. George H. Champlin was chosen as chairman, and the town clerk read the call for the meeting, to consider first, the addition of $300 to the budget for the care of paupers which have recently become a charge on the town. The appropriation was quickly authorized. The second clause, To lay a tax for the town and school expenses caused much discussion. D. A. Lyman stated that an 11-mill tax on the grand list of $890,000, would be sufficient to provide for the expenses included in the budget, and pay $1,000 on account of the towns indebtedness. An amendment to make the rate 12 mills was almost unanimously defeated, and the original motion for 11 mills was carried, the tax to be payable on April 1st. A general discussion followed on propositions for the good of the town, but which were not included in the warning, among which were the distinction of some dilapidated horse sheds near the town hall, the best method to prevent driving over the green and cement walks, the pasting of warning signs on the roads, the prevention of parking too many cars near the center, and the regulation of rapid driving around the corners at the center.

Rev. C. C. Haun preached Sunday morning on the events in the life of Jesus after his temptation. The Christian Endeavor meeting Sunday evening was led by Miss Margaret Hutchins, the subject for discussion being the Master's method of winning followers.

The Ladies' Aid Society is to hold a meeting this (Tuesday) afternoon with Mrs. H. W. Porter. Friday evening they will hold a supper at Yeomans hall, after which the church members will hold a meeting to decide upon the acceptance of the offer of Mrs. Mary B. Yeomans to wire the church and give the fixtures for electric lights, providing a hard wood floor is laid in the church.

Mrs. Ruth Jacobs who has been engaged during the winter in her profession of nursing, has arrived at the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Henry C. Isham.

STERLING

The community was saddened to learn of the death of Francis Lee Chamberland, son of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Chamberland, Monday, March 2nd, at the age of sixteen months, the little boy dying from pneumonia. He was a most lovable child and will be greatly missed by his family and a large circle of friends.

The funeral Wednesday, March 4th, was largely attended by relatives and friends. The body was taken to St. Joseph's church where prayers were offered by Rev. Fr. Joseph E. McCarthy and a beautiful hymn was sung by Rev. Sister Eve. Burial was in All Hallows' cemetery, Chester Molewski, William Fox, Jr. Henry Dziecinny and John Wallace, boy friends of the family, were the bearers. There were beautiful flowers among them a standing wreath from Sterling K. of C.; spray of white carnations, Mr. and Mrs. John French and Family; spray of roses, Miss Ruth Campbell; pillow of roses and carnations, Mr. and Mrs. William Kelly and Family; pillow "Thanks" Mr. and Mrs. Lloyd T. Herbert; basket of roses, Cousin Bradford Atwood; spray of white carnations, Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Chamberland and family; spray of pink carnations, Mr. and Mrs. H. B. Mowry; heart with white dove, Mr. and Mrs. Frank Chamberland; spray of white carnations, Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Boisclair; baskets of assorted flowers from Mr. and Mrs. Frank Burton, Sr.; also Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Raymond, Jr. and William F. Gaffney; spray of carnations, Mr. and Mrs. C. H. Ashford; spray of roses, Mr. Goodwin; spray of carnations, Miss Catherine Murray; bouquet of rosebuds, Mrs. A. Sweet; cross, from Albert Chamberland, Misses Ann and Louise Chamberland; basket of lilies and asters, Arlene and Beverly Downing; spray of sweet peas and carnations, Mr. and Mrs. Martial Russie; spray of white carnations and roses, Mr. and Mrs. Eddie Lachapelle; basket of carnations, Mrs. Arline Gaudette and family. Deepest sympathy has been expressed for the bereaved parents in their loss.

Equal pay for teachers without discrimination for sex was favored by Commissioner of Education Meredith appearing before the legislative committee on education as a private citizen and not as a representative of the board of education.

MONTVILLE

Mr. and Mrs. James Bingham entertained the pinochle players at their home Monday evening. Six tables were in play, high honors going to Miss Henrietta Gridley and Frederick Lathrop of Groton and other prizes to Miss Marion MacWilliams and E. Everett Chapman.

EFFECTIVE MEANS OF REDUCING FAT

Here is an extraordinary method of reducing weight—extraordinary because no starvation diets or violent exercises are necessary. Marmola Prescription Tablets are made exactly in accordance with the famous Marmola Prescription. They reduce you steadily and easily, with no ill effects. Procure them from your druggist at one dollar for a box or send price direct to the Marmola Company, General Motors Building, Detroit, Mich. Once you start taking these tablets and losing your fatness, you will be happy again.

HOW FAT I WAS

And How I Lost 50 Pounds in 8 Weeks With Marvelous New Parisian Discovery Which Causes Sensation in New York.

Simple, Easy—Does Away With Exercises, Diets, Reducing Creams and Girdles.

No one can ever believe that once I weighed over 180 pounds. Those who knew me then and meet me say I look 10 years younger. I never could get clothes to fit me; all my friends called me FATTY, and even my own family thought I was a most unattractive woman. For years I suffered, until one day in Paris I discovered the real cause of excess fat—I found out exactly what to do to reduce, and I safely and easily lost 50 pounds in about two months. I have never regained one pound and never felt or looked better. I have given out my secret to hundreds of people who have obtained the most astonishing results. If YOU have tried everything known to reduce and have not succeeded—if YOU feel so discouraged that you have decided to remain fat, NOW THERE IS HOPE FOR YOU. I suffered so much for years with this burden of fat that I am glad to be able to help all fat people by giving them a real way of reducing. Go to any good drug store, get a package of the latest French discovery called SAN-GRI-NA (remember the name), take two small tablets before each meal and watch a steady decrease take place in your weight. SAN-GRI-NA not only reduces you, but it acts as a general tonic—the moment you start taking it you will feel your entire system filled with strength and energy. SAN-GRI-NA IS GUARANTEED ABSOLUTELY HARMLESS. It is the only thing I ever found to reduce me after I had tried diets, exercise, drugs, worthless reducing creams and garments. Remember that with SAN-GRI-NA I took off 50 pounds in two months. I have never regained a pound since, and my health and figure is envied by everyone.

They knew what every housewife wants

"WE must bake rich, substantial loaves," the Six Bakers agreed. "We must satisfy women who insist on good bread—who have baked it themselves."

So the Six Bakers combined their knowledge and worked together to create an ideal bread—White Rose.

Made with ingredients fine housewives use at home. Firm, moist, delicious, White Rose stays fresh—cuts into thin even slices—makes crisp golden toast—never varies or loses its delicate, wheaty flavor.

TWICE IN THIS WOMAN'S LIFE

Ellensburg, Washington.—"When I was [illegible] womanhood I suffered terribly every month. My mother did everything she could think of, so she took me to several doctors and they only helped me a little. Mother kept talking to me [illegible] about Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. Mother got me to try it and at the end of the first [illegible] better, so I kept on until I had taken six bottles. I am married and have children and am in terrible health now. It is impossible for me to do my housework. I thought of how the Vegetable Compound had done so much benefit to me when I was a girl, so I went to Perier's drug store and got six bottles. It sure did help me and I still take it. I am a well woman today and I can't say too much about Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. I will answer any letter that comes to me to answer about what your medicine has done for me."—Mrs. WILLIAM CARVER, R. F. D. No. 2, Ellensburg, Wash.

BAD BREATH

Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets Get at the Cause and Remove It

Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets, the substitute for calomel, act gently on the bowels and positively do the work.

People afflicted with bad breath find quick relief through Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets. The pleasant, sugar-coated tablets are taken for bad breath by all who know them.

Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets act gently but firmly on the bowels and liver, stimulating them to natural action, clearing the blood and gently purifying the entire system. They do that which dangerous calomel does without any of the bad after effects.

All the benefits of nasty, sickening, griping cathartics are derived from Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets without griping, pain or any disagreeable effects.

Dr. F. M. Edwards discovered the formula after seventeen years of practice among patients afflicted with bowel and liver complaint, with the attendant bad breath.

Olive Tablets are purely a vegetable compound mixed with olive oil; you will know them by their olive color. Take one or two every night for a week and note the effect. 15c and 30c.

Note new growth of luxurious hair due to constant use of Van Ess (from photo)

800,000 men and 600,000 women have tried Van Ess Scalp Massage. These users say: YES!

Chicago, Ill., 11/2/24

A year ago I was almost bald. I now have a nice growth of hair due to constant use of Van Ess. After trying everything else, without success, I purchased a bottle of Van Ess at Buck & Rayner's.

It gives me great pleasure to inform my friends that Van Ess has been the cause of restoring my hair. I believe that anyone who uses Van Ess as religiously as I have will be benefited.

People with scalp trouble should make Van Ess a daily habit because it keeps the scalp clean, removes dandruff and makes the head feel glad.

CONDUCTS DISCUSSION OF GROSS INCOME TAX

The March issue of Connecticut Industry, the official publication of the Manufacturers Association of Connecticut has for its feature article discussion of the proposed gross income tax which Tax Commissioner Blodgett is suggesting as a substitute for the present personal property tax on business.

At the request of the association, Professor Fairchild, author of the article and taxation advisor to the association, has made a careful analysis of the effect of such a proposed change in the law so that manufacturers, merchants and others interested may be able to weigh the arguments pro and con and more readily understand exactly how business generally would be affected.

In discussing the establishment of a proper rate for a gross income tax, which all experts agree to be one of the chief difficulties Professor Fairchild says:

"The problem of the rate resolves itself into the discovery of that rate which, applied to the gross income (or perhaps gross sales) of the taxpayers concerned, will yield approximately the same revenue as is now obtained by the towns of the state from the ad valorem tax upon the personal property of such taxpayers. In connection with the rate there arises, however, an important question of policy. Shall the rate be uniform for the whole state, as appears to be the intent of the present bill, or shall each town be given authority to fix its own rate as it now fixes the rate of the property tax. A moment's consideration will convince us that we are here confronted with a dilemma, either horn of which threatens serious consequences.

Hypothetical Case

"Consider the first alternative, and, in order to make the situation clear, let us set up a hypothetical case with assumed figures. Let it be assumed that investigation has determined that, taking the state as a whole, a tax on gross income at the rate of 3-10 of one per cent would yield about the same revenue as is now being obtained by the towns from the tax on the personal property of business enterprises. That rate would presumably be put in the statute to be applied to the whole state. Now let us suppose that two selected towns find themselves in the condition indicated by the following statement:

	Town A.	Town B.
Personal property exempted	$10,000,000	$10,000,000
Town tax rate	30 mills	30 mills
Tax revenue sacrificed	$ 300,000	$ 150,000
Gross income taxable	$70,000,000	$70,000,000
Gross income tax at 3 per cent.	$ 210,000	$ 210,000

"It is evident the business interests of these two towns will now be taxed on an equality, whereas formerly those in town A were taxed twice as heavily as those in town B. This may at first sight appear a desirable result. It will certainly appear so to the business interests of town A, though it may be doubted if those of town B will look upon the result with equal satisfaction. And it is also likely that the other taxpayers of town B will be far from pleased on finding themselves called upon to submit to a higher tax rate in order to make up the $90,000 lost through the change in the method of taxing business property. The fact is that the inequality of tax burdens in A and B were due to local conditions, over which the state had little or no control. Presumably town A has heavy needs for town services together with only moderate wealth of its citizens. Town B is a wealthy town with relatively moderate needs. Town B can therefore get on nicely with a tax rate of only half what it required by A. This example, though purely hypothetical, is by no means extreme. Many Connecticut towns have tax rates below 15 mills; several have rates above 25 mills and one has a rate over 33 mills. Where a town is so unfortunate as to require a heavy tax rule it is only fair that all taxable interests in the town should share the burden, as it is equally fair that the advantage of light taxation should be equally shared by all taxpayers in the fortunate town which gets on with a low rate. But, it may be objected, perhaps the difference is due to an inefficient and corrupt government in one town and an honest and efficient government in the other. Even so, there appears no reason why all taxpayers in the first town should not pay the penalty of bad government, nor why all should not share in the benefits of good local government, nor why all should not share in the benefits of good government in a town which achieves it.

"The gross income tax at a uniform state means that certain taxable interests are relieved of part of the burden of local government in those towns where the burden is unusually heavy, whereas the same class of taxpayers is in part deprived of the advantage of light taxation in towns with an unusually low tax rate. The situation becomes still clearer if we suppose that tax rates change after the new system has gone into effect. Let us assume that town A finds it necessary to obtain additional revenue. Nothing can be done to compel an increased contribution from the gross income tax. The whole increase must be obtained by an addition to the already heavy rate of the property tax, thus further intensifying the inequality between the different taxable interests of the town. If town B should find it possible to reduce the tax rate, all of the advantage would go to the owners of taxable property, while the business interests already taxed excessively have nothing to gain from their town's improved condition so far as the tax on their personal property is concerned. It is hard to see how such discrimination between the taxable interests of the town can be justified.

"Now let us suppose that, in order to avoid the injustice of the flat state rate, we turn to the other extreme and give the towns the same freedom to determine the rate of the gross income tax which they now possess with respect to the property tax rate. Discrimination is no longer forced upon the towns by the law, but there is no guarantee that discrimination will be avoided. It is conceivable that each town would now undertake to fix a rate on gross income which would be in fair relation to the property tax rate and on the occasion of future changes in the latter rate would make corresponding changes in the gross income rate in order to hold the balance equal between the two classes of taxpayers. This delightful state of affairs is indeed conceivable, but one does not have to be a callous cynic to regard it as highly improbable. The town would now have two tax rates to determine each year, and political considerations could scarcely be kept out of the decision. Where the business interests were weak politically, we should expect to find a high rate of tax on gross income in order to relieve the owners of real estate. In those towns where the business interests were influential the reverse might be the case. Such political discriminations would probably be worse than the automatic discrimination which would be forced by a uniform state rate.

Suggests Different Solution

In my opinion it is not necessary to accept either of the disagreeable horns of the dilemma and I should like to suggest a different solution of the rate problem. Suppose, again, that investigation has determined that, taking the state as a whole, certain rate upon gross income will yield approximately the same revenue as is now obtained in all the towns through the ad-valorem tax upon the personal property of business. To have a concrete case, let us assume that this rate is 3-10 of one per cent, or 3 mills. Now the average rate of the property tax throughout the state, on the lists of 1923 (the latest available figure) is 21 mills. On the average, then, a rate of 3 mills on gross income would, on our assumption, yield about the same revenue as a rate of 21 mills on the personal property which is to be exempted. Now let us suppose that the legislature writes that ratio 3-1-2, or 1-7 into the law. That means that the rate of the tax upon gross income will be fixed for each town at 1-7 of whatever rate the town is at the time imposing upon property. The towns will of course retain their present freedom to change their property tax rates, but whenever a town increases or decreases its property tax rate, it will be required to make exactly correspondin[g] change in the rate of the gross income tax.

"To return to our numerical example, town A, with a property tax rate of 33 mills would have a rate of 4 2-7 mills on gross income, whereas town B's rate would be 2 1-7 mills. The gross income tax paid in town A would be $300,000, and in town B, $150,000, exactly the same as the tax formerly paid on the personal property now exempted. Of course this exact agreement is the result of my numerical example, in which the relation between the assessed value of personal property and the amount of gross income in each town was assumed to be the same as for the state as a whole. In the actual case such exact agreement would of course not be found, but there would be approximate agreement in most towns, except where there was a material inequality in the assessment of business personalty as compared with other property, a point to which I shall return presently. If town A should find it necessary to secure more revenue, it would automatically rise in proportion, becoming 4 4-7 mills. A reduction in rates would work in the same way. The different taxable interests would share alike in the prosperity or adversity of their respective towns. There would be diversity of rates among the towns, just as there now is in respect to the property tax due to local conditions. Otherwise there would be equality, on account of the uniformiratio tying together the two rates everywhere throughout the state.

"This brings me back to the point mentioned above. It may well happen that the business interests of a given town are now bearing a heavy burden of taxation upon their personal property, not merely because of a heavy town tax rate but because the town's assessors have discriminated against such property as compared with other taxable property. One of the features of the suggestion which I am offering is that such inequalities would be ironed out. Returning to our numerical illustration, let us suppose that another town, C, is in the same situation as town A except that business personal property, actually worth no more than in A, has been unjustly assessed at $15,000,000. The ad-valorem tax on this property is $450,000, 50 per cent higher than it would be with a fair assessment. The substitution of the tax on gross income, with a rate tied to the property tax by a ratio based on average state conditions instead of on the unjust situation of this particular town, would not perpetuate that inequality, but would raise a tax of $300,000, the same as paid in another town with similar conditions."

Professor Fairchild disposes briefly of the administrative features of such a law, which he does not feel involve serious difficulties, and in conclusion discusses the relative merits of gross earnings as against net earnings as a tax base and also the question of constitutionality of a law such as the one proposed.

THOUSANDS HAVE KIDNEY TROUBLE AND NEVER SUSPECT IT

APPLICANTS FOR INSURANCE OFTEN REJECTED

Judging from reports from druggists who are constantly in direct touch with the public, there is one preparation that has been very successful in overcoming these conditions. The mild and healing influence of Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root is soon realized. It stands the highest for its remarkable record of success.

An examining physician for one of the prominent Life Insurance Companies, in an interview of the subject, made the astonishing statement that one reason why so many applicants for insurance are rejected is because kidney trouble is so common to the American people, and the large majority of those whose applications are declined do not even suspect that they have the disease. Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root is on sale at all drug stores in bottles of two sizes, medium and large.

However, if you wish first to test this great preparation send ten cents to Dr. Kilmer & Co., Binghamton, N. Y., for a sample bottle. When writing be sure and mention this paper.

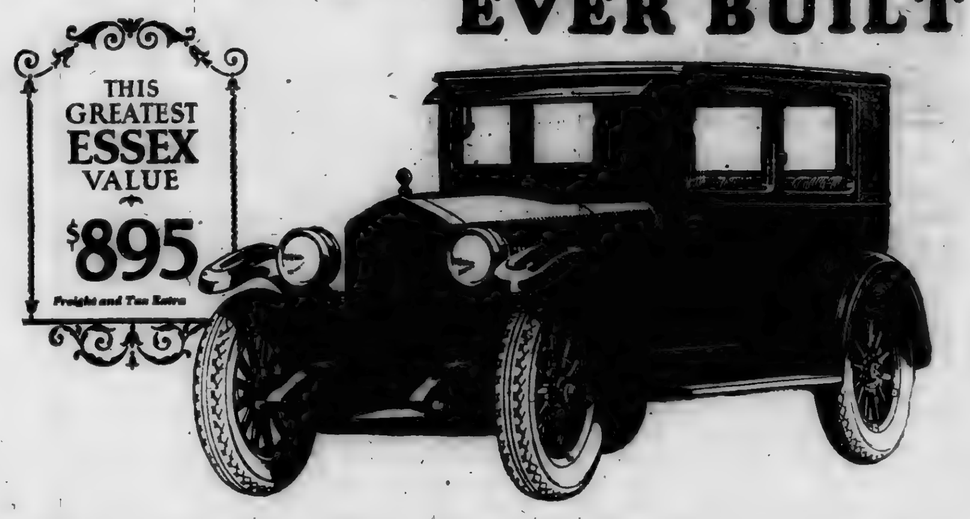
THE FINEST ESSEX EVER BUILT



You Cannot Get Equal Style, Performance and Reliability Within Hundreds of Dollars of Its Price

Essex is a totally different type. Its advantages are exclusive because patented. It gives results never before attained in any car:

Low price, without disappointment in looks or reliability.

Economy without sacrifice of performance.

Stability and highest roadability without unnecessary weight.

The riding ease of large, costly cars. The handling ease of a bicycle. Utter simplicity in design.

The lowest maintenance cost, we believe, of any car in the world.

None Can Copy Its Chief Values

The Chassis Is Patented

Just as the Coach, invented by Hudson-Essex, changed practically all buying to closed cars, so the patented Super-Six principle and other exclusive advantages, forecast the mechanical design which all must seek to rival.

But the extensive copying of the Coach type and the Coach name, even by costliest cars, cannot be carried to the Essex chassis. That is patented and no other maker can use it. It is responsible for the smooth vibrationless performance and long lasting reliability for which Essex is famous everywhere.

Hudson and Essex are of one quality.

A Car You Will Be Proud to Own

These qualities make it the most wanted and largest selling car of its class in the world.

It is the finest Essex ever built. It is the smoothest, most reliable Essex ever built. It is the best looking, most comfortably riding Essex ever built. And the price, because of volume, is the lowest at which Essex ever sold.

Surely you cannot be satisfied with less than Essex offers when its cost is but little more than cars of the lowest price

A mass meeting is to be held at the Congregational church next Monday evening for all citizens and property owners and any one at all interested in the movement for better and efficient fire protection for this village.

Plainfield's basketball fans motored to Baltic Wednesday night to back the local A. and N. club to the limit. The fans held a big parade through the main street, singing "Hail, hail the gang's all here, what'll we do to Baltic tonight ?"

Joseph Conoyer has returned from New Rochelle after finishing his instruction course at the Pullman Diner school in that city.

Work on the state highway is expected to start by the 15th of this month. Motorists in this district will breathe easier when the new cement highway is completed, as more than one car has suffered from broken springs.

BEWARE THE COUGH OR COLD THAT HANGS ON

Chronic coughs and persistent colds lead to serious lung trouble. You can stop them now with Creomulsion, an emulsified creosote that is pleasant to take. Creomulsion is a new medical discovery with twofold action; it soothes and heals the inflamed membranes and kills the germ.

Of all known drugs, creosote is recognized by the medical fraternity as the greatest healing agency for the treatment of chronic coughs and colds and other forms of throat and lung troubles. Creomulsion contains, in addition to creosote, other healing elements which soothe and heal the inflamed membranes and stop the irritation and inflammation, while the creosote goes on to the stomach, is absorbed into the blood, attacks the seat of the trouble and destroys the germ that lead to consumption.

Creomulsion is guaranteed satisfactory in the treatment of chronic coughs and colds, bronchial asthma, catarrhal bronchitis and other forms of throat and lung diseases, and is excellent for building up the system after colds or the flu. Money refunded if any cough or cold, no matter of how long standing, is not relieved after taking according to directions. Ask your druggist. Creomulsion Co., Atlanta, Ga. (Adv.)

JEWETT CITY

A Providence paper contains the picture of Leprelet M. Logee, who is 99, and who claims to be the oldest member of the Masonic fraternity in point of age, in the world. He was raised in Mt. Vernon Lodge, Jewett City in 1872, and took his Royal Arch degree in Franklin Chapter at Norwich. He demitted to Granite Lodge at Whitinsville, where he still retains membership. His home is in Central Falls. He has retained his faculties to a remarkable degree. He specialized upon textile machinery and declares there are hundreds of mules in different sections of the country that were installed under his direction. He retired from active business in 1884.

One hundred and one years ago Peleg Hunt, Jacob Howe and Thomas Hutchins, of Norwich, signed a notice to the effect that ceremony and religious exercises for laying the cornerstone of the new Methodist chapel about to be erected in the vicinity of the Falls would be held on a certain Sunday. The members of Somerset lodge and neighboring lodges went in a procession to this event.

Miss Stratton, the Home Bureau agent is to conduct a class in basketry today (Thursday) at the home of Mrs. W. A. Richardson. These classes are held under the auspices of the Extension service of the Farm and Home Bureau.

Church Family Night is to be observed at the Methodist church Friday evening when supper will be served at 6.30. A concert will be given following the supper. The budget of the church for the conference year will be arranged for during the evening.

Mrs. J. Edw. Newton of New Haven is at her sister's, Mrs. F. E. Robinson's. They go to Holyoke on Friday to celebrate their father's birthday, at his son's home.

Dr. Bolin, a Chautauqua representative was in town this week. He spoke very highly of the Apollo Duo, who are to give an entertainment for the benefit of the American Legion soon. He stated that he had heard their concert, and it was very fine.

The meeting of the Congregational Missionary society was held at Mrs. G. H. Jennings' home Wednesday afternoon. Letters from southern schools were read, and Mrs. Jennings read a chapter from the Study book. Lenten offering envelopes were distributed.

NEW LONDON STARTS CLEAN-UP OF WOMEN UNDER SUSPICION

(Special to The Bulletin.)

New London, March 11.—New London is making what appears to be a clean-up of women on the streets who have not the visible means of support which the police think they should display. On the 3.45 train this morning the wife of an ensign in the service of Uncle Sam was taken into custody at the request of her husband and was put aboard the Boston train on her way to Bath, Me. She was brought here in good faith by her husband, but she got too gay soon after she arrived and her conduct was such as the husband would not condone. He took the best course he could have taken and acquainted the police with her conduct. Patrolman Murphy picked her out late last night with a sailor and detained her at the police station. Then her husband was notified and the trick was done. Judge Prince in sentencing a woman of lewd and lascivious character to jail this morning notified her that this town could get along without her and told her to leave when she had completed her sentence. She, too, was the wife of a sailor at the submarine base. There are others on the police list for observance and they are likely to be treated as the women mentioned have been dealt with.

Policewoman Jane Cassidy and Patrolman William Babcock went to the home of Mrs. William Coman, on Cedar street this evening and brought away three children of Mrs. Coman, who were placed with a relative on Mountain avenue. Mrs. Coman is now in a hospital for treatment. She was deserted by her husband some time ago. Arlene Harris was found in the house and she was taken into custody. She is a deserted wife of a sailor who did not live with her long after she married him. She has a small child. The Harris woman is but 19 and it is probable that she will be presented in the police court for lewdness and lascivious carriage. The Coman place is where McManus and two companions took and hid their clothing plunder when they robbed the Goodman store on Church street about six weeks ago. So the indications are that this place will be cleaned up also.

Members of the city council were in session this evening in the municipal building considering what appropriations will be needed for the fiscal year. Expenses are mounting in New London so there will be a task before the councilors to make the expenses come within the receipts during the year. There are matters that the councilors would like to see accomplished of the improvements which the city needs. It is agreed that the best bit of money the city would spend would be for the laying of permanent pavement on several of the most traveled streets, doing a section each year for a number of years. On the streets that have been treated in a permanent way the expense of maintenance has been very little. The original cost is considerable, but the money that is saved in repairs is very great. Each year there is discussion of this subject, but the council has failed to provide the money to carry on the work. The authority has been obtained to issue city improvement bonds now and some of these may be put on the market and their avails used for the putting in of roadways that will last for many years. The practice of putting loam on streets that is washed away each winter is a waste of money as is the clearing of gutters every spring. The gutters are abolished on the paved streets and the expense of clearing them is gotten rid of.

Mr. and Mrs. Roger Dennis, married recently in Washington, D. C., have concluded their wedding journey and are now making their home with Mr. Dennis' mother, Mrs. Ella Dennis, 50 Colman street. Mr. Dennis is employed by the water and sewer department. His bride was Miss Edith Wood, of Pasadena, Cal., a former resident of New London.

Frederick W. Mercer is confined to his home, 46 Huntington street, as the result of a severe cold from which he was suffering several days before he was ordered by a physician to take to his bed.

Alex Steinberg has been appointed administrator of the estate of George Leybovitch and has qualified.

J. Watchinsky, proprietor of a grocery store, 20 Howard street, reported to the police tonight that his place of business was entered by a thief last night and that a quantity of cigarettes, cigars and tobacco, was stolen. Watchinsky stated that he did not discover the break until this evening when he found that a quantity of the stock had been stolen. It is believed that entrance to the store was gained by means of a rear window that was left unfastened.

Robert Finn, Harold Burgess and Mrs. Grace Burgess were out for a good time yesterday. They possibly had it, but their fun was ended when the police received a complaint that Burgess had been relieved of $3 and a pair of gloves, in a Bank street place, during the time the trio was together. Finn seems to have been the fellow who personally conducted the outing. Burgess was discharged from the United States army yesterday and was intending to go to Waterbury, where he has relatives and where he was to seek work, but he got into the Army and Navy hotel in the Neptune building and there met Finn, who has the reputation of picking up fellows who are an "easy mark." He found Burgess to be that sort so he proposed that Burgess should meet a female friend and that he should buy some booze, that they might have a good time. Burgess was agreeable. He gave Finn a five spot with which to procure the booze and then took him to meet Mrs. Grace Burgess, who is the wife of a sailor at the submarine base. On introduction, it seemed strange that the woman should bear the same name that attached to the soldier. But that didn't matter to either and they formed an acquaintance that led to all the trouble and which took them to jail today. The gang went to Riverside park where they are charged with an offense against the laws of the state. They admitted their offense and Burgess declared that the woman got money that belonged to him and she admitted the charge made against her. She was committed to jail for three months and was ordered to leave the city when she had served that time. Finn was sent up for a month, he drawing the shorter sentence because his health is not of the rugged sort. He was gassed during the war and still feels the effect of that experience. Burgess, the soldier, was fined $25 and was told to get on the road for Waterbury without delay.

Theodore Reheiser, a young man with a police record that is too long for one of his years, was fined $10 for intoxication. He attempted to make a sleeping place on the veranda of the Catholic church rectory yesterday, but he was not allowed to do that. The police were called to provide a sleeping place for Reheiser. They did this and he was in the police court this morning. Reheiser declared that he has been employed as an oiler on a steamer but he lubricated with whiskey yesterday and used so much of the exhilarator that he became drunk and did not know what he was doing. That was cause enough to draw the fine that came to him. He was also notified that he was altogether a too frequent patron of the court and was told that when he came again he would be given free board for awhile.

The Standard Oil company of New York, which recently acquired of Edward T., William P., and Arthur L. Leary, a house and lot on Lewis street, will have erected upon the site, a garage for the storage of automobiles of the company. Plans for the new structure are already being prepared.

Mrs. Frank E. Bray, wife of the engineer of Lawrence hospital, injured last Saturday night when the automobile in which they were riding on Montauk avenue, was struck by a car owned and driven by William B. Waterman, was able to leave the institution today and return to her home. Mr. Bray will be under treatment several weeks at the hospital and his condition was reported this afternoon as being unchanged.

Engleburt J. Sauter, of Masonic street, well known insurance agent, is a patient at Lawrence hospital, having been removed to the institution this week, threatened with typhoid fever and brain trouble. Mr. Sauter has been prominent before the meetings of the city council since the present form of city manager form of government was put into operation here and he has severely criticized the acts of the city council, in some instances characterizing the doings of that body as illegal and not in accordance with the provisions of the city charter. He has also been zealous in his endeavors to prevent the youths and girls of tender years from falling into ways of vice and it is understood that these activities have caused him to develop the affection of the brain.

At a meeting of Brainard lodge last night the action of the Brainard Lodge Masonic Corporation, in purchasing the residence of Frederick W. Mercer as a site for a new home for the lodge, was approved. It developed also that the purchase price was $25,000 and Mr. Mercer donated $10,000 toward the purchase of the house.

Thomas Phillips, of Waterford; Miss Minnie Waterman, Huntington street; Mrs. John Walsh, Westerly; and Mrs. Arthur Green and infant son, of Cutler street, patients at the Lawrence-Memorial Associated hospital, were dismissed today.

Mr. and Mrs. Edmund E. Darrow are spending a few days in New York.

The funeral of Isabelle, wife of Louis Catanzaro, was held this morning at 9 o'clock at St. Mary's Star of the Sea church and was attended by many mourners. A mass of requiem was celebrated by Rev. Raymond O'Callahan. The bearers were Joseph Gaetano, Salvatore Caracausa, Albert Gaetano, George Keenan, Samuel Rose and Joseph Gaetano. Burial was in St. Mary's cemetery.

Funeral services for Lee, the 3-months-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Daniel Creighton, of Graniteville, Waterford, were held this afternoon at 2 o'clock at the residence of the child's parents, Rev. George H. Strouse, of Jordan, officiating. Burial was in Jordan cemetery.

F. M. Salmon, of 204 Beechwood avenue, Bridgeport, communicated with the New London police today in the belief that he would be able to obtain information which he sought concerning Mrs. Anna Cheapard. Salmon stated that it was his understanding that Mrs. Cheapard had been ordered to leave the city two or three years ago and he desired her police court record. Mrs. Cheapard was never arrested here and she is not known to the police.

Mrs. George Shipman, of Bank street, is seriously ill at the military hospital, Fort Wright, Fishers Island. Mrs. Shipman was taken ill a few days ago while visiting her son-in-law and daughter, Staff Serg. and Mrs. Daniel Hatfield.

Mrs. Arthur L. Smith has returned to her home, 38 School street, after having attended the funeral in Ossining, N. Y., of her brother, Alonzo Beatty.

Captain Edward R. Geer, Joseph J. Gaffney and Frank Geer were among the New Londoners who attended the annual automobile show in Boston today.

Charles Crociocerria, 64 Howard street, complained to the police late this afternoon that a thief had stolen his bicycle from the yard.

Frank Drozd, 362 Main street, lodged complaint with the police this afternoon that boys had entered his premises and had seriously damaged his automobile. Drozd stated that the damage was perpetrated yesterday, although he did not discover it until this afternoon. Sergeant John Cavanaugh rounded up five youths residing in the vicinity of the Drozd home, who have acknowledged their guilt. The boys were turned over to the custody of Probation Officer Richard W. Mansfield and will be in the juvenile court the latter part of the week.

Miss Ellen Greenman, of Winthrop street, and Mrs. Samuel Glater and infant son, Belden street, patients at Home Memorial hospital, were able to return to their respective homes today.

Funeral services for Annie, widow of Joseph Fitch, were held this afternoon at 1 o'clock at 48 Shapley street. Rev. George H. Strouse, pastor of the Jordan Baptist church, officiated. Burial was in Great Neck cemetery, Waterford.

Lee Creighton, two months old son of Mr. and Mrs. Daniel Driscoll, Graniteville, Waterford, died at the residence of the child's parents yesterday.

CORONER BEGINS INQUEST IN MACKENZIE FATALITY

(Special to The Bulletin)

New London, March 11.—At the police station in Groton this forenoon Coroner Jeremiah J. Desmond, of Norwich, conducted an inquest into the recent death of Miss C. Isabelle MacKenzie, daughter of Mrs. Catherine MacKenzie, 64 Latham street, Groton, whose demise resulted from a fractured skull, following Miss MacKenzie being struck by an automobile, owned and driven by Robert C. Dodge, a chief petty officer, stationed at the submarine base, on Thames street, Groton. The inquest occupied but about an hour and during that time the witnesses interrogated were Dodge, Captain Andrew F. McCarthy, Groton police department; Everett C. Thompson, Allyn's Point and Orion C. Ford, the last named having offered to bring Miss MacKenzie to New London in his machine and it was while walking towards Ford's car that the young woman was struck. It will be several days before Coroner Desmond renders his finding. In the meantime Dodge is at liberty on bail of $500 for a hearing in the Groton town court on a charge of manslaughter.

HAVE INVESTIGATED MURDER OF SEVERAL OSAGE INDIANS

Washington, March 11.—The department of justice has practically completed an investigation into the murder of several wealthy Osage Indians in Oklahoma, apparently committed by persons who sought to obtain possession of the estates of their victims.

Officials here would not disclose what cases are involved, nor go into details regarding the evidence found.

FINANCIAL AND COMMERCIAL

MARKET WAS UNSETTLED

New York, March 11.—Heavy liquidation of the St. Paul issues, which sold at their lowest prices in history on the widespread circulation of unconfirmed rumors that a reorganization of the railroad was inevitable because of its reported inability to meet heavy maturities next June, combined with another sharp break in wheat prices, unsettled today's stock market. The extreme declines in the active issues ranged from 1 to 5 points, with a few specialties breaking ten points or more. Heavy buying of the steels and equipments just before the close brought about a partial recovery.

St. Paul common sold as low as 8 1-2, closing 1 point above that figure for a net loss of 2 3-4 points o nthe day. The preferred showed a net loss of 2 3-4 at 17 1-4 after selling as low as 16. Officials of the railroad and its bankers reported that there was nothing new in the situation, pending the report of the engineers who recently made a physical examination of the road's property.

Speculative uneasiness over the St. Paul situation was counteracted to some extent by other favorable railroad news. This included the announcement that the Rock Island railroad had acquired a controlling stock interest in the St. Louis-Southwestern, and the declaration of a cash payment of $5 a share on the common stock of the Western Pacific. Both of these announcements took "the Street" by surprise.

St. Louis-Southwestern preferred touched 75 3-4, the highest price since 1912 and then slipped back to 73 1-2 for a net gain of 1 1-2 points, and the common closed 2 3-4 points higher at 31. Western Pacific common soared 16 points to 55, and the preferred touched par, the highest prices since the reorganization of the property ten years ago.

Heavy selling of the copper stock in the late trading, apparently based on the recent easing of red metal prices, sent more than a dozen issues to new low prices for the year. The list included American Zinc and Lead common and preferred, Anaconda, Calumet and Hecla, Cerro De Pasco, Chile, Chino, Magma, Ray and Federal mining and Smelting common and preferred.

Ludlum Steel broke nearly 8 points on the publication of reports that the "insiders" had relinquished control of the property. Weakness also was shown by American Sumatra Tobacco preferred, the commercial solvents issues, Goodyear preferred, Iron Products, Loelede Gas and Wilson preferred, all of which closed 2 to nearly 10 points lower. American Woolen also touched a new low price for the year at 47 1-4 and then rallied to 48 3-4, where it was off one point on the day.

The so-called pivotal industrials were strongly supported during the afternoon. American Can closed 1 1-2 points higher at 177 after selling as low as 175 3-4. Baldwin rallied from a low of 133 3-4 to 135 1-2, where it was up one point on the day. United States Steel common closed fractionally higher at 123 1-4. General Electric soared 6 1-3 points to 265. Independent strength also was shown by American Locomotive, American Safety Razor, Baltimore and Ohio, Denver, Rio Grande Western preferred, Otis Elevator(Republic Steel and Savage Arms, all of which closed 2 to 4 points higher.

Call money opened at 4 1-2 per cent. and then eased to 4, in reflection of the heavy accumulation of funds in this center in anticipation of income tax payments. Time money and commercial paper markets were quiet with no change in rates.

Foreign exchange rates fluctuated over a rather wide range but closed generally unchanged on the day. Demand sterling ruled around $4.77 and French francs were quoted around 5.10 cents. Japanese yen touched a new high on the movement at 40 5-8 cents.

shadowed all other developments in today's bond market. Losses ranging from 1 to 8 points were recorded by the road's active issues as more than 3,600,000 worth of the bonds were thrown on the market.

Selling pressure was concentrated mainly against the four per cent. issue maturing this year, driving these obligations at one time down more than ten points to a record low level at 53. They closed at 55 1-2. Extreme declines of about 5 points each also were registered by the convertible 4 1-2's and 5's and refunding 4 1-2's but they regained some of their losses before the close.

Although Wall Street was flooded with reports regarding drastic measures which might be adopted by the road to settle the financial difficulties which it faces in the approaching maturity of $43,000,000 bonds, St. Paul officials and bankers refused to comment on them, and the increasing uncertainty accentuated the decline.

Unsettled by the weakness of the St. Paul group, the market generally displayed reactionary tone. Little activity developed in other sections, but selling of Seaboard, "Katy," Chicago and Alton and Iowa Central liens was evident. Oil company bonds were heavy.

One of the largest railroad issues placed on the market this year, $26,000,000 Pittsburgh, Cincinnati, Chicago and St. Louis railroad 50 year 5's, will be offered tomorrow by Kuhn, Loeb and Company at a price of 99 to yield 5.06 per cent. The road, which is leased to the Pennsylvania, will use the proceeds to repay the United States government and the parent company for capital expenditures and to retire prior lien obligations. Other financing tomorrow will include $5,000,000 Electric Power Corporation of Germany 6 1-2 per cent. bonds.

CHICAGO GRAIN MARKET

Chicago, March 11.—Wheat crashed down 7 1-2 cents a bushel today to $1.80 1-4, May delivery. An unexpected setback in prices at Liverpool together with reports that offerings there were much in excess of immediate demand was largely responsible for the big break in values here. Chicago closing prices on wheat were unsettled, 3 to 5 7-8c. New lower, May 1.81 7-8 to 1.82 and July $1.60 1-4 to 1.60 1-8. Corn finished 1 1-2 to 1 3-4c down, oats 5-8 to 1c off, and provisions at 7 to 27c decline.

The selling side had what was described as a running start in the wheat pit, and were quick to take full advantage of the circumstance.

It was only in the last hour of the day that the wheat market developed power to recover with any degree of permanence. One of the factors in the late rally was an opinion from a prominent trader that the United States is already on a domestic basis concerning breadstuff supplies. He contended that much wheat still in the United States has already been sold for export and that any fresh export purchasing must be taken from the normal reserve carry-over.

Corn and oats sagged owing to sympathy with wheat.

Provisions were responsive to weakness both of grain and hogs.

CURB MARKET

New York, March 11.—Reactionary tendencies prevailed in today's curb market. Oils, however, displayed a firmer tone as result of an advance in Wyoming crude prics and reports that the Standard Oil Company of Indiana was negotiating for the Latin-American holdings of the Pan-American Petroleum & Transport company. Standard of Indiana touched 65 1-2 and then slipped back to 64 5-8. For a small fractional gain on the day. Standard of New York closed a point higher at 45 1-4.

Further unsettlement was noted among the radio shares, Hazeltine and Charles Freshman each dropping about a point and most of the others yielding fractionally.

Trading in the public utilities was quiet but a sagging price tendency was noted, Commonwealth and Lehigh Power Securities each dropping more than a point.

Revival of speculative activity in the Frank Shattuck Company, which closed 1 1-2 points higher was the feature of the industrial list. Durant Motors closed unchanged at 19 1-2 after fluctuating between 18 1-2 and 20 3-8. Kelvinator lost about a point but Car Lighting and Power held firm around its recent high levels.

COTTON

KILLS CATARRH GERM IN THREE MINUTES

Chronic catarrh, no matter how bad, and cases of bronchial asthma now yield instantly to the amazing discovery of a French scientist. This drugless method called Lavex kills the germ in three minutes, yet is positively harmless to the most delicate tissues. Your head and lungs are cleared like magic. Sufferers are relieved in a single night.

To prove it and to introduce Lavex to a million sufferers in one month, I offer to send a treatment free and postpaid to anyone who will write for it. No obligation. No cost. If it cures you, you can repay the favor by telling your friends—if not, the loss is mine. No matter what you have tried, just send me your name and address for this generous free treatment and prove that you can be rid of catarrh.

SAFE FOR CHILDREN

Mothers everywhere demand a reliable cough remedy free from injurious narcotics. Supplying this demand for fifty years made Foley's Honey and Tar Compound one of the largest selling cough medicines in the world. Children like it. "My little boy had a very bad cough, and after he used Foley's Honey and Tar Compound he got relief at once," writes Mrs. Van Belle, Penroy, Moat. Refuse substitutes. Lee & Osgood Co.

LEGAL NOTICES

AT A COURT OF PROBATE HELD at Bozrah, within and for the District of Bozrah, on the 10th day of March, A. D. 1925.
Present, WAREHAM W. BENTLEY, Judge
Estate of E. Judson Miner, late of Bozrah in said District, deceased. The Administratrix, d. b. n., appeared in Court and filed a written application alleging that said estate is now in settlement in said Court and praying for an order to sell certain real estate belonging to said estate, fully described in said application.
Whereupon, it is ordered, That said application be heard and determined at the probate court room in the town of Bozrah, in said District, on the 18th day of March, 1925, at 2 o'clock p. m., and that notice of the pendency of said application, and of said hearing thereon, be given by the publication of this order once in some newspaper having a circulation in said District, at least three days prior to the date of said hearing, and that return be made to the court.
WAREHAM W. BENTLEY, Judge

AT A COURT OF PROBATE HELD at Norwich, within and for the District of Norwich, on the 10th day of March, A. D. 1925.
Present, NELSON J. AYLING, Judge.
Estate of Emma E. Downer, late of Norwich, in said District, deceased. Ada F. Lathrop of Norwich, Conn., appeared in court and filed a petition praying, for the reasons therein set forth, that administration be granted upon the estate of said deceased, alleged to be intestate.
Whereupon, it is ordered, that said petition be heard and determined at the Probate Court Room in the City of Norwich, in said District, on the 14th day of March, A. D. 1925, at 10 o'clock in the forenoon, and that notice of the pendency of said petition, and of said hearing thereon, be given by the publication of this order one time in some newspaper having a circulation in said District at least two days prior to the date of said hearing and that return be made to this Court.
NELSON J. AYLING, Judge
Attest, HELEN M. DRESCHER, Clerk

WANT INCREASE IN COMPENSATION MAXIMUM

Changes in the state workmen's compensation act to make the maximum wage for those eligible for compensation $34 a week instead of $18, providing compensation for loss of smell or hearing, reducing the retroactive period from four to three weeks and making the act applicable to employers of three instead of five persons are proposed in a bill heard Tuesday by the legislative judiciary committee at Hartford.

C. J. Danaher of Meriden, representing the Connecticut Federation of Labor, appeared for the bill, being supported by many trade union representatives. Former Compensation Commissioner George E. Chandler of the First District, favored some provisions and opposed others, and Ralph O. Wells, representing the Connecticut Manufacturers' Association and A. Winter, representing the Bridgeport Manufacturers' association, opposed all the changes.

After Mr. Chandler had opposed the addition of loss of smell and hearing, that proposed amendment to the law was withdrawn by Mr. Danaher.

Mr. Danaher praised the state compensation act as the best in the United States and urged the amendments as means for making it more nearly perfect. He pointed out that Mr. Wells, "usually here to shove a red hot iron through the bars to hear somebody growl," agreed that the present law was a good one.

Most of the dissension centered on the reduction of the employers' limit from five to three, the claim being made by opponents that it would bring within the act farmers and many professional men who had defeated the act previous to 1913 because provision was not made to exempt them from its provisions.

Eastern Connecticut Health

During the week ending March 7th Norwich reported two cases of scarlet fever according to the weekly morbidity report issued by the state department of health. Communicable diseases reported from towns in eastern Connecticut during the week follow:

Diphtheria—Rockville, Tolland and Putnam, 1 each.

Whooping cough—Groton 2.

WEATHER Conditions

The disturbance that was over Hudson Bay Tuesday night is now north of Newfoundland, with a trough extending southwestward through the North Atlantic and middle Atlantic states.

During the last 24 hours, showers have occurred in the Ohio valley, and at scattered points in the north Atlantic states. It has become warmer along the middle Atlantic coast. Colder weather has overspread the lower lake region and the Ohio Valley. The highest temperatures of record this early in the season are reported from Norfolk, Raleigh, Montgomery and Macon.

The outlook is for unsettled weather with showers on Thursday in portions of the east Gulf and south Atlantic states. Elsewhere east of the Mississippi river, the weather will be generally fair Thursday and Friday. It will be colder on Thursday in the north Atlantic states.

Winds

North of Sandy Hook—Strong south east and west; weather partly overcast with showers tonight; fair on Thursday.

BACKUS HOSPITAL HAD 1,711
PATIENTS ADMITTED IN THE YEAR

A total of 1,711 patients admitted, which was an increase of over 20 per cent in the past year, a total in current expenses of $90,035.07, the announcement of a bequest of $7,500 from the late Mrs. Gertrude Hakes Hale, and good progress being made on the new nurses' home are among the interesting items in the 21st annual report of the W. W. Backus hospital, which has just been issued.

Treasurer Report

The report of Secretary F. W. Lester follows:

Number of meetings held	16
Average number of members present	4
Number of patients treated in general ward	1113
Number of patients treated in private rooms	598
Number of births	163
Largest number of patients in hospital at one time	81
Daily average	63
Average cost per patient per week	$27.86
Number of ambulance calls	365

The total number of patients admitted, 1711, shows an increase over the previous year of 20 per cent.

At the last annual meeting of the corporators it was voted that a tablet in memory of William A. Slater be placed in the hospital. This tablet has been procured and placed on the wall near the main entrance.

During the past year we have sustained a great loss in the death of Dr. Patrick Cassidy, the last of the original incorporators. In the establishment of the hospital he took an active and prominent part and his services for many years were invaluable.

Formal notice has been received that $7,500 had been bequeathed to the hospital under the will of Mrs. Gertrude Hakes Gale. Grateful acknowledgment is also made of cash gifts from the hospital committee of the United Congregational church, Helping Hands Society of the First Spiritual union, Dr. James J. Donohue, Dr. John W. Callahan, the Nurses' Holiday fund, the Norwich Medical society, James L. Case, two grateful patients, and the Christmas Holiday fund raised by Mrs. Edmund W. Perkins, chairman.

This report would not be complete without some reference to the new nurses' home now in process of construction.

As soon as our campaign for additional hospital funds was closed, the executive committee took up the problem of increased accommodation for nurses and patients, a problem which had been forcing itself upon their attention for several years. Dr. S. S. Goldwater, director of Mt. Sinai hospital, New York, a recognized authority in such matters, was engaged as consulting architect and made a careful study of our entire hospital plant. Messrs. Cudworth & Thompson were employed as local architects. As a result of many conferences with our architects, members of the hospital corporation, our medical and hospital staffs, ladies' auxiliary board and graduate and pupil nurses, plans and specifications for a new nurses' home were prepared and submitted to contractors for bids. The general contract was awarded to the Peck-McWilliams company of this city, as the lowest bidders. Sub-contracts were made with the Norwich Electric company and with Williams Bros. of Norwich. We acknowledge the generous co-operation of Southern New England Telephone company and the City Gas and Electrical department in new work necessitated by our new construction.

Our new nurses' home is now well advanced in its construction. In architecture and material it is designed to harmonize with our other hospital buildings. When completed, it will accommodate about 50 nurses. On the basement floor there is located a large classroom, demonstration room, dining rooms and diet kitchen, sewing room and laundry with store rooms and rooms for linen and trunks. Upon the main entrance floor there will be a large and most attractive living and reception room and at the right of the entrance, the matron's office and suite. The rooms for the superintendent of nurses will be located on the floor above, over the main entrance. Suitable provision will be made for special graduate nurses. Sun porches are constructed for each floor, the one on the first floor being connected with the reception room. A subway will connect the home with other hospital buildings.

The general appearance and location of the new home has elicited much favorable and enthusiastic comment. We believe that upon its completion our hospital will have one of the most beautiful and practical hospital homes for nurses to be found in Connecticut.

As soon as this building is finished the executive committee contemplate some substantial changes and improvements in other hospital buildings. The most urgent needs appear to be in connection with our laboratory and maternity department. Additional private rooms for patients are also greatly needed. Our available funds will not enable us to do as much as we would like to do. In this connection it must be remembered that the work done in our hospital has nearly doubled in the last ten years. Its original endowment, sufficient when the hospital was founded, has not been increased in proportion to the demand for its service. We desire to emphasize the fact that our hospital, like other general hospitals of its class, is a charitable organization and must depend largely upon an increase of endowment by gift and legacy for its maintenance. The quality and extent of the service which the Backus hospital will render to this community in the years to come, will be determined by the community itself which it undertakes to serve.

Ladies' Advisory Board.

The members of our board inspect the hospital frequently, and have found things as usual, neat and orderly. We greatly appreciate the work accomplished, and things contributed by the Women's auxiliary and thank them for their hearty co-operation; also Miss Dowd for the cheerful and willing way in which she did double duty during the absence of the superintendent.

We have suffered a great loss in the death of Mrs. Charles W. Gale, and miss her kindly interest, and generous help. The appointment of Mrs. Archibald Mitchell, Jr., is most gratifying and a guaranty of efficient co-operation in our work of the hospital.

Report of Supt. Hutchins.

The report of F. Leon Hutchins follows:

Number of patients in hospital Oct. 1st, 1923, 50. Admitted during the year 1711. Total, 1761. Males, 886 Females, 875. Total, 1711.

Discharged—Well, 1083; improved 291; not improved, 34; not treated, 4; born, 163; remaining in hospital, 54; highest number any one day, 81; lowest number any one day, 39; daily average, 63; number of weeks occupied, 2453 3-7; average cost per day, $3.98; ambulance calls, 365.

Out-Patient Department.

For diseases of the Eye and Ear:

Number of patients treated	46
Number of visits made	62
Number of patients furnished glasses	37

The current expenses for the year, including all items, amount to $90,035.07.

School of Nursing.

Kathleen A. Dowd, superintendent training school, reports:

One hundred and fifty-seven nurses have received diplomas from the trustees since the organization of the school, October, 1893.

This year the commencement exercises were held on June 3rd at the H. H. Osgood Memorial Parish house. In the absence of the president of the hospital board, Henry A. Tirrell, Charles A. Saxton, member of the board of corporators presided and presented the nine members of the graduating class their diplomas. Rev. William A. Keefe, rector of St. Mary's Memorial church, also a member of the board of corporators delivered the address. Class pins and companion cases were presented by Judge Arthur F. Libby.

Superintendent of nurses, 1; assistant superintendent of nurses, 1; instructors, 1; night supervisor 1; dietitian, 1; students, 20; students in preliminary course, 8; members of graduating class, completing their course, 6; total 39.

Ability for further growth either in the size of the classes or in the extension of the curriculum is just now limited by inadequate housing conditions and the congestion in the class rooms. The future for the housing, and teaching the nurses is most encouraging for we hope to move to our beautiful new residence early in the spring of 1925.

In conformity with the approved shortening of the course, and beginning with the fall term of the year the period of training will be two years and four months instead of the three full years heretofore prescribed. The monthly allowance for expenses incident to the course will be $10.00 for the first year and 12 for the second year.

The death of Dr. Patrick Cassidy removed one of the most faithful friends of the training school and we hereby express our sincere sorrow for his loss.

Our plans for the coming year are as yet not completed, but we are glad to state that Miss Mildred Perkins, graduate of the Massachusetts General hospital, has been instructress of nurse since March 17, 1924, giving better correlation of practical experience with the theory taught.

Few changes have occurred on the nursing staff.

Evelyn M. Egan, R. N., graduate of the Barnett Memorial hospital, Paterson, N. J., anaesthetist, resigned, position open.

Florence E. Wakefield, R. N., William W. Backus hospital, 1916, on sick leave. For nearly eleven years as student, night supervisor, and operating room supervisor, Miss Wakefield has served the hospital enthusiastically and efficiently. She has been succeeded for surgical supervisor by Ruth E. Morgan, graduate of the William W. Backus hospital, 1924.

During the year there have been many social activities for the nurses. Gifts of tickets to lectures and concerts have been greatly appreciated, also informal dances and masquerades for nurses. To the members of the Rotary club and the Lions club, for their generous donations of tickets, ws are most grateful.

It is hoped that during the coming year, the training school will show greater progress along educational lines and better service to the hospital and the community.

In closing it is a pleasure to pay tribute to the volunteer lecturers given by the medical and surgical staff. We thank them for their co-operation.

Dr. F. L. Warney, resident physician, has been, as in the past two years, our faithful instructor in anatomy and physiology, biology, hygiene and sanitation and lecturer in urinalysis. This has been a wonderful opportunity for the student nurses, and we are most grateful.

We would find most useful a projectoscope and silver screen for the class room.

Our Alumnae association have been most interested in the training school. They have given subscriptions to the American Journal of Nursing and the Public Health Nurse.

My grateful appreciation is extended to the board and the entire hospital staff for their kind assistance during the year.

Women's Auxiliary.

An intensive house to house canvass for memberships of one dollar a year and twenty-five dollars for life membership, netted 1,251 members 21 of which are life members.

The proceeds realized from life memberships, amounting to $525 have been reserved and placed at interest in a Savings bank.

A hospital visitation committee has arranged a schedule of visiting dates, whereby a representative of some church in the city, visits the hospital during each week in the year.

A religious service committee has provided for a service in the hospital each Sunday during the year.

Flowers are carried to the corridors and wards weekly to add cheer and attractiveness for the patients and their friends.

Subscriptions have been received for several magazines, and the committee in charge have distributed a large number of magazines, collected from all points of the city, as well as picture sections of Sunday papers, which seem always to please the patient who may have little courage to read.

Suburban committees in addition to the solicitation of members have been instrumental in securing valuable donations.

The nurses' recreation committee endeavors to provide entertainment and relaxation for the nurses during their free hours, and emphasize to them the fact that the people outside are interested in their welfare.

The press has been most generous in affording publicity, and through its columns we have been able to keep the members of the auxiliary and the public who might be interested, informed upon hospital news items.

The donation committee has collected suitable clothing that may be furnished to patients upon discharge, requiring such consideration; also old linen, cotton, empty jars, fresh fruits, canned fruits and jellies. Up to date, approximately 100 pounds of old linen and cotton, and over 1,000 jars of jelly, marmalade, honey, pickles, grape juice and fruits have been delivered to the store-room at the hospital.

They also provide home-made cake for all holiday occasions and have sent personal acknowledgment to more than 250 individuals who have contributed to this department.

A suitable fund is provided the holiday committee to spend upon decorations, Christmas gifts, ice cream, turkey, and in any way they believe will make happier for the patients, their stay in the hospital over holidays.

The committee on finance have charge of the raising of funds apart from membership fees. They are also the channel through which expenditures approved by the executive committee are made.

They have turned into the general treasury $212.40, this amount being realized from a bridge, whist and mah jongg party, conducted by them in the state armory on Nov. 7th. Arrangements are being made for a much larger benefit affair to take place during the Christmas holidays.

The secretary has acknowledged more than 180 gifts made directly to the hospital during the past eight months.

The budget consists of the following amounts: President $50, secretary $30, treasurer $15, membership committee $20, finance committee $5, hospital visitation committee $30, holiday committee $250, religious service committee $5, suburban committee $5, publicity committee $15, donation committee $50, flower committee $75, nurses' recreation committee $150, literature committee $15. Total $670.

GREAT BRITAIN REJECTS GENEVA PEACE PROTOCOL

Austen Chamberlain, British Secretary for Foreign Affairs, Has Informed the Council of the League of Nations That Great Britain Stands Rigidly Against Compulsory Arbitration of All Disputes—Announcement is Regarded as a Setback For International Disarmament.

Geneva, March 12—(By the A. P.)—That international disarmament has received a setback in the impression shining forth like some sinister beacon at Geneva tonight as a sequel to today's memorable meeting of the council of the league of nations, when England and all her dominions, except Ireland, rejected the Geneva peace protocol.

Dr. Eduard Benes, the Czechoslavakian foreign minister, who is the official reporter of the council on the protocol, informed the Associated Press tonight that he will introduce a resolution tomorrow that the entire problem of international peace and disarmament be referred to the next assembly of the league. This examination by the assembly he declared, should naturally include a study of Mr. Chamberlain's recommendation today that the league covenant be supplemented by special defensive treaties between nations whose differences might lead to a renewal of war, treaties whose sole object would be the maintenance of unbroken peace.

Great Britain today not only threw the protocol overboard, but declared it was hopeless to try to rescue it with the idea of successful revision. Austen Chamberlain, the British secretary for foreign affairs, stood rigidly against compulsory arbitration of all disputes, which is one of the main features of the protocol, and, alluding to the immigration issue, which was indirectly raised by Japan in connection with the protocol, asserted that British objections to compulsory arbitration had been increased because the protocol had weakened those league covenant stipulations which were designed to prevent interference by the league in matters of domestic jurisdiction.

He condemned the protocol because it destroyed the balance and spirit of the covenant and because, instead of emphasizing friendly cooperation, it stressed too much the preservation of peace by organizing for war on the largest scale.

Of the other countries represented on the council, France stood stolidly by the covenant in a defensive address by M. Briand, yet offered a kind of welcome to Mr. Chamberlain's substitute suggestion of special treaties.

M. Briand declared that a system of alliances was made possible under the protocol. If it were the best means of assuring pace, he affirmed, then well and good. Alluding to France's friends, like Poland and Czecho-Slovakia, he insisted that such a system must never cast aside certain nations, who also had the right to be protected against war.

Italy, through Vittorio Scioloia, former foreign minister, came out flatly for Mr. Chamberlain's proposal of special treaties, while Viscount Ishii, for Japan, announced that Tokio had not completed examination of the protocol but would continue its study sympathetically.

Belgium, represented by Paul Hymans, saw in the British proposal a way to stabilize peace while awaiting attainment of general security. Brazil pledged her support to any scheme of mutual assistance, provided it was general in character. Spain, through Count Quinones de Leon, adopted a similar attitude. Sweden declared that her eventual attitude would be that of the great powers. Uruguay recommended throwing the whole question before the next assembly.

A frequent opinion heard today was that the last league assembly under the leadership of liberals like Ramsay Macdonald and M. Herriot had gone too far in the direction of idealism.

Mr. Chamberlain contended that those fears that keep huge armaments from being have little relation to the military misunderstandings inseparable from international life—misunderstandings with which the league was so admirably fitted to deal. They spring, he said, from deep lying causes of hostility, which for historic or other reasons divide great and powerful states. If these fears exist, he argued, they cannot effectually be removed by even the most perfect method of machinery of inquiry and arbitration.

"For what is feared in such cases," he added, "is not injustice, but war—war deliberately undertaken for purposes of conquest or revenge.

If so, he asked, could there be better ways of allaying fears like these than by adopting some scheme which would prove to all the world that such a war would fail? He then outlined his special treaty idea.

M. Briand illuminated his address, which was mainly tragic, by sparks of wit which caused even Mr. Chamberlain to laugh. He predicted that the United States would one day join the league because of her love of idealism, which the league embodies, and because also a reasonable interpretation of her interests would require it. He lauded the protocol as an instrument which brands war as an international crime, defines aggression and inflicts punishment.

"The league of nations," he said, "cannot afford to go before the world with empty hands after all the terrible events which gave it birth, do not destroy the hope of countries who joined the league believing that at the league would be organized final peace! Let us make no gesture of discouragement. For such would be vastly prejudicial.

After promising that France would study the proposed system of agreements, M. Briand, who had spoken extemporaneously, read a formal statement prepared by the French government, outlining the reason why France had adhered to the protocol. He announced that France was always ready to examine new suggestions, yet remained faithful to the protocol, which she had signed with the object of sparing herself and others in the future. The horrors of war, from which she had suffered so much.

The French government, he went on, insisted that only the adhesion of all countries to a common protocol would influence countries to renounce the struggle of armaments, and he was of the opinion that if the principles of the protocol were abandoned civilization would fall back steadily to decisions by brute force.

Receiving the newspaper representatives tonight, M. Briand issued a warning that the bolsheviki would find a fine argument if all the efforts at Geneva came to nothing, for if fifty five nations were incapable of devising a system of avoiding war the bolsheviki would argue that they alone were capable of insuring world peace.

SIMONS TAKES OATH AS PRESIDENT OF GERMANY

Berlin, March 12—The oath of president of the German republic today was administered to Dr. Walter Simons, former minister of foreign affairs, as successor to the last President Friedrich Ebert.

Shortly afterward Dr. Wilhelm Marx, premier of Prussia, was unanimously nominated as the coalition presidential candidate of the clerical and middle parties in the forthcoming elections. Previously the clerical nomination committee, had voted 19 to 6 in favor of the democrat Dr. Otto Gessler, minister of defense, as the clericals party's candidate.

When the parties of the right—the nationalists, the Bavarian people's party and the economic party—demanded to know the name of the clerical nominee, the clericals asked for an hour's respite. This was refused them by the parties of the right with the threat that unless the names were given they would immediately put up their own candidate. Thereupon the clericals convened on the spot and nominated Dr. Marx. The outlook is considered poor for the coalition candidate, as the German nationalists expect to put up Dr. Karl Jarres, former minister of the interior, as their party candidate.

The decision of the clericals to nominate Dr. Marx came as a surprise to many observers of the political situation. As it was expected they would agree upon Dr. Gessler after the German nationalists and the middle parties had declared his candidacy acceptable. The unexpected nomination of Dr. Marx appears to some of the political leaders as having the appearance of an act of desperation on the part of the clerical party.

HEARING ON SO-CALLED BIRTH CONTROL BILL

Hartford, March 12—Several speakers, headed by Mrs. Margaret Sanger, appeared before the judiciary committee of the general assembly today to speak in favor of the so-called birth control bill. Mrs. Herbert Fisher, representing the Connecticut Council of Catholic Women, spoke against the measure.

The bill before the assembly would amend the law against use of drugs or medicinal articles to prevent conception, allowing such use upon prescription of a duly licensed physician.

"There are two problems which give rise to the birth control idea," said Mrs. Sanger, "namely, pressure of population on means of subsistence and the humanitarian, Christian, or domestic principle of supporting the physically and mentally defective members of the race. If there is room for more people on earth we ought to make sure of the class of persons to be brought into the world.

Dr. James Cooper, medical director of the research bureau of the birth control organization, Rev. Thomas Garth, pastor of St. Bartholomew's church of New York City, Mrs. Thomas Hepburn, of Hartford, Dr. Henry F. Stowell, of Hartford, spoke in favor of the bill.

Mrs. Fisher said that the proponents of the bill had "entirely ignored the ethical and moral side of the question." "I believe if this bill passes you will be lowering the morals of the individuals and degrading the marital relations," she said.

MRS. GRACIE MARRIED IN APRIL LAST YEAR

New York, March 12.—Mrs. Constance Elsie Schack Gracie, widow of Col. Archibald Gracie, U. S. A., the last man saved when the Titanic sank is a bride and not a fiancee, it developed today.

In court at Riverhead, L. I., yesterday where she was defendant and victor in a $20,000 suit, it was announced she was to be married next week at the Colony club to Humberto Aguirre De Urbina, who she said, was connected with the Chilean embassy at Washington.

Search of the Manhattan marriage license records today revealed that Mrs. Gracie and Senor De Urbina had been married April of last year. Although Mrs. Urbina had refused to tell her age in court, it was shown in the marriage license that she claimed 41 as her age. Her husband's age was given as 32. Senor De Urbina gave his occupation as that of "foreign translator," and made no mention of an embassy connection.

The Riverhead suit won by Mrs. Gracie De Urbina was an action for $20,000 brought by an attorney, Hannis Taylor, and concerned a dispute over the estate of her daughter, Mrs. Dunbar Adams.

KILLED IN FALL OR JUMP BEFORE ELEVATED TRAIN

New York, March 12.—Thomas J. McCabe, deputy county clerk in charge of the marriage license bureau in the Bronx, was killed late today when he either fell or jumped before an elevated train of the Third avenue line. McCabe was to have appeared as a witness before the Bronx grand jury tomorrow in connection with the investigation into the alleged issuance of marriage licenses to minors.

Only one man, F. Feinman, witnessed McCabe's death.

Supreme Court Justice Tierney, who ordered the marriage license bureau investigation, said that the inquiry had not been directed at McCabe but was rather a general investigation of the under-age marriage situation in the Bronx.

Contest Election of Rothschild

Paris, March 12.—The election of Baron Maurice De Rothschild, a member of the well known international banking family, to the chamber of deputies, to represent the Hautes Alpes, was invalidated by the first bureau of the chamber today after a lengthy discussion. The question now will go before the chamber for final decision.

CHARGED WITH ILLEGAL POSSESSION OF LIQUOR

Boston, March 12.—Joseph Leiter of Chicago and three employes of his summer home in Beverly were charged on several counts with illegal possession of liquor in indictments reported b ythe federal grand jury today. The indictments give the date of the alleged offenses as Dec. 1 and 2 last, specifying 585 bottles of choice liquors.

Federal prohibition agents on December 2 raided the Beverly Farms estate of Leiter and seized liquor valued at more than $4,000 which they charged had been placed there within two months.

A fortnight before it had been reported that hi-jackers had stolen $50,000 worth of liquors from the estate. Allen J. Harris, a watchman placed there by a private detective agency, was arrested on a charge of airgency, it being alleged that his absence at the time of the theft was prearranged.

Two nights later the hi-jackers were alleged to have paid the estate another visit, Percy Huxley, a caretaker, notified the Beverly police. They met a gang of eight men driving off in an automobile truck loaded with liquor valued at $10,000. The hijackers overpowered the police, seized their automobile and escaped.

Harris told the police he was asleep when this affair took place. The employes named in the indictments today with Leiter were Percy Huxley, who notified the police of the second hi-jacking raid, Eugene O'Neil and William F. Collins, all of Beverly.

Collins is chauffeur for Leiter and is charged with transportation, as well as the counts of smuggling and concealment which were lodged against the other three indicted.

Several men have been arrested, including Harris for alleged complicity in the hi-jacking raids, but the time that these were reported, Mr. Leiter declared at his Chicago home that he was unaware that liquor had been stored on his estate.

U. OF K. FOOTBALL PLAYER CHARGED WITH MURDER

Kansas City, Mo., March 13.—A first degree murder charge was filed here today against Roy M. Turner of Wichita, Kansas, former University of Kansas football player, following issuance of a deputy coroner's report that poison had been found in the stomach of Mrs. Dora Gage, Atchison divorcee, who died in a hotel room here yesterday.

The report stated enough poison had been found to cause death and described three large bruises on the woman's body. Turner was arrangned and held without bond.

He was arrested yesterday in a hotel room with Mrs. Gage when her screams attracted attendants. Before death, Mrs. Gage declared that Turner had given her a drink of poison from a bottle, and later thrown the bottle to the pavement below, and that he had poisoned her so that he might collect her insurance.

He said he met Mrs. Gage last November in Atchison and sold her an equity December 5 in a 160 acre farm near Nevada, Mo., for $11,200, taking Mrs. Gage's note for $2,000, and retaining collateral life insurance policy she had. Later he said, he sold the note and with it went the insurance policies. Yesterday afternoon, Turner said, he met Mrs. Gage near a hotel where she had obtained a room.

Mrs. Gage told him, Turner said, that she wanted to talk to him about her note saying that the mortgages on the Nevada farm had been foreclosed.

Going to Mrs. Gage's room Turner said he found her drinking from a bottle. "I tasted the stuff," he said. "I said it tasted rotten and she asked me to throw it out of the window, so I did."

"Then," Turner continued, "I noted that Mrs. Gage was becoming ill and I called a hotel clerk." At that juncture, according to Turner, Mrs. Gage began to scream and he tried to summon a physician by telephone."

OBITUARY

Rev. Levi Rodgers.

Greenwich, March 12.—Rev. Levi Rodgers, 81, dean of ministers of Fairfield county, died at his home here today. Rev. Mr. Rodgers graduated from Dartmouth college, class of 1866 and Andover seminary. He was pastor of the North Greenwich Congregational church for 21 years, retiring from active service three years ago but was still pastor of the church. He is survived by his wife.

Rev. Dr. Ernest Miel

Hartford, March 12—Rev. Dr. Ernest Def Miel, for 32 years rector of Trinity church here died at the rectory tonight after a prolonged illness which had confined him to his bed since last December. He first became ill in 1919, after his second trip to the war areas of France for two years had served as a chaplain and welfare worker.

Dr. Miel leaves his wife, a son Charles, now engaged in the campaign for funds for the cathedral of St. John the Divine in New York and four daughters. The funeral will be held Saturday afternoon. Rev. Dr. John N. Lewis of Waterbury, a close friend will officiate.

Dean Colladay, of the Episcopal cathedral said Dr. Miel was the outstanding priest in the diocese and Roman Catholic Bishop John G. Murray declared he was "a very wonderful man" and "his rich and exemplary life remains a model for the rest of us."

Coolidge Cordial To German Ambassador

Washington, March 13.—Assurance of the support of the Washington government was given to Baron Ago Von Maltzan, ambassador to the United States from Germany, by President Coolidge today in accepting his letters of credence at the White House.

The new ambassador was assuming his post "at a time when Germany is once more set in the path of prosperity and peace," the president pointed out, and he took occasion also to pay tribute to the late President Ebert of the German republic.

"You come to America at a time when your nation mourns the death of its first president, a man of splendid integrity, of tact and of broad human sympathy," President Coolidge said. "President Ebert had the supremely difficult task of guiding the German republic during its first troubled years, of reconciling opposing factions, of inspiring courage at home and rebuilding confidence abroad. He succeeded because his vision was clearly fixed on right and duty, because he was a man naturally of great ability and had within him the power of growth which made him year by year a greater force. He succeeded also because he had the support of men of good will.

"It is for you to interpret to America the just aspirations of your nation, to promote the understanding which is the only sound basis of lasting peace. That the United States has had the privilege to help in the rebuilding of Germany is a cause of satisfaction to us all."

Asserting that the United States had "repeatedly given evidence to my country of its understanding and confidence," Baron Von Maltzan added.

"At the same time, I greatly recall the generous activities of American citizens in social and cultural help, and the far-seeing work of financial and economical construction, bearing an American name which has become historical."

His last order from President Ebert, the ambassador told Mr. Coolidge, directed him to express his high personal esteem and his sincere wish for the welfare of the United States.

HERRIOT ADDRESSED THE AMERICAN CLUB OF PARIS

Paris, March 12.—(By The A. P.)—"France has need of your friendship; need of the co-operation of your great people to assist her in settlement of the after-the-war problems," said Premier Herriot before the American club of Paris today.

The club's members gathered in such unprecedented numbers to hear Premier Herriott, that Robeert P. Skinner, the American consul-general, in welcoming him, said the club had erred in not arranging the luncheon at the Grand Palais, instead of one of the largest restaurants on the Camps Elysee.

"It is calumny," M. Herriott declared, "to say that the United States is essentially dominated by material considerations. The United States is one of the greatest exponents of the great moral virtures regulating the lives of peoples. It is the duty of France never to forget the part American played in the war."

M. Herriott described his government's policy as embracing re-establishment of peace in the world and the restoration of France's finances.

Emphasizing the importance to the financial restoration of France of the good will of the United States, he declared: "The great French and American democracies are founded on the same principles. They cannot afford to drift apart, for the security of the world would be endangered."

Referring to the compliments which had been paid to his "high culture" by Consul General Skinner, the premier said: "I would rather be alive and critized than dead and praised."

THE STOKES CONSPIRACY TRIAL WILL END TODAY

Chicago, March 12—The trial of W. E. D. Stokes, 73 year old New York millionaire, and Robert F. Lee, Chicago negro, charged with conspiracy to defame Mrs. Helen Elwood Stokes, will end tomorrow afternoon.

C. F. Rathburn, counsel for Mr. Stokes, addressed the jury three and one-half hours today after Milton D. Smith, assistant state' attorney, had ended a plea of the same length. Tomorrow Rathburn will conclude his argument, after which W. W. Smith, assistant state's attorney, will close for the prosecution.

After the luncheon recess Judge Gemmile will read his charge to the jury. The court has two difficult problems to explain to the jury, the permission to Mrs. Stokes to testify and his statement in open court that he thought the prosecution had committed a reversible error in asking the aged defendant unsupported accusatory questions.

After Mr. Smith had concluded his arraignment of Mr. Stokes as a dollar-marked octopus with long tentacles which reached into the old underworld of Chicago and elsewhere throughout the country to "dirty up" his wife in an effort to bolster up a divorce suit, Rathburn painted his client as an "old man obsessed by one idea, that his wife had done something wrong," who legally and without malicious intent sought to get the matter straightened out.

ASKED TO BE LOCKED UP TO PREVENT KILLING WIFE

Paterson, N. J., March 12.—Emil Heinze went to police headquarters today and asked that he be arrested "to prevent me killing my wife and her lawyer." The police were inclined to take the matter lightly until Heinze exhibited a pound ball of lead attached to a wire.

Heinze was placed in a cell. His lawyer said that Heinze and his wife have quarreled frequently.

To Vote on Isle of Pines Treaty Today

One-Man Filibuster Conducted by Senator Copeland Was Broken Last Night.

Washington, March 12. — Breaking the one-man filibuster conducted by Senator Copeland, democrat, New York, the senate tonight entered a unanimous consent agreement to vote by 3 o'clock tomorrow afternoon on the 20-year-old treaty recognizing the sovereignty of Cuba over the Isle of Pines.

Senator Copeland began his filibuster yesterday, demanding that the treaty bt put aside until December, and he spoke for eight hours today almost continuously, the senate being held in session from noon until late tonight without a recess to prevent him from resting. He abandoned the filibuster suddenly at 8 p. m., yielding the floor to Senator Shipstead, farmer-labor, Minnesota, another opponent of the treaty, who spoke only an hour.

When Senator Copeland stopped speaking, proponents attempted to force a vote tonight, but several other members insisted upon an opportunity to be heard. Senator Pepper, republican, Pennsylvania, in charge of the treaty, then proposed the unanimous consent agreement which was adopted, limiting each member to one speech of not more than 15 minutes on the subject.

The New York senator conducted his fight from behind a steadily augmented bulwark of books and maps which he said contained sufficient oratorical ammunition to last a month.

He also had some veracikers and raisins in his pockets, and occasionally slipped broth or milk brought to him by his secretary while spuring over some record on or near his desk.

HARTFORD WITHOUT DEATH FROM TYPHOID IN 1924

Chicago, March 13.—Fall River and Hartford were the only large cities in the country without a single death from typhoid fever in 1924, says the current issue of the journal of the American Medical association which emphasizes the generally good record of the Atlantic seaboard.

"It is well known that deaths from typhoid fever constitute an index to the sanitary conditions of the community," says the journal in connection with the publication of its 13th annual statistic typhoid record for cities over 100,000 population. "The analysis for 1924 shows that geographical location has considerable bearing on the incidences of typhoid fever."

The New England states maintained excellent records, while the oyster typhoid epidemic gave New York a higher typhoid mortality than for several years, with as many as 650 excess cases in that city, and Washington, D. C., had about 50 cases from the same cause, the journal said.

Richmond, Washington and Baltimore, among the South Atlantic cities, reported the lowest typhoid rates in their history. In the central states, Indianapolis and Toledo continue to show high rates although beginning to approximate more nearly what might be considered a normal incidence of the disease.

Louisville and Birmingham have rates exceedingly low "whereas Nashville and Memphis produce figures so amazingly high as to require special investigation" according to the journal.

AN UPROAR IN ITALIAN CHAMBER OF DEPUTIES

Rome, March 12.—Signor Maffi, the communist deputy, was responsible for an uproar in the chamber of deputies today, his accusations against the Fascisti bringing a number of the deputies to a brief fistic encounter. He charged the Fascisti with "enriching themselves" and with having committed acts of violance.

Robert Farinacci, secretary of the Fascist party, and Deputy Terruzzi, followed by other Fascisti made a rush to attack Deputy Maffi. Peace makers intervened, however, and they contented themselves with forcing Maffi to mention names. He accepted the challenge and accused Aldo Finzi (former minister of interior) and Giacomo Acebro (under secretary of state). Finzi protested, asking for an investigation, and Acerbo threatened to bring suit against MMaffi.

When Maffi insisted that his charges were correct, a large group of Fascisti surrounded him and communists rushed to his rescue. A free-for-all followed, but the deputies were soon separated.

INCREASE IN STORAGE OF MEATS, POULTRY AND BUTTER

Washington, March 13—Cold storage holding of meats, poultry and creamery butter on March 1 were considerably larger than a year ago, while American cheese and egg stocks were smaller.

Reports to the department of agriculture, made public today, showed that stored meats totaled 1,100,073,000 pounds March 1, compared with 1,062,816,000 points a year ago and the five year average of 1,023,609,000.

Poultry stored amounted to 130,508,000 pounds, against 93,497,000 a year ago and 90,626,000 for the average. Butter stocks were 28,862,000 pounds, compared with the March, 1924, figure of 9,847,000 and the five year average of 18,202,000.

American cheese holdings were 34,613,000 pounds, compared with 35,160,000 on March 1 last year, and 24,475,000 for the five year average.

Both cases of eggs stored, compared with 44,000 last year, and 28,000 for the average. Frozen eggs totalled 11,247,000 pounds, against 23,106,000 pounds last year, and 17,420,000 for the five year average.

FIRST SNOWLESS FEBRUARY IN MORE THAN 52 YEARS

New Haven, March 12.—The present winter has thus far broken records for scarcity of snowfall in this section of the state and has furnished the first snowless February in more than 52 years, it was disclosed at the weather bureau here today. Records show there has been no snow here since January 29 and what snow there was on the ground at that time had melted by February 12.

NOMINATION OF WARREN RETURNED TO THE SENATE

President Coolidge Resubmitted Nomination For Attorney General After He Had Conferred With Mr. Warren—Nomination Was Referred to the Judiciary Committee—Impression Revails That Action Might be Had Within Two or Three Days—Field Marshals on Both Sides Are Lining up Their Forces For the Contest.

Washington, March 12—President Coolidge forced the issue with the senate today on the question of his selection of Charles B. Warren of Michigan, to be his attorney general.

Disregarding the advice of administration leaders in the senate, he resubmitted the nomination after he had conferred with Mr. Warren, who arrived early in the day from his home in Detroit and is not a white house guest.

The decision of the executive came as a surprise to republican leaders and caused a flurry in their ranks as well as in those of the opposition, who had assumed that the question had been settled with the rejection of the nomination Tuesday by a tie vote and the laying on the table of a motion for reconsideration.

As the nomination was referred again to the judiciary committee, which is to meet tomorrow to consider it, field marshals on both sides began lining up their forces anew. Republican leaders generally were hopeful, but not oversanguine, while opponents predicted they would be able to muster a clear majority against confirmation.

After Mr. Coolidge had returned the nomination to the senate without comment when it convened at noon, he summoned Senator Curtis of Kansas, the republican floor leader, to the white house for a conference with himself and Mr. Warren. The meeting lasted an hour and the whole situation in the senate was carefully canvassed.

Upon leaving the white house, Senator Curtis said he believed the nomination could be confirmed. Other republican leaders did not share his optimism, however, Senator Reed of Pennsylvania, who made the motion Tuesday for re-consideration, saying that he was afraid the appointment would be rejected again by three or four votes.

There were indications that neither side would be disposed to delay a senate vote and the general opinion seeme dto be that action could be had within two or three days.

A third favorable report on the nomination by the judiciary committee tomorrow is the plan, but the situation as to immediate senate consideration is complicated somewhat by the filibuster on the Isle of Pines treaty

Chairman Cummins said he had no intention of inviting Mr. Warren before the committee unless he indicated a desire to appear.

Those leading the forces in opposition to Mr. Warren's nomination had not finally determined tonight upon their course of action. They were examining books on law and precedent to satisfy themselves whether they challenged the authority of the executive to re-submit a nomination after it had been rejected.

One precedent for the action of Mr. Coolidge was found today. President Tyler, who had more difficulty with the senate over selections for his official family than any other executive, re-submitted the nomination of Caleb Gushing of Massachusetts, to be secretary of the treasury, after the senate had rejected it on March 3, 1843, by a vote of 19 to 27. The senate promptly reaffirmed its action, 2 to 29.

In their claims of sufficient votes to prevent confirmation of Mr. Warren's nomination, opponents took into calculation the public announcement of Seator Overman of North Carolina, the only democrat who voted for Mr. Warren Tuesday, that he would oppose favorable action. He said he regarded the situation as entirely changed in view of the subquent vote today on the table a motion to re-open the question.

Those in opposition also counted on having two additional votes—Senators Howell, republican, Nebrask, and Dill, democrat, Washington, who were absent Tuesday—and they claimed further that three republican senators favored to confirmation who will be absent would be unable to tie up a like number of votes against Mr. Warren through the practice of pairing on questions.

With Senator Overman announcing that he would vote against confirmation, Senators Walsh, democrat, Montana, and other leaders in the fight to reject the nomination, said the democrats would stand solidly against Mr. Warren. They also predicted they would hold this strength developed among insurgent and other republicans but administration leaders disputed this. These leaders are bending their efforts to gain votes from this group and hope also to get some support from the democratic side.

RAILROADS PROTEST RULING ON PRIVATE COAL CARS

Philadelphia, March 12.—A bill in equity, signed by 35 railroads, attacking the order of the interstate commerce commission prohibiting the use of private coal cars for the transportation of bituminous coal, was filed today in United States district court.

The commission's order, it was averred, was illegal and arbitrary, and if allowed to stand would seriously hamper operation of the roads through making it difficult to btain a sufficiency of fuel for their locomotives.

Filing of the bill was part of a concerted move for nullification of the ban against the private cars. A number of coal, coke and steel companies have already filed injunction suits for invalidation of the commission's order, and similar suits by a number of public untility corporations are expected to follow. All will be grouped into one action to test the validity of the commission's ruling.

The bill declared that the ban on private cars had rendered inoperative the use of cars specially designed to meet the demands of the railroads. It was pointed out that at times the demand for commercial cars was such that without the use of private cars, the railroads would be unable to operate as the law requires them to do.

The railroads signing the bill include the Boston and Maine; Central New England, New York Central; New York, New Haven and Hartford.

BURIED CITY UNEARTHED IN SANDS OF NEVADA

New York, March 12—The museum of the American Indian, Heye foundation, today announced the discovery under the sands of Nevada on the Muddy River, between St. Thomas and Overton, of the oldest buried city yet unearthed.

The city, which stretches for six miles along the river, was discovered, say museum officials, by an exploring party headed by M. R. Harrington. It is described as the relic of a civilization that existed in America almost 10,000 years ago.

The ity is reported to have been found last November. Between fifteen and twenty rooms of the dwellings have been svacuated, disclosing ancient pottery, flint knives, basketry, arrow heads, plows made from shoulder bones of animals and bone dice.

Museum directors expect it will take several years entirely to unearth this pre-Pueblo city, which has been christened Pueblo Grande de Navada and which will be made a state part, they say.

INTEREST UNABATED IN THE DENNISTOUN CASE IN LONDON

London, March 13.—There was no diminuition in popular interest today in the trial of the suit brought by Mrs. Ian Onslow Dennistoun against her former husband, Lieutenant Colonel Dennistoun, now the husband of the former Dowager Countess Carnarvon, for amounts of money she alleges he owes her. There was the usual early morning crush for admission to the court room, and the chamber was filled throughout the day.

Much of today's testimony turned upon £100,000 which Lady Carnarvon when she married Dennistoun, settled upon her husband and herself as "a little nest egg on which they always could rely." A. W. Fyzer, counsel for Dennistoun, said in connection with this money that it was the desire of Lady Carnavon "t surround her husband with the utmostbr dignity." Neither this sum nor the interest on it, he added, could be touched in law by Mrs. Dennistoun, even if she won her present action against her former husband.

One legal point in the case on which the judge laid emphasis today, was whether in the verbal agreement said to have been made between Colonel and Mrs. Dnnistoun in 1921 there could be read an implied condition that Mrs. Dennistoun should observe good moral conduct.

In this connection Mr. Fyzer replied, regarding an allgeation that Mrs. Dennistoun had been hounded by detectives, that observation of her activities began in February, 1924, but was not kept up, except on a couple of isolated dates. Last January, he added, information was obtained from a Paris hotel that Mrs. Dennistoun ha dbeen stopped there with Major Woevodsky. The shadowing of her ceased last month.

This raised the suggestion that huge costs had piled up in defending the case. Mr. Fyzer said he already had received from £10,000 to £12,000.

Of which amount Clonel Dennistoun had paid £5,000 out of the inheritance he received from his father. Mr. Fyzer denied suggestions that Dennistoun had agreed to make provision for his former wife.

During the session a Swiss hotel keeper testified that Mrs. Dennistoun ha dccupied communicating rooms with a Spaniard named Bolin in a hotel near Geneva and that she was known as Madame Bolin.

PROMINENT CHINESE TO TRY END TONG WARFARE

New York, March 12—Nineteen prominent Chinese from San Francisco, Chicago, Cleveland and other large cities today voluntarily undertook to end the tong war which in a few months is said to have cost the lives of 50 Orientals throughout the United States.

The peace committee was composed of officers of the Chinese Benevolent association, a society of wealthy business men. After a session at the association headquarter in Chinatown and a visit to On Leong and Hip Sing tongsmen at their respective headquarters, a program was drawn up which the mediators said promised within a fortnight to end the war between the rival factions.

Bert V. Entemey, secretary of the association, said the committee later will call on the two tongs separatsly and learn from each its grievances. The committee, he said, will then try to draw up a program for a settlement which will satisfy both tongs.

"A great many meetings will be necessary, of course," he added, "but we hope to obtain definite results at least within the next two weeks."

A letter has been received by L. Leo Thompson, chairman of the special committee of the Windham town school committee, relative to the rebuilding of the Windham Street school, destroyed by fire Jan. 20, 1924. Several conferences of committee with the state board have been held during the past year, and after looking into the situation, the board made known that there was not enough space on the property under school jurisdiction for playgrounds for the children, which would necessitate the purchase by either state or town of adjoining property. Of the two plans submitted to the state board of education, the first would cost considerably over $300,000, including the extra land. The second, which has been decided upon by the board, was for an appropriation at this year's session of the legislature of $228,600 inclusive of cost of the land, for which not more than $60,000 is to be expended. In both cases the amount to be paid by the town of Windham is to be one-third. Heat is to be furnished by the state without cost to the town. The assessment against the town would approach $96,000. The letter informs the school board that an appropriation for the amount named above will be asked of the legislature, and that the bill is now in the hands of the committee on education of which Representative Allen B. Lincoln of Ashford, a former resident of Willimantic, is a member.

LOOSE DRAW-BAR ON FREIGHT HELPS DERAIL FIVE CARS

(Special to the Bulletin)

Willimantic, March 12.—The worst damage to railroad roadbeds in this section in some years was caused about midnight, Thursday morning, when a draw-bar on the 11th car of a string of 24 loaded cars dropped to the ties and ripped up the bed for 500 feet, at Cheewink Crossing curve, one and one-half miles north of the North Windham station. Five of the cars in the rear of the train left the rails and rolled up in a huge pile which blocked the cut on both east and west-bound tracks. A summons was sent to the wrecking crews from Readville, Mass., East Hartford and section gangs from this city, Hampton and Clark's Corners, and the work of clearing the wreckage got quickly under way. Members of the train crew escaped injury. The east-bound track had been cleared by morning and traffic was resumed over the track then to Clark's Corner over the single iron. The west bound track was not opened until late Thursday afternoon. Trains which had to detour by way of Plainfield were the State of Maine express, east and west-bound and No. 112, Boston accommodation train. The wrecked freight train is known as O. B. 2 fast freight, Maybrook, N. Y., to Boston. It was being hauled by two heavy engines. Samuel Barnes was engineer of the head engine and Engineer L. Mellon of the pusher. The train was in charge of Conductor Brooks.

STRIKERS AT THREAD PLANT GET PAY DUE THEM THURSDAY

(Special to The Bulletin)

Willimantic, March 12.—Thursday was uneventful for the strikers of the American Thread company plant. All business was conducted in an orderly manner and the operatives appeared well satisfied with the progress of the strike. The customary morning parade was held after an almost 100 per cent gathering of the employes at the mill gates at 7 o'clock. Under the leadership of their resolute little president, Miss Amy Hooker, the strikers held fast to the cause and friends were being signed up throughout the day. Miss Mary Kelleher, national organizer, stated later in the day that as a result of the large enrollments the striking body now represents 95 per cent of the full complement of employes of the plant.

The strikers were elated at the generous support being assured them by local merchants and from various outside sources. Telegrams and letters were being received in numbers from labor unions, both textile and building trades, promising financial support and wishing the strikers a speedy victory. Although no appeal has been made to the public, substantial sums were being realized from donations. Contributions for $100 have been received to date from Mrs. Michael J. Tubridy, in behalf of the Tubridy-Weldon company, Aime J. Martineau for the Martineau-Bacon Co., Inc., Dr. Samuel J. Turcotte, the local Carpenters' union. Other sums aggregating a substantial amount have been received from Louis Shaikel, Mrs. Joseph Labbee, Mrs. Belair and daughter, Dennehey Bros., James W. Shortell, Christie Angelus, the Butchers' Local No. 262, and Salem Haddad.

At the conclusion of the picketing duty at noon, the strikers marched in a long column through the city streets and halted in front of business houses from which contributions have been received, to give three rousing cheers.

Upon request, a committee will call on several local merchants and private residents to receive contributions which have been promised. A bureau has been established to receive and record money given to the cause.

With the curtains drawn at the mills, Thursday was pay day for the striking employes. Pay envelopes were handed out by Paymaster Channing H. Morrill from the stone office on Main street. The operatives lined up in relays, the various departments having been assigned stipulated hours when to call for pay. The amounts were for the week ending last Thursday, the day on which the strike was declared, but as the operatives remained on duty until Saturday noon they had one and one-half days' pay coming to them. The manufacturing department did not quit work until Tuesday and has slightly larger sums due.

Meetings held Thursday were attended by practically 100 per cent representations of the various departments. The manufacturing department convened for employes of No. 3 mill at 7.30 o'clock. At 10 o'clock the winders, cones and tubes and packers sections met and at 2 o'clock in the afternoon the No. 4 manufacturing workers, numbering about 600, held a meeting. The printers held a meeting later in the day. At 6.30 a meeting of the general grievance committee was held and a general discussion on financial matters took place. At 7.30 o'clock Local 671 of the finishing department, representing about 650 operatives of the dyeing, spooling, dressing and box rooms held a session.

It was announced that collectors were being sent out to various towns in the state to receive contributions. It has not been found necessary yet to definitely establish a relief station but plans are being laid to take this step when the conditions warrant.

The schedule for today (Friday) opens with a mass meeting in a theatre building at 7.15 o'clock. Announcement has been made that Thomas J. McMahon of Providence, international president of the United Textile Workers of America would pay Willimantic another visit next week. His coming here is looked forward to with great interest it was stated by the press committee, President Miss Amy Hooker, Vice President George Leblond and Secretary Miss Adeline Locrasto.

JEWETT CITY

A large crowd enjoyed seeing the presentation of Ye Old Destrict Skule given in Pachaug Grange hall Wednesday evening. The parts were taken by Merton Bartlett who was Elihu Wilkins, M. D. The school committee were Deacon Josiah Partridge, William A. Edmond; Hezekiah Shooks, W. C. Terry, Zebedee Von Pelt, W. B. Montgomery. The visitors were Mrs. Doolittle, Mrs. Victor Campbell; Ruth Esther Doolittle, Ruth Esther Morgan; Mistress Charity Hornwell, spinster, Ethel Krug; Mrs. Humility Patridge, Mrs. W. B. Montgomery; Mrs. Hannah Parsons, Mrs. Jane Lester; Mrs. Peterkin, Mrs. Idelle Babcock. The scholars were, Temperance Whiteston, Mabel Kinnie; Judith Doolittle, Martha Mell; Deliverance Doolittle, Ellen Young; Salvation Doolittle, Nettie Armstrong; Belinda Bassett, Susie Morgan; Dorcas Skinner, Lillian Pepin; Deborah Tubbs, Blanche Montgomery; Prudence Patience Peterkin, Susie Bitgood; Penelope Hornwell, Edith Tift. All sorts of ludicrous happenings kept the audience laughing. The school sang the Battle Hymn of the Republic, Tramp, Tramp, Tramp the Boys are Marching, The Old Oaken Bucket, Swanee River, Old Lang Syne and Good Night Ladies. A very pretty tableau was shown as a part of the programme. It was The Old Gray Bonnet, and the parts were taken by Rev. and Mrs. J. P. Richardson, while Mrs. E. E. Scates and Byron Kinsle sang the song. The costumes for this tableau added much to the picture. Mrs. Richardson wearing an old time silk gown and old fashioned bonnet with blue ribbon on it, while Mr. Richardson's silk hat and very old silk hankerchief, an heirloom in the family all went to make a realistic picture. Also the golden wedding mentioned in the song came near being true for the minister and his wife will have been married 50 years next year.

Miss Susie Morgan was the accompanist. Cake and coffee were served.

The receipts were $72. Mrs. William Bitgood was in charge of the entertainment. All the costumes were most wonderful to behold, especially some of the visitors' head-gear.

COLUMBIA

Rey E. Jones, poultry specialist of the farm bureau, addressed a meeting of poultry men at Yeomans hall on Tuesday afternoon with particular reference to winter broilers. The cost of feed and other expenses in caring for chickens during the first two months, in comparison with the price received for the broilers was thoroughly discussed, and figures shown on a chart of the expenses incurred in raising the different breeds. They were found to be very satisfactory to the poultrymen. A large number of lantern slides were used, showing the most approved houses and localities for flocks of from 100 to 1000 birds.

Mr. Jones was ably assisted by E. E. Tucker, County Agent. The lecture was very interesting but only a small number were present, as it was not generally known that the lecture was to be delivered.

The Ladies' Aid Society of the Congregational church held a meeting on Tuesday afternoon at the home of H. W. Porter. The special object of the meeting was to consider the proposition of Mrs. Mary B. Yeomans to wire the church and supply the fixtures for electric lighting, providing the church would lay a hardwood floor in the building.

There was a large attendance and the ability of the church to embrace the opportunity and secure the funds for the purpose was fully discussed.

It is expected that a proposition will be made by the Ladies' Aid society to the church meeting this (Friday) evening.

TWICE IN THIS WOMAN'S LIFE

Ellensburg, Washington—"When I was first coming into womanhood I suffered terribly every month. My mother did everything she could think of, so she took me to several doctors and they only helped me a little. Mother was talking to another lady about my condition and she told mother of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. Mother got me six bottles and at the end of the first month I was much better, so I kept on taking it until I had no more pains. When I got married and had my first child I was in terrible pain so that it was impossible for me to do my housework. I thought of how the Vegetable Compound had been of so much benefit to me when I was a girl, so I went to Perier's Drug Store and got six bottles. It sure did help me and I still take it. I am a well woman today and I can't say too much about Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. I will answer any letter that comes to me to answer about what your medicine has done for me."—Mrs. WILLIAM CARVER, R. F. D. No. 2, Ellensburg, Wash.

TELL HIM NOW

If with pleasure you are viewing
Any work a man is doing,
  If you like him or you love him tell him now;
Don't withold your approbation
Till the parson makes oration
  And he lies with snowy lilies o'er his brow;
For no matter how you shout it,
  He won't know how many tear drops you shed;
If you think some praise is due him
Now's the time to slip it to him,
  For he cannot read his tombstone when he's dead.

More than fame and more than money
Is the comment kind and sunny,
  And the hearty warm approval of a friend;
For it gives to life a savor
And makes you stronger, braver,
  And it gives your heart spirit to the end;
If he earns your praise bestow it,
If you like him let him know it,
  Let the words of true encouragement be said;
Do not wait till life is over
And he's underneath the clover,
  For he cannot smell the posies when he's dead.

ANNOUNCEMENTS

Broadway Theatre.

If you are looking for entertainment, real live, snappy, big time vaudeville and a like picture, just spend two and a half hours at the Broadway theatre any time this week and get more than your money's worth. B. F. Keith vaudeville needs no introduction to Norwich theatregoers.

Jack Fitzgerald presented "Near Bird" which proved to be a distinct novel comedy with Odd Bits of Nature.

Nan Traveline, the songstress with a personality, is assisted by Irving Cellers at the piano and filled second spot with a program of vocal selections. From jazz to semi-classical numbers are featured.

Melino, Lizette & Kogan in a Little Bit of Everything, have mostly a comedy routine that is just one laugh after another, interspersed with a bit of song and dance.

Flo and Ollie Walters in Telling Tales, kept the audience entertained with fourteen minutes of fun, song and dance. It is all great material.

Roy Rogers & Co., in Kicks of 1926 have positively the greatest act ever seen in Norwich. Supported by a cast of seven beautiful girls, the company's routine is fast and snappy.

The audience at the Broadway last night was plainly pleased with Listen Lester, the new Sacramento Pictures Corporation presentation which was shown for the first time in this city. The new film, distributed through the Principal Pictures Corporation relates a story that moves along at an aeroplane speed and never lets down for a minute. Laughs are piled on top of laughs so rapidly that the picture brings one continuous and prolonged outburst of merriment. It boasts of a truly great cast.

Bread Theater

California, Arizona and Texas rounded up their last great herds and Mexico received them as the actual forerunner of the transference of the cattle business from America to the southern republic when First National filmed Sundown, the super-drama of the west now showing at the Breed theater.

The story describes how the cattleman has been forced out of American history by the encroachment of "nesters," and how the great herds are being broken up.

Taking advantage of the dramatic movement of the massed herd, Director Hudson took his First National company to a ranch near El Paso and the Mexican line and there filmed the romantic theme of the story against a constantly moving background of cattle on the trail.

The cast includes such celebrated names as Bessie Love, Hobart Bosworth, Roy Stewart, Charlie Murray, Charles Sellon, Arthur Hoyt and and others, but they appear as living figures of the old ad new west rather than as players, and Sundown is a unique example of a production without a deep-dyed villain and without a pretty matinee idol. A beautiful love story runs through the picture.

"Starring" in the production, if the ill-used word can be applied, will be applied, will be 100,000 cattle, moving through the states to Mexico to close a chapter of American history and leave an indelible imprint upon the romantic memory of the west.

The great Albertini, king of daredevils will also be seen in the second chapter of The Iron Man the Pathe news and a Mack Sennett comedy make up the remainder of the bill.

Strand Theater

The Richard E. Hourigan Post 534, Veterans of Foreign wars, are a busy lot these days preparing for the presentation of Over the Top With the Allies at the Strand theater next Monday, Tuesday, and Wednesday. Tickets are in the hands of all the members and at a recent meeting it was reported the tickets were selling fast. In bringing these pictures to Norwich this organization is to be congratulated because of the fact they have not been shown (up to this time) in any city the size of Norwich. At the Tremont temple Boston in the fall they were shown for over six weeks at prices ranging from fifty cents to a dollardollar fifty a seat. In taking these pictures eleven men were killed and they show the actual fighting of the English Cavalry on the Somme, French troops in action at Verdun, Canadians smashing the Hindenburg line, Italian infantry raiding machine gun nests along the Piave, and last but not least the American boys in three of the greatest battles ever known in history.

The above are official government motion pictures and should be seen by every one during this engagement as they will not be seen again in Norwich after Wednesday. Prices for Over the Top With the Allies will be in the evening all seats twenty-five cents and the afternoons ten for children and twenty for adults. Three performances will be given daily at two, seven and eight forty five.

Strand Theater

Never before in memory of local theater goers has a more attractive picture program been offered, than the Strand offering today and tomorrow. For the first feature this theater will show in seven reels the life and trials of the famous Napoleon Bonaparte under the title of Napoleon and Josephine. This picture recently caused a sensation at the Fenway in Boston and is one picture should be seen by everyone. The battle of Watterloo as shown in this picture will long be remembered and before Saturday morning will be the talk of Norwich. The companion feature on the same program will be William Fairbanks in a five reel thrilling story of border love and hate, Down By the Rio Grande. Tonight as an added attraction a real old fashioned country store will be given and over twenty presents including a genuine leather three piece parlor suits of furniture will be given away. This present alone is worth $125 and when questioned regarding this the Strand management remarked, "Ask Swarts Bros. if you could buy it for less." Admission tonight at the Strand will be twenty-five cents all seats and it is safe to say you will have some fun and perhaps take hme a valuable present.

ANNOUNCEMENTS

Reopening of Yonkers Ferry

The Yonkers Ferry, running from Yonkers, N. Y., to Alpine, N. J., will reopen on March 15th for the 1925 season. Service will commence each day at 6 A. M., and continue unti, midnight. There are two large boats in the service, running on a frequent headway.

Motorists between New York and New Jersey can use this ferry with distinct advantage, for there is no congestion or delay here.

A new concrete highway from Alpine to Closter, N. J., was built last year and is now open to traffic. Lights have been installed in and around Alpine, making it more convenient for night driving.

The ferry is particularly appealing for pleasure riding because it connects New Yorkers with Interstate park and that section of New Jersey which has excellent roads and beautiful country graced with fine estates.

When one gets off the boat at Alpine, by traveling south along the Hendrick Hudson Drive, Englewood is reached, from which place good roads lead to Jersey City, Hackensack, Newark, Paterson and all Jersey shore points as well as to Trenton and Philadelphia. For the motorist who wishes to go direct to points around Easton, Allentown, Delaware Water Gap or Scranton, it is wise to use this ferry, and then via. Cresskill to Dumont, etc. For the motorist desiring to go to Nyack, Bear Mountain, Newburgh, Suffern, Tuxedo, Middletown, Binghampton, at Alpine, the road to Closter (two and one-half miles distant) should be taken and at Closter to turn north for the Hudson River points; turn west at Closter for Harrington Park, through to Nanuet and then westerly to Suffern for all other New York state points, as well as the Catskill mountains.

The landing of this ferry at Yonkers fronts on Alexander street, between Babcock Place and Wells Avenue, and can be reached from any part of the city via either of these streets. The latter runs under the tracks of the New York Central railroad and the former is bridged over the tracks, which eliminates a direct rail crossing. At Alpine, the landing is at the foot of the Palisades where there is a road direct to the Hendrick Hudson Drive with a grade of about 6 per cent for one-half mile.

DANIELSON AND PUTNAM NEWS

DANIELSON

The rather drastic measures it was necessary to take a few months ago to collect overdue personal taxes had a beneficial effect that is being shown in the manner this year's taxes are coming in. Up to Thursday afternoon Attorney Louis A. Woisard, special tax collector, had received about 50 per cent. of all the personal taxes assessed here. The number liable to pay this tax this year is 3586. Last year the number assessed was 3370. The collections last year were approximately $8,000, but much of this was money that should have been received in previous years. The personal tax money is apportioned between the town and the state.

Possibly postal employes are not afflicted that way, but they might be excused if they made Saturday evening something of a gala occasion and treated themselves ot a theatre party, a dinner dance or some other diversion that costs much more than its worth. For be it known the postal force here is to be convincingly convinced Saturday that the postal bill recently passed by congress was not merely newspaper talk and they are going to get the first money due them under their increased salary ratings this week end. Incidentally, the pay increase is retroactive to January 1 of this year, so the income roll will be quite bulky. The force here is paid semi-monthly. Postmaster E. H. Keach had the payroll all figured out Thursday afternoon and the boys were gleeful as they looked it over. They were feeling so good about it that one was almost tempted to try selling them lottery tickets, oil stocks, automobiles and other things that people with a lot of money are apt to buy. The public rejoices with them in getting an increase that they really have been earning and not getting, for years and years.

Arthur A. Dean is a candidate for borough tax collector. There is an announcement that will strike Danielson as being mighty good news. Thursday, upon Edward S. Carpenter announcing that he would no longer serve in that office, Mr. Dean announced his candidacy. Mr. Dean is in the office of the selectmen as clerk and serves in the same capacity for the town school committee. Efficiency is an outstanding characteristic of his capabilities. His records are accurate and immaculate to about the last degree. Experience he has gained while in the office of the selectmen, particularly in sarching out and clarifying tax records, make him particularly well fitted for the office to which he aspires. Mr. Dean easily fills the specification of logical candidate. It is not unlikely that his fellow citizens are fully appreciative of this and will see that he has the nomination. There is nothing of partisanship in borough elections. It is a fact that brings forth candidates as desirable as is Mr. Dean.

The road grader of the town of Killingly was brought out Thursday morning for service. This valuable bit of motor driven apparatus was acquired by the town last year and has been found to be a great asset ni clearing out gutters and general grading work of that kind. It will come in particularly handy now that so much spring work is to be done on the roads.

Stafford Springs High school basketball team comes here tonight to meet Killingly High school in what will be the last home game of the season. A big crowd and an enthusiastic one will help Killingly to win.

Dr. Henry C. Dixon, a practicing physician here for several years, is to leave Danielson the first of the week to join the staff of physicians at Hartford of the general offices of one of the largest insurance companies in America. Dr. Dixon's departure will be very much regretted by all who have come to know him and especially by his clientele. Dr. Dixon has been in practice here the past five years.

A plan for the proposed addition to Killingly High school, an addition the need of which is becoming almost imperative if the functioning of the school is not to be cramped, provides for 10 class rooms and a gymnasium 75 by 55 with a ceiling 24 feet from floor to ceiling. The class rooms would relieve the present congestion at the building as well as allowng for the establishment of a domestic science department. A run track in the gymnasium is a feature of the proposes structure, in which there is also provision for a swimming pool if it is desired. The town school committee expects to have another plan for a proposed addition for inspection in the near future.

This spring the borough will be called upon to give attention to the enlargement of the filter beds on the borough farm. This has been a subject of consideration since last year and is being urged by the state board of health, a representative of which has been here this week. At the present time between 750,000 and 900,000 gallons of sewage and surface water a day is pouring through the mains into the two filter beds and their capacity is not able to adequately care for this amount of matter. It is believed that at least two more filter beds will be required to meet present needs.

Likely the borough will be petitioned in time for the annual borough meeting next month to build sewers in sections of Maple and Mechanic streets.

Julius Rainville, recently operated upon at the Day Kimball hospital in Putnam is well on the road to full recovery and will be able to resume his position in about two weeks.

Waldeo Barbeau has purchased a dwelling in the Franklin street section from Mrs. Waldeo Lavallee.

The Danielson Rod and Gun club is to buy a quantity of bass to be placed in lakes in this vicinity.

Friends here have received postcards postmarked at Tia Juana, Mex., from John F. Lewis, who has been on the coast for a number of weeks.

James Caffery of High street is a patient at the Backus hospital in Norwich and may have to undergo a surgical operation.

Main street was given its first spring cleaning Thursday, when accumulated refuse was cleared away.

Observers of brooks in territory hereabout report that trout have been seen in numbers and that the promise is for an interesting season for the fishermen who will be out on and after April 1.

Numbers of motorists from this and surrounding towns have been at Boston this week to attend the automobile show.

Dr. Hugh B. Campbell of Norwich will come here Tuesday next to conduct a clinic at the health station in the town hall building.

SPECIAL TOWN MEETING

The legal voters of the Town of Killingly are hereby notified and warned to meet at the Town Hall, Danielson in said Killingly, on Wednesday, March 18, 1925, at 7:30 p. m., for the following purposes, to wit:

Article 1 — On petition of 31 legal voters to see what action the town will take toward increasing the appropriation for Memorial Day, passed at the last Annual Town Meeting.

Article 2—To do any other business proper to be done at said meeting.

John A. Gilbert,
Napoleon G. Gingras,
Patrick Riley,
Selectmen of the Town Killingly.

Dated at Killingly this 12th day of March, 1925.

PUTNAM

Joseph Ginieki of Webster was presented in city court Thursday charged with speeding. Officer Merrill Keith said that he followed Ginieki from the Rhode Island line to a point near the children's home, a distance of several miles and that on a three mile stretch he had averaged better than 45 miles an hour. The defendant pleaded guilty and was fined $25 and costs of $9.27.

Mrs. Anna E. Coman, 77, widow of Oscar Coman, died at her home in Trenton, N. J., March 6. Mrs. Coman was for many years a resident of Thompson and had many friends in that place, later moved to Putnam and lived on South Main street, but a few years ago went to Trenton, New Jersey, to make her home. Funeral services were held in the Grove street chapel and the burial was in the family lot. She leaves three daughters, Mrs. Frederick R. Stockford, of Atlantic, Miss., Mrs. Arthur D. Hawks, Rosindale, Mass., and Clara L. Comanff Trenton, N. J., a son, Frank C. Jacobs of Dorchester, Mass., and a stepson, Jesse O. Coman of Providence, R. I. There are seven grandchildren and two great grandchildren.

James B. Tatem has returned from a business trip through the south which took him as far as New Orleans.

Miss Rita Hammond is visiting relatives in Pawtucket, R. I.

When the tenth annual meeting of Putnam Country club was held in the Putnam chamber of commerce rooms, the meeting was called to order by the president, Silas M. Wheelock. In the absence of the secretary William Earl Hughes, Herbert J. Smith was elected secretary pro tem. In the absence of the treasurer, Guy L. Baker, President Wheelock gave a report of the financial condition of the club, which was accepted.

It was voted that the president appoint a committee of three to place in nomination candidates for office. The committee's recommendations were confirmed by a ballot vote. President, Silas M. Wheelock; 1st vice president, Charles E. Dean; 2nd vice president, Victor T. Anderson; secretary, Ernest C. Morse; treasurer, Charles A. Thayer; governors for three years, Frank Davis, Richard Bannigan, Guy Howard; governor for two years, A. Newton Vaughn; governor for one year, Jesse E. Rich.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles L. Torrey were in Hartford recently and spent some time in inspecting the exhibition of furniture from the collection of Wallace Nutting and J. P. Morgan. Most of the pieces are fine examples of the woodworkers' art in the early part of the 18th century.

Otto E. Wulf of the firm of Bugbee and Kulf, was in Boston this week on a business trip.

Wednesday, March 11, the 37th anniversary of the greatest snow storm of modern times, it was difficult to believe it, with the bright sunshine and the spring warmth. A year ago March 11 the fiercest snow storm of the year occurred, stopped trolley cars and interfered with highway traffic.

The storm of 1888 swept the entire Atlantic seaboard and middle west and was the worst ever known. Snow in drifts was ten and twelve feet high, country roads were impassable for weeks and here in Putnam, on the east side of Main street entrance to some of the stores had ti be tunnelled. Frederick Hopkins, father of Frank Hopkins who lives on the Little River road, and his housekeeper lost their lives a short distance from the house. Mr. Hopkins who was in feeble health, went to the barn to feed the stock. When he did not return at the time expected the housekeeper went to look for him. Several days later both were found dead in the snow a short distance from the house.

The benefit given for James H. White by the Odd Fellows and Rebekahs was largely attended and a gratifying sum was turned over to Mr. White as the result of the affair. He is still confined to his home on South Main street by the illness with which he has suffered the past month.

Mr. and Mrs. Durham Hall have mived from Chapman street to Walnut street.

Mrs. Gertrude Austin, Mrs. Earl Austin and son Orrin attended the 25th wedding anniversary of Mr. and Mrs. F. Lynch at the Methodist church in North Grosvenordale.

Hudson Austin of North Coventry who died at his home there Sunday evening, was born in Putnam, February 8, 1841, the son of Benone and Laura Bells Austin. Besides his wife he is survived by three sons, Rev. Leon H. Austin of Burbank, Cal., Al-Hartford, and two daughter, Mrs. A. bert of Cornwall and Julien of East Darbie of Norwich and Mrs. E. Griggs of Hartford. He was a member of Company G, 12th Connecticut Volunteers, during the Civil war.

The body of Mrs. Hattie B. Bowen, 77, wife of Nathaniel L. Bowen, who died Sunday at Charlestown, Mass., was brought here for burial at 10.30 o'clock Wednesday morning in Grove street cemetery. Mr. and Mrs. Bowen lived in Putnam where the former conducted a meat market. They left here about 30 years ago, going first to Abington and then to Charlestown, Mass. Mrs. Charles Smith of Abington is Mrs. Bowen's sister.

The last meeting of the Woman's Relief Corps was held in Odd Fellows' hall. There was a good number present. After business Mrs. Lillian Leach gave several readings, one being Whispering Bill. Refreshments were served by Mrs. Albee and Mrs. Hattie Miller.

What was termed a Big Salvation Army Blizzard was given in the Army rooms Wednesday night. Major Thomas Seaver and his divisional quartet, Adj. and Mrs. Charles Mehling, Capt. Samuel Pearce and Envoy Emory McCabe, all of Hartford, gave a very pleasing program. There was a good sized crowd in attendance.

Mrs. E. B. Williams and Miss Edith Pease spent Wednesday in Worcester.

C. D. Sharpe has returned from attending the annual meeting of the Grand Commandery of the Golden Cross held at New Haven. He was selected as a delegate to the Supreme Commandery of the order to be held at Baltimore in May.

The capital stock of the Byrne Co. Inc., has been increased from $15,000 to $50,000.

Miss Unce Boisoneau is to give a piano recital at Christ church, Hartford this (Friday) evening. It will consist of the same program which she played at Mr. Herbert J. Smith's last week.

Robert Fine who lives with his grandparents, Dr. and Mrs. E. L. Simpson of Fremont street has the scarlet fever in a mild form. He is a student at a grade school but has not been in school for several days.

E. L. Davis who is spending the winter at Safety Harbor, Florida, has sent to friends here a descriptive pamphlet of a mineral springs sanatorium which has just opened there.

F. W. Seward has returned from Guilford, where he spent a few days with his sisters.

EDWARD S. CARPENTER QUITS—TAX COLLECTING 50 YEARS

(Special to the Bulletin)

Edward S. Carpenter gave officials at the town hall building a decided surprise, Thursday morning when he came there to tell them that after 50 years of service as either town or borough tax collector and for a long time as both he will not be a candidate for borough tax collector at the caucus to be held the latter part of this month.

Mr. Carpenter feels, as he himself expressed it, that he has done his share and desires to retire from further holding of public office. No one conversant with the splendid public service Mr. Carpenter has rendered will be tempted to challenge this statement, though one may not accurately estimate the number that will regret that he will no longer consent to serve.

Fifty years of tax collecting! That is the record Mr. Carpenter has made in this town. Fifty years of doing a work never too well compensated. Fifty years of getting together the town's and borough's tax assessments. Fifty years of absolutely faithful service to his fellow citizens. The pride that Mr. Carpenter may justly feel over this is shared by those who know him. Now in the late 80's, Mr. Carpenter is the borough's premier citizen. Were he to stand with those who were here when he came to Danielson, few indeed would be the number of his companions. It is a much changed Danielson and a much advanced Killingly that the still sprightly Mr. Carpenter views today, as compared to what it was when he first became a tax collector, and he purposes to view it as he gracefully attains the century mark without being burdened with any cares of public office.

If ever a Killingly man was entitled to hear from his fellow citizens the line "Well done, good and faithful servant," Mr. Carpenter is entitled to hear it for the services he has rendered them.

WILFRED BREAULT ADMITS SHARE IN TWO BREAKS

(Special to The Bulletin)

Putnam, March 12.—Up until ten minutes before 10 o'clock this morning Wilfred Breault persisted in declaring to his counsel, Charles L. Torrey, public defender, that he had nothing to do with the burglary with which he was charged and for which his brother Henry Breault and Arthur Fournier are now serving terms in state prison. His own trial was to begin at 10 o'clock. When he saw Fournier and the other witnesses for the state in the courtroom, he told Mr. Torrey that he was with his brother and Fournier when the breaks at Ballouville and Moosup occurred.

He entered a formel plea of guilty and was sentenced to not less than two years and not more than three in state prison.

Before sentence was imposed, Dr. J. B. Kent made a physical examination of him and reported to the court that he was evidently suffering from tuberculosis in the incipient stage and should have medical or institutional treatment.

Mr. Torrey told the court that he had believed in Breault's innocence until this morning. He further stated that, in 1921, Breault ha dbeen in his charge as a probationary officer after serving nine months in a Rhode Island prison for burgary, that he had conducted himself well, that he had entertained hopes that the accused had reformed, and that he still had hopes of him. Whether he would have remained straight or not he had been, he said, a victim of misfortune. While he was in prison his household goods had been sold, but Breault had managed to get enough together to resume housekeeping. Then one of his three children had died, his wife had become ill and was in in a tuberculosis sanatorium and Breault himself was in impaired health.

He also said that Breault had enlisted in the war against Germany and had served in France fourteen months, and that if he had sinned against society it owed him consideration for his war service.

A pathetic letter from his wife, written three days ago, was read. In it she said that while everyone in the institution was very kind to her that she believed now that she could not get well, that her temperature was 102 and that her cough had grown worse. She expressed the hpe that he would soon be out of his trouble and that they could see each other again.

Breault himself made a statement to the court repeating what his counsel had said; he was also questioned by Judge Haines. He told him that he had been at his sister-in-law's house here in Putnam one evening last summer, when his brother Henry stopped there and asked him to go riding with him and Fournier. They stopped at the Attawaugan company's store in Ballouville and at Henry King's supply store in Moosup, his brother and Fournier had broken in at both places. He said that he had remained in the car and that ne had received none of the stolen property unless some towels and a gingham house dress that were given him later by his brother had been a part of what they got that night.

In pronouncing sentence Judge Haines said that life had evidently been hard on him; that he would taken into consideration his military service, his wife's sickness as well as his own, but that he also had to remember that the law had been violated. In state prison, he added, Breault would have the benefit of expert medical advice and treatment which would probably restore him to health, and that it was possible for a man of 26 to "come back" physically as well as morally.

The sentence on the first count is from one to two years, and one year on the second, not to run concurrently.

Fournier was brought from Wethersfield on a habeas corpus writ, but neither he or any of the witnesses was required to testify.

NIANTIC HALL CROWDED FOR LIQUOR CASE TRIAL

Fines aggregating $300, to which costs were added, and 15-days' jail sentence on each of two counts, execution of which was suspended for one year, were handed out by Justice Charles B. Watrous of East Lyme on Wednesday evening in the case against Ruby Parker, Flanders storekeeper, who was arraigned before Justice Watrous in Odd Fellows' hall, Niantic, charged with violation of the liquor laws. Parker, through his counsel, Attorney Marion Davis of Niantic, had entered a demurrer to the complaint, which Justice Watrous promptly overruled and rendered judgment. Attorney Davis entered an appeal to the next session of the criminal court of common pleas and Justice Watrous fixed the bonds at $1,000, which Parker obtained surety for and was allowed to go. Grand Juror George W. Whittlesey presided.

East Lyme was considerably stirred up by the case against Parker and long before the court session got under way, lines of automobiles were parked in Pennsylvania avenue. Standing room within Odd Fellows hall was at a premium and one of the largest court gatherings of recent years was on hand.

Parker was charged in one count with actual sale of liquor and State Policeman Albright of the Groton barracks and two of the East Lyme constables were present with a sample of the liquor alleged to have been purchased from the defendant, together with a group of witnesses including some of the town's best people who were to testify in connection with the reputation count against Parker, who was alleged in the complaint to have operated an establishment reputed to be a place where liquor was sold.

Most of the crowd expected to see a lively session, but possibility of excitement along those lines faded when Attorney Davis demurred to the complaint and by taking judgment and appealing, transferred the case to the higher court, with the possibility of a settlement before it reaches that tribunal.

The case attracted unusual interest in East Lyme owing to alleged lax conditions in that township and residents of Niantic, in particular, regarded the action against Parker as the first of a series aimed at cleaning up the town.

It was the initial case for both Justice Watrous and Grand Juror George W. Whittlesey since their election last fall and their townsfolk credited them with handling the situation in very creditable fashion.

ITALIAN CHAMBER VOTES CONFIDENCE IN GOV'T.

Rome, March 12—The Mussolini government received a vote of confidence in the chamber of deputies this afternoon. The resolution was carried by a large majority at the conclusion of the debate on the estimates of the ministry of the interior.

CONCERNING THE MURDER OF THE OSAGE INDIANS

Pawhuska, Okla., March 13.—A conference held today by J. Berry King, assistant state attorney general, who opened a court of inquiry today to investigate the deaths of several of the wealthy Osage Indians, with county and federal authorities and it was indicated that a decision was being reached as to the issuance of warrants.

County officials scoffed at a report that a "squaw man" living in the Osage Hills, for years the retreat of Oklahoma outlaws, had inspired the series of murders and had become so powerful that he was hailed as the "Terror King" of Osage county. They declared no such man existed.

FREEDOM OF SPEECH.

That those who are the strongest advocates of free speech, and lay the greatest stress upon it, are often those who are prompt to suppress it, was well illustrated in a gathering of radicals in New York this week. It was admittedly a meeting at which all shades of radicalism were present but they were drawn together by a common belief.

It was a gathering where free speech was under discussion and where speaker after speaker was telling about how republics as well as monarchies put the ban on the freedom of speech. It was apparently an experience meeting in which general pleasure was obtained through the seemingly hearty agreement which existed. There was nothing to mar the harmony of the gathering until an I. W. W. leader gave expression to his feelings in which he undertook to compare this government with the soviet government of Russia and declared that there was nothing in the way of freedom here to compare with what existed in soviet Russia.

Nothing could have touched the hearts of the communists like such an assertion. That furnished cause for applause. They got much satisfaction out of the fact that someone had voiced their sentiments. But it didn't stop there for there happened to be one of the audience who dared to claim that there was no freedom of speech in soviet Russia. That was like stirring up a hornet's nest.

It was a meeting where the subject was freedom of speech, but those who were the strongest for freedom of speech and those who were unwilling to listen to anything which criticized soviet Russia immediately saw to it that there was no more talk along that line. The idea of criticizing soviet Russia was preposterous. No one could do so and go unrebuked and certainly there was no disposition to permit a repetition. It ended in a row with the communists suppressing that very freedom of speech about which they had so much to say. It was an excellent exhibition of what freedom of speech is in soviet Russia.

ELECTIONS IN GERMANY.

Germany is going to have an election to select a new president to fill the vacancy caused by the death of President Ebert. That is certain, the date has been fixed and the campaign is underway. There is no certainty as to the outcome and it is as yet uncertain whether it will mean two elections instead of one.

Under the law it is necessary for the successful candidate to obtain a majority of the votes cast. That with several candidates in the field and no party in the reichstag for years, if ever, has had a majority indicates the situation that confronts the German republic. It in fact strengthens the belief that the coming election will accomplish nothing except to automatically bring about a second election at which the candidate getting the most votes will be chosen. It thus seems to be a case of elimination with the first election giving slight promise of producing a president unless a combination of parties is effected.

Political manoeuvering is what is to be expected in Germany at the present time, the aim being to bring about a second election instead of settling the matter on the 29th of this month. With every party having a candidate and no party able to control a majority of the votes there can be no hope of the election amounting to anything more than displaying the strength of the respective candidates, and thus serving as an aid for the second election which would be held on April 26. The candidate getting the most votes would naturally lay claim to more support on the second visit to the polls, for being able to point out that more people wanted him than any other he would be able to capitalize that advantage to the disadvantage of the others in much the same way as is done in the case of an informal ballot.

Germany has political parties to spare and the situation is much different than in a country where there are practically only two and when an election is being held at such an important stage of the new German republic.

SAFE ROADS AND SAFE COURTS.

There is underway between the registrar of motor vehicles and several judges in Massachusetts a test of strength concerning the enforcement of law. The registrar has been calling for better enforcement through stiffer sentences, while the courts have been telling the registrar to tend to his own business and not meddle with their work.

Whatever meddling there may have been, if it can be called meddling, has been invited by the action of the courts in the treatment of cases brought before them. Registrar Goodwin in offering his criticisms, and they have been clear cut and pointed, has put his finger on the trouble, named the cases and showed how the ends of justice and the protection of the public was being neglected by the very ones who are relied upon to accomplish it.

In the opinion of the registrar leniency in dealing with many types of cases has resulted in the steady increase of highway dangers and a growing death list in the roads and streets. Because prisoners are discharged, probated after several appearances in court, slapped on the wrist, allowed to end serious charges by paying fines and returning to former practices, the registrar has been prompted to make public the situation that exists. Perhaps he is not perfect, and it is possible that he is subject to mistakes as well as others, but unless we are mistaken Massachusetts has the best of reasons for applauding the position which he has taken and insisting that the courts deal with the cases before them with some regard for the welfare of the public and not give their entire consideration to the violators of the laws whose acts are deliberate and deadly.

It would be the easiest way for the registrar to ignore such conditions and let them take their course. That isn't what he is seeking. He has the courage to reveal the state of affairs and the weaknesses of the judges and the public cannot fail to properly back such a champion.

The fight for safe roads is much needed. That cannot be denied. One way to help get them is through safe courts.

PRESIDENT VS THE SENATE.

Even though there have been predictions to the effect that the president would accept the action of the senate concerning his nomination for attorney general, and another would be named as it would be useless to attempt to force Warren through under the circumstances, it becomes quite evident that they have not voiced the attitude of the president. They have in fact been mut guesswork.

President Coolidge in resubmitting the name of Charles B. Warren for head of the department of justice has reasserted his confidence in his nominee, has showed his courage to insist upon taking the responsibility of making him a member of his cabinet and his displayed a spirit which makes it evident that he is not kowtowing to the whims of a crowd of political troublemakers.

In this attitude he should have the united support of his own party. If added reason for this is needed it is to be found in the endorsement which Mr. Warren has received from the Michigan legislature which repudiates the attitude taken by the Michigan senators.

If it is necessary to have it clearly established as to whether the president is going to be the master of his own household or whether he must submit to the dictates of the senate, a body which is made up of a majority from his own party, it might as well be done in regard to the attorney generalship as anything else. The president has taken the right stand and it is believed that he will have the support of the country in it, even as he was supported by it last November.

CROSSINGS AND RECKLESSNESS.

Before the New York legislature there has been presented by the governor the proposition of bonding the state for $300,000,000 for the purpose of providing such funds as the state may have to use in aiding the towns to do their part of the work. Railroads would be expected to take care of themselves.

This would mean a departure from the present plan of gradual elimination, and when it comes to the expenditure of such a large sum of money in a short period of time, it can be expected that other experiences might cause some hesitation.

In behalf of the plan it is pointed out that there were 148 persons killed and 501 injured in grade crossings of that state last year, but in making such a claim no attention is directed to the number of those cases which would have been avoided had there been the exercise of a small amount of care. Grade crossing accidents are too often cases of suicide and murder. They are deliberately caused when prevention is possible. It is that refusal to make the small effort in behalf of personal safety that is the cause of too many of the crossing fatalities and injuries, and the effort isn't to curb that recklessness but to encourage it through the penalization of those who can and are willing to protect themselves and have a reason to expect that others will do likewise. Perhaps New York is ready to pay the price of a third of a billion in one fell swoop to do for a small class what that very class refuses to do for itself.

KEEPING IN STYLE

"It's awfully wearing this trying to be in fashion," said Mrs. Dunbar at the club. "I think it is harder than real work."

"Dear me, you have high-flown notions if you are trying to keep up with the fashions," said the hostess. "I gave that up long ago. All I aim at nowadays is to be sufficiently in style to avoid attracting attention when I go outdoors. If I'm dressed, so that people don't turn around and smile at me I think I am doing pretty well."

"If you hold your head up high enough you'll be all right in any sort of garb these days," said Miss Clark. "If anybody notices you she can't afford to laugh because nobody knows whether a thing is new style or old-fashioned."

"At a meeting of the French study club the other day we had a little play presented in which the heroine wore such a peculiar gown that there was a sort of snicker that ran through the audience as soon as she appeared. We all thought she was going to be the comic actress of the piece, but it turned out that she was the heroine and her gown was made by one of the best and most expensive of the city's dressmakers. I can't say, even now, that I think it a pretty dress, but it certainly was the last work in style."

"I was looking at a crowd of women today," said Mrs. Drake, "and I made up my mind that you can wear anything you wish to and get away with it. Some had short dresses, some long, some full, some scant, and the hats were all sizes, colors and varieties. It was quite a comforting sight for one who, like me, has to wear her last year's duds this year again."

"I have a friend who wears her things in rotation," said Mrs. Flint. "She puts a dress away until people have forgotten all about it and then she brings it out, makes it over and appears in new gown that is admired by everybody who sees it. She has clever fingers and can make over everything, including lampshades and waste paper baskets."

"I ought to be able to do that," declared Mrs. Lewis. "But I cannot make anything look like what it isn't. Everybody always knows that my lamp shades are made out of old silk petticoats and all my handiwork is just as easily recognized, so I have to be extravagant and buy things. The women's magazines always tell you to run up to the attic and get that old brocade of grandmother's and the old rocker that great-grandfather liked and a few other things of the same sort and use them to make the guest room attractive, but the trouble is, first, that we have no attics and, second, our grandparents were hard on their belongings and wore them all out long before our day."

"When we were married," said old Mrs. Davis "we inherited a lot of antique mahogany that we considered very lovely and we cherished it all as the apple of our eye. We were noted in the vicinity for our wonderful furniture and we were proud of its reputation."

"Mahogany is lovely," agreed the hostess enthusiastically. "Just wonderful."

"It was," old Mrs. Davis went on, "until the black walnut craze hit the country. I was just young enough to mourn because my things were so out of date, so, as soon as Mr. Davis could afford it, we put all our mahogany up in the attic and invested in fine, heavy black walnut.

"Then my children began to be interested in our belongings and it didn't seem to me any time at all before they were quite ashamed of the old-time stuff and begged me to bring downstairs the fine antiques we had in the attic. We didn't have room for the huge walnut things in the attic, so we sold it all to a junk man who gave us about $20 for the lot. The children were satisfied because mahogany especially antiques, was all the rage.

"The only thing they have longed for since has been a tall lamp such as they used to call piano lamps. I went down to select one today."

"They are having sales of lamps at all the stores now," said the hostess. "So you had a fine choice."

"The salesman told me," said old Mrs. Davis with a laugh, "That if I wished a mahogany lamp I'd have to go to an antique store, as they are selling only metal lamps now, you see, to go with the walnut furniture that all their customers so greatly prefer to mahogany."—Exchange.

IN THE PUBLIC EYE

The resignation of Washington Gardner, United States Commissioner of Pensions, ends the public career of one who has devoted the greater part of his life to the service of his state and nation. Mr. Gardner has passed his eightieth year and is the oldest of the government bureau chiefs. His selection as head of the pension bureau was one of the first appointments made by President Harding after he took office in 1921. A native of Morrow county, Ohio, Mr. Gardner enlisted in the 65th Ohio infantry when only sixteen years old and fought throughout the civil war. On one occasion he was severely wounded. After the close of the conflict he took up the study of law and for a short time practised his profession in Grand Rapids. For five years he was a professor of Albion College. In 1894 he began his public career as secretary of state of Michigan. Later he served six terms in congress as representative of the Third Michigan district. He is widely known in Grand Army circles, having served both as commander-in-chief of that organization.

Robinson Had to Pay Up and Start Over.

After making changes in his paths toward a career, Henry M. Robinson drifted into a business that was at first successful, but later threw him heavily into debt.

Born in little Ravenna, Ohio, he attended public school and then Western Reserve Academy at Hudson, where he finished at the head of his class. Because of his marked ability in mathematics he was sent to Cornell to study mechanical engineering, but did not make a record for brilliancy.

Next determining to be a lawyer he studied at Youngstown, where his father was judge of the Ohio court, and at 22 was admitted to the bar and became a partner in a law firm. Then he found he was not constituted to be a trial lawyer and took up corporation law.

Becoming interested in several business deals he was successful. Then he took part in politics, with a partner bought a newspaper to help his campaign efforts. Soon afterward the opposition paper quit and he took over the plant. Although having no newspaper experience, the partners saw visions of a successful chain of publications and started or acquired papers in Kansas City, Boston and other cities, all on a shoestring. Then came a business depression and Robinson found himself with $88,000 in debt and without any newspapers.

Continuing his law practice he paid up his debts in two years, was made president of the People's Trust & Savings Bank of Youngstown, took part in prominent mergers and in New York independently conducted others that established his fortune.

Retiring to Pasadena, Cal., he became restless, acquired control of a bank and merged it with another. He soon was interested in electrical, lumber, oil and other fields. Next made president of the First National Bank of Los Angeles and the Los Angeles Trust & Savings Bank, he created the First Securities company, changed the trust company to the Pacific-Southwest Trust & Savings Bank and by mergers made it one of the strongest financial institutions in the west.

And he was appointed as the third American to serve on the committee which made the Dawes plan for German reparations.

Stories That Recall Others

Up a Tree.

Dorothy was making a racket on the back porch. Her mother went to see what the child was doing. To her surprise, her four-year-old was tugging violently at a long step ladder, trying to get it out of the back door. "What in the world are you doing, childe" asked mother, being much impressed by Dorothy's overestimated strength.

"I heard daddy say he was up a tree and didn't know what to do, so I was going to help him down," smiled the good intentioned little pal.

The Love of a Dog.

Chloe is an airedale fond of riding in automobiles. A friend recently called with a car to take Chloe mistress to a club meeting. Chloe was bitterly disappointed because she was not invited to ride and ran after the car protesting in a loud voice. Shortly another dog joined the chase, barking with great enjoyment. The third bowwow thought he would get in on the fun, as did a fourth.

To the great embarrassment of Chloe's mistress the car proceeded slowly with the four dogs encircling it, barking with fiendish glee. When the destination was reached the four dogs stood panting and wagging their tails, waiting for a word of approval, which strangely was not forthcoming.

24,000,000 CITIZENS BENEFITED BY ZONING

Headed by the cities of New York, Chicago, Boston, Baltimore, Pittsburgh and Los Angeles, a total of 320 municipalities throughout the United States, with a total population of more than 24,000,000, had zoning ordinances in effect on January 1, 1925, according to information obtained by the division of building and housing of the department of commerce. The municipalities range in population from the city of New York with its millions of inhabitants down to the smallest villages.

In adopting zoning ordinances, these cities, towns and villages have sought to protect home owners, and other land owners, in the reasonable use of their property, according to Dr. John M. Gries, chief of the division of building and housing. Zoning seeks so to regulate the use to which buildings may be put, the area of the lot which they may cover, and their height in different sections of the city, that the land in each district may be used for the purpose to which it is best suited. A neighborhood of small houses, for example, is secured against having a noisy factory site in its midst, with losses not only in peace and quiet, but in property values. The factory owner, on the other hand, is apt to have a better choice of desirable level plant sites with good transportation facilities, and provision is made in properly drawn ordinances for the orderly expansion of the central business district.

Sixty-two municipalities zoned during 1924. Of this number 28 have a population of less than 10,000 inhabitants; 21 have more than 10,000 and less than 50,000 inhabitants; and 13 have more than 50,000 inhabitants.

Of the total number of zoned municipalities 199 have zoned comprehensively, regulating the use, height and area of buildings, while 121 do not go quite so far, many regulating only the use of buildings and some few regulating the use and area or the use and height of buildings.

Forty-four out of the sixty-eight largest cities in the United States, with a population of more than one hundred thousand have zoning ordinances in effect. Of the combined population of all the cities having over 25,000 inhabitants, sixty-two per cent are receiving the benefits of zoning.

Prior to 1921 interest in zoning was not yet general throughout the country, and when the division of building and housing was organized in the summer of that year only 48 cities and towns were zoned. The rapid growth of the zoning movement is indicated by the fact that 159 municipalities were zoned by January 1, 1923, and 259 were zoned January 1, 1924. The first comprehensive zoning ordinance in the United States was adopted by New York city in 116; although Los Angeles, Calif., passes a "Use" ordinance in 1909; and Boston, Mass., regulated the height of buildings in 1904.

New Jersey still leads in the number of zoned municipalities, having 72; New York has 56; California, 38; Illinois, 36; Massachusetts, 24; Ohio, 21; Wisconsin, 14; Michigan, 9; Indiana, 5; Kansas, Missouri, Pennsylvania, Rhode Island and Virginia, 4 each Florida, Minnesota, Oklahoma and Washington, 2 each; and Alabama, Arkansas, Colorado, Connecticut, Delaware, District of Columbia, Georgia, Iowa, Maryland, Nebraska, Nevada, North Carolina, North Dakota, Oregon, South Carolina, Tennessee and Utah, one each.

An increased interest is being shown by the people of the United States in the enactment of zoning legislation to control the use, height and area of buildings in various districts in their communities, and in consequence zoning laws have been enacted or are being considered by nearly every state in the union. The first step is to adopt a state zoning enabling act after which the authorities of the cities, towns, boroughs, villages or other municipalities may legally adopt zoning ordinances to fit local conditions.

The legislatures of 34 states meet during 1925. Most of them are now in session and zoning legislation is receiving more than passing attention due to the [illegible] subject shown by the public at large.

Zoning legislation has been strengthened materially through the use by state legislators considering zoning legislation of A Standard State Zoning Enabling Act, that was prepared by the advisory committee on zoning of the department of commerce to serve as a model for those desiring to introduce zoning legislation in their states. The great care used in the preparation of the standard act has contributed much to its favorable reception. The states that used the standard act in whole or in part since its tentative publication in 1922 are as follows: Colorado, Delaware, Illinois, Iowa, Nevada, New Jersey, North Carolina, North Dakota, Oklahoma, Pennsylvania, Rhode Island, South Carolina and Wyoming.

British Stocks Up

The values of 365 representative stocks on the London Stock Exchange during October showed an aggregate appreciation for the month of nearly $170,000,000, says the Bankers' Magazine. The gain is made up of $105,000,000 in fixed interest stocks and $110,000,000 in variable dividend descriptions, United States railways depreciated by more than $45,000,000 to $2,1950,700,000. Among oil shares, ten of the leading issues appreciated $25,000,000 to $588,510,000.

A swarm of bees, perhaps en route from Japan across the Pacific, settled on a boom of the steamship West Nomentum, which was well out from Yokohama, bound for Portland, Ore. This is the first case known to the steamer's captain of bees swarming on a vessel at sea. He said the bees remained on the boom for several hours. He has no idea where they came from or where they went.

CONFUSION IN TEAPOT DOME LEASE ANNULMENT CASE

Cheyenne, Wyo., March 12.—(By The A. P.)—Hitting the high spots for the first time since the trial began, attorneys in the Teapot Dome lease annulment case today brought out the "pivotal point" in the litigation and then wound up the case in such a tangle of objections, technicalities and contentions that Judge Kennedy abruptly adjourned court in the middle of the afternoon to give government lawyers time to get a fresh start.

The question of admitting bank account records of Albert B. Fall, former secretary of the interior, who leased Teapot Dome to Harry F. Sinclair's Mammoth Oil Company, to show an exchange of Liberty bonds between Sinclair and Fall was taken under advisement by Federal Judge T. Blake Kennedy.

WILL CONCENTRATE ICY-HOT AND THERMOS IN NORWICH PLANT

The fine manufacturing plant of the American Thermos Bottle company on Laurel Hill is due for a considerable enlargement of its productivity and activity, as indicated by a statement given out by Vice President A. E. Payson Thursday, giving the information that the manufacture of Thermos and of Icy-Hot bottles is to be concentrated in the Norwich plant, which has sufficient capacity for both businesses.

The news that more business than ever is coming to the Thermos plant in Norwich will be welcome in the community in which the Thermos plant is one of the important industries contributing towards the maintenance of a pleasing condition in the local employment field.

"Since the merger last fall of The American Thermos Bottle company and the Icy-Hot Bottle company of Cincinnati plans have been under way to effect the economies made possible by such a consolidation.

"As a result it has been decided to concentrate the manufacture of Thermos and Icy-Hot bottles in the Norwich plant of The American Thermos Bottle company, which plant has sufficient capacity for both businesses. Production at this plant is being built up as rapidly as possible to care for these added requirements. In a like manner the two sales organizations of these companies will be combined with headquarters in New York city.

"There is a large amount of good will surrounding the trade marks "Thermos" and "Icy-Hot" in the vacuum bottle industry and the separate identity of these two products will be carefully maintained."

CHILDREN ENJOY PRETTY DANCING CLASS RECEPTION

A delightful reception for the closing of the season for the Thursday afternoon class of Mrs. W. Edward Andrews was given Thursday afternoon at the Wauregan hotel ballroom with a programme danced with commendable grace and accuracy by the children. Vari-colored paper caps and streamers lent a festal atmosphere to the afternoon and contributed to the pleasure of the little dancers.

Mrs. Andrews and her assistant, Miss Ruth Brown, were gracefully led into the room by Natalie Bailey and Myrtle Fuller, preceding the grand march, which was led by William and Elizabeth Lyman, Paul Latimer and Dolly Edmond.

The leaders of the march presented Mrs. Andrews a beautiful bouquet of roses and a gold piece. There was also the gift of a gold piece from the Monday afternoon class to Mrs. Andrews.

The class dances included gavotte waltz, minuet waltz, fox trot, collegiate, polka, lanciers, and Russian polonaels, the last named prettily led by Elizabeth Noyes and Agnes Greenman. A special number of the afternoon was the Argentine tango, danced by Mrs. Andrews and Polly Benton, Lois Latimer and Ruth Brown.

Bouquets of pansies were presented by Mrs. Andrews to the ushers, Alice Higgins, Lois Latimer, and Polly Benton, to her assistant, Miss Ruth Brown, and to the pianist, Miss Gertrude Platt.

STRIKERS STAY OUT AT HYGIENIC FIBRE CO.

The strike in the napkin department at the Hygienic Fibre Co. Inc., at Versailles, was still on Thursday night according to representatives of the women strikers, who stated that three girls went back to work Thursday morning but walked out again. Wednesday three representatives of the strikers conferred with the officials of the company and reached an agreement to go back to work, but Thursday night spokesman for the strikers said they had changed their minds about this agreement.

The strikers' representatives declared Thursday night that they were willing to accept a 20 per cent. cut in wages, but not the cut which the company offers which they claim is a 50 per cent. cut. According to the officials of the company the wage cut is approximately 33 1-3 per cent.

GIVEN SHOWER BY STAFF AT SANATORIUM

A miscellaneous shower for Mrs. Fred Strong, a recent bride, was given Wednesday evening at Dr. Campbell's cottage by the staff at the Norwich tuberculosis sanatorium, combining some of the features of a farewell as Mrs. Strong is soon to leave the institution where she has been a seamstress. Her husband is an attendant at the Norwich state hospital.

The cottage was beautifully decorated and the evening was most enjoyably spent with music and games, in one of which the shower-basket was presented to Mrs. Strong. The nurses rooming in the same dormitory with her presented her a handsome Kenwood blanket.

A feature of the evening was a spelling bee in which a team of nurses proved to be no match for Dr. Campbell's team.

Refreshments were served by the hostess, Mrs. Hugh B. Campbell, assisted by Miss Miriam Campbell, Miss Clara Christoph, Miss Villa Comsik and Miss Isabelle Mann.

FIRE IN THOMASTON DESTROYED TWO BLOCKS

Thomaston, March 13.—Fire of undetermined origin destroyed the Welton and Webster blocks on Main street in the heart of Thomaston at a loss of more than $63,000 late last night. Early this morning the flames were threatening the telephone building, adjoining the destroyed blocks and were still beyond the control of Thomaston and Waterbury firemen.

Telephone communication was being threatened as flames and thick smoke mounted by the exchange. A six-foot alley separates the telephone building fro mthe Welton and Webster blocks. Mrs. Katherine Tyrell and Miss Evelyn Muir, operators, stayed at their switchboards and handled calls while the red glare of the blaze shone through the windows in back of them.

Leirich Leads Eagles' Pinochle.

At the weekly pinochle contest on Thursday evening at the Eagles' club J. Leirich got high score for the evening, 7,245. Second highest score, 7,120, was made by N. Petrone and J. Bowne made the third highest score, 6,725. The session between the Eagles and the Polishers will take place at the Eagles' rooms this (Friday) evening.

WOMEN'S FARM SUIT DEFIES COURT MITTIMUS

(Special to the Bulletin)

New London, March 13.—Martha Cooper Tucker, a young married woman of Mystic, was arrested in New London last night for conduct that is not permissible under the laws of the state. She was consorting with two young men employed in this city, one of them, Roy Jackson, who came here from Hartford a few weeks ago, and who left employment there in a refrigerator plant, and the other one Fred Carr, a "hot dog" juggler in the Coney Island Lunch here.

Last midnight Mrs. Tucker went to Carr and he took her her to the room of Jackson in Golden street. The latter was abed but the visiting pair aroused him and went in. There the woman had staid one or more nights. The trio admitted their offense, the woman facing the charge that she was guilty of a much more serious charge than she was confronted with. She was prosecuted as a lewd and lascivious person and the same charge was made against the men. The latter were fined $25 each and as they had no money they went to jail to work out the fine and the costs of their trial. The Tucker woman was ordered to be committed to the state farm for women, which is at Niantic. A mittimus was issued by the police court here and Mrs. Tucker was given into the custody of Policewoman Jane Cassidy and Sergeant Smith of the police force to be delivered with the mittimus to the state farm. The officers did as the mittimus directed them to do, but when they got to the state farm they found that Miss Helen Hazard, the superintendent of the state farm, claimed to be an authority above any court order and she would not receive the Tucker woman. The officers left the woman at the farm, but in an hour she was back at the police station here, having been brought to New London by a couple of attendants from the state farm and left at the police station. Police Captain Pinney is a competent official and well posted on the laws, but he could not convince himself that he had any right, after the court had ordered the commitment of a person to the state farm, to receive that person back into his custody. He declined to burn his fingers in that way and when Mrs. Tucker was left at the police station Captain Pinney turned her loose. He declared that he had no right to hold her, that she had been left at the state farm with the mittimus for her committal there and he could not be convinced that he had any duty farther in the matter.

Judge Prince was advised of the refusal of Miss Hazard to receive Mrs. Tucker so he ordered that the Tucker woman be taken into custody if she was found in the city. Sergt. Cavanaugh, accompanied by the policewoman came upon the Tucker woman and they arrested her. Then an arrangement was hastily made by which the husband of Mrs. Tucker should take her and convey her to Mystic, where she has a residence. That settled the matter of where Mrs. Tucker is to be found for the present.

Now will come the defiance of the order of the court between Miss Hazard and that tribunal. For the first time on record in this city a mittimus issued from the police court has been ignored and the party committed by such mittimus has been turned loose without having served the term for which commitment was provided by order of the court. Judge Prince is not apt to be ignored in that way and he is likely to determine the treatment of an official of the state who defies a court and who declares that she is greater in authority than the court issuing an order.

Mrs. Tucker was employed in a State street candy store for a while and she was also employed at the plant of the Collapsible Tube company, manufacturers of dental specialties. The case has been much discussed by lawyers who had knowledge of it and they wondered whether Judge Prince was to accept the conduct of the state farm superintendent as warranted, or even permissible.

WESTERLY RECTOR HERE FOR LENTEN SERVICE

I think men are really earnest about their religious convictions, although at times seemingly careless, said Rev. G. Edgar Tobin, rector of Christ church, Westerly, in his sermon at the United Lenten service at Trinity Episcopal church Thursday evening. Rev. J. Eldred Brown, rector of the church, led the service and read the scripture lessons, Jeremiah 23 and Matthew 10 beginning with the 24th verse. Prayer was offered by Rev. C. Montgomery Budlong, rector of Christ church. Rev. Mr. Tobin took the text of his sermon from St. John, 14:6—Jesus saith unto him, I am the way, the truth and the life.

Our Lord had taken it for granted that His apostles knew very well, because of the instruction He had given them, what His purpose was, said Rev. Mr. Tobin. Jesus said I am the way, the truth, and the light. Jesus says, I am the way. A Christian is one who follows Jesus or aims to follow Him. There is no other way to be a Christian, Jesus says. Follow thou me.

I think men are really earnest today about their religious convictions although at times seemingly careless. We are interested in the things of the church. W want to know just how to get to God. We want to know the way. The way to God is a very simple way. The way to God is through Jesus. Cannot we point to the cross, and see there the way of tenderness, the way of love, the way of self sacrifice, the way of service, the way Jesus Christ himself chose to bring us to Calvary. Jesus Christ is the only way to God, the Father.

Christ says I am the truth. What did Jesus Christ mean when He said, I am the truth. How many times we have heard this question asked. That question is as old as the human family. How can we know the truth? If we want to find an answer to our question we shall find it in the person of Jesus Christ. There is no other way to find the truth but through Him.

What will give you a better conception of life than these things you find in the gospel of Jesus Christ? Jesus says I am the Life. We cannot come to God, the Father, unless we are quickened by the life of Jesus Christ. At the end of Life's Journey Jesus Christ is to use the gates of life. Truly Christ has said, I am the Life.

STONINGTON HIGH QUINTET BADLY BEATEN BY BULKELEY HIGH FIVE

(Special to The Bulletin.)

New London, March 12—Bulkeley High had an easy time in disposing of Stonington High at the local Y. M. C. A., this afternoon, and with Huck Taylor again the whole show for the Orange and Black, the conflict was awarded to the Whaler's by score of 33 to 17. The effects of the Hartford game was still in evidence in the performance of the Bulkeley team this afternoon, but with Stonington offering little in the way of resistence, the colors of the local school were hoisted on the mast.

There was some lax basketball by both fives in the first half, and the playing in general did not improve until the second half. Stonington tried the Notre Dame trick and sent in almost an entirely second team at the outset. But the Bulkeley five worked so well against the efforts of the Brown and White, that it was thought prudent to send in the first team players. Bulkeley used two teams in subduing the visitors, and the seconds more than held their own against the first Stonington outfit.

Neither team possessed a real punch, although Bulkeley gave signs of good basketball at times. However, in the machinery when it was in action with anticipations of a field goal seemingly bright spelled scores. The forwards bore in fast and received fast passes, but the inability to cash in few of these chances into scores kept the Bulkeley score so low. Huck Taylor was again the outstanding performer with fourteen points to his credit. This total consisted of six field and two foul goals. Several of his attempts for the basket were missed when the ball rolled around the hoop and fell harmlessly on the outside. Taylor's shots in the Hartford game were met with the same dismal failure. Stowell for Stonington was the only player who attempted to make things interesting, and he dropped in four field goals in the initial half, being the only player to score for Stonington in that period.

NURMI SETS NEW MARK FOR 3000 METERS RACE

New York, arch 12—Paavo Nurmi, of Finland, broke his own 3,000 meter record here tonight in a special 2 mile race, his time of 8 minutes 26 2-5 seconds bettered by 2-5 of a second, the mark he made in Madison Square Garden, January 15.

The Olympic champion covered the 2 miles in 8:03 1-5, five seconds behind his record. He had no trouble in lapping Andy Craw, of New York and Jimmy Connolly, former Georgetown university star.

Nurmi's race was the feature of the annual Greek-American A. C. meet. He appeared to be in excellent condition after a journey that took him to Hamilton, and Toronto in Canada and to Buffalo, Milwaukee and Cleveland in the United States.

For a time Willie Goodwin of the New York A. C. threatened him, but fell back at the end of the first mile. Nurmi's time for the quarters were 1:05 3-5; 2:12 1-5; 3:19; 4.26 2-5; 5.35 2-5; 6.46 and 7.55.

Willie Ritola, Nurmi's team mate in the Olympic games, ran 3 miles in 14 minutes 14 seconds, against his record of 13:56 1-5.

Willie Plant, American walking champion, defeated Phil Granville of Canada and the veteran Joe Pearman of New York in a two mile event but failed to establish new times.

ALONSO ELIMINATES RICHARDS IN FLORIDA TOURNEY

Palm Beach, Fla., March 12—Manuel Alonso, Spanish Davis cup star, recorded the biggest tennis upset of the year here today in overwhelming Vincent Richards, Olympic champion and second ranking player in the world, in the semi-finals of the Florida men's singles tennis championship tournament, 6-4, 6-4, 6-3.

William Tilden, national champion, swept into the finals by eliminating S. Howard Voshell, north and south champion, 6-0, 6-1, 6-2.

HEXATHLON MEET AT "Y" SCHEDULED FOR NEXT WEEK

Some interesting competition is to be afforded the junior department members at the local "Y" next week, when the events will be conducted for the national Y. M. C. A. hexathlon athletic meet. The hexathlon is an annual contest promoted by the International Y. M. C. A. committee in which Y's all over the country compete in the following events, running broad jump, long and short potato races, fence vault, standing broad jump, shot put, bar snap and the target throw.

The events are conducted under a definite set of rules and upon the completion of the events, each association submits its best records to national headquarters from where the winners are announced. The hexathlon arouses great interest in many associations and enables the young Y'ers to compete with other boys of their own weight on a national scale. Over 25,000 boys participate in the hexathlon each spring.

YALE FOOTBALL TICKET ALLOTMENTS ARE MADE

New Haven, March 12.—Regulations for the allotment of tickets for Yale's big football games next fall, were announced today by the alumni special ticket committee. These include the Army and Princeton games at New Haven and the Harvard game at Cambridge. There will be no restrictions on the tickets for the game with Pennsylvania at New Haven.

Under the plan adopted, undergraduates, except the freshmen, are allotted four tickets for the Army game, three tickets for the Princeton game and two for the Harvard game. Freshmen will receive four tickets for the Army game, two for the Princeton game and one for the Harvard game.

Members and graduates of the professional and graduate schools are allotted four tickets for the Army game, two for the Princeton game and one for the Harvard game.

Football players at the training table will receive 12 tickets for the Army game, 10 for the Princeton game and six for the Harvard game while those members of the squad not at the training table will receive eight tickets for the Army game, six for the Princeton game and three for the Harvard game. Old football Y men will receive eight tickets for the Army game, four tickets for the Princeton game and three tickets for the Harvard game. Members of the faculty will receive four tickets for the Army game, two for the Princeton game and two for the Harvard game.

The report states that the personal application system will be rigidly enforced at the Harvard and Princeton games, every applicant being required to pledge himself to use one of the tickets assigned to him personally or return all of the tickets to the athletic association for redemption. An exception to the personal use arrangements in the cast of the Princeton game enables a graduate to apply for tickets for a member of his immediate family. This exception does not include the Harvard game.

In the cases of the Princeton and Harvard games, the home team will be entitled to three-fifths of the total seats and the visiting team to two-fifths of the total seats.

SIKI-BERLENBACH FIGHT AT MADISON SQUARE TONIGHT

New York, March 12.—Battling Siki, the Senegalese, who once held the world's lightweight championship, meets Paul Berlenbach, New York's promising light-heavyweight, in a 12 round match at Madison Square Garden tomorrow night.

Siki, a polished boxer and hard hitter has been handicapped by lack of seriousness toward his profession, but reports from his training camp in Summit, N. J., say that he has been working hard for this match and is in excellent condition. He weighed 172 pounds at the end of his final workout today and expects to be well under the 175 pound mark the limit specified in his contract when he weighs in officially tomorrow afternoon.

Siki won the world's 175 pound crown when he stopped Georges Carpentier in the sixth round of a match in Paris in 1922, but lost it to Mike McTigue, present champion, in a 20 round match at Dublin, March 17, 1923. McTigue received a judge's verdict at the end of the bout.

TRAVERS WINS VERDICT OVER "MIDGET" HERMAN

New Haven, March 12—Tony Travers, of New Haven, was given the referee's decision over "Midget" Herman, of Orange, N. J., in a six round bout, the star event of a card presented by the Nutmeg A. C. here tonight.

Young Leonard of Wallingford and Vincent Forgione, of New York, went six rounds to a draw.

Steve Smith of Bridgeport and Benny Cross, of Newark, N. J., boxed six rounds to a draw.

Phil Mercurio, of New Rochelle, N. Y., was given the referee's decision over George Smith, of New York in a six round bout.

Eddie Lord of Waterbury, was given the referee's decision over Laurie Rich of New Haven in a six round bout.

Henry Montese, of New Haven, won in the first round from Joe Sullivan, of New Rochelle. It was to be a four round bout but the referee stopped the match in the first round.

PLAINFIELD AND BALTIC PLAY AGAIN TONIGHT

This evening at the Plainfield Community house the Baltic Wanderers clash in the fourth game of the Eastern Connecticut basketball championship tournament. Plainfield snatched a close victory from the Wanderers Wednesday evening and hope to have easier sailing on their home court tonight. Both teams will use the same lineups as played the record overtime game at Baltic on Wednesday.

The standing in the tournament is as follows:

	W.	L	Pct.
Taftville	2	0	1000
Plainfield	1	2	.333
Baltic	0	1	.000

FRIGERIO WILL MEET PLANT IN SPECIAL RACE

TWO E. C. LEAGUE BOWLING RECORDS SMASHED BY FILLMORE AND FOSTER

Roy Fillmore hung up another record in the Eastern Connecticut two-man bowling tournament Thursday evening when he rolled 1067 for a new high match mark in the match between the Aetna and the Palace at the Aetna alleys, with the Aetna winning by 110 pins. Foster, Fillmore's teammate, with 972 for the nine strings enabled the Aetna team to set a new team total record for the match, their total being 2039 which beats the mark of 2026 made by the Peerless duo several weeks ago. This victory gives the Aetna undisputed possession of first place in the league.

The match which was won by the Aetna combination was a tight game up to the seventh string when the Aetna led by only 10 pins. In the seventh string Morin crashed a ball into his foot and from then on the Aetna couple forged to the front. Fillmore had an average of 118-5 for the match. The scores:

Aetna

Fillmore 118 139 119 98 116 106 120 133 124—1067. Ave. 118-5.

Totals 2039.

Palace

Morin 119 97 126 115 108 111 93 107 98—873. Ave. 108-1.

Totals 1929.

Moosup Beats Peerless

The bowling combination of Chartier and McKenzie, representing the Moosup alleys barely finished in front of the Peerless duo (Bosworth and Sistare, last evening in the Eastern Connecticut league game at Moosup, rosing out the Whalers by 3 pins. Sistare, however took the individual honors of the match getting 959 for high total and had high single with 133. The scores:

Moosup

Totals 1863.

Totals 1854.

THREE CHANGES PROBABLE IN FOOTBALL RULES

New York, March 12—Three major changes in the football playing rules will probably be made when the football rules committee meets here tomorrow and Saturday to wrestle with annual problems which confort the rule makers every year.

The three changes which are expected to be adopted without opposition include the abolition of the first down after an offside penalty, the return of the kick-off to the kicker's 40 yard line and the return of the kicking tee for the kickoff. These three changes were recommended by the football coaches association and by other bodies interested in the development of intercollegiate football.

An effort to curtail the use of the forward pass is expected to be discussed by opponents of the open game but this is not expected to gain momentum enough to bring about any radical shift in the rules, E. K. Hall chairman of the rules committee, will preside.

HERMAN-GARCIA BOUT TONIGHT ATTRACTS WIDE INTEREST

Waterbury, March 12—Babe Herman, in company with his father-in-law, Billy Reedy, of Freeport, L. I., and a trainer, arrived in Waterbury yesterday afternoon to complete his training for his bout with Bobby Garcia Friday night in the state armory. Herman is the first of the combatants on the field for the fray. It was the intention of his manager, Jimmy Kelly, to have the Battling Babe remain in New York to complete his workouts for this important engagement but it was not necessary. Herman is down to weight right now and needs only light work the next two days to keep him on edge for his feather weight fracas with the Army Assassin in the state armory ring. These workouts he will take in Joe Shugrue's gymnasium so he may step through the ropes Friday night in tip-top shape for this important engagement.

Just how important Garcia regards this battle is shown by the fact that he will remain in his Baltimore training quarters until tomorrow to finish his work at top speed and under familiar conditions. Bobby was thrown off his stride a bit by the accident to his elbow a couple of weeks ago but since the injury healed he has been working on high speed as he should be at the top of his game when he comes here. Garcia will entrain for the Brass City after completing his last workout tomorrow and get in a night's sleep here before the battle of the morrow and incidently the battle of the year in Connecticut.

Just how important the bout is regarded in out-of-town boxing circles is shown by the tremendous demand for tickets. More than 300 ringsides have been reserved for Herman's friends among the Elks and Knights of Columbus in New York who are coming up for the battle. By telephone, telegram and personal calls requests for blocks of ringside seats varying from five to 50 in a block are coming in almost unprecedented quantities so Promoter George Mulligan confidently expects his large crowd of all time at the armory Friday night.

BOXING BILL UP FOR HEARING THIS AFTERNOON

(Special to The Bulletin.)

New London, March 12—Boosters of the one-man boxing bill which will be presented for a hearing before the judiciary committee at the state capitol on Friday, has special interest attached to its receiving the favor that it is expected it will receive, for local sportsmen who favor the bill. Naturally, a large group of admirers favor the bill and which is expected to benefit this city if it is passed by the appointment of Thomas E. Donohue, at present chairman of the boxing committee to the new position which the new bill will create. Numberless sportsmen and promoters will go to Hartford Friday, and this city is sending its quota of admirers of the bill.

The fact that the bill was reported to have originated from this city, bears all the more testimony that New London will be well represented at the hearing. Some startling disclosures are promised to keep the interest of the backers of the bill to the fever pitch which it now enjoys.

THIRTEEN TEAMS ENTERED IN YALE INTERSCHOLASTIC MEET

New Haven, March 12—Thirteen schools have entered the Yale interscholastic swimming meet to be held Saturday and will send to New Haven some of the best school boy swimmers in the east. Mercersburg, winner for the past three years, again is entered, and the other teams to compete are as follows: Allentown, Pa., high school; Battin high school, Jersey City, N. J.; Bayonne, N. J., high school; Brooklyn Polytechnic; St. Peter's preparatory school, Elizabeth, N. J.; Wilmington, Del., high school.

In the relay race, Mercersburg, Atlantic City, N. J., and New Haven, Conn., have entered teams. Team scoring will count this year and medals will be given first three places as well as the winning relay team.

The preliminary events will be held Saturday afternoon at 3 o'clock and the finals in the evening at 8 o'clock.

PARLIAMENTARY ELECTIONS HELD THROUGHOUT EGYPT

Cairo, March 13—Final parliamentary elections were held today throughout the country. There were no disorders.

The returns thus far received make the disposition of the parties uncertain. The zagloulists, followers of Former Premier Zagloul Pasha, gained 97 seats and the other parties 88 seats, while the results in eleven constituencie will be announced tomorrow and in three other at a later date. New elections have been ordered in five constituencies.

Included among the succesful candidates is Zagloul Pasha, who was chosen for the Said Azeinah district of Cairo and who received 173 votes to 10 for his opponent. Zagloul was the candidate of the wafd, or executive committee of the Egyptian nationalist organization.

WAS ADRIFT ON ICE CAKE WITH TEAM OF HORSES

Quebec, March 12.—Aime LaFleuf, of St. Antoine Des Fonds, adrift on an ice cake in the St. Lawrence river, with a team of horses, today was rescued, almost exhausted, by the Canadian government steamer Lady Grey.

LaFleur had gone to the relief of an old, one-armed man who had been cut off with his team on the breaking ice. He sent the old man ashore in his canoe and remained on the ice to save the horses, when the cake, carrying both man and beasts, broke loose and careened down the river.

MILD EPIDEMIC OF INFLUENZA IN CHICAGO

Chicago, March 12. — Seventy-eight new cases of influenza were reported here today as compared to 84 yesterday, and seven new deaths brought the total for 36 hours up to 30.

Since March 1, 201 persons have died of influenza and pneumonia.

"There is no real epidemic," Dr. Herman N. Bundesen, city health commissioner said tonight in a warning to the public, "but we want to prevent the spread of the disease as much as we can. It will be possible if people will take care of themselves."

NO INCOME TAX FIGURES ARE TO BE MADE PUBLIC

New York, March 12.—Income tax payers of Manhattan were given the assurance today by Frank K. Bowers, collector of internal revenue in the Second district, that no figures would be made available to the public this year.

In addition to withholding the returns, he said, district officials would refuse to make public any figures regarding the quantity of returns. There was a possibility, he added, that such totals might be announced in Washington.

POSTAGE STAMP TO BEAR PROFILE OF NATHAN HALE

Washington, March 12—A profile of Nathan Hale, Revolutionary war captain hanged as a spy by the British at New York in 1776, whose last words were: "I only regret that I have but one life to lose for my country," was selected today by Postmaster General New to adorn the new one-half-cent postage stamp.

The profile of Hale was taken from the statue designed by Bela Lyon Pratt, now standing on the campus of Yale university.

CAB DRIVER FILES $2,950 SUIT AGAINST W. E. D. STOKES

Chicago, March 12.—Joe Brunner, cab driver who testified he drove W. E. D. Stokes, New York millionaire, about the old Tenderloin district when Stokes was seeking evidence against his wife, today filed suit for $2,950 against Stokes in the municipal court.

The suit based the claim on "services" rendered to the aged defendant in the conspiracy trial in which Stokes and Robert Lee, negro, are charged with conspiracy to defame his estranged wife. Bruner sought a writ of attachment against Mr. Stokes' personal effects at a hotel as security for the claim.

NEW ENGLAND'S MOST VALUABLE CROP

(Written Specially for The Bulletin.)

What's the most valuable product of New England farms?

Now, don't begin by guessing "hay," or hunting through the agricultural department reports to see what brought in the most money. I ask what is the "most valuable" product, not what product sells for the most.

If you've lived long enough to cut your wisdom teeth, you've lived long enough to know that the market price, i. e. the figure at which a thing sells, has no more relation to the thing's real value than the name of a cat has to the number of hairs in its fur.

Pick up a diamond,—if the jeweler will let you. Study it, measure it, weigh it, look at it. "What's the price?" you ask. "Oh! a hundred dollars or so," is the answer, given glibly enough. "And what's it really worth?" you ask again.

Ah, that's quite another matter, and the chances are that even the jeweler won't understand that you're asking for entirely different information from that sought by your first question. In a commercial age and to the commercially-minded the worth or value of a thing is gauged by the market quotations. Yet, as a matter of fact, those market quotations are rarely if ever based on any consideration of worth or value, but solely on popular demand,—on selling possibility.

What's the diamond really worth? What's it actually good for? I don't mean to trade with but to get use from. You can't eat it or drink it or cover your nakedness with it. It won't warm you or nourish you. About all it will do is cut glass. And you can buy a ten-cent steel wheel which will do that just about as well. It is good to look at, some will say, for its sheer beauty. Ye-es, it must be exceedingly beautiful when you yourself can't tell it from a piece of cut glass, and it takes a trained expert with a complicated laboratory to make sure it isn't a fake!

As a matter of cold fact, all the diamonds that have ever been labored for and lied for and fought for, from all the mines of Golconda and Brazil and South Africa, while they would sell and have sold for untold millions of dollars, aren't of as much use to the world, aren't of as much real value as a pound of iron ore.

From that iron you can make a frying-pan to cook your breakfast bacon and eggs, or a tea-kettle in which to boil your shaving water, or a hoe to cultivate your cabbages, or ten thousand watch-screws so small it needs a microscope to distinguish them wherewith a thousand watches can be put together to keep time for a thousand individual needs. Or you can make scores and scores of other useful and necessary tools.

With your diamond you can cut glass if you haven't a steel glass-cutter handy. Or you can look at it by the hour and drink in its "unique beauty," while vaguely wondering whether it's a real stone or an imitation. Which must, truly, be very remarkable sort of pleasure!

To come back to our mutton, as the French say, we'll admit at the outset, that New England farms don't produce many diamonds or much iron. What's the idea of lugging them into a discussion of farm production? Well, it's just to emphasize, by a couple of outstanding illustrations, the difference between a thing's value and its price. Having thus emphasized, I'll repeat my question; What's the most valuable possible product of the New England farm?

The Rev. Dr. Fosdick of New York city gave the answer in a little story with which he illustrated a recent sermon. The story was this:

An English visitor was looking over a characteristic New England farm. It was, as usual, a combination of ledges and swamps, of steep hills and narrow "swales," and covered as to its surface with thickly-strewn boulders. "What do you grow on such a farm?" asked the Englishman.

"We grow men," replied the farmer.

According to Dr. Fosdick, this conversation occurred quite a long while ago. I do not know just how far back. Perhaps in the days of Governor Trumbull and Israel Putnam and Joseph Warren and Nathan Hale and Ethan Allen; perhaps in the later days of Daniel Webster and Ralph Waldo Emerson and John G. Whittier; perhaps still later, in the time of Governor John A. Andrew and Governor William A. Buckingham and Senator Charles Sumner. They were all men; not merely male human beings, but full-blooded, loyal-hearted, strong-souled men, representing and incarnating the highest development of life yet vouchsafed to earth. Every one was a product of New England, and practically all were New England farm-born.

Of course, I am not limiting or asking you to limit your list to the few outstanding names which come into my mind as I write. I read the other day with a thrill of pride the eloquent tribute paid to the late Judge Gardiner Greene by Frederick P. Latimer of New London. The concluding sentences especially impressed me. Probably you read them, the same day I did. But it won't do any harm to read them again. Mr. Latimer remarked that Norwich might, indeed, become, in the future more populous or even richer. But,—and here let me quote:

"But it, and our state, and our country, for that matter, no longer produces, typically, men who can take with them to a position in the courts—or anywhere, just the same kind of chivalrous conscientiousness as shaped the life of Gardiner Greene. The rising generation is not careful of punctilio. It derides 'respectability.' It is slip-shod and restless, moving dangerously away from the intelligent decorum of the past."

I have no patience with the sickly imitation of optimism which pretends to ignore the signs of the times. It is not optimism but damphoolishness which refuses to see the rapids in which its canoe is swirling or hear the roar of the Niagara towards which it is being swept. "O' ye hypocrites," said The Master to that same sort, nineteen hundred years ago, "ye can discern the face of the sky; but can ye not discern the signs of the times?" No, they couldn't and they wouldn't,—till they later saw them in the fluttering pennons of Titus' encircling legions and in the flames of their doomed city.

And then it was too late.

Is it too late for New England to reassume its Heaven-appointed role of breeding men? I don't know; you don't know. The veil of the future lifts no more for us than for others. We can only surmise. We can only forecast the futures chances from the past's history.

The thin and sour and stubborn soil of New England is, today, about what it was in the days of the fathers. It isn't an Eden of agricultural fertility, responding with exuberant harvests to the merest tickling of the hoe. It takes brain and brawn, gumption and grit to wring from it even a reluctant and grudging response.

In the past, the exercise of those admirable qualities not only produced an adequate living for the tillers of the soil, it also, by a sort of spiritual osmose and interfiltration, produced a quality of manhood that was of ten thousand times as much real value to the nation and the race as all the crops the intensest form of tillage could bring forth. The old Romans, who were the most practical of all ancient peoples, nevertheless had sense enough to see that bread and onions weren't the summum bonum of life. "Per aspera ad astra" they said which is, literally translated: "Through hardships to the stars." The meaning is, in our more verbose English, that only through the hardening effect of struggle and strain can be tempered the thews which win victory.

The amoronous lump of iron ore which we dig out of the mine can never become the sword of the victor till it has passed through the furious heat of the smelting furnace for the removal of its slag, and been again fused in the roaring Bessemer converter, and forged and reforged on the clanging anvil under the crashing strokes of sledge and hammer, and finally tempered in a bath of whitening flame. Then, and only then, does it become a blade capable of carving the casques of men, or piercing to the heart of ogreish giants, either of despair or of actual malevolence.

So with men — real men, I mean. They are not, usually, bred in softness and nurtured in luxury. They are shaped and sinewed by struggle; they are hardened by hardships; they are endowed for victory by their ability to withstand defeat.

A cow chews the cud and gives milk; a hog grunts and grows fat; that's about all either are capable of and all that is asked. No one expects anything more from them than butter and pork. Yielding those foods, the easier they take their lives the better everyone is pleased. They are given what they want to eat and expected to lie down and snooze when not stuffing. But a race-horse has to be trained and hardened and toughened so that he can have some hope of winning. His life isn't one of ease. Not by a long shot.

Again, so it is with men. The race may, not perhaps, be always to the swift. But it is always to the one who "gits thar" first. And the "gittin' thar" depends upon qualities of either speed or stamina which have been developed by repeated overcomings of opposition.

Adam seems to have lived easily and luxuriously, not to say lazily in Eden. And he certainly did make a mess of it for himself and the rest of us.

It is as hard to imagine a New England farmer living easily and luxuriously as it is to imagine North Stonington a tropical Eden.

Which is just one reason why North Stonington and Preston and Lebanon and a score of other New England towns have, in the past, turned out men and not weaklings.

Are they going to keep on doing it? Or are they going to forget the imperial worth of manhood in their eagerness to buy ease and comfort at the market price?

It is a good thing to make two blades of grass grow where but one grew before. It is a good thing to make a desert farm blossom like the rose. It is a good thing to have "modern conveniences" in the home and labor-saving devices on the farm.

But is open to grave question whether a diet of pie and pudding is the best for a training athlete. Or whether surrounding making for lesseped labor and increased opportunities for loafing are the most likely to produce real men.

Mannikins and morons the world has all it needs of, already. Cowards and time-servers and loafers and grafters are plentiful enough. But, is Mr. Latimer right or wrong in his assertion that in New England, in Connecticut, to come right home, the production of real men is lessening?

Isn't it high time that we farmers began to give more thought to the needs and possibilities of New England's most valuable crop, it's Men?

THE FARMER.

Says "Tiger" Sought Duel With Lloyd George

KEYSTONE VIEW CO., NEW YORK.

H. Wickham Steed, former editor of The Times (London), whose book, just published, has created a sensation in Europe. Among other unique statements, Mr. Steed, in his book — "Through Thirty Years" — avers that during the Versailles Peace Conference Clemenceau flatly accused Lloyd George of repeated inaccuracies and "Lloyd George rose, seized Clemenceau by the collar and demanded an apology. Woodrow Wilson separated the two statesmen. Then Clemenceau offered Lloyd George satisfaction with swords or pistols." Mr. Lloyd George has denied the story.

LIBERTY HILL

The March meeting of the Men's club was held last week Tuesday evening, with twenty-three of the twenty-five members present. Walter T. Clark of the New London county farm bureau gave a talk on reclaiming old apple trees and raising alfalfa, clover, etc. Lunch was served by Winthrop D. Davoll and C. E. Goodrich.

School was closed Friday afternoon. The teacher Miss Flora Bruce, attended a teachers' meeting at Lebanon center.

Mrs. O. W. Gurley, who has been in Willimantic hospital the past four weeks has recovered from pneumonia and returned to her home here Wednesday.

Mrs. Walter Griggs and daughter Lois Arlene, of Willimantic, were recent visitors with Mr. and Mrs. C. E. Goodrich.

Mr. and Mrs. John Clarke who have been spending the winter in Hollywood, Florida, expect to be home early in April.

For the past five days the mercury has stood about at the freezing point so that the ground is frozen and white frosts. In 1884, Feb. 27 and 28 there was a heavy fall of snow, Feb. 29 (Leap Year) at 7 A. M. it was 6 below zero. Clear and wind blowing a gale all day. March 1st at 7 A. M. 4 below zero. Clear and wind blowing a 16 above at 9 P. M. 1 above. March 2nd, 7 o'clock A. M. 3 above zero, cloudy, wind northeast. In 1856 March 10th the mercury stood 3 1-2 below zero at sunrise and seven above at noon the 11th it stood at zero at sunrise, 1856 and 7 were called at that time the two coldest winters.

MISS BLIVEN ENGAGED TO MONTVILLE RESIDENT

Mystic, March 12.—The engagement of Miss Eleanor A. Bliven to Charles J. Ramage of Montville has been announced by Mr. and Mrs. Ernest A. Bliven.

Glenn Gordon Hendrickson, age ten and hardly strong enough to lift a gun, made the only perfect score out of thirty-five contestants who participated in a shooting match at the Lewis County Gun club in Maysville Ky.

BURGESS BEDTIME STORIES

Johnny and Polly Chuck Have a Falling Out

If I with you cannot agree,
Of course, you should agree with me.
—Polly Chuck.

Johnny and Polly Chuck had awakened from the long sleep which had lasted all winter. They had been awake for a week or more. They had been very fat when first they came out, but already they were beginning to grow thin. You see, as yet there was very little to eat, and they had to roam about a good deal and hunt

"We won't do anything of the kind!" snapped Polly Chuck

very hard to find that little. Both were rather short-tempered. You know it is hard to think of your stomach and of other people's feelings at the same time. Your stomach usually comes first. It was just so with Johnny and Polly Chuck.

"There isn't much to be found around here," grumbled Johnny Chuck. "Come on, Polly, we'll go down on the Green Meadows, over toward the Big River."

"We won't do anything of the kind," snapped Polly Chuck. "We'll go up to the Old Orchard. I think we'll live up in the Old Orchard this year. Come on; we'll go up there now and look around."

"Did you say we?" asked Johnny Chuck.

"I did," retorted Polly Chuck shortly.

"But we are not going up to the Old Orchard," replied Johnny. "I am going down on the Green Meadows over toward the Big River. If you don't want to come along you needn't. The idea of trying to tell me what I will do!"

"Very well, replied Polly Chuck, tossing her head. "Go down on the Green Meadows if you want. I am going up in the Old Orchard. What is more, I have an idea that I am going to stay up there. I've had enough of living on the Green Meadows. I'm going to have a new home, and it is going to be where there are some trees. If you want to go down on the Green Meadows go along. Don't mind me."

"I'm going," declared Johnny Chuck obstinately. "The trouble with you, Polly, is that you think you can have your own way all the time. I'm just going to show you for once that you can't. Our new home is going to be down on the Green Meadows."

"Did you say our?" inquired Polly with pretended sweetness.

"That's what I said," Johnny snapped.

"But our means yours and mine," replied Polly Chuck. "If there is a new home down on the Green Meadows this spring it may be yours, but it won't be mine. So, of course, it will not be ours. The trouble with you, Johnny Chuck, is that you are too selfish to think of anybody but yourself. Don't forget that you are not the only Woodchuck in the world."

Polly Chuck turned her back and without another word started off in the direction of the Old Orchard. Johnny Chuck hesitated. He was very much tempted to follow her. In fact, right down inside he wanted to follow her. But he was obstinate. Besides, he was out of sorts. So Johnny turned and started off across the Green Meadows toward the Big River. He more than half hoped that Polly Chuck, finding that he was really going, would come after him. But she didn't. So it was that Johnny Chuck and Polly Chuck had a falling out.

GALES FERRY

A meeting of the village improvement association was held at the Country Club house, Monday evening, with a good attendance. The president Rev. Allen Shaw Bush presided. The minutes of the last meeting were read, by Mrs. Walter M. Buckingham, for the secretary, Mrs. Everett Noyes.

Miss Jennie G. Perkins was appointed auditor of accounts.

Mrs. Buckingham of the Educational department reported, the next activity, through the farm bureau, would be a talk and demonstration on April 9, by Mrs. Dakin from the Connecticut Agricultural College, on cooking.

D. R. Poven reported for the entertainment department that the annual birthday supper and entertainment of the association is to be held March 17th. Mr. Povey also reported needs of the landscape gardening department, and as deputy fire warden announced the closed season, for fires began March 1st. The treasurer, Walter M. Buckingham gave his report. Mrs. Buckingham and Miss C. B. Freeman reported, for the membership committee. The condition of the village roads, were discussed and referred to the highway department for investigation, also the sidewalks.

There was a large attendance at the March meeting of the Woman's Home Missionary society, held at the home of Mrs. Harmon C. Perkins, Tuesday afternoon, the vice-president, Mrs. P. Irving Hurlbutt, presiding. The meeting opened with singing, Jesus Lover of My Soul.

The devotions were conducted by Mrs. Perkins who read the scripture lesson. Rev. George Smith Brown offered prayer. The reports of the secretary, Mrs. Fanny A. Molthrop and the treasurer, Mrs. C. E. Colvert were read and approved. Papers were read on The Italian at the Door by Mrs. Amos Main. Among the Mountain Folk, read by Mrs. Minett A. Lawson. The Most Beautiful Thing, by Mrs. Molthrop. A field in New Mexico, Mrs. L. A. Hurlbutt. Chapter 6th, in the study book, was read in paragraphs by Mrs. Molthrop, Mrs. Colver, Mrs. Hurlbutt, Mrs. Lawson, Mrs. Cathcart, Mrs. R. I. Hurlbutt, Mrs. J. A. Birch conducted the missionary enigmas and gave the members, attached to which were St. Patrick's day favors. Closing hymn was The Call. During the social hour the hostess served tea, sandwiches, cake and wafers, assisted by Mrs. Birch and Mrs. Lawson.

Mrs. Delphine Fish entertained, a St. Patrick's day, party of 18 vocal friends, in honor of her niece, Miss Marion L. Rogers, who has been her guest the past week, Tuesday evening. Games were enjoyed including a Shamrock hunt, spelling words backwards and others. The color green predominated in the icing of the cake and the candy.

Miss Rogers who is in the clerical department of the administration building, Balboa Heights, Canal Zone, Panama is on a three month's leave of absence and is due to return April 5, Miss Rogers is now spending a few days in Mystic.

Lenten devotions at St. Mary's church were held Wednesday evening and Rev. Ludovic Paradis of Voluntown delivered the sermon in rench. This was followed by Benediction of the Holy Sacrament.

Many out of town sports attended the basketball game held in the W. S. A. gym Wednesday evening between Plainfield and the Wanderers of this village, which Plainfield won 32 to 30.

The Ladies' Community club of Baltic organized early this season for the purpose of a weekly get together social hour the members devoting their time to basketry and millinery met Tuesday evening and was called for their mid-season exhibition.

The work displayed both in millinery and basketry was referred to as being extraordinarily fine as to workmanship and variety of patterns.

This being a public evening it was estimated that some 200 visitors inspected the display. Many compliments were paid the teachers for their painstaking and earnest efforts in their instruction. The club is planning to have a final exhibition at the end of the season. A flashlight picture was made which illustrates the work of the members.

The yearly report of the Sprague Public Health Nursing Association shows that during the year all children up to the fourth and including the fourth grade have been weighed and measured. Also a physical examination was given each child by Dr. Thompson and Dr. La Pierre.

Reports were sent to children's parents where defects were reported. All in all the children are in first class condition. The nurse reports 877 nursing visits, 44 advisory visits, and 18 social calls. The work is progressing and the help of each resident will make the work easier for both nurse and board. The secretary and treasurer's report was audited and found correct. Mrs. Charles Barnes is president. The treasurer's report follows:

Receipts—Balance on hand from 1923, $447.45; 1923 seal sale, $203.85; town of Sprague $1500; nurse's fees cash $63.50; nurse's fees Metropolitan Ins. Co. $402.75; refunds gas and telephone $10.20; refunds glasses $10; total $2727.75.

There was a good attendance at the meeting of the Lincoln club Monday evening, guests being present from Providence, Danielson, Meriden and Canterbury. An excellent chowder supper served by the members of the executive board was greatly enjoyed by the men.

At 8 o'clock President Cleland called the meeting to order, announcing vocal selections by Mrs. Henry W. Fontaine which gave much pleasure; violin and accordion duets, by Joel Olsson and Carl Swedberg, which were well received; and a solo by Fred Ledger, a member of the club, which was heartily applauded.

After the records of previous meetings were read by the secretary, Ralph Hopkins, the president brought before the club the matter of an outing during the summer. It was voted to have such an outing and the president appointed Elmer Phillips chairman of a committee on arrangements. Jacob Weshcler, chairman of a committee of citizens on fire protection, was called upon to make a report before the club. After a careful report Mr. Weshcler called on two expert men from out of town who gave the club some valuable statistics on the situation.

The address of the evening was given by Rev. Chester J. Armstrong of the Baptist church in Danielson. His subject was The High Cost of Low Living. After a few humorous stories, Mr. Armstrong gave an able and interesting discourse, clear, logical and full of inspiring thoughts. The speaker was listened to closely and was heartily applauded.

A report of the treasurer, Harold Lewis, showed the club to be in good financial standing. The club adjourned, after one of the best meetings of the year.

KILLS CATARRH GERM IN THREE MINUTES

Chronic catarrh, no matter how bad, and cases of bronchial asthma now yield instantly to the amazing discovery of a French scientist. This drugless method called Lavex kills the germ in three minutes, yet is positively harmless to the most delicate tissues. Your head and lungs are cleared like magic. Sufferers are relieved in a single night.

To prove it and to introduce Lavex to a million sufferers in one month, I offer to send a treatment free and postpaid to anyone who will write for it. No obligation. No cost. If it cures you, you can repay the favor by telling your friends—if not, the loss is mine. No matter what you have tried, just send me your name and address for this generous free treatment and prove that you can be rid of catarrh.

"THE FAMILY LAXATIVE"

WESTERLY

In Superior court for Washington county this (Friday) morning, Judge Charles A. Walsh will charge the jury and they will consider the verdict in the $10,000 automobile damage case of Frank E. Brown vs. Mrs. Harriet M. Green, for injuries plaintiff alleges he sustained when knocked down by the automobile of the defendant which at the time was being operated by Mrs. Helen M. Bromley of New Britain, Conn.

At the time of the noon recess on Thursday at 1 o'clock the witness had all given testimony. Following the lunch hour, Dr. Michael H. Scanlon was recalled, as was also Mrs. Helen M. Bromley, in rebuttal. Shortly after 2:30 both sides rested and Judge Walsh announced that he wished to adjourn court at 4.30, but would allow Attorney William A. Gunning of Providence, for the defendant, and Attorney Herbert W. Rathbun of Westerly, for the plaintiff, one hour each in which to make their pleas, and the attorneys could arrange to have one plea made Thursday and one Friday, as they see fit. It was arranged between counsel to take 40 minutes and finish their pleas Thursday, so that the charge to the jury could be delivered Friday at the opening of court.

Mrs. Helen M. Bromley, driver of the car, was the first on the stand Thursday morning and detailed her movements during the entire day of the accident. Mrs. Harriet M. Green was recalled to the stand to give further testimony. She was followed by her son, F. Stewart Green, a passenger on the front seat of the automobile at the time of the accident, who told of his setting the emergency brake just before Mr. Brown was struck and knocked down, as he was passing on the sidewalk and dragged into the middle of Broad street, in front of the Westerly High school building.

Wednesday evening in Odd Fellows' Hall, was held the fourth in the series of whists given jointly by the [illegible] Narragansett lodge, No. 7, Independent Order of Odd Fellows, Ivanhoe Gardner, noble grand; and Hope Rebekah lodge No. 15, Daughters of Rebekah, Edith Smithers noble grand, of Westerly. The whist was well attended, there being twenty tables in play. F. Earl James was the winner of the first prize and Herbert Kinsman was awarded the consolation. Following the play sandwiches, cake and coffee were served and a social hour with entertainment and dancing followed. The evening's program was in charge of a committee from Narragansett lodge, [illegible] Whitford, [illegible] Young, [illegible] and [illegible]. Assisting the members of Hope Rebekah were Mrs. H. Grant Mrs. William J. Bamford, Mrs. J. Edwin Shoemer and Mrs. F. P. Freeman. On Wednesday evening, March 25th will be held the fifth whist in the series, which will be preceded by a bean supper.

Active work in the improvement of the freight yard at the Westerly station of the New Haven railroad was begun Tuesday when a force of men under Foreman Frank Baffi began tearing up the thick black mud in the driveways between the freight track tracks, located between the passenger shelter for west-bound trains and the freight-house. The mud, some of it nearly a foot deep, was thrown on flat cars of the work train, to be hauled away.

When present plans are completed, two new cement driveways will take the place of the mud. One of the roadways will be located between tracks Nos. 13 and 15, and will cover an area of 4,296 square yards. The other cement surface will be located between tracks Nos. 9 and 11, which are next to the passenger shelter. It is at the upper end of siding No. 9 that scenery cars for shows are placed for unloading. As the work of loading is carried on late at night the new drive will be of great assistance in the speedy handling of the sometimes bulky and heavy properties and it has often been the case that the auto trucks have become mired and the load had to be carried across the sea of mud. This improvement will be made in time for the new Colonial Theatre, shortly to be erected on the site of the present Red Cross headquarters on High street. The new pavement improvement in the freight yard drives will represent an outlay of $18,000.

By deeds filed in the office of the Westerly town clerk, March 9th Albert Langworthy conveyed to Hattie Duhamel of Providence a certain tract of land on the east side of the highway from Dunn's Corners to Weekapaug, the Langworthy road, so called, March 10th Valentino Campo transferred to Joseph C. Grills of a lot of land with buildings and improvements located on the east side of Main street in Bradford.

George O. Pease of Voluntown was arrested by Patrolman George Madison on Canal street Thursday night, under the influence of liquor. Pease will probably be presented in the session of the Third District court this (Friday) morning charged with intoxication.

A portrait of Harley P. Chase, a former employe of the Westerly post office, who was killed in battle overseas during the World war, will be presented by Edgar N. Chase, the young man's father, to Harley P. Chase post, Veterans of Foreign Wars which perpetuates his name at Vets hall, Walton block, Pawcatuck this (Friday) evening at 8.30 o'clock, at the conclusion of the regular meeting. Ex-service men have been invited to the meeting which will be followed by an entertainment by a minstrel trope, a social, smoker and refreshments.

CONCRETE PILLAR FALLS, BOY GETS BROKEN FOOT

(Special to The Bulletin.)

Westerly, R. I., March 12.—In company with six or seven boys of about his own age, Clarence Negrelli, 8, son of Santo Negrelli of 78 Pierce street was swinging on a gate hung on a concrete pillar, near Pierce street, about 7.30 o'clock Thursday evening, when without warning the pillar weighing about a ton and a half toppled over with the gate which hit the boy in the head and the concrete post caught his foot. Dr. Michael H. Scanlon who was called treated the boy for a bad cut on his head and found his right foot broken. The other boys on the gate escaped with minor bruises and cuts.

REVIVAL IS FORECAST AT NOANK SHIPYARD

docter in Indianapolis, is left $1,000 contract to repair three fishing steamers for the Consolidated Fisheries of New York, the Noank Shipyard is looking forward to complete recovery from the $150,000 loss sustained last May when fire destroyed half of the machinery and buildings of the plant. There are at present but 12 men employed at the Noank yard, but the sudden boom of business, which includes several other contracts besides that of the Consolidated Fisheries, the plant will be in position to employ a force of 150 men. This will mean not only a vast gain for the shipyard, but will also furnish employment for men in Noank as well as surrounding towns.

The Consolidated Fisheries contract was sealed several days ago and the arrival of the three vessels, on which the repairs will be made are expected daily.

At the time of the fire at the shipyard, none of the property was covered by insurance. For this reason there has been considerable delay in recuperating. Although thousands of dollars have been spent in cleaning up the devastated property, there is still much more work to be done. The woodworking shops have been fully equipped with modern machinery. The old woodworking mill, which was burned down, was, perhaps, the largest of its size in these parts. The mill was large enough to handle the biggest of trees and was well equipped with machinery. At present a steam drivn plant takes the place of the old electric mill, but a new woodworking mill is being planned. This will be along the same plan as the original shop and will be operated by electric motors. The largest mill is situated in the south end of the yard. The new mill will be placed on the north end.

The two ship railways which were destroyed by the fire have also been repaired and are now ready for use. The largest of these two railways will handle ships of about 200 feet, while the other is being used for smaller craft.

The yard now has under order, a contract to build 12 racing sloops for June delivery. Last year six of these were built and are now in use in Long Island Sound. These vessels are considered the fastest type of racing craft in the Sound. The vessels have a ruggedly built hull and by reason of galvanized iron air tanks are practically unsinkable. A 400-pound keel prevents the boat from turning over. The small boats are equipped with a 25-foot mast, carying the mainsail, in addition to jib.

Boat building operations at the shipyard are being caried out under the direction of Melville Daboll, one of the most prominent old time shipbuilders on the coast. Mr. Daboll has been in the ship building game for about 30 years and has a large following among the boatmen in New England and New York state.

The fire that cleaned out the north end of the shipyard also damaged three huge hulls. These were partly built steam freighters of the Ferris type which were left unfinished with the cancellation of a war contract by the United States shipping board. The three vessels were one-fourth built, and two of them were almost completely ruined, but the third can be salvaged.

Work at the shipyard during the past nine months has consisted chiefly of minor repair work. For this reason, there has been but a small force of men employed.

It is expected that the ferryboat Thomas S. Brennan of the Wench Marine Corporation of New York, which is now tied up at the shipyard, will soon be refitted with Diesel engines. Work on the ferryboat will begin about April 1.

Two fourmasted schooners are also expected to arrive from Boston in the near future and considerable work is involved in the repairing of these two vessels.

The yacht Felicia, owned by J. Ross Collins of New York, which is now hauled up on shore at the shipyard, will also undergo alterations as soon as it is put overboard again on or about May 1.

The Noank shipyard is the largest plant in Noank. It was established in 1855 and has been under the management as the Noank Shipyard, Inc., for three and a half years. Harry F. Morse is treasurer and W. J. Lackas is general superintendent.

The plant covers an area of 14 acres, located at the mouth of the Mystic river. It has been one of the most prominent shipyards on the Atlantic coast and as soon as present conditions, due to the fire, are overcome, the plant is expected to resume business activities on a larger scale than ever.

All cotton grown by the experiment station of the Louisiana State University is to be marketed co-operatively.

GAS IN THE STOMACH IS DANGEROUS

Recommends Daily Use of Magnesia To Overcome Trouble Caused by Fermenting Food and Acid Indigestion.

Gas and wind in the stomach accompanied by that full, bloated feeling after eating are almost certain evidence of the presence of excessive hydrochloric acid in the stomach, creating so-called "acid indigestion."

Acid stomachs are dangerous because too much acid irritates the delicate lining of the stomach, often leading to gastritis accompanied by serious stomach ulcers. Food ferments and sours, creating the distressing gas which distends the stomach and hampers the normal functions of the vital internal organs, often affecting the heart.

It is the worst of folly to neglect such a serious condition or to treat with ordinary digestive aids which have no neutralizing effect on the stomach acids. Instead get from any druggist a few ounces of Bisurated Magnesia and take a teaspoonful in a quarter glass of water right after eating. This will drive the gas, wind and bloat right out of the body, sweeten the stomach, neutralize the excess acid and prevent its formation and there is no sourness or pain. Bisurated Magnesia (in powder or tablet form—never liquid or milk) is harmless to the stomach, inexpensive to take and the best form of magnesia for stomach purposes. It is used by thousands of people who enjoy their meals with no more fear of indigestion.

PLANNING DEVELOPMENT OF S. W. RAILROAD SYSTEM

New York, March 2.—Recovering from their surprise over the acquisition of the St. Louis Southwestern railway by Rock Island interests, bankers and railroad men today began to conceive the transaction as another step in the development of a vast southwestern railroad system of more than twenty thousand miles, headed by the Southern Pacific.

The Rock Island, according to Wall Street's belief, has fortified its strategic position by obtaining control of the "Cotton Belt" lines, which provide important traffic connections at Fort Worth, Shreveport, Memphis and St. Louis.

Neither Southern Pacific nor Rock Island officials would comment today on the possibility of a consolidation of these roads, but it was unofficially intimated from Rock Island sources that this company would not attempt further expansion.

Rock Island's control of the cotton belt, it was said, has been acquired largely through the purchase of about 140,000 shares of preferred stock, most of which represented the holdings of Edwin Gould.

COAST GAURD PAYMASTER, N. LONDON, DUE FOR COURT MARTIAL AT BASE

(Special to The Bulletin)

New London, March 25.—Thomas J. Farrell, paymaster aboard the United States Coast Guard cutter Redwing, who has been confined at the New London county jail several weeks, charged with embezzlement of funds of the government, is scheduled to go to trial before a court martial at the submarine base Monday next. Farrell has been in jail about two months pending the assignment of a date for his trial. It has been commonly reported that Farrell's alleged defalcations amount to close to $20,000.

Farrell was taken into custody following his overstay of leave of absence and ever since has been a prisoner at the New London jail.

Miss Marie Hamilton returned to her home, Fourth street, this afternoon after having been under treatment at Lawrence-Memorial Associated hospital several weeks.

Miss Priscilla Gaskin, formerly of the staff of nurses at Home Memorial hospital, has gone to New York, where she will enter upon a course of studies at Harbor hospital. Her sister, Miss Martha E. Gaskin, formerly superintendent of the Home Memorial hospital, will leave tomorrow for Saratoga Springs, N. Y., where she will take a special course of studies after which she will go to Battle Creek, Mich., for further instruction.

Henry Winthrop, veteran letter carrier, is confined to his home, 10 Hope street, suffering from a fractured leg, bruises and scratches, sustained last night, when he was struck by an automobile owned and driven by John A. Moran, an investment broker of Norwich. Mr. Winthrop will be confined to his home a number of weeks.

Mr. Winthrop was at the corner of Jay and Colt streets last night, being off duty and in crossing the street, he did not observe the Moran automobile approaching. As a result he was struck and hurled to the macadam highway, fracturing his leg and inflicting severe bruises about the body.

The New London police were requested tonight by the Norwich authorities to be on the lookout for a Hudson sedan that was stolen from the latter city early this evening.

In response to an alarm of fire from Box 13 this afternoon the Pioneer Hose company speeded to the residence of James Brown, Morgan court where a quantity of soot in a chimney had become ignited. The fire was extinguished with chemicals before damage of consequence resulted.

Miss Lillian Belgrade, 17, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. David Belgrade, 58 Denison avenue, died suddenly this forenoon at the Mansfield, Conn., State Hospital and Training school, of heart trouble.

The cottage at 9 Grand street, a wooden structure owned and occupied by Mrs. Domenica Costanzo, was damaged by fire this afternoon and from all appearances the fire originated from a defective chimney. The damage, it is believed, will not exceed $300. Mrs. Costanzo detected the odor of smoke and going to the second floor of the building and into a room used for storage purpose, she found the room ablaze. An alarm was rung in from Box 313, Connecticut avenue and Grand street, and by the time of the arrival of the firemen the flames had followed along the chimney to the attic and to the roof. Several streams of chemicals were thrown on the burning building and it became necessary to chop several holes in the roof in order to reach the fire, before the blaze was finally extinguished. The room where the blaze was discovered had never been occupied, but was used as a sort of storeroom.

Peter Livingston, deckhand on the steamer Peconic, plying between New London, Fishers Island and Greenport, reported to the police this forenoon that while he occupied his bunk aboard the craft, which was moored at Chappell's lumber wharf last night, a thief entered his room and stole a Swiss watch and a gold chain.

Commissioner of Motor Vehicles Robbins B. Stoeckel today caused the operators' licenses of John Rynsazko, 32 Main street; Charles Weyant, 32 Ashcraft road, and George Brown, 38 West Colt street, to be returned to the owners. The licenses were suspended recently following the machines being in collision with other vehicles.

Hyman Cooper, proprietor of a mattress-making establishment on Lincoln avenue, lodged complaint with the police late last night that an attempt had been made to set fire to the wooden structure. Patrolman William Babcock's investigation revealed that a boy residing near the establishment had discovered a box of excelsior ablaze close to the building and that the youth had extinguished the fire, but he did not know how the inflammable material came to be ignited. The building was not damaged.

Patrolman Braxton Hill in making his rounds through Potter street this afternoon discovered a large quantity of wet garbage in the alleyway between the buildings 89 and 93. The condition was reported to the health authorities. It is apparent that occupants of one of the buildings have made it a practice for a long time to dump the garbage in the alley way from a convenient window.

Miss Marion Corcoran, daughter of Patrolman and Mrs. Michael Corcoran, Crystal avenue, a teacher in the public schools, was removed to Lawrence hospital this afternoon for treatment of a serious nature; it is believed that Miss Corcoran is suffering from an abscess on the brain.

Cases against Joe Pozella and Joe Spadaro, in which the charge is a breach of the peace in that the pair indulged in a fight in which a blackjack is alleged to have been used by one and a knife by the other, was to have come to trial in the police court this morning, but because Spadaro was not able to be there the case went over for a week, the accused giving a bond for appearance next Thursday. The row occurred in that classic section of the city known as Shaw street and was carried on in front of a meat market.

A woman taken from a house in Cedar street last night, and who is the mother of several children, deserted by her husband, was today turned over to the care of a woman who is to provide a place for her for the time being. The case that would have brought her to a trial in court was continued for six months, that the mother and wife may arrange to get away from the surroundings that are regarded as leading to vice.

Mamie Holloway, a negress, will not be on the streets of this city for a while. She was sent to jail from the police court today to remain a month and was ordered to pay the costs of her trial, which amounts to a sum that will keep her in confinement for 15 days more. She was on Main street last evening in the section between John and Federal streets and there she hailed two young sailors from the destroyer Downes as they were tacking up the street in a northeast wind. Mamie said that rain was falling, so she stepped into a doorway and there she hailed the sailors as they scud along under bare poles. They stopped, as all good sailors do when they are hailed and Mamie interrogated them to the extent that time passed and the police speed car went by. Officer Babcock was in it and observed the trio on the walk. He went back and from the sailors ascertained that they were stopped by the colored woman. The officer arrested Mamie for street walking. She told a rambling story in court today about having been married and deserted by her husband and then to leading an existence that showed her not in any way able to take care of herself and her children, so the court decided that the place for Mamie was in the county jail.

DESERTED WIFE OF 17 FIGURES IN DEPRAVITY CASE

(Special to the Bulletin)

New London, March 12.—Roy Jackson, who said he came here from Hartford several weeks ago and that he has since been at work a few days, and Fred Carr, a fellow who juggled hot dogs in the Coney Island Lunch on Bank street, will have employment at the county jail during the next six weeks. They were accused of being lewd and lascivious persons, this morning, when the police court convened. They admitted by their testimony that they had strayed from the straight and narrow path and that Martha Cooper Tucker, a girl of 17, who has been married and deserted, was their companion at the room of Jackson some of the time, that time being by night, and all night. A more serious charge might have been brought against the pair, but the Acting Prosecutor did not make the charge and the offense of which they were convicted carried a penalty that would shut the young fellows up for considerable time. They were frank in admitting their offense, so frank that the court had no sympathy with them for their boldness. Jackson admitted that he gave the girl her eats, and she corroborated that part of their testimony. The girl was sent to the state farm for women at Niantic. She has a home in Mystic, but she has been at work in New London for a brief time.

Why Millions of Mothers Now Rely Upon Vicks

An "Outside" Treatment Bringing Quick Relief for Colds and Croup Without Internal Dosing

Modern mothers know that too much dosing is harmful to a child's delicate stomach.

Vicks comes in salve form and is applied externally—can be freely used without the slightest harmful effect.

For croup and children's colds you just rub Vicks over throat and chest and cover with a warm flannel cloth. The ingredients — Menthol, Camphor, Eucalyptus, Thyme and Turpentine — are released as vapors by the body heat and inhaled with every breath all night long. At the same time Vicks is absorbed through and stimulates the skin like a poultice or plaster.

Colds go overnight, croup is generally relieved within 15 minutes.

New Bay State Senator-Elect

COPYRIGHT, UNDERWOOD & UNDERWOOD, N. Y.

William M. Butler, of New Bedford, Mass., has been appointed by Governor Channing Cox, of Massachusetts, as U. S. Senator to fill the place made vacant by the death of Henry Cabot Lodge. Mr. Butler only became prominent in national politics when he was chosen by President Coolidge to manage his campaign; but he has long been prominent and powerful in Bay State politics, having served in the State House of Representatives in 1890 and 1891 and in the State Senate from 1892 to 1895, being President of the Senate in the last two years. He was a member of the Commission to Revise the Statutes of Massachusetts from 1896 to 1900 and is prominent as a lawyer and head of several big traction and textile corporations. He was born in New Bedford and lived there, practicing law, until 1895, when he removed to Boston, where he has since made his home and maintained his law practice.

BILL TO ANNEX PART OF SALEM TO TOWN OF MONTVILLE IS REJECTED

(Special to the Bulletin)

Hartford, March 13—For the third time this session the speaker of the house had to announce the death of one of its members, the first Mr. Hutchins of Thompson, last week, that of Judge Ferris of Greenwich, and, this morning that of William H. Goddard of Wallingford. Mr. Goddard was a member of the committee on forfeited rights and capital furniture and grounds. He was president of the Wallingford Lumber Co., and a prominent member of the Masonic fraternity and the Rotarians. He leaves a wife and four children.

Representative Bell of Salisbury in reporting on H. B. 13 enabling attorney to place a lien for services, said that the number of the bill was unlucky and the committee, reluctantly felt obliged to make an adverse report.

THE HOUSE

Speaker Darbie called the house to order today at 11.31 and prayer was offered by Chaplain Lewis. Supplication was made that divine comfort might be given to the stricken family. The house joined in the Lord's Prayer.

At the beginning of business Mr. Clark of Haddam, called from the table the general deficiency bill, Senate Bill 548. The bill carries appropriations totaling $653,690 for different state departments. It was passed under suspension of rules on motion of Mr. Clark and then was transmitted to the engrossing clerk.

On motion of Floor Leader Alling, the house reconsidered its action in passing senate bill No. 136, which refers to meetings of the state board of pardons, and tabled it for correction in its wording, a matter that Mr. Alling said scarcely affected the bill but it was desired that all question be removed.

A number of adverse reports from the judiciary committee resulted in rejection of the following bills: No. 266, establishing a bureau of foreign and domestic commerce; No. 450, authorising registrars of voters to employ enumerators for the personal tax; No. 230, amending workman's compensation law so as to make it applicable to employers of three employees; No. 249, providing compensation of $7.50 a day for deputy sheriffs for attendance at district court of Waterbury; No. 12, providing for lien for attorneys' fees from date of beginning service; No. 548, concerning mechanics' liens and providing that material men must file notice at time they start to furnish materials; No. 866, providing for demand on execution against business agent of a voluntary association and member of such association; No. 350, providing for notation by town clerk that mechanics' lien in which no action has been taken in two years is discharged if clerk is requested to do so by some party interested; No. 370, providing for notification by the probate court to state bureau of child welfare intention of adoption of children, the application to be approved by the bureau; No. 375, authorising selectmen of towns to enact by-laws regulating closing hours of dance halls; No. 246, concerning commitment of girls over 16 years of age to state farm for women on charge of being in danger of falling into habits of vice.

The nomination of Joseph W. Alsop of Avon to be a public utilities commissioner was confirmed by ballot under suspension of the rules. The result was 189 yes, 8 no.

The committee on public health and safety reported favorably bill No. 657 requiring applicants for license to practice veterinary medicine to pass an examination in surgery and meet inspection. Tabled for calendar and printing.

Under suspension of rules and on report from the committee on claims the house passed bill No. 181, paying John S. Miller of Brooklyn $200 damages caused by alterations in state highway; and a bill paying $480.02 taxes to the town of Portland on the list of 1921-23 on land used for state park preserve.

A resolution was adopted giving the use of the hall of the house on the afternoon of March 25 to the committee on cities and boroughs for hearings on zoning bills. An adverse report from the committee on cities and boroughs the house rejected again the bill annexing a portion of the town of Salem to Montville.

Adverse reports from the committee on roads, bridges and rivers resulted in rejection of bills: Restricting horse drawn vehicles on state highways; providing for affidavits in licensing motor vehicle operators; providing for stop lights on trolley cars; prohibiting parking adjacent to fire houses and police stations.

At 12.40 the house adjourned in respect to the memory of Mr. Goddard.

SENATE

The senate was called to order at 11.20 by Lieutenant-Governor Brainard. Senator Anderson of Waterbury soon succeeded the lieutenant-governor in the occupancy of the chair.

The committee on claims made unfavorable reports on the bills to reimburse James Stathis and others for damage to automobile and injuries sustained in a collision with a truck owned by the state; and on the claim of John P. Maguire of New Britain for the payment of $7,500 for loss on contract with the state. The claims were rejected.

The committee on military affairs reported unfavorably on senate bill No. 507 relating to long service medals for former members of the C. N. G. Senator Doty, the chairman of the committee, stated that another bill on the subject would be reported favorably later. The report was accepted and the bill rejected.

Unfavorable Reports

Unfavorable reports were received from the committee on the judiciary as follows: Senate bill No 298, concerning the filing of certificates of appointment of receivers for corporations; No. 297, concerning investment of trust funds; No. 294, disposed of money received by courts from defaulted bonds in motor vehicle cases; No. 123, relating to the time when executors and others may purchase property belonging to the estate; No. 300, filing of certificates of appointment of trustees of bankrupt estates. The bills were rejected.

The committee on the judiciary reported unfavorably in the state senate today on the bill to provide a system of old age pensions by which persons reaching the age of 70 years would be entitled to a pension of $200 a year. Senator Shaw, who explained the report of the committee, said that the proponents of the bill had asked for appointment of a commission to inquire into the matter of old age pensions. The committee will report later a bill for the raising of the commission. The report of the committee was accepted and the bill rejected.

The committee on the judiciary reported unfavorably on the bill "for a pension system for state employes." It requests the board of control to report April 1, 1925 on a uniform system of pensioning efficient, faithful, loyal and long time state employes. Senator Shaw, for the committee, stated that the committee had under consideration a number of requests from six state employes for pensions. The bill was rejected.

LEFFINGWELL

Miss Mildred F. Leffingwell spent the week end with Mr. and Mrs. N. E. Whiting, of Benjamin street, Norwich.

Mr. and Mrs. Mason F. Coggeshall from Trading Cove, were visitors on Sunday with Mr. and Mrs. Jerome Taylor.

Friday evening the Leffingwell School Improvement League held its March meeting at the school house, in charge of the following committee: R. T. Mowrey, Jules Goldberg, Morris Moskowitz, Russell Taylor, Grant Tibbets, Harmon Murphy, John Hracyk and Paul Clifford. The meeting began with singing by all, The Battle Hymn of the Republic. The secretary's report was read and accepted, also that of the treasurer. The followed a piano solo by Joseph A. Elliott; reading, The History of Leffingwell, by Russell Murray; solo, March, Gilbert Caroline; reading, The Father of the Man, H. E. Beard. S. Sussey Reed gave a report on the N. E. A. convention. The president, Mrs. Joseph A. Elliott appointed the following committees for the April meeting: Entertainment, Mrs. Edward Caroline, Elsie Clifford and Miss Pearl Murphy; refreshments, Mrs. Ida Wheeler, Mr. Reed then gave out the words for the spelling match which caused much amusement and ended in a tie. Refreshments served by the committee consisted of sandwiches, hot dogs and coffee. A large crowd was present and spent a very pleasant social evening.

Between peep-frogs' music and wild ducks flying over the residents at Leffingwell are certain that spring is on the way.

Harold Rose of Bean Hill was a guest Sunday of Mr. and Mrs. Harry E. Bedat.

Guests Sunday of Mr. and Mrs. R. T. Mowrey were Miss Hattie Mowrey, Miss Nancy Patridge, and Edward MacGonegal of Norwich.

Mr. and Mrs. Edward Griffith and Mr. and Mrs. Frank A. Gardner of East Great Plain were callers Sunday on Mr. and Mrs. John J. Ross.

Frank Gauthier of New Haven was a recent visitor in Leffingwell.

Mrs. Justine Bedat, Mrs. Timothy Sullivan and daughter, Patricia, of Maple street, Norwich, were guests on Sunday of Mr. and Mrs. Harry E. Bedat.

FINANCIAL AND COMMERCIAL

STOCK PRICES HIGHER.

New York, March 12—Speculators for the advance regained control of today's stock market, which moved irregularly higher under the leadership of the railroad and public utility shares. Many active issues showed net gains of one to three points with a dozen or so specialties scoring advances of 5 to 11 points.

There was a marked relaxation of selling pressure at the opening and prices bounded upward in all sections of the list. Bear traders covered freely with the market showing a tendency to dullness when their immediate requirements had been met.

Buying of the rails was stimulated by the market improvement in earnings shown by the Class 1 Carriers in January as compared with the same month last year, and rumors of other favorable dividend and merger developments affecting the southwestern carriers. The three Wabash issues recorded new peak prices for the year on extreme gains of 2 to 3 points. Rock Island closed 2 points higher at 52 1-4. Western Pacific, which recorded a sensational 16 points advance yesterday by touching 66, forfeited more than half of its gain, closing at 46 1-4.

Reading was bid up over 3 points to 79 1-4 and then eased to 78 3-4. Norfolk and Western showed an extreme gain of 4 1-2 points at 131 1-4 and then stopped back to 130 1-2. Good buying also was noted in Atlanta, Birmingham and Atlantic, Atlantic Coast Line, Canadian Pacific, Chicago and Alton preferred, Chicago and Eastern Illinois common and preferred, Lackawanna Pere Marquette, Frisco Common, St. Louis Southwestern common and preferred, Seaboard Air Line preferred, and Texas and Pacific, all of which closed 1 to 3 1-2 points higher.

Utah securities soared over 10 points to a record top at 69 3-8 on reports that its assets would be taken over by a new company, an announcement to this effect being made after the market closed. Laclede Gas soared 6 3-4 points to 161 3-4. The Federal Light and Traction issues each advanced about two points on the announcement of a proposed split up of the stock. American Water Works common and six per cent preferred and Public Service of New Jersey also attained new peak prices for the year.

The rise in the so-called pivoted industrials was a more orderly one. U. S. Steel crossed 124 and then slipped back to 123 3-4, up 1-2. Baldwin showed a net gain of 1 5-8 at 137 1-4 and American SaCn closed 1-4 higher at 177 3-4 after selling two points above that figure. Studebaker showed a small fractional gain at 44 1-4.

General Electric soared 13 points to 297, closing a point below the top. Loose Wiles 2nd pfd jumped nearly 8 points to 44 1-2 on an official denial of reports that there will be a change in management. Other outstanding strong spots included Public Service Corporation of New Jersey, American Linseed Preferred, Associated Dry Goods, the Commercial Solvents issues, Magma Copper, Loews Inc., Famous Players and Pressed Steel Car, the net gains in which ran from 3 to 7 points.

Call money renewed at 4 1-2 per cent and then dropped to four. Time money and Commercial Paper rates were unchanged.

A firm undertone characterized the foreign exchange market. Sterling was in brisk demand, demand bills selling about 3-4 of a cent higher around $4.77 5-8. French francs and Italian lire eased slightly but most of the other European rates showed moderate gains.

SHOWS ALCOHOLIC INSANITY LESS UNDER PROHIBITION

Despite the general notion that the poisonous and inferior liquor which is being consumed has increased alcoholic insanity, the reports of the Connecticut state institutions for the insane prove exactly the contrary, according to a statement prepared by the Connecticut council of law enforcement and the Connecticut anti-saloon league.

The statistics supporting this statement are obtained from the Middletown asylum, the Norwich state hospital and the Norwich state farm for inebriates.

In Middletown during the years 1915, 1916, and 1917 (the last years before prohibition) admissions of patients with alcoholic psychoses were, respectively, 72, 81 and 71. Commitments for the years 1922, 1923 and 1924 were, respectively 23, 18 and 24.

The larger number of alcoholic patients have been sent to the Norwich state institution. A dual report was issued by the Norwich institution for 1915 and 1916 showing 238 admissions for alcoholic psychoses. In the year 1917 a considerable number of alcoholic patients were transferred to the Norwich State farm for inebriates, leaving only 76 at the institution for the insane. The last three years show, respectively 24, 18 and 23 such patients.

Whatever may be the effect of poison-hooch, it does not produce insanity like that which the old liquor produced, the conclusion being that people do not drink so much of it.

Because of the increase in the number of drunkards whose habit had become a mania, the Connecticut State farm for inebriates was established at Norwich by the legislature in 1915. It began with 193 inmates; in 1917 there were 237. The gradual introduction of prohibition, culminating in the state liquor law of 1921, resulted in the discontinuance of the farm in that year.

The report of the superintendent for 1920 states: "We received by commitments as alcoholic inebriates about one a month compared with 13 a month prior to the enforcement of the Volstead act." Despite the increase in jail commitments for drunkenness, the type of alcoholic victims which were formerly sent to that institution has not increased to such a number as to warrant even the discussion of reopening the state farm.

Only a very small amount of liquor is offered for consumption in this state that is not poisonous, or adulterated with some deleterious substance, it is claimed. The crude products of the home stills are always poisonous. Redistilled denatured alcohol always contains traces and usually a considerable quantity of the denaturants which were intended to make the industrial alcohol undrinkable. Liquor of standard quality which is released from bonded warehouses, or imported into this country, and falls into the hands of the bootlegger is never sold in its pure state, but is used to flavor synthetic liquor and redistilled denatured alcohol.

Long before prohibition, the laboratory was rapidly displacing with its synthetic liquor the distillery and the bonded warehouses. It was digusted with this condition of affairs that helped to bring the easy victory of prohibition. Synthetic and adulterated liquor can deceive the most discerning taste and there is no defense against it except by law. Such a law might go far toward enforcing the Connecticut liquor act. It would put an additional penalty on nearly all offenders.

The proposed act to amend the Connecticut liquor law is for the purpose of strengthening the enforcement of the 18th amendment. Section 10 of Chapter 291 of the Public acts of 1921 is amended to read as follows:

"Any person who violates the provisions of this act shall, except as herein otherwise provided, for a first offense be fined not more than $500 or imprisoned not more than 90 days, or both; for a second offense, shall be fined not more than $2000 and imprisoned not more than one year and for any subsequent offense shall be fined not more than $5000 and imprisoned not more than five years."

The amended act is intended to be elastic enough to reach the big violators. It enables the court to fine an offender a large enough amount to wipe out his profits. A bar tender will not be so willing to plead guilty to his employer's offense when it may bring him a 90 day stay in jail for a first offense and a longer period for a subsequent offense.

Drastic penalties are often more merciful than mild and suspended ones. Men are not led into the bootlegging business except as a means of gain. The bootlegger carefully balancing his prospective profits against the possible consequences of detection and punishment. He will stay in it just as long as it looks good to him and will quit the game when it is not worth the risk.

Another provision in this law returns to the towns where the cases originated the costs and fines assessed in those courts when the cases were sustained on appeal. The jail sentence of the Connecticut liquor law, is, to all intents and purposes, nullified in many lower courts because of the threat of the accused to appeal his case if he is sent to jail. Such an appeal, at present, automatically results in the loss to the town of the fines that have been imposed. Judges and prosecutors do not like to see good money slip away from their own town. Very frequently it is from the liquor fines that special investigators are paid to clean up a community.

The present law puts the court of common pleas in the position to bid for liquor cases by systematically lowering a little the original sentence when appealed and has enabled the courts of common pleas to present excellent financial reports at the expense of the courts of the towns and cities which went to the expense and trouble of securing the evidence and originally trying the cases. The amendment is in the interest or successful local law enforcement.

BINGHAM'S RAPID RISE CRITICISED BY NORRIS

Senator Bingham's rapid rise to good committee assignments in the senate at Washington, his progress taking him over some members senior in service to him, was criticized in the open senate this week by the independent republican, Norris of Nebraska.

Norris was attacking the committee assignments made by the republican majority, with special reference to his colleague, Howell of Nebraska, another independent sort of republican who has not earned the love of the regulars. Mr. Norris said:

"But now we come to the committee on territories and insular possessions. We find a new member, the senator from Connecticut (Mr. Bingham) put on the committee on territories and insular possessions. As between the senator from Connecticut and my colleague under the seniority rule my colleague was entitled to it.

"The committee on commerce is another committee where the senator from Connecticut (Mr. Bingham) was placed over my colleague. Again, if the seniority rule is any good, my colleague would have been entitled to a place on that committee."

FINDS LITTLE SUPPORT FOR KINDERGARTEN BILL

John J. Egan of New Haven, representing the Connecticut Federation of Labor, who drew a kindergarten bill for the Connecticut legislature, found little support for his measure at a hearing before the legislative committee on education at the capitol Wednesday. The bill would make it compulsory for the board of education to establish a kindergarten in a district on petition of 25 per cent. of the families in that district and it appears the cost would fall on the entire town. Mr. Egan argued that such legislation was necessary to get kindergartens for the people who wanted them, and he said that in several of the larger cities there were districts which had no kindergartens. The bill also limited the teaching staff to those who had had two years in a training school for kindergarteners. The bill was opposed by Miss Green of Granby and by several Hartford educators.

Commissioner Meredith of the state board of education said that at present the law is that a town school committee may establish a kindergarten in its discretion and judgment, and he said the proposed law would bar out teachers who had taken the kindergarten training in the normal schools. He remarked that there are 463 kindergarten teachers in 265 schools, that town school committees last year expended $531,601 in maintenance, and there were 12,559 pupils enrolled.

Dr. Meredith also registered the opposition of the state board to the teachers' certificate bill, a measure that he suspected had a personal reason behind it. It amends Section 1049 and makes it mandatory to issue a special state teacher's certificate to a person having had one year's successful teaching in any special subject enumerated, and prevents the applicant from being barred because of inability to conform to the requirement of a high school education.

Senator Ford of New Haven appeared in hearty support of Mrs. Hannah Townshend's bill providing equal pay for teachers without discrimination for sex. Equal pay for equal service seemed to strike a responsive chord in the hearts of the teachers present. Representative Hill of Shelton supported it, and why shouldn't he—he has three daughters who are school teachers, he said. A number of present in support of the bill and Miss Margaret Hicks, representing the League of Women Voters, also spoke for it.

THURSDAY PINOCHLE CLUB HAVING CLOSE CONTEST

The Thursday afternoon pinochle club was entertained this week at the home of Mrs. Frederick Evarts of Smith avenue, Mrs. William Murray took the first prize of the afternoon with a score of 8695. The second prize went to Mrs. Herman Pukallus, with a score of 8185, while Mrs. Evarts received the consolation trophy with a score of 6725.

There is strong competition among the members as scores are running very close. Following are the scores to date: Mrs. Roswell J. P. Brown 31855, Mrs. John O. Peckham 31640, Mrs. George Brenn 31270, Mrs. Louis Mitchell, 30805, Mrs. William Murray 30670, Mrs. Herman Pukallus 30390, Mrs. Henry Geer 30230, Mrs. Charles Wright 29985, Mrs. Milo R. Waters 29955, Mrs. Harry Mason 29840, Mrs. Carl Geib 28615, Mrs. Frederick Evarts 27385. The hostess served refreshments at the conclusion of the play.

Mrs. Henry Geer of Trading Cove, will be the hostess at the meeting next week.

Raymond Library Branch Quarters.

The Raymond Library Branch at Uncasville has moved to its new quarters in the Uncasville-Shelton company's building next to the Community House and will be open on Tuesday and Thursday evenings as usual.

The Uncasville-Shelton company have generously granted the use of the building, lighting and heating it, rent free, for which the public are truly grateful as it is an ideal location.

Also gratitude is due Frederick Johnson who since 1913 has so kindly furnished a room for the library.

REV. A. H. ABBOTT SPEAKS BEFORE THE LIONS CLUB

There was a large attendance at the meeting of the Norwich Lions club, held Thursday noon, at the Wauregan Hotel, with President Edward Carpenter in charge. Lion George Madden was song leader and a number of club songs were indulged in before the business session. President Carpenter announced the entertainment committee for April as follows: J. B. Caron, George Fullerton and Dr. David Sussler. A committee was also appointed to conduct the Lions national attendance contest during the month of April.

The meeting was then turned over to Lion Abner Schwartz who introduced Lion Dr. Kopland Markoff as speaker of the day and later introduced Lion Dr. Kopland Markoff as principal speaker, his subject to be, The Golden Rule and the Policeman.

In his address which held the close attention of all present, Rev. Abbott began by saying in part that he was speaking on the above topic because The Golden Rule is a standard of conduct of ancient lineage, as well as modern announcement. It was heralded by Jesus but before Jesus' time by an ancient Hebrew in Isreal, even before this by Confusius in China and it is also acclaimed today. The policeman is as ancient as the need of authority of some sort is ancient. Primittives and moderns have always had some sanctions and any sanction requires some sort of police. There is a certain relationship between the Golden Rule and the Policeman, which we need to remember.

The Golden Rule, as a standard of moral action, is an utter impossibility, without some policeman.

"Two good men, in their consideration of each other, say, "Whatsoever ye would that men should do unto you, even so do ye also unto them;" and they agree to abide by it. What makes them? A policeman! Of course an invisible policeman called "Good Consience." Trained by insights, generosities, tolerances, co-operations. An inner authority prompts the guardianship of good actions. Between two unequal men, the Golden Rule is an impossibility without the policeman, the symbol of some authority. The better man of the two cannot accomplish results without some authority which either checks or regulates or controls the worse man. The weaker man of the two cannot get justice without an appeal to some law that is symbolized somewhere.

If two men of equal position, equal culture and equal morality, need the Invisible Policeman to embody for them spiritual and invisible law, it certainly must be true that for two men, unequal in discernment, morality and development in any line, there must be the representative of an authority that can incite, regulate and direct action. Culture has to have direction, weakness has to have a champion, strength has to have control, the rich have to have restraints, the poor have to have justice.

When you name these necessities, you infer the policeman who always stands in the midst of men as a symbol of authority that is sometimes invisible and sometimes brass-coated and brass buttoned.

When you begin to discuss the Function of the Policeman, you begin to perceive his significance for the Golden Rule. His function is threefold. His function is punitive. He represents that social authority which needs to use the element of punishment for those who maliciously or criminally break the order which the Golden Rule seeks to conserve.

His function is regulative. To remind us all that the Golden Rule is in operation, and to show some of the avenues in community conduct in which good operation conserves life.

His function is preventive—To point out to us all, in advance, the possible damage resulting from infractions of the Golden Rule.

These functions are not individually isolated. They merge into each other. Sometimes the activities of policemen include two of these functions in combination. Sometimes they include all three, punitive, regulative and preventive. We should observe that that quality in the policemen which predominates, other things being equal, indicates the spirit of his community. Where he is merely punitive, it means that his environing community compels it. Where he is regulative predominatingly, it means that his city has by just so much advanced in operating the Golden Rule. Where he is predominatingly preventive, it means that his city has become a beloved city, the sanctions of good order are spiritual as well as physical generosity.

In closing Rev. Mr. Abbott said the conclusion is the application of this to the problems of city, state, nation and international relationships.

The speakers were given a rising vote of thanks by the club and the meeting closed with the singing of The Star Spangled Banner.

Elected at Clark University.

Leo A. Goldblatt of this city and Irving E. Crouch of Groton, students at Clark University, Worcester, have been elected respectively gift orator and prophet for class day.

HENRY F. ULMER IS RETIRING FROM BUSINESS

Henry F. Ulmer, an official of the Ulmer Leather company since 1895, resigned as an officer of that company at the annual meeting held on March 9th, except for being a member of the board of directors. Mr. Ulmer is retiring from the active business field on advice of his physician and is intending to give up all business activities.

Ray P. McLoughlin of Utica, N. Y., and Charles Hayes, Jr., of Wynnewood, Pa., brothers-in-law of Mr. Ulmer, were elected president and secretary and treasurer, respectively, and Lloyd R. Cochran, for some time past superintendent of production, was elected general manager and vice president. The board of directors comprises these three and Mr. Ulmer. Both Mr. McLoughlin and Mr. Hayes are identified with other large business enterprises in their respective communities which will continue to engage their active attention.

Mr. Ulmer first became identified with the Ulmer Leather company in 1895 and during his years as an official the company has grown to be one of the leading industries of Norwich, his sound business judgment placing the company in a position where today it is well known in the leather business field. In his retirement from business his friends will miss him, but every good wish is extended to him by his many friends here and elsewhere.

The company was first organized by Mr. Ulmer and his father, Frank Ulmer, in 1894, and the plant was constructed in 1895. At the death of Frank Ulmer the business, which had been a partnership of father and son, was incorporated, this being a request of Mr. Ulmer's father. It has since been known as the Ulmer Leather company.

Mr. Ulmer has been actively engaged in the leather belting business for 40 years having had considerable experience in the business previous to opening the business in Norwich. He has also held important positions in other estern companies, among them the Eastern Machine Screw corporation of New Haven, in which he will continue as a director.

UNFAVORABLE REPORT ON OLD AGE PENSIONS

The committee on the judiciary reported unfavorably in the state senate Thursday on the bill to provide a system of old age pensions by which persons reaching the age of 70 years would be entitled to a pension of $300 a year. Senator Shaw, who explained the report of the committee, said that the proponents of the bill had asked for the appointment of a commission to inquire into the matter of old age pensions. The committee will report later, a bill for the raising of the commission. The report of the committee was accepted and the bill rejected.

The committee on the judiciary reported unfavorably on the bill "for a pension system for state employes." It requests the board of control to report to the general assembly on or before April 1, 1925 on a uniform system of pensioning efficient, faithful, loyal and long time state employes. Senator Shaw, for the committee, stated that the committee had under consideration a number of requests from six state employes for pensions. The bill was rejected.

ONE LOT OF 2,600 CHICKS COMES TO NORWICH MAN

There is music in the parcel post department of Norwich post office these early spring days, for the day-old chicks have begun to arrive, the biggest consignments coming from New Jersey.

The future broilers have been coming in small lots for a month; but Wednesday a consignment of 2,600 to one man was received. The number Thursday was between six and seven hundred. About 600 daily has been the average for this week.

It is surprising, the security with which the noisy, fluffy little orphan travelers, so early torn away from their step-mother the incubator, make their first long trip. So definite now are the regulations of the post office department for their transportation that deaths in the crates are rare. It is planned to have the consignments delivered within 24 hours. Of course most of the chicks go out on the rural delivery routes.

The Norwich post office force has long noticed that the number of consignments always increases as the weather grows milder.

Papers Read at D. A. R. Meeting

Jonathan Trumbull Chapter D. A. R. met in the parlors of the First Congregational church on Monday, March 9, at 2 p. m. The regent, Miss Laura C. McCall, presided. The meeting opened with the Lord's prayer and salute to the flag. Quite a little business was transacted and the following papers were read: William Williams (member of council of safety) by Miss Laura McCall; Development of Navigation since John Fitch and Robert Fulton, by Mrs. O. L. Pults; New York, and the Dutch 1613 by Mrs. William Clark.

Current events were given by Mrs. David Pitcher who read President Coolidge's inaugural address.

The meeting closed with the D. A. R. pledge to the flag.

A social hour followed at which refreshments were served by the hostesses, Miss Annie Gillett and Mr. Clinton Goodwin.

Y. M. C. A. Noon Lenten Meeting

The third of the series of noon Lenten meetings on Fridays at the Y. M. C. A. will be held today to which the association officers extend an invitation to men. Rev. J. R. Danforth of New London will be the speaker, having for his topic, "The Fires of Elijah."

SENATE 63 TO 14 RATIFIES THE ISLE OF PINES TREATY

Relinquishes in Favor of Cuba All Claims of Sovereignty Over the Isle of Pines—Lausanne Treaty Was Sent Back to Committee—Voted 72 to 2 to Make the World Court Question a Special Order For Next December 17.

Washington, March 13.—The senate ratified the Isle of Pines treaty today with minor reservations; sent the Lausanne treaty to re-establish relations with Turkey back to committee and voted 76 to 2 to make the world court question a special order for next Dec. 17.

The vote of the senate, 63 to 14 to ratify the pact by which the United States relinquishes in favor of Cuba all claims to sovereignty over the Isle of Pines was described as highly gratifying to President Coolidge, but not so the action in putting over until the next session consideration of the Lausanne convention.

With early adjournment of the senate in prospect, President Coolidge communicated to Chairman Borah, of the foreign relations committee, his desire for early ratification of the Turkish treaty, but a canvass of the situation in the senate convinced Mr. Borah that the necessary two-thirds majority for ratification could not be had.

Even after this action had been taken, Secretary Kellogg conferred at length with Senator Borah on the subject but there was no indication that the senator had changed his view that to press the treaty at this time would result only in its rejection since practically all of the democrats are opposed to it.

With action by the senate deferred until the regular session in December this country would be without diplomatic and commercial relations with Turkey and advices have reached the White House that the situation may prove embarrassing both to Americans in Turkey and to those having trade with that country.

Senate decision with respect to the world court means that proposals for consideration at this session have been abandoned. Specifically, the Swanson resolution for American adherence to the international court with the reservations approved by President Harding and Coolidge is the matter made the special order of business but other propositions could be advanced as substitutes.

Senator Robinson, of Arkansas, the democratic leader, brought up the world court issue by asking unanimous consent to have it made the unfinished business for December 17. Senator Dill, democrat, Washington, objected and the minority leader then proposed a motion to the same end as the agreement. Senators Dill and Sandbeck, republican, South Dakota, voted against it.

The senate already has ratified the treaty with Great Britain, defining the boundary between the United States and Canada and Chairman Borah expects to get favorable action tomorrow on another treaty with Great Britain establishing the level of the Lake-of-the-Woods between the United States and Canada in Minnesota.

With this pact disposed of and the Lausanne treaty recommitted, the senate calendar will have been cleared of all conventions with foreign governments. Chairman Borah called attention that since the first of the year 28 treaties had been ratified.

Before ratifying the Isle of Pines treaty, which was negotiated 21 years and 11 days ago, the senate accepted, without roll calls, two reservations by Chairman Borah and Senator Reed, democrat, Missouri.

The Borah reservation provides that all provisions of existing or future treaties between the United States and Cuba shall be extended to affect the inhabitants of the Isle of Pines, while the Reed reservation provides that Americans resident in the island shall have the benefit of the favored nation clauses in Cuban conventions.

On the final vote the treaty mustered 11 more than the necessary two-thirds majority. The roll call follows:

For ratification:

Republicans: Bingham, Butler, Cameron, Capper, Couzens, Curtis, Dale, Deneen, Dupont, Ernst, Fess, Gillett, Goff, Hale, Harreld, Johnson, Jones, of Washington; Keyes, McKinley, McLean, McMaster, McNary, Means, Metcalf, Moses, Norris, Oddie, Pepper, Pine, Reed of Pennsylvania, Sackett, Schall, Shortridge, Stanfield, Wadsworth, Watson, and Weller—37.

Democrats: Bayard, Bratton, Broussard, Bruce, Caraway, Ferris, Fletcher, Gerry, Glass, Harris, Harrison, King, Mayfield, Neely, Overman, Pittman, Ransdell, Robinson, Sheppard, Simmons, Smith, Swanson, Trammell, Tyson, Walsh and Wheeler—26.

Total 63.

Against ratification:

Republicans: Borah, Brookhart, Cummins, Fernald, Frazier and Willis—6.

Democrats: Ashurst, Blease, Copeland, Dill, Heflin, McKellar, and Reed of Missouri—7.

Farmer-labor: Shipstead—1.

Total 14.

President Coolidge received news of the senate action with great satisfaction. In this connection, the president also desires to withdraw the remaining American marines from Haiti, and this has not been done only because the Haitian government has sent a very strong request that the occupation be continued.

SENATOR SMOOT SUFFERS A "GENERAL BREAKDOWN"

Washington, March 13—Senator Reed Smoot, of Utah, a veteran among the republican leaders, was taken ill today in the senate and after receiving medical treatment was removed to his home.

The senator's physicians said he had been stricken with a rather bad attack of indigestion, but that his condition was not serious and that he expected to be in his place in the senate tomorrow.

At his home, however, it was declared he had suffered a "general breakdown," due to overwork and that absolute rest for two weeks had been prescribed with the reservation that he might go to the senate tomorrow to cast his vote on the Warren nomination.

It was added that he was resting comfortably and that his condition was not to be regarded as critical. It also was stated that he had been advised for some time to ease up on work.

Holding as he does the chairmanship of the senate finance committee, and a ranking place on the appropriations committee, the Utah senator has had an unusually strenuous time of it since the senate met last December and his friends say he has overworked himself.

W. E. STOKES ACQUITTED OF WIFE DEFAMATION CHARGE

Chicago, March 13.—W. E. Stokes, millionaire apartment house owner of New York, and Robert Lee, Chicago negro, were acquitted this afternoon after a trial of one month on charges of conspiring to defame Mrs. Helen Ellwood Stokes.

The jury was out one hour and five minutes.

Aside from the verdict the last day of the trial had an added thrill in an angry encounter between Mrs. Stokes and Miss Marion L. Brophy, the private secretary who had been in close attendance on the aged millionaire throughout the five weeks he had been before the bar.

A slight demonstration of handclapping greeted the verdict. Stokes was highly elated. His face was wreathed in smiles as he thanked the jurors and posed with them for photographers.

"I am surprised; I have nothing else to say," was the comment of Milton D. Smith, assistant state's attorney, who led the long fight to send Stokes to the penitentiary for, the state alleged, illegally trying to prove that his young wife once was a member of the notorious Everleigh club, which a decade ago flourished in the night life of Chicago.

Stokes told the jurors, "You have given me justice, and I am thankful to you all."

GENERAL PERSHING HAS ARRIVED IN NEW YORK

New York, March 13.—General John J. Pershing, returning from the centennial celebration of the Battle of Ayaucucha in Peru which he attended as ambassador extraordinary, arrived today from Havana on the battleship Utah.

General Pershing appeared a little drawn as he stepped with Admiral Plunkett, commandant, Brooklyn navy yard, from the naval tug Iuka to the West 35th street pier where Major General Charles P. Summerall, commandant, Second Corps Area, and a reception committee of armyofficers and American Legion members were waiting.

The general said he still felt the effects of his illness in Havana, and was "not entirely well, but felt much better."

He spoke with enthusiasm of South America, saying:

"I think one who has not had the opportunity to see what we have seen can hardly appreciate the countries in South America through which we passed. I was gratified by the cordial welcome extended to us everywhere."

TUG UNDERWRITER TO REMAIN IN CUSTODY

Hartford, March 12.—The steam tug, Underwriter, which was seized by the United States coast guard cutter Cassin, at a point about twelve miles off Block Island, for alleged violation of the liquor laws, will remain in the custody of the government, until a hearing is held, Judge Edwin S. Thomas decided in a memorandum issued in reply to an application from Arthur Maul, of New York, for the release of the tug.

The tug had 811 of whiskey aboard when seized December 7, 1927. It was brought into New London harbor. Judge Thomas in his memorandum today set April 9, as the hearing date, at which the while matter will be aired at New Haven. The counsel for the applicant must file a brief then, stipulating in to all facts, concerning the vessel and its seizure, etc.

INFLUENZA EPIDEMIC IS RAGING IN SPRINGFIELD, VT.

Springfield, Vt., March 13.—More than 500 persons are ill of influenza in this town of 7,200 population, according to figures made public today by Miss Nellie Butterfield, public health officer. New cases are being reported at the rate of about 15 a day, she said. According to Miss Butterfield no deaths have occurred and no cause for alarm exists if customary precautions are observed.

Heavy inroads have been made into the attendance at the public schools. Many teachers have been taken ill and sessions have been considerable disrupted. Efforts of physicians to care for patients living in the rural districts have been hampered by the state of the highways which at this time of the year are in poor condition.

TWO OF FAMILY KILLED IN GRADE CROSSING ACCIDENT

Reading, Pa., March 13.—Two of one family are dead, another is dying and a fourth cannot be found, as a result of a collision between the Boyertown express on the Reading road and an automobile at Guilden's crossing, near Pottstown late today. Those killed were John F. Gallagher, and his two year old daughter, Jane. Mrs. Gallagher is in the Pottstown hospital in a serious condition while during the excitement a small son was lost. A check-up is being made to ascertain whether he wandered from the scene or has been overlooked lying in the fild.

Coolidge Constant in Contest For Warren

Instructs Administration Leaders in the Senate to Fight Hard For Confimation.

Washington, March 13—President Coolidge passed along the world today to administration leaders in the senate t ofight and fight hard for confirmation of his nomination of Charles B. Warren to be attorney general.

Undismayed by the action of the judiciary committee earlier in the day in ordering an adverse report on the nomination, 9 to 7, after having approved it twice before, the executive called in several senate leaders tonight to impress upon them his earnest desire that Mr. Warren's qualifications be vigorously presented in the senate when the nomination is called up again tomorrow in open session. The president threw the full weight of his personal influence behind the nomination, his conferees including Senators Borah, of Idaho and McMaster, of South Dakota, two of the republicans who refused to follow the party organization when the appointment was rejected by the senate last Tuesday on a tie vote.

Republican leaders were hopeful that there might be a change in the result, but their latest canvass in the senate still indicated that they would be worse off than they were on the first vote.

Attention was called that several opponents absent then will be present tomorrow. They are making last efforts, however to stir up some of their absentees and so dissipate some of this potential strength for the other side.

With the adverse report from the committee, opponents will hold a parliamentary advantage on the floor since they will have charge of the report. They still were undecided tonight as to the exact course they would follow in making the fight, but Senator Walsh, democrat, Montana, said he might demand a straight out vote on confirmation, in which event a tie vote would mean rejection.

The question of the constitutional authority of the president to resubmit the nomination was raised today in the committee, but it was not pressed, and pending further examination of the authorities opponents were undetermined whether they would seek to make this an issue in the senate.

At the time the report was submitted to the senate in executive session late today by Senator Walsh, there was a general expectation of a vote tomorrow, but with President Coolidge insisting that evidence be presented to refute the charges made in the debate last Tuesday in connection with the "sugar trust" investigation and trial it was regarded later as likely that a vote might be forced over to next week.

After the senate adjourned, President Coolidge first summoned Chairman Cummins of the judiciary committee, and Senator Butler of Massachusetts, to the white house. He conferred with them for an hour and then called in Senator Watson, of Indiana, and Solicitor General James M. Beck, acting head of the department of justice.

YOUNG WOMEN TRAINED TO STEAL FROM STORES

Boston, March 13.—The operations of a "shop-lifting syndicate" were brought to light, according to Boston police by the arrest of Hannibal Cummings and Stanley Lamont of this city, who were held today in bail of $8,000 each for hearing on March 20.

Officers who investigated the case said that Cummings and Lemont headed an organization of eighteen young women who have been trained to steal from stores and who shared in the receipts from the sale of stolen clothing and dress materials. Dresses valued at more than $1,000 were found in a room occupied by Lamont, the police said.

The two men were recently released from the Springfield house of correction where they served sentences for theft.

LIQUOR VALUED AT $100,000 SEIZED IN NEWPORT RAIDS

Newport, R. I., March 13.—Liquor valued at approximately $100,000 was seized by federal prohibition agents in a series of raids here tonight. One arrest was made. Five automomobile trucks, guarded by armed men, transported the liquor to Providence.

Fifteen agents operating under the directionu of the enforcement office in Boston swooped down on Newport late today with search warrants.

The maor portion of the liquor seized was taken in a raid on the warehouse of Lampros Brown on Long Wharf. Brown was arrested charged with smuggling and possessing intoxicating liquor, and was held by the Newport police at the request of the prohibition agents.

Citizens Play Juries Exonerate Two Plays

Eugene O'Neill's "Desire Under the Elms" Among Two Cleared Outright.

New York, March 13—Two of twelve Broadway plays under fire as objectionable were exonerated today by citizens play juries under a system District Attorney Banton approved to avert a formal censorship of the theatre.

A third production was tentatively cleared, pending change in the acting of one scene which the producer agreed to make tonight, when the play will be finally reviewed.

The two plays cleared outright were "Desire Under the Elms," the Eugene O'Neill drama Mr. Banton himself deemed too improper for even revision, and "They Knew What They Wnated,"—Theatre Guild production featuring Richard Bennett and Pauline Lord.

"The Firebrand," of Edwin Justus Mayer, based upon the lives of Benvenuto Cellini, offended in one scene.

Neither the district attorney's office nor Police Commissioner Enright would comment upon the verdicts, but relief and satisfaction passed in waves over the Rialto.

The three juries attended each performance in secret, the members unknown to one another, and today at police headquarters voted upon two questions: whether the plays should be suppressed or corrected.

The jurors had been previous drawn in groups of 12 by Commissioner Enright from a venire of 130 prominent names. At today's roll call, however, one jury was found two members short, a cotton broker and a woman political leader sending word they could not serve. Under the rules of the play jury system, nine votes were sufficient for decision and the decision of the remaining ten jurors, unanimous as were both the other juries, was accepted.

The membership of the three groups included Henry Syndor Harrison, novelist; John Erskine, professor of English at Columbia University; Florence Overton, branch supervisor, New York public library; Robert Bridges, Mrs. John Blair; Mary Garrett Hay; George Gray Barnard, sculptor and others.

GOVERNMENT WINS THE DAIL ERIEANN ELECTIONS

Dublin, March 13.—(By the A. P.)—The miniature general election for seats in the dail eriean to fill the vacancies of seven constituencies caused by the resignation of nationalist members, has prived a triumph for the government. Despite the fact that there were some close contests in the polling, which took place on Wednesday seven of nine places were won by government representatives. The other two were republicans.

The smallness of the poll would suggest that the electors as a whole were rather apathetic. Even in North Dublin where the ministerialists have an excellent organization, only 54 per cent. of the electors voted.

The results, in the opinion of the political experts, sound the death knell of the nationalist group, which resigned over the mutiny crisis and which for some time past, although elected on a government ticket, has really been in opposition to the government, while there has always been uncertainty as to its probable attitude in dail divisions.

FRENCH VIEW OF BRITISH STAND ON PEACE PROTOCOL

French Officals Express the Opinion That the British Are Endeavoring to Force the German Security Proposals on France—Premier Herriot Has Persuaded Parliament to Await a More Propitious Time For Consideration of the Secuvity Question.

Paris, March 13.—(By the A. P.)—The feeling was expressed in French official and political circles tonight that the British are trying to force the German security proposals on France. The air was full of talk today about the German plan for a security pact, after the publication in the early afternoon newspapers of the comment of the British press on the plan, which is described in some quarters as inspired with a view to having the offer of the German government taken into serious consideration.

There has been some sharp criticism of the fact that Austen Chamberlain, the British foreign secretary, failed to make clear on his recent visit to France that he was going to take an uncompromising attitude against the league of nations peace protocol. It had been understood he would merely ask that final consideration of the security plan be postponed until September.

Premier Herriot and all the members of the French cabinet made a great deal of capital out of the success of the French delegation at Geneva in putting the protocol through last September, and the necessity of admitting that all the work done to that end has been wasted and that all the credit the French cabinet derived from it has vanished, is considered by political leaders to place the government in a difficult position with parliament.

Just before the chamber met Premier Herriot received news from Geneva that convinced him the time had not yet come to talk of security negotiations in public. Former Premier Briand, who is known to have been in touch with unofficial representatives of the Geneva government in Geneva, asked that the subject be kept out of parliamentary debate for the moment. After a short, heated discussion with the leaders of the opposition, the premier induced them to await a more propitious time for consideration of the security question.

The insistence with which the British urged the German proposals developed a new angle today when the friends of former Premier Calliaux recalled his old policy of a direct understanding with Germany, which they now declare is justified by the turn of events. Their attitude is that if France is obliged to come to an agreement with the reich, better terms can be obtained by dealing with her on the basis of a purely continental accord.

A pact between France and all the other powers on the continent whose frontiers are most exposed to aggression by Germany is being discussed also as a possible alternative to the general security covenant.

COOLIDGE CONSIDERING CALLING ARMS CONFERENCE

Washington, March 13.—Recent developments affecting the League of Nations' disarmament and security protocol are believed by President Coolidge to have opened the way for further consideration here of the announced project for the calling of a new arms limitation conference by the United States.

As soon as the fate of the league protocol is made known definitely, it is the purpose of the president to take up the question in a serious way with Secretary Kellogg. Information emanating from Geneva so far has reached the Washington government officials only through unofficial channels. For that reason officials will await authentic advices before taking any step approaching a formal presentation of the conference idea to the nations interested. None of the powers thus far has been actually approached on the subject.

When President Coolidge has conferred with Mr. Kellogg, the initial move will have been made, and the many preliminaries attending a project of such importance to the world will be under way. What plan of procedure will be used in approaching the other governments with the confeence scheme will depend on the outcome of these discussions.

CREW ESCAPED BY TAKING TO ICE FLOES

St. John's, N. F., March 15.—True to the time honored traditions of sealers when shipwrecked in northern waters, 83 men, the crew of the sealing steamer Stella Maris, escaped death from drowning last Wednesday when their vessel foundered between ice floes off the northeast coast of Newfoundland, by taking to the ice with boats and food. This was disclosed today in a brief message from Captain Whiteley, who was rescued with his crew by the sealer Prospero after passing a day on the ice floes. The Stella Maris was bound, with a fleet of seven other steamers, for the Northern Grand Banks on the annual seal hunt.

The crew was barely able to escape, the message stated, for the steamer sank within 20 minutes of the time she sprang a leak.

MRS. JOSEPH PULITZER IN FATAL ACCIDENT

New York, March 13—Mrs. Joseph Pulitzer, wife of Joseph Pulitzer, editor of the St. Louis Post-Dispatch and secretary of the New York World, was fatally injured last night when an automobile in which she was riding collided with an elevated railroad pillar.

She was given medical attention and it was at first thought her injuries were not serious. Today, however, complications set in and she was removed to the Manhattan eye and ear hospital where she died.

Mr. Pulitzer is at present on a boat between Miami and Long Key, Florida, on the way to a fishing camp for a vacation.

PASSENGERS ESCAPED FROM A BURNING BUS

Worcester, Mass., March 13.—Eighteen passengers, including several women, climbed out of windows of a Boston to New York bus to escape being burned when the vehicle took fire on West Main street in West Brookfield late today. None of the passengers was injured but the flames made such rapid headway that within five minutes only the frame of the truck remained.

REFUSE TO DEAL WITH 30,000 DRESS GOODS WORKERS

New York, March 13.—Dress goods jobbers, through the executive board of the Wholesale Dress Manufacturers' association, today refused further to deal with representatives of 30,000 dress goods workers who have sat idle at their machines the last few days, in protest at the alleged refusal of the jobbers to live up to a recent wage agreement.

Glass made by the early Romans contained so much iron that they could not see through their windows clearly.

DISCOVERY OF BOYS LED TO CAPTURE OF BANK ROBBERS

Tuckahoe, N. J., March 13.—Discovered in the woods near here by a group of boys after they had robbed the Tuckahoe National bank of $6,000, shot one of its directors and blackjacked the cashier and his wife, three men surrendered to North Wildwood police late today without offering resistance. All of the stolen funds were recovered.

The men gave their names as A. Pettitt, 19; Gus Anderson, 20; and Walter Laird, 21, all of North Arlington, near Newark. Pettitt and Anderson were said to have formerly resided in Tuckahoe.

Edward Tomlin, the bank director who was shot through the head as he attempted to aid the cashier and his wife who is assistant cashier, is in the Atlantic City hospital in a serious conditions. The cashier, Edward Rice, and Mrs. Rice were only slightly founded.

Capture of the robbers was brought about by a group of small boys who had been playing in the woods. Emerging from the woods they encountered two North Wildwood policemen, and upon being questioned told of having seen three men among the trees, and having noticed one man had his head bandaged.

The police at once entered the woods and met the fugitives coming out. The latter were taken back to Tuckahoe, where Mr. and Mrs. Rice identified them as the perpetrators of the holdup.

CHARLOTTE FLATHER, WRITER AND ACTRESS, DRANK POISON

New York, March 13—The colorful career of Miss Charlotte Carter Flather, actress and writer, came to an end in her fashionable apartment today when she drank poison. The young woman was despondent because of ill health and her inability to find work.

Miss Flather, who went under the name of Carter when she left her home in Washington, D. C., at the age of 18 to embark on a stage career, was found by a maid lying in her bed half-dressed. She had penned seven notes, including one to her father, H. E. Flather, a banker, of Meriden Conn.

Shortly after Miss Flather went on the stage she began writing scenarios. Later she wrote many short stories and contributed feature articles to magazines and syndicates.

She numbered among her friends many well known writers and a number of society leaders. Among them was Mary Roberts Rhinehart, who dedicated one of the books "To Charlotte, with My Love and Admiration."

A SEVERE NORTHEASTER PREDICTED FOR TODAY

New Haven, March 13.—A special telegram from weather bureau headquarters in Washington was received at the local weather mbureau offices here this afternoon giving notice that this section of the state can expect a rather severe northeast storm of more than the usual intensity within the next 12 hours.

The center of the storm was in the Mississippi valley at the time the telegram was sent but was moving toward the Atlantic coast at a rapid rate of speed. It was expected to move north from Cape Hatteras along the Atlantic seaboard.

The storm is expected to give this section of the state considerable rain and there was a possibility that it might turn to snow.

HELD ON FOUR CHARGES AS THE RESULT OF AUTO RIDE

New Haven, March 13.—Gerald O'O'Neil, of this city, is being held by the police on four charges as the result of an automobile ride this morning in which it is alleged that Miss Ethel Thompson received two stab wounds in the neck. O'Neil is being held on the charges of reckless driving, operating a motor vehicle while under the influence of liquor, drunkenness and operating a motor vehicle without a license.

According to the police, the girl received the wounds in a fight between O'Neil and two other men in the machine. The police have been unable to find the other two men. The girl is not seriously hurt.

STRIKERS HEAR STATISTICS FROM CHICAGO SPEAKER

(Special to The Bulletin)

Willimantic, March 13.—At a largely attended mass meeting of the strikers of the American Thread company held in the Gem theatre Friday morning, William Simmons, representative of a Chicago labor newspaper and member of the Bookkeepers' and Stenographers' union, of Boston, was the principal speaker. Mr. Simmons was introduced by Miss Mary Kelleher. Mr. Simmons touched upon incidents relative to the history of the American Thread company, beginning with its organization in Manchester, England in 1897. In 1898 the firm received its charter in New Jersey to manufacture cotton, linen, wool, etc., and in 1903 the property was merged as the American Thread company. The corporation wo operates seven complete plants in New England and one unit in Georgia. "Figures tell the story!" said the speaker and he then quoted the financial standing of the concern from Moody's Manual. He gave statistics as to stocks, bonds, mortgages and then applied this information to matters regarding the Thread company. In addition to establishing a reserve fund Mr. Simmons gave the following table of dividends paid on the common stock which is held in England: 1918—32 per cent.; 1919—20 per cent.; 1920—15 per cent.; 1921—14 2-3 per cent.; 1923—12 per cent.; 1924—10 per cent. He pointed that the 10 per cent. dividend was paid in 1924 despite the fact that the plant was not entirely operating on a full time basis. He then explained the establishment of a reserve fund by the company.

The president, Miss Amy Hooker read an itemized list of local and out-of-town donors to the strike fund. Every name was cheered. Among new names of local people added to the list since Thursday were: John E. Collins on behalf of Hallocks, Inc.,; A. Butleman, a sum of money and promise of $5 a week for the duration of the strike; John T. Meikle for the Popular Lunch, Patrick McDermott, Eddy John, Joseph Putnyk, Charles Angelos, Workers' Circle and several others who gave anonymously.

The operatives had their usual noonday parade, Friday, and called in a body at business houses from which contributions have been received to express appreciation. A delegation of pickets remained at the mill gates for for part of the day.

Questioned relative to the progress of organizing the strike Friday Miss Mary Kelleher stated that the organization was complete and all of the branches were remaining one hundred per cent. The strikers are not too optimistic as to the duration of the strike, but are prepared to stick to their purpose for as long a period as the company refuses to grant their demands. Members from each department have been elected to act on the finance committee and the principal business for the present she said, appears to be to fortify the striking organization with a fund sufficient to carry on the work. The secretaries of all union locals in the state have been officially notified of the strike and arrangements have been made to receive contributions from these. Collectors were place at the gates of the Windham Silk company plant here at noon and others were being dispatched to Stafford Springs, Rockville and South Manchester.

It was announced that the strikers plan a benefit dance under the auspices of the strikers committee. The owners of the hall has given the use of the building and an orchestra will furnish music without pay.

At one step, the new good Maxwell creates an immeasurably higher conception of the dollar's buying power in its relation to motor car speed and power.

The owner of this new good Maxwell finds in it an ability for sustained speed which wins his respect no matter how powerful the cars which he has driven before.

He becomes used to leading traffic in the city because of a flashing acceleration which is not surpassed by any car built today.

He finds himself enjoying these advantages at an operating and maintenance cost which owners declare is lower than any previous motor car experience has ever taught them to expect.

For the cause of this revolutionary achievement, credit the engineering genius which produced the Chrysler Six, the wonderful plants in which the new good Maxwell is manufactured from wheels to body, from radiator to rear axle.

In this new good Maxwell, Chrysler engineers and Maxwell's fine workmanship have advanced the ability of four cylinders beyond anything the industry had previously produced. We enthusiastically invite you to let us prove Maxwell's superior quality and value.

SEC. J. J. O'ROURKE, NORWICH, ADDRESSES BUSINESS MEN

(Special to the Bulletin)

Stafford Springs, March 13.—J. J. O'Rourke, secretary of the Norwich Chamber of Commerce, spoke before a large and interested audience at the rooms of the Stafford Business Men's association last evening. He told of the work that the chamber of commerce was doing in Norwich and spoke of what it had already accomplished and what it proposed to accomplish.

He thought there was room for such an organization in Stafford Springs and believed that it would do much for the civic as well as the industrial and mercantile interests of the community.

The meeting was attended by many of the manufacturers and merchants in Stafford. Frank Johnson, president of the Business Men's association, presided and introduced the speaker. It is probable that some such organization as recommended by Mr. O'Rourke will be formed in conjunction with the Business Men's association.

Truth is mighty—and sometimes mighty scarce.

HELPED THROUGH CHANGE OF LIFE

Took Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound during this Critical Time

Baltimore, Md.—"I took Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound to help me through the Change of Life and for a broken-down system. I had been complaining a long time and dragging along had tried other medicines which did not help me much. I read in the newspapers of the Vegetable Compound and after taking a bottle I felt better. I did not stop with one bottle, but took it through the whole critical time and am now practically a well woman. I have two daughters whose health was very bad before they married and I was worried about them. I got the Vegetable Compound for them and it helped them, and after they married it also helped them in bearing their babies. This is a great and good medicine for all complaints of women, and I recommend it to all."—Mrs. L. GINGRICH, 1376 N. Gilmor St., Baltimore, Maryland.

The Vegetable Compound is a dependable medicine for women of middle age. Let it relieve you of nervousness, that feeling of strain and those annoying hot flashes so common at this time.

ANNOUNCEMENTS

Palace Theatre

If you want to spend three enjoyable hours, which are packed full of continuous series of thrills and pep in rapid action, just visit the Palace Theatre, the home of Paramount vaudeville and always a good show. Seven big time vaudeville acts and that's putting it mildly, certainly are making a hit with the crowds. The three Kokillas open the show with a sensational acrobatic act with tricks of almost superhuman strength keeping the audience amazed for fifteen minutes. Featuring the act is a double flip by one of the performers, who lands in a chair on the shoulders of another performer ten feet away. An act worth the price of admission in itself.

Next comes Sandy McPherson, a wee Scotch lad in a fine collection of Scottish songs and dances.

Songs and Kicks, follows with some snappy songs and very clever steps. Everything the latest, including the scenery and the costumes and really is a miniature snappy revue.

George Hunter is about the liveliest proposition the Palace theatre has ever seen. This black dot of joy and second Eddie Cantor and Al Joison took the house by storm. George certainly knows his business.

D'Mara Five, composed of five talented musicions in gorgeous gowns is a wonderful act and can be classed as one of the cleverest acts of its kind.

Bingham & Myers, a comedy classic on Ray and his Chevrolet, is a riot and a whole show by itself. They know all about cars and then some.

LaDore and Beckman close the show with clever tricks, lots of thrills and some classy dancing. It is an unusual act but most interesting.

One of the most unusual situations ever used in a photoplay marks "Husbands and Lovers," a First National picture, directed by John M. Stahl, which is now enjoying a sensational run at the Palace Theatre, Lewis S. Stone, Florence Vidor and Lew Cody are the players who take part in the scene.

The setting is that of a country estate at nig[illegible] lighted and from within come continuous strains of music, intermingled with laughter. Suddenly a young and beautiful woman, garbed in the costume of the bride, appears on a balcony and looks up at the sky. Within a short time she will be going through a marriage ceremony, but there is no happiness in her expression. Just as she is wiping away a tear she sees the form of a man on the lawn below.

Strand Theatre

If you have not already bought your tickets for "Over The Top With the Allies," playing at the Strand next Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday under the auspices of Richard Hourigan Post 594 Veterans of Foreign Wars, you will have the opportunity tonight as several members of this organization will be on the streets to supply the demand. "Over the Top With the Allies" is the official government pictures (taken at the cost of eleven lives) of the most famous battles of the late world war, showing for the first time the American boys in action, as well as the French, Italian, Canadian and other allies, smashing the Hindenburg line, the battle of Verdun, charging on the Somme, the raiding of Austrian machine gun nests, and in fact the most important battles in which American soldiers were the main factor in winning for the world, victory. Never before in the history of the motion picture industry have any more thrilling been made. No hand-made stage sets were used in the making of Over the Top With the Allies and no hand painted scenes, the only stage in these films was the bloodstained battle fields, no famous screen stars, but a cast of characters who not only acted but lived the heroic parts seen in the films. These pictures will not be seen again in Norwich, and three performances will be given daily at two, seven and eight forty-five.

Second in Concert Series.

The second concert of the Sunday musical course, to be given March 15, at 4 p. m., in the Palace theater, will bring the two most prominent Norwich musicians to the programme. On this Sunday, Mr. Frank Farrell and Mr. Frederick W. Lester will play a Liszt concerto. Mr. Farrell will use the largest size concert grand piano, a Steinway, allowing him full opportunity to display, with great technique his artistic interpretation of the great master. Mr. Lester will play the orchestral accompaniment on the large Mollier organ for which it is so splendidly equipped. Mr. Lester is thoroughly familiar with this Mollier organ and uses with great effect its numerous reeds and woods and orchestral attachments not to be found in a church organ.

This recalls a similar programme given several years ago, under the auspices of the Musical Association, in Park church, when several hundred were unable to gain admittance. Mr. Farrell and Mr. Lester gave a Greig Concerto, the Park church quartette, under the able leadership of Mr. Eben Learned, adding color to the programme by especially fitting vocal numbers.

Mr. Lionel Storr, bass-baritone, who, like Miss Tiffany, has been chosen because of his magnificent voice, his exquisite taste in interpretation, will furnish the vocal numbers to complete this wonderful programme.

Single admissions, $1; remaining two concerts of the course, $1.50.

The programme follows:

Fugue in E flat (St. Anne's) Bach
Mr. Lester

Recit. and Air, "Hear Me! Ye Winds and Waves" (from Rage of the Tempest) Handel
Mr. Storr

The Bells of St. Anne de Beaupre (by request) Russell
Mr. Lester

Il lacerato spirito (Simon Boccanegra) Verdi

Over the Sea to Skye, Schenck

The Asra, Rubinstein

Love, Pluck Your Flowers, Liddle
Mr. Storr

Concerto for Piano in E flat, Liszt
Mr. Farrell and Mr. Lester.

ANNOUNCEMENTS

Broadway Theater

Where you find Meighan you generally find action.

Such is the case, anyway, with Coming Through, the star's latest Paramount production, coming Sunday to the Broadway for a run of four days.

Pell-mell action and real thrills is the order of things from start to finish.

Coming Through is a story of coal mining and coal miners, adapted to the screen by Paul Schofield from Jack Bethea's popular novel, Red Rock. Lila Lee is featured in the leading woman's role. Wallace Beery heads the supporting cast which also includes such prominent stage and screen players as John Miltern, Frank Campeau and Laurance Wheat.

Tom's role is that of Tom Blackford employed with a big steel corporation. He is shipped off to the company's mines at Colton, just outside of Birmingham, as superintendent. Here the real action starts.

The big punch scenes in the picture include a hand-to-hand fight between Meighan and Beery on a skeleton framework about sixty feet above ground. Beery is bested and takes a "header" to a rock below. You've seen screen fights before, to be sure, but never anything that quite comes up to this.

Another breath-taker is the scene where one of the "trips," a coal car, breaks away and goes hurtling down through the mine at terrifying speed. Tom turns a switch in the nick of time, sending the car crashing into the framework of the mine and bringing down a shower of dirt and rocks from overhead but saving the lives of many of the miners. Here's the big kick in the picture.

If you're a true Meighan fan you'll be on hand early for Coming Through.

Breed Theater

Miami is known as the winter paradise of the gilded set. It is the playground of society. On its golden beaches and under its moonlit skies, frolic the idlers who always laugh, but often that laughter is hollow. Do you know why?

Miami, starring Betty Compson, will tell you. It lifts the veil and gives you a view of the lies of the wealthy. It will show you what goes on within the pretentious mansions and abroad the regal yachts. It is one of the greatest society dramas ever shown on a screen. Lavish sets, gorgeous gowns and beautiful estates, charming, ultra-smart women and clever men, revelry, intrigue, romance and love,—all these you will find in Miami.

As you know, Betty Compson is one of the most appealing and talented stars on the screen. In this picture she does some of the best work of her enviable career.

Miami is the feature attraction at the Breed theater Sunday, Monday and Tuesday and other pictures on the bill include advance showing of the latest creations in fur models in natural colors, Topics of the Day and an Educational comedy.

Today is the last showings of Sundown, the second chapter of The Iron Man, the Pathe news and a Mack Sennett comedy. Continuous show today 1:30 to 10:30 P. M.

Strand Theater

Napoleon and Josephine, which had its first showing in Norwich yesterday at the Strand theater, paints with bold strokes the glorious career and tragic end of the Little Corporal. Impressive to a degree, this photoplay, built around the fascinating life of Napoleon, compares well with any production of recent years.

From the first title to the final scene, where Napoleon, shorn of all his glory, stands gazing at the sea that separates him forever from his beloved country, there is not a moment when the interest of the audience is allowed to lag. Napoleon and Josephine is, like the life of its hero, a series of "big moments."

On the same program today for the last time will also be William Fairbanks and Dorothy Revier in a thrilling story of the border love hate, Down By the Rio Grande. Performance today will be continuous from two to ten thirty. The Sunday attraction at the Strand will be Bill Cody in a stirring story of the west Riders of Mystery also Irvings Cummings in an appealing melodrama of the Northwest Police entitled Trapped, a picture of strong love, strong hate and strong revenge.

Next Week at United Congregational Church

Members of the parish are invited to the annual meeting of the McAll Mission, to be held at the home of Miss Elizabeth Huntington, 344 Washington Street, on Thursday afternoon at 3.15.

"From Manger to Cross"

The last half of the feature moving pictures "From the Manger to the Cross" will be shown at the local Young Men's Christian Association tomorrow (Sunday) at 4 o'clock in the big gymnasium. These pictures will portray very vividly the touching experiences of the Christ in his last few weeks of earthly life. In addition two reels of fine scenic pictures will be thrown upon the screen. Hugh Kinder will again furnish the music for the pictures and also render vocal solos. A brief talk in line with the feature pictures will be given.

To this meeting everybody 14 and over are invited. Those younger must be accompanied by their parents or guardians.

DANIELSON

Misses Deborah Codding and Julia Niemienen, also Alma Forcier, all of the commercial department of Killingly High school, will be in Waterbury today (Saturday) to participate in the typewriting and stenography contests that will have entrants from many high schools of the state. Miss Codding will represent the local school in typewriting and Miss Niemienen and Miss Forcier in stenography.

There seemed Friday to be good ground for believing that no one will appear at the hearing scheduled for next Monday to determine whether the slot machines seized here a week ago today are a nuisance. Proprietors of the places from which the machines were taken are not interested in what becomes of the devices. The owners of them will have much explaining to do should they decide to appear. If the machines are determined a nuisance they likely will be ordered destroyed. Some faith that the machines may be turned back to the owners was pinned Friday by forecasters on the fact that similar machines seized in Hartford were ordered by the court to be restored to the owners.

A Taftville item of this week telling of the hordes of starlings that have appeared in that community and of the birds not being too welcome there must have been seen by the birds, for hundreds of them have inflicted themselves on Danielson and great flocks of them were swooping about Friday afternoon. This is not a more hospitable community for them, but they probably will stay on just the same.

Poultrymen from various sections of Windham county gathered at Brooklyn Friday for an all day meeting arranged by the Windham County Farmers' association. There were morning and afternoon sessions. The program for this quarterly meeting was recently set forth in this column and was of interest and of benefit to those who followed it on Friday.

The public, and especially the students at the high school, have an invitation from Sarah Williams Danielson chapter, D. A. R., to hear an illustrated lecture on Indians of New England at the assembly hall of the high school next Thursday afternoon. Arthur E. Peale of Norwich is to be the lecturer. In order that the chapter and its guests may have an opportunity to hear Mr. Peale at 4 o'clock the business meeting of the chapter is to be held a half hour earlier than is usual at regular meetings.

Notice has been given of a special New England Mortgage Securities company to be held in Danielson next month to take such action as is legally required of them in bringing about the termination of the corporate existence of the corporation. This concern was chartered in Connecticut many years ago, but has done no business to speak of hereabouts for 30 years. The concern maintains a New York office and yearly the stockholders, represented by proxy, have held a meeting here. It is understood that the affairs of the corporation are now arranged to permit a distribution of its assets to the stockholders, as soon as the processes of dissolving the corporation are complete.

The Windham County W. C. T. U. institute is to be held at the Methodist church here Tuesday next. Mrs. Ida M. T. PUTNAM

At the weekly meeting of the Putnam Rotary Club, Morris F. Tobias of the editorial staff of System, a business man's magazine, was the guest of honor and the after-luncheon speaker. He talked about the business and industrial difficulties with which towns and small cities like Putnam have to deal. His first topic was the large percentage of business firms that fail. The principal reasons for these failures, he said, are overbuying and underselling, lack of capital, failure to follow modern business methods, inadequate accounting and poor location.

He laid great emphasis on the fact that such a large percentage of people in a town like Putnam do not trade at home, and he placed the figure at three-fourths of the money earned or made here is spent elsewhere. The greater part of that goes to mail order houses, not a little to the house-to-house canvassers. The mail order houses, he said did more than a billion dollars of business last year.

Then he touched on two other big factors that entered into the question, automobiles and radio. In 1924, according to the speaker the American people spent $350,000,000 by far the greater part of this being for motor cars, original cost and upkeep. He placed the number of automobiles in use here at seventeen millions, of which 67 per cent., are owned by people whose income is not more than $40 a week, which means that the cars are bought for a small first payment and the remainder paid on the installment plan.

He thought that the people of Putnam were to be congratulated on the fact that they had passed through the financial disasters of the past year without, so far, a single business failure. He believes that the city, from what he had learned, was getting away from a condition that contributed largely to its being hit so hard financially, that of being only a textile mill town a single industry town. He thought it was very gratifying that the manufactories were becoming more diversified.

Mrs. Alice Maynard Cournoyer, 32, who died Tuesday evening at her home in Webster after a short illness, was born in Putnam, the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Amedee Maynard lived here most of her life. For many years she worked in the Hammond-Knowlton mills. Her husband is a reserve police officer in Webster; also four children survive.

The necessary $5,000 to pay the mortgage on Camp Woodstock, the summer camp of the Y. M. C. A. of three counties, Windham, Tolland and Hartford has been subscribed with $700 additional. The mortgage was held by the First National Bank. The amounts raised by the three counties was as follows:

Windham county raised $2,551, Tolland $1,515 and Hartford County $1,652.

The directors and trustees are now making plans for improvements at the camp this summer. Plans for a fine new dining hall have already been placed in the hands of an architect Ten solidly constructed tent houses will be built to replace sleeping tents. The $2,000 necessary for the building of these tent houses was a special gift donated to the camp during the January campaign. The camp infirmary, built last year by the voluntary work of boy campers, will this year be fully equipped with furniture and instruments by Dr. and Mrs. Sloan of Manchester.

Negotiations are also under way for the laying out of a new athletic field to include a baseball diamond, a tenth of a mile cinder track and jumping pits. It is also expected to materially improve the tennis courts before the opening of camp this summer.

Secretary Corbett of Windham county will be director of Camp Woodstock this summer with Frank B. Condon, of Tolland county and E. H. Thiennes and J. V. Lamberton of Hartford county as his assistants. The camp season will open June 26 with a five days leaders' training camp, lasting until July 1. Mr. Thiennes will be director of this leaders' camp.

WESTERLY

Town Solicitor Ferguson presented Frank Campinelli, who had previously been in court and who was directed to pay $5 weekly for the support of his four minor children. The court was told that he had paid 5 and then only $3 and having received $10.80 wages for a part time week a direction of the court was desired to have the payments average $5 weekly. Two of the children had been at a Rhode Island institution, but were not retained, as the father was able to work for their support. Custody of the children was given to the father in a recently granted divorce. Judge Turano, in continuing the case to May 8th, stated that if payment lapsed the accused would be brought into court and given a jail sentence.

Judge Turano asked if there was any one to claim 40 pint bottles of beer, 1 pint of gin and 1 pint of wine in a two-quart bottle, which had been seized in a raid on the place occupied by Santo Sposato, on Pond street. No one appearing, the contents, with vessels were declared forfeited to the state and ordered destroyed.

In an alleged case of slander with damages laid at $2,500, John Pendola was taken into custody by Sheriff Fred T. Mitchell, Friday on the complaint of Harry Hansen. The writ is returnable April 8th to the superior court for Washington county.

Steadman, Stephen DiPerry, Salvatore Piccolo, Joe Steadman, Francesco Vuono, Mary Thibault, Zephir Davigna, Geo. E. Broughton, Wilbur R. Earle, Edward Lallo. The cases were all continued one week.

New writs—John O. Mills vs Ralph A. Gardiner. Continued one week. Charles A. Fuller, chief of police of the town of Richmond, vs Bert Fogwell. This case was answered by Attorney Roche, who asked for a bill of particulars and surety for costs and the case was continued one week.

When Judge Michael J. Turano came into court he called the case of George H. Pease, 70 of Voluntown, Conn., a weaver, charged March 11th when taken into custody by Patrolman Madison aided by James E. Lanphear, with being drunk, on Canala street. He pleaded guilty and was fined $5 and costs amounting to $8.80, which he paid.

Santo Sposato appeared before Judge Turano and changed his plea of the previous week of not guilty to guilty. His place was raided on complaint to the police department and 40 pint bottles of beer, a small quantity of beer and a small quantity of wine were seized. Judge Turano fined him $50 and costs which was paid.

The jury in the automobile damage case of Frank E. Brown vs Mrs. Harriet M. Green came in with their verdict Friday afternoon, soon after 2.30 o'clock, having retired at about 11.15, and awarded plaintiff damages in the sum of $4,500. This was the last case on the Westerly trial calendar for this term of superior court for Washington county. Friday morning Judge Charles A. Walsh gave his charge to the jury at 10.45.

Matthew McGrath, 80, for many years familiarly known as "Matty" when he was a familiar figure as a white wing on the streets of Westerly, died Friday afternoon at the state infirmary at Howard, R. I. Mr. McGrath's wife, Bridget, died Dec. 29, 1922. There were no children. In his earlier life he was employed by the Smith Granite Works about their quarries and later entered the employ of the Westerly highway department and was a pensioner of the same at the time of his death. He resided for many years on Granite street up to a year and a half ago when he went to live on High street when failing health caused him to be sent to the state infirmary where he has been for two months.

He is survived by a sister, Mrs. Mary Walsh, of Boston, and by five nieces, Misses Mary, Anna, Margaret, Emma and Kate Cotter, and a nephew, David Cotter, all residing on High street.

MAUDE E. TEFFT SENTENCED TO 18 MONTHS AT HOWARD

Westerly, R. I., March 13.—Miss Maude E. Tefft, secretary-treasurer of the wrecked Kingston, R. I., Trust company, was brought to Westerly Friday morning from Washington county jail by Deputy Sheriff and Jailer George S. Phillips. Miss Tefft was dressed in black with high collar and a close hat. She was conducted to the women's waiting room, which contains the Peabody Law library.

After the Brown-Greene jury had retired, Attorney General of Rhode Island Charles P. Sisson, following a short conference appeared in court and accompanied by Miss Tefft and County Sheriff Fred T. Mitchell stood before Judge Walsh. Attorney Sisson said that he appeared on the indictments Nos. 371 and 372 to which the defendant had pleaded nolo. He said "the state asked for final disposition of both indictments at this time." One was a complaint charging embezzlement of $50,000 from the Kingston Trust company and the other a similar one of $3,500 from the People's Savings Bank of Providence, of which Miss Tefft was an agent Attorney Sisson asked that sentence be deferred on the Kingston Trust embezzlement and that she be held in her own recognizance in $10,000. On the People's Savings bank count he said the real responsibility law, and sentence was asked for. Miss Tefft, when asked by Judge Walsh if she had anything to say and replied "nothing" in a low voice." Judge Walsh said that he felt obliged to sentence her and that on this charge said "You may go down for eighteen months.

Miss Tefft left the Westerly court house about 3 o'clock Friday afternoon for Kingston all and it was reported that she would begin the 18 months sentence at Rhode Island state prison in Howard Monday next.

KIDNAPPER SHIELDED BY BOY WHOM HE ABDUCTED

New York, March 13.—When police today arrested Charles C. McClem, charged with kidnapping 10-year-old Paul Pennell in Columbus, Ohio, they discovered that both the man and boy had been in police stations here Tuesday. At that time, the boy claimed first that he had been kidnapped by McClem, but afterward when confronted by the man, said McClem was his father and that the kidnapping story was a hoax. The "father" promised to punish the "son." The pair departed.

Later Columbus police telegraphed instructions to arrest McClem, as a kidnapper and a fugitive from justice. After examination today police say McClem finally confessed he had kidnapped the boy, and the boy finally admitted he was Paul Pennell and not McClem's son, although each had maintained the father and son story for some time.

McClem, 38, is said to be a vaudeville tight-rope walker, known professionally as Anton Karl. The police said McClem told them he had lived with the Pennell family while in vaudeville in Columbus, and that both he and his wife became very fond of Paul. When McClem's wife was killed in a Columbus gas explosion he was awarded $5,000 damages, brought the Pennell family to New York to find work, spent most of his money on them, and finally sent them back to Columbus, according to the police version of his story.

TEN MINUTE LENTEN SERMON

CHRIST THE WORLD'S SAVIOR

Sermon topic, Faith: "Thy faith hath saved thee."—Luke 7:50.

Faith is the radio of the soul with God. Is salvation by faith a superstition? Is character necessary to salvation? The second question answers the first.

Faith is the exercise of soul power even when the object of one's faith is unworthy and false. The very exercise of faith produces effect in the mind and on the character, even in the body. The quack practitioner of psycho-therapy is familiar with this great fact.

Mighty energies are resident in man. Faith sets these energies in motion. It be true when the object is the unworthy or false, how much more must it be true when he object is the Infinite God. Read the record of Jesus and see what the power of faith is. As in the text, so frequently he recognizes the fact that the very exercise of faith is a healing activity. Therefore we are not to think of God as arbitrarily demanding faith but simply as calling attention to the great fact of our own nature that salvation is involved in its exercise.

But the foregoing is the lesser truth. The greater is that faith connects the soul with the power of God. There is a little electric power in your radio batteries. Their value, however, lies in the fact that they make your set active so that it can pick up the vibrations that have been broadcast from the mighty station.

There is some power in faith itself. Its efficacy for the salvation of the soul lies in the fact that it connects the soul with God. The mighty urgency of God's spirit is round about us. The active exercise of confidence in him admits it to the center of our being thus producing a living soul, a redeemed man.

Again, faith is the basis of friendship with man or with God. If your neighbor knows that you have no confidence in him your friendship will not materialize with him. The same is true between yourself and God. If you have no confidence in God, or if you refrain from giving some that confidence, then your friendship with the divine cannot be developed or maintained. It is faith that makes it possible for God to trust us.

But how can one believe if he doesn't? Where can faith be had if it is not possessed? Faith is largely a matter of choice. "Faith is the substance of things hoped for." That is. If it is a thing you want to be true act as though it were true and see if it doesn't work well. Do not wait for anyone to prove to you the existence of God. There is no one who can disprove his existence. You may live as though he lived, interpret your inner experiences as being contacts with him, and when you do so you will have evidence that you are on the right line.

But Christ is our Savior. When one's mind and heart are laid open before him without travail and without reserve, the attitude of faith is developed in man. He brings us simple advice that in his presence we are ready to accept. "Have faith in God.

GASOLINE OPERATED TRAINS.

In the introduction of a different type of motive power for the operation of lighter cars on railroad tracks there has been encountered the problem of providing adequately for the passenger traffic, the baggage and at the same time the express matter. One car might accommodate the passengers and their baggage but it makes no provision for the express, upon which much dependence is placed by business along the way.

In the putting into operation of gasoline cars by the Boston & Maine this situation seems to be overcome by the running of a two-car train, the second car being a trailer which would permit of a chance for giving attention to the express matter which would be handled by the steam trains in the place of which a cheaper means of transportation is provided.

For the past several years tests have been underway in an endeavor to provide service to the public through the substitution of the lighter cars. There are instances where this has been more successful than others. There are instances where it has failed to meet requirements because one car was inadequate, and it is would appear that the Boston & Maine arrangement would be just what was required. It is through such watering to conditions as they develop that lines on which the business does not warrant the operation of steam trains can be made to pay the costs of operation at least. If it is possible to run one, two or even three cars by the use of gasoline as the motive power it means an appreciable inread in the cost of equipment and the cost of operation.

How long this will suffice to meet the competition which is being offered by the automobiles and the motor trucks is problematical. There is the advantage of having an unobstructed right of way, and yet there is the cost of maintenance of that private way which does not fall in as large amount upon the competition that uses the highways, while the railroads which use gasoline for the driving of their trains must pay a tax on gasoline which goes to the maintenance of highways. Thus they must not only maintain their own roadbed but go into their pockets and help provide the roadbed for their competitors.

TREATY RATIFICATION.

After long years of needless delay, and efforts at the present time to further postpone action, the senate has ratified the treaty of the Isle of Pines, a treaty which puts that island to the south of Cuba under Cuban jurisdiction and one which has been hanging fire for more than two decades.

Disposition of this matter at this time stands to the credit of the present senate. Determined efforts were made on the part of a few to deliberate over the matter for another year or two, to try to talk it to death and to discourage action at this time. That they failed of their object indicated the attitude of the senate. It was clearly one of those instances which Vice President Dawes referred to in his address to the senate, when he urged upon it the necessity of reforming its methods. Time and against have a few been able to block action even when enough were in favor of a project to put it through could it be brought to a vote. Whether his advice had any influence or not, sufficient is it to say that slight encouragement was given to the Cope and filibuster. It was as if the senate was smarting under the criticism and was anxious to show that it was disposed to do the right thing in regard to this matter.

Nothing has accrued to the credit of the United States senate during the long time the treaty has been hanging fire. It has been used as an argument against the sincerity of this government in other matters concerning the insular and Latin-American republics. Whatever the reason for the delay it was always possible to attribute it to wrong motives and to hold it up as one of the things that contradicted our avowed policies.

If filibuster tactics were treated in such a manner every time they developed it is quite certain that there would be fewer of them, and the senate would come much nearer to doing business as it should.

IMMIGRATION LAW EVADERS.

It has been no secret to Secretary Davis of the department of labor that this country is receiving each year a large number of aliens who get in illegally. Because they cannot meet the requirements and pass the examinations, or because they cannot obtain entrance under the quota law here are thousands who are disregarding the restrictions and like the boy without the price at the circus, crawling under the tent.

How to stop this is a problem that has received much attention. Secretary Davis is to confer with the authorities patroling the Canadian border for the purpose of placing a check upon that large number who come in from that country, many of whom, as is to be expected under such circumstances, are not able to get the rating that would be required if they were to enter under the immigration law.

Whether increased vigilance can interrupt a greater number of the smuggled immigrants is a question. Perhaps it will be possible to so police the border as to bring about some check, but there is no reason to expect that it will all be stopped by policing. When restrictions are increased there is a greater incentive for evading them. More are willing to take the chance for the sake of getting in. This means an everlasting fight in which large numbers are bound to be able to point to the fact that our immigration laws means much for some and nothing for others.

In behalf of enforcement it is necessary that all possible efforts should be put forth. For that reason much benefit should result from the coming conference, but not until there is established a law requiring the registration of aliens will it be possible to check up and effectively obstruct the wholesale smuggling of immigrants. Increasing the restrictions has made this more and more apparent. It is calculated to and should discourage the evasion of our immigration laws. Conditions have long since warranted it.

GENEVA PLAN VANISHES.

Intimations have been strong that the plan of the league of nations for arbitration and disarmament, known as the Geneva protocol, was doomed. There have been indications that it would not be pursued further, that opposition to it had become so outspoken that there was no hope.

Thus the gathering at Geneva was only what was expected. It remained for the British foreign minister, Austen Chamberlain, to strike the blow and he did it in a manner which left no chance for argument. It was decisive, and even though it gave those who have steadfastly opposed the league a chance to say that it was no more than was expected, it was outspoken.

As the purpose of the league was to maintain peace by preventing war, there was a turning of eyes to the developments of the Geneva protocol to see how operations would be carried on. Arbitration and disarmament meant a decidedly forward step for many of the countries which belong to the league. Mr. Chamberlain was obliged to say that the plan could be pursued no further, and in doing so he was forced to admit the weakness of the league and its inability to carry out what has been expected of it. When he comes forward with the admission that the league covenant is mostly theoretical when it comes to the prevention of war it is to be realized that he is the spokesman of an empire on which the league is bound to place great dependence. The Chamberlain statement shattered the protocol, or at least what remained of it. It was likewise a serious underwater blow to the league of nations.

DR. SUN YAT SEN.

Because of his relationships with this country there has always been much interest in hte career of Dr. Sun Yat Sen in China. He was one of the big men of that country whose efforts and views have had their ups and downs. He has had opportunities for great constructive work and lived during the time when marked changes were taking place in his country. He was doubtless the holder of views that were far in advance of the rank and file of his people and it is not improbable, because thereof that he was more or less misinterpreted. He was looked to for leadership, and on different occasions stepped into the breach. When the revolution developed he was prepared for it. No doubt he had long anticipated and worked for it. Quite logical was his choice as the first president with the overthrow of the Manchu dynasty. It was a place of great responsibility, a place where even the strongest man was weak. He encountered opposition that was indeed serious. He was able to maintain his influence in only one part of China, but he was by no means suppressed.

Dr. Sun Yat Sen had been greatly impressed by this government and it was in hopes of establishing one in China along similar lines that he worked. He will figure in Chinese history, but not in the manner that he and his admirers had hoped. None probably has been brought to understand better the slow rate at which changes must be brought about in China, or the need of establishing better conditions in that country. He did his best and none will say but what he did it conscientiously.

THE MAN WHO TALKS

In The Messages and Papers of the Presidents there are words from the pen of "Old Hickory" in an annual address to congress, December 7, 1835. Tomorrow is the 154th anniversary of his birth, but probably no great notice will be taken of it. Such is the irony of fate, for certainly "Old Hickory" cut some figure in the matter of democracy, but aside from some party dinners in a few of our biggest cities nobody will disturb "Old Hickory." The sentence alluded to runs as follows: "From our diplomatic agents in Brazil, Chile, Peru, Central America, New Grenada and Venezuela constant assurances are received of the continued good understanding with the governments to which they are severally credited." The sentence in itself is not remarkable but it has an historical value as showing then the same as now, that the United States has always been able to keep on good terms with its neighbors.

Is there some underlying worth in the cross-word puzzle craze, or is it nothing more than a passing fad? Is it something that has its little day and then dies a natural death? As to its permanency nobody can speak with assurance. We are, however, far more positive as to its real value. We are clearly forced to admit that it is an intellectual game, like checkers and chess. It has enough facination to make it play rather than work, and still it may be a tax on one's mental energy. Its real worth to semi-invalids, whose minds need to be diverted from their complaints, can be readily seen. It is a game that can hardly fail to increase one's vocabulary, which, to most of us is altogether too limited. It tends to bring into vogue again an excellent book which ought never to be forgotten, and that is Roget's Thesaurus of Words and Phrases.

Science, always on the alert to discover something, is now contending that heart-disease is contagious, and the argument set forth to prove the statement is at least plausible. It is the writer states, when it is identical with acute rheumatism. The claim is made that up to the age of twenty, rheumatism is the cause of more heart-disease than all other causes combined. It is now largely held by physicians who have made a careful study of the matter during the last ten years, that acute tonsilitis, St. Vitus dance acute rheumatic fever and acute inflame of the heart are caused by the same infection "expressing itself in widely separated tissues of the body." And as heart-disease seems to follow these other diseases in so many instances leads to the conjecture that it is communicable as the others evidently are. The bedroom where any form of acute rheumatism previals ought no longer to be made a sort of social center.

There is one task that this foretaste of balmy spring ought to suggest to all of us, and that is to clear the cellar of that rubbish that naturally accumulates during the winter season. Both health and safety demand it. It furnishes the proper cultural ground for breeding disease, and certainly it does not help to put out a fire that is once started in the vicinity. Cleaning up the cellar can hardly be called an aid to religion. Whatsover our hands findeth to do in dirty cellar may be done with all our might so as to get the pesky thing over with as soon as possible, but there are cases on record where even church members have not always done it in an angelic frame of mind. But as it advances the cause of sanitation possibly the good Lord will overlook the spirit of the worker!

As the sun is creeping up higher and higher into the northern hemisphere, and giving the natural world a larger lease of life, one is reminded of Sir John Lubbock's statement in his Pleasures of Life: "Many of us walk through the world like ghosts as if we were in it, but not of it. We have 'eyes and see not, ears and hear not.' We must look before we expect to see. To look is much less easy than to overlook, and to be able to see what we do see, is a great gift." Ruskin goes so far as to say that "the greatest thing a human soul ever does in this world is to see something, and to tell what it saw in a plain way." We need not wait till the birds are fully here, and the flowers are in full bloom to see and feel a beautiful world. Along some lines these March days with the chill in the air are unsurpassed. The temperature is just right for a long stroll. After cleaning up the cellar you will find it an aid to devotion.

One of the most inexcusable trends in human life is that of complaining. It gets you nowhere, it makes you uncomfortable, and sooner or later you get the reputation of being an old crab. God have mercy on the man or woman who can see no good in anybody or anything! And the silliest of all complaining is against the weather, for which nobody is responsible. Whether our little puny minds can understand it or not, the weather is under the control of laws that are absolutely fixed, and have given to the world "seed time and harvest, summer and winter" ever since the earth was made and will so continue as long as it shall last. Of course there are things that invite a just criticism, but mere complaining does not mend matters. The 58th congress invited bitter complaint and got it, but it died the same as it had lived.

In the last issue of The Literary Digest, there is an extremely suggestive article on, "Shall We All Become Mulattoes?" It is not written in the spirit of a Nordic sense of superiority, but from a careful and scientific study of mixed or unnatural marriages. There is such a thing as miscegenation as harmful to one race as another. The most common evidence of this is the negroid or the mulatto, who seems to inherit the worst qualities of both parents. A coal-black is a vastly finer type of a man than any mixture with Indian, Spanish, or American blood. If any one questions this let him travel leisurely from El Paso to Mexico City. The half-breed whatever be the admixture of his blood is inferior to either of the races represented by his parents. It seems quite evident that the white, brown, red, yellow and black races were intended by the Creator to be kept separate, otherwise how can we explain the curse that is attached to miscegenation?

THE JONATHAN TRUMBULL MEMORIAL HIGHWAY

A petition which naturally commends itself to motorists in that its primary object is the improvement in a uniform manner of a well-connected thoroughfare crossing the state of Connecticut just been sent to the senate and the house of representatives by John A. Macdonald, highway commissioner of Connecticut, says an article in a recent issue of the New York Times. The petition was presented by Representative E. Hart Fenn of that state, and asks the cooperation of the Federal Government in the proposed improvement of the Jonathan Trumbull Memorial highway.

This name will doubtless be new to the majority of motorists who are familiar with Connecticut and other New England roads. It is, in fact, something practically new to that state, as the act establishing the highway of that name was only adopted by the general assembly of Connecticut in 1923. It does not imply the construction of a new road, but the connecting up with good hard-surfaced pavement of existing thoroughfares in a manner similar to that adopted in the laying out and improvement of the Lincoln highway, the Robert Lee highway in the south, the Roosevelt highway across the continent, the William Penn highway in Pennsylvania, the Hendrik Hudson Drive in New York state, and other routes throughout the country which have received distinctive names

It is eminently fitting that the legislature and public-spirited citizens of Connecticut should seek to commemorate the life and patriotic deeds of Jonathan Trumbull, who has been familiarly known in history since Revolutionary days as "Brother Jonathan." He was the war governor of the colony of Connecticut during that stirring period; and it is, perhaps, safe to say that the personal service and practical aid which he gave to Washington and the American cause were more continuous in unselfish loyalty and helpful results than was the case with any other of the colonial governors. Perhaps one explanation of this personal patriotism may be seen in the fact that of all the colonial governors the Connecticut executive was the only one chosen by the citizens of the colony.

Highway a Fitting Memorial

The house in which the Connecticut revolutionary governor was born in Lebanon and the house in which he lived during the greater part of his life are well preserved, and in 1891 the Connecticut Society of the Sons of the American Revolution celebrated its acquisition and restoration of the historic war office in Lebanon, originally the Trumbull store, and that building is now an interesting colonial and revolutionary museum. No fitting memorial to Jonathan Trumbull has ever been erected and it was due to this fact that the Connecticut legislators provided for the motor highway bearing his name.

In the recent petition to congress for aid toward completing the route in a proper manner, Commissioner Macdonald says:

"The state of Connecticut feels that in the creation of this memorial the United States should have its part, for Jonathan Trumbull because of the nature of his services belonged not merely to Connecticut, but is one of the outstanding historical figures of our nation.

"During the period of the revolution he was for years at the head of the war department of our government. To him, more than to any other man, Washington ascribed the credit of maintaining our armies in the field during the most depressing years of the revolutionary war."

The Jonathan Trumbull memorial highway has a length of practically 110 miles. It begins at the northwestern extremity of the state of New York border line and crosses the state in a southeasterly direction, ending at the Rhode Island line near Westerly, close to Long Island Sound.

Route Through the State

It starts in the town of Salisbury, extending through North Canaan, Norfolk, Winsted, New Hartford, Canton, through the city of Hartford and then follows the trunk line through East Hartford, Manchester, Bolton and Andover to a point about one and one-half miles east of Andover Center, thence through Columbia and Lebanon centers and intersecting the present trunk line highway from Willimantic to Norwich at or near Yantic, and then through Norwich over the Westerly trunk line to its intersection with the New London and Westerly trunk line highway at the Rhode Island state line near Westerly.

With the exception of about twelve miles the route is in very good condition. The really unfinished sections are in the vincinity for many years and close to the cemetery in which he is buried.

The greater part of the highway is from 16 to 18 feet wide, but at several places and through the larger cities the width is 20 or more feet, in Hartford being from 70 to 88 feet. Many portions at present are gravel roads. The greater part of the surface is of macadam and bituminous macadam and about ten miles are of concrete or bituminous concrete.
